Warden Bickersteth Appeals to Support

A UNIFYING INFLUENCE

In addressing the undergraduates in Convocation Hall on the occasion of the President's opening address, the Warden of Hart House, Mr. J. B. Bickersteth, pointed out that many of the ideas of Hart House were being adopted by other universities. During the past summer he had visited the University of Paris at the request of the authorities. Here three miles north of the university and right in Paris was a property of one hundred acres on which was growing up a huge university city. Each nation was erecting a building for its own students, five or six nations had already built, and among them was Canada, which possessed a hostel where forty-five Canadian students were living. It was estimated that within five or six years some ten thousand students would be living on this property.

Mr. Rockefeller had recently given two million dollars to build a "Hart House" in the centre of this university city. The University of London on Student Paper

Special to "The Varsity"
Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 27.—All freshmen and sophomore candidates and staff members of "The Tech," student newspaper of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, will receive credit for written work in the course of English and History for all copy written for publication in "The Tech." This arrangement is in force here for the first time in several years, and if proven satisfactory, will continue to be in effect indefinitely. Work is to be graded on a point system, which will be in effect by the second week of the school term.

RADIOS AND AUTOS HINDRANCE TO STUDY

Tenacity of Purpose Stressed by President Falconer in Opening Address

REFERS TO STAFF CHANGES

"Far more failures come from dissipation of faculties on a multitude of lesser interests that befog the mind and will, than from lack of brain power," stated Sir Robert Falconer, when warning students against the distracting influence of the auto and the radio in his opening address at Convocation Hall last Wednesday.

When referring to the various changes in the faculty, the President definitely stated that the Chair of Physiology would not be permanently filled this year.

The life of a student was compared to a canoeist guiding his vessel up a narrow stream. This represented the Preparatory School phase. Gradually the banks of the stream receded, and the student finds himself on the broad lake of a University Course. More skill is required to guide his craft over the wider surface of the lake, and avoid striking such snags as Supplementary Exams. The skill and strength acquired by the student in the early stage of his journey must be called into play if he would successfully reach the opposite shore.

The President warned the students against the danger of forming opinions without having sufficiently absorbed the relevant facts. A graduate, he stated, should have a bird's-eye view of the subjects studied during his course.

Sir Robert stressed courage and tenacity of purpose as being the two great essentials of a successful University career. These attributes, added to the moral and intelligent characteristics which the average student receives as an inheritance from his parents, are the foundations on which successful careers are built. "Take this raw material of your inheritance," concluded the President, "mould it, and fashion it, and develop it into your own best self."

ADDITIONAL SCHOLARSHIPS

Post-war Period Marked by Surplus of Dental Graduations

The repetition of last year's small registration in the faculty of Dentistry is reported to have hastened plans for the enlargement of the future first years and the prevention through research and scholarships of either a surplus of dentists, as in the post-war years, or such a reaction as that which obtains at present.

This year an additional scholarship of the value of $150 is to be awarded to the student in first year Dentistry holding the next highest matriculation standing to the student who is awarded the J. B. Willmott Memorial Scholarship. The Willmott scholarship of the value of $250 was announced recently to be awarded annually to the registrant in first year Dentistry holding the highest matriculation standing of those enrolled in the class. Applications for both scholarships will be received on or before the last day for registration in the Faculty of Dentistry, namely, October 5, 1928.

The occasion for this additional scholarship is the need for adequate enrolment this year that there may be graduated five years hence 50 dentists, which is estimated will be required at that time to meet the public demand for dental service. The Faculty of Dentistry believes that in the public interest, as well as in the best interests of dental education, it is advisable to maintain as nearly as possible average classes rather than having to face the extremes of the pendulum swinging from abnormally large to abnormally small classes.

Last year the registration in first year Dentistry was only 24, due to some extent to the higher standards of entrance, but doubtless more particularly to the general impression that there were already sufficient dentists in Ontario. An equally small registration this year would, considering the increase in population and the natural shrinkage in the number of dentists, fail to meet the public need five years hence.

The University of Toronto has the only dental faculty in Ontario, and there are no dental schools in any of the Western Canadian provinces with the exception of Alberta. The matriculation for Dentistry is complete Pass Matriculation with standing in Honour Matriculation in prescribed subjects. The standards of entrance and the expenses of the course are no higher at Toronto than at other universities of the first rank.

Tall Erection on Campus Typifies Spirit of Age

Even the sacred precincts of the University, whose halls are more generally associated with the pursuit of knowledge than with the commercial atmosphere of the outer world, are not immune from the rush of construction and building which characterizes Toronto to-day. From one of Canada's most remote provinces has come lumber wherewith to erect a new flag-pole on the campus. Alike the admiration of tourist and frosh, the flag-pole stands as an ever-present symbol of Canada's position in the British Empire. Yet even its stout timbers are prone to the attacks of foul time; decay menaces its solidarity, and so, to meet the changing conditions of the time, workmen are fashioning a newer and stronger mast at the head of which to fly the Union Jack.

GRUESOME REMAINS JUSTIFY TRADITION

Morbid Interest is Taken in Skelton Discovered at Old Trinity

FATAL INITIATION?

What may be the aftermath of some advanced hazing such as was in vogue in Trinity College in the days of its sojourn on Queen Street startled Torontonians this summer when workmen engaged in demolishing the old building discovered a human skeleton in an old brick up room in the basement. The police and the Coroner immediately began an investigation, and the skeleton was removed in pieces. The find was made not in the College itself as was reported but in the "Jag House," a building used as a freshmen's residence until a few years before the removal of the College to Queen's Park. This building was once used as a sanatorium for the "Keely Cure." The skeleton may have been the remains of some patient—a worthy subject for the opponents of the L.C.A.

Sprawled out in the dust and debris of many years accumulation the gruesome object was found late one afternoon when a wall was removed revealing a small chamber completely walled in so that entrance could only be made by chopping down the wall. There was no evidence of fractures in either the skull or other bones.

The skeleton lay stretched at full length on a sloping floor of the room, which is about ten by twelve feet. From the information available it is believed that no inquest was held.

Various rumours have been handed down among the students of Trinity College concerned with the existence of a skeleton in the building. It was supposed to be a relic of the old Trinity Medical School. The rumour has it that a Don returning late one night to his room was confronted by this skeleton seated before his fireplace. As this was in the days before the O.T.A. his feelings may be well imagined.

COMMENCES TO-DAY

The University of Toronto Rifle Association again offers an opportunity to those who wish to improve their marksmanship.

This Association was organized March 4, 1904, by a small group of enthusiasts who desired to see rifle shooting take its proper place in the activities of the University. Due to the untiring efforts of a small number of members of the Staff the organization thrived in its earlier years and many who learned the use of the rifle in the Association served in the Great War.

Following the organization of the C.O.T.C. the rifle association, after the war, was disbanded by the Department of Militia and Defence and it required considerable effort to have its charter renewed. After its revival in 1921 it became essentially an under-

Belief in God Universal States Kansas Pastor

Special to "The Varsity"
Lawrence, Kansas, Sept. 27.—"Consciously or unconsciously, every man believes in God," declared Dr. Burris A. Jenkins, pastor of the Christian Church here, in addressing students of the University of Kansas. Dr. Burris preached that man's every act showed that he believed in an ordered universe which implied a creator and a supreme intelligence. If this were not so, man could not confidently go to sleep without fear of never awakening.

Pessimism, skepticism, in their essence, were pointed out to be rareties, and the students were warned against the influence of Philistines and destructive philosophies.

"Schoepenhauer was a wonderful kind of old gentleman," declared the speaker, "and Clarence Darrow, the Schoepenhauer of to-day, is one of the most delightful personalities I know. Even these men had to believe, despite their skeptic profession."

YOUR NEWSPAPER

There is a new flag-pole on the campus. Instead of three, as formerly, there are now four chairs in the Hart House barber shop. In company with the other metropolitan dailies, we are now busily engaged, without the assistance of a harried Registrar, in announcing that the total registration of students is either larger or smaller than that of last year, provided that it is not the same. Several people of our acquaintance went to lectures yesterday. All of these startling manifestations drive us to the one conclusion: "The year has begun!"

"The Varsity," as you may have already perceived, has begun too. Its publication has been delayed until the end of the week, with the cunning notion of whetting the undergraduate appetite and arousing the expectations of its many friends, counsellors and guides. We congratulate you upon surviving the mad rush for our first issue and obtaining the much sought-after copy. As you have probably already read Champus Cat and the advances on the rugby season, it will do you no harm to stay with this column and experience the sensation of reading an editorial through to the very end.

You own this newspaper. Speaking seriously, we may assume that its success depends on its ability to reflect and to interest the undergraduate mind. (We are making an assumption in that last phase, of course, but there is no reason to anticipate any objection on the part of the reader.) The paper is written primarily not for the professor or the graduate student, but for the undergraduate and about undergraduate things.

You will have one of two reactions to your paper. You will either like it or dislike it. If you like it we can only express our admiration for a person of such rare parts and deep penetration. But if you dislike it, there must be some reason for your attitude. Why not tell us? We are glad to receive suggestions and advice.

Those that condemn "The Varsity" may be divided into two classes. The first is composed of those that are dissatisfied with what they read but do not wish to write anything themselves. In the second class are the ones that criticize in the belief that they could write better stuff.

We must admit that both of these groups have a right to make themselves heard. No criticism of this paper is invalidated because its author does not care to do any of the work connected with the publishing of it. But there is one thing he can do. He can write us a letter in which he could explain the defects he observes and state wherein the managing editor or the news editor or the sporting editor or the feature editor displeases him. He might also name a method by which the erring official could be reformed and once more made a useful member of society.

If you believe that the contents of "The Varsity" would be improved by your presence on the staff we shall be glad to welcome

Art, Music and Drama

Introduction

It is with some trepidation, gentle reader, that we take up the pen of the critic and, we might add, the mantle of our late-illustrious. Like the Editor, the critic is supposed to have opinions, and anyone who has opinions is likely to be more criticized than criticizing; besides, we have rather a lot to live up to. So, to those four or five curious souls who are actually in the habit of reading this column and "With the Theatres," we should like to murmur a word of defence before the trial.

In the first place we are lowbrow (just of the plain sort who like to go to shows and then to talk about them) and we are writing this column for the great body of readers, the undergraduates, many of whom are lowbrows like ourselves. Our duty to them is two-fold: in this column we must give all student art what we consider its just due of discussion and of praise, and in our "With the Theatres" we must tell them frankly just what the shows are like and whether it is worth while to miss the Wednesday afternoon lab. In both, gentle reader, we shall say just what we think, so that when we say a thing is good we really mean that we think it is good, and when we think it is particularly vile, we shall not hesitate to say so. Finally, gentle reader, when we don't think of anything at all, we shall spare you the agony of reading about that. We shan't write anything.

B.D.B.

Hello! Somehow fall seems to follow the w.k. summer automatically, as it were, and thereby the conductor of this column shoots the first salvo of puns with which he proposes pestering the conscript sons and daughters during the present year. We hope that everybody has had a magnificently swell time last summer. The freshmen, we note are coming to college, as they always do. Our new roommate is a dentist, and we sleep with our mouth shut.

C—C

To lessen the bewilderment of the freshmen, whom we shall not call "frosh," this Champus Cat racket was founded a long time ago by a cynical person named Halliday, if we remember correctly. Came others, among them one Bee Gee, who attained such a polish that he belloyed from time you. If, through pressure of studies or because of fallen arches, you are unable to become a regular member of our staff, we will welcome occasional contributions. Unfortunately newspaper articles are only too often dull and stodgy because they are written from a sense of duty. Writing from a sense of injury or indignation, or better, of humour, you would probably achieve at least something fresher or more vigorous than a writer stale from over-work.

Perhaps if you do this you will realize the task faced by a daily university newspaper. This is not a literary magazine, of which, heaven knows, there are enough on the campus already, but a daily news bulletin designed to serve our widely scattered colleges and faculties. To garnish the news bulletin to appeal to those who may not be interested in the events of a particular day is the problem we invite you to share with us.

to time for assistance. There was also Jno., who is now on the briny en route for Cambridge, where he will aim for a Ph.D. And then N.A.B., the w.k. bouncing bard who brought the "Cat" to such a high talent and exuberance that it is doubtful if the like will be seen again. N.A.B. is now racing about town writing literature and preparing, we suspect, a third volume of verse.

C—C

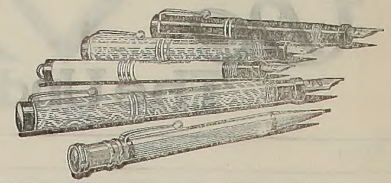

Dee, the present clown, is usually considered clever, but terribly fresh.

C—C

Contributions of humour and exemplary propriety are requested. The following applicants will be thrown out, however, and forced to read the University Calendar: Former writers of "Form News" for high school papers, Ambassadors of Empire, visiting parliamentarians, boy orators, and writers of fancy verse.

C—C

Shall we go over to Bloor and Bay? No, let's go over to Yonge and bark! Dee.

BLUE AND WHITE MEET ARGOS IN EXHIBITION GAME TO-MORROW

SPEAKING OF SPORT

King Football has re-ascended his throne, and his faithful followers are anxiously awaiting the opening of festivities. For some weeks past the coaches have had their men hard at work and are about ready to present their "hopefuls" to the public. In the usual pre-season "dope" the experts have installed as favourites Hamilton Tigers in the Big Four, Balm Beach in the O.R.F.U., and Queen's in the Intercollegiate. The Intercollegiate, as is customary, again holds the centre of the stage.

"Les" Blackwell, who has been appointed to succeed "Ronny" MacPherson as head coach, has no small task. The Intercollegiate team has lost some of its outstanding players of last season through graduation and exams, Trimble, Sinclair, Don Carrick and Allan Stollery being among those missing. Their places will be difficult to fill, but men are being developed who bid fair to carry on the good work. Darling from R.M.C. is the most promising recruit, and may be a shining light on the backfield. He has plenty of experience, having also played at Upper Canada.

Captain Murray Snyder at quarter, Harrison, Davies, Darling and Alec Carrick, seem certain to give opposing wing men plenty of trouble. Keith, Bean and Little of former teams will probably form the nucleus of a strong line.

The season is yet too young to have given a large number of candidates time to display their wares in actual conflict. The game with Camp Borden last Saturday gave the spectators only a fair chance to pick the coming line-ups both for the Intercollegiate and the O.R.F.U. About four full teams were used by Varsity, and indications are that when the schedule opens two good teams will wear the "blue."

Among those conspicuous by their absence in this season's list of Intercollegiate stars will be Harry "Red" Batstone. Without a doubt one of the best, perhaps the best, football players that ever shone on Canadian grid-irons, his absence from the game will be regretted by every lover of football, with the quite possible exception of some of the opposing boards of strategy. For six years he has worn the Tricolour, and Queen's without Batstone will be like "Doug" Fairbanks playing the part of a one-legged man with bad eyesight.

SENIOR RUGBY MEN SETTLE INTO COLLAR

Clash with Argonauts at Varsity Stadium To-morrow

BACKFIELD OF NEW MEN

Looks are often deceiving. They may be so in the case of the Intercollegiate football team. In past autumns when the students were prepared for a banner year in the fall pastime with the stars all strutting their stuff before the fray, and a great yell raised about the championships already tucked away, the teams have fallen below their expected form.

This year with the firsts conceded only an outside chance in the trophy hunt, they may kick the old dope bucket for a well needed tumble. There are no Warren Snyders on the outfit, nor is there anyone that can come near the ability of that sturdy star, but there is a whole herd of men that don't know when they are beaten and will fight for a chance to show their wares.

Every man that is still being carried, off the Big Blue team is on his toes all the time, and well he might be, or he will find himself down with the Orphans.

With Jack Sinclair incredible this year on account of the examination question, and Trimble now a graduate, Les Blackwell is building up a new backfield that may turn the tables on the wise ones. Les has Davy of last year's second team and Darling of R.M.C. working on the backfield, and although neither of them is a flashy player, they both have great possibilities, particularly Darling, of whom Carroll and Blackwell expect great things.

At the quarter back position Murray Snyder, the popular captain, should fill the bill, and he is the man that can get the team working well by instilling confidence in his squad.

The team will undergo the old acid test to-morrow when they hitch up with the Argonauts at the Varsity Stadium. The set-to will give the form followers a thing or two to chew on, while it will give the coaches a chance to see what their charges can do under heavy fire as the Argos are conceded as a strong team this year.

VARSITY SECONDS UNDERGO CHANGES

Grouping with Kitchener and Sarnia Indicates Keen Contest

SINCLAIR RETURNS

The Ontario Rugby Football Union team spotting the Blue colours are still very much incomplete, as those sent down from the Firsts will help to strengthen it, while anyone now with the Orphans that shows particularly well will be boosted up to the Intercollegiate squad. Despite this constant changing around of players and the consequent instability, the Orphans will as usual make a big splash.

They are grouped with Sarnia and Kitchener, and the winner of the Blue group will take on the winner of the other group, of which Balm Beach is considered the class.

The Sarnia and Kitchener teams are up from the Intermediate section, and according to what the dispatches say, are no weaklings. The Blues are in the softer group of the two, although that does not mean any letting up of Douglas' driving of his men. He is after a winner.

Good news for the Orphans is the fact that Jack Sinclair is back and may fill in on the backfield. If he does so, and there is a strong possibility of that happening, the Orphans will be a hard twelve to stop. Although Sinclair is transferring his affections from University College to the Medical school, he will be ineligible for the Firsts. His decision to change to the Meds course, although coming after two years of playing on the Intercollegiate squad, is not influenced by rugby, as he has only two more years on the first team owing to the four year rule that was passed at the last meeting of the Intercollegiate Union. The juniors of last year, Intercollegiate champs, are making a big display on the outfit and will in all likelihood find a few regular berths. Don Wood, Spencer, Frank Scott, Solandt, Galoway, Squires, and Kirk are all fighting for a location. These were promising juniors last year and should make things hum this season.

Recalcitrant Freshmen Roam Campus With Apathetic Bathos of Shorn Sheep

Classical tragedy on a high plane is being enacted on the campus these days with certain of the gentlemen of the first year in leading roles. Sophomores are rushing about in trios after the manner of Clotho, Lachesis and Atropos. One holds, the other pulls, and the third cuts.

In short it is shearing time and ties are being severed: the freshmen are being cut off from all that is near and dear to them. In fact, so dear to them have been their cravats that they have kept them inside their coats in very fear and dread of wearing them out. And an epidemic of amputations has followed in the direction of which process the surgeons have followed the well-known axiom: "Brevity is the soul of wit."

It seems that innocent eyes have been blinded by the glare from their bosoms of the neckware done in the brightest shades of red and white and green. But the sophomores, on the contrary, have insisted that these quiet and conservative designs are a sight for sore eyes. However, in punishing the ungrateful ones and those so insensible of the privileges contingent on freshman status in a great university as to refuse to wear their badges of honour in prominent fashion, the sophs have been kind enough to cut only three-quarters of the tie away and leave their victim a precious remnant.

The work of vengeance meets with the approval of all years but one. We have only one criticism to make of it. It is customary before shearing lambs, according to our slight agricultural experience, to wash them thoroughly. This point of discipline has been sadly neglected thus far.

Wycliffe Will Bestow Degrees on Distinguished Graduates

To honour two of its distinguished graduates who have been raised to the episcopacy Wycliffe College will confer upon them the degree of Doctor of Divinity at the annual convocation which will be held in Sheraton Hall, Tuesday evening. Those receiving the degrees will be the Rt. Rev. George Alexander Rix, Bishop of Caledonia, and the Rt. Rev. Peter Yonetaro Matsui, Japanese bishop of the diocese of Tokio (in absentia). The Reverend Professor T. W. Isherwood will give the address.

past hockey games have been very poorly attended, as is evidenced by the fact that only 27 season tickets for hockey were issued last year. Rugby games have always been fairly well patronized, and it was thought advisable to issue books containing tickets for all scheduled sports. He drew attention to the fact that these tickets will not be valid for any extra games which may be played, such as those necessitated by a tie, or play-offs between outside teams. Holders of these tickets, however, will have a preference on tickets for any such games.

No other tickets will be issued, and only one book will be sold to each student. Registration cards must be presented when purchasing tickets. The price this year will be four dollars per book for both men and women students.

Gordon Burns, Secretary of the Students' Administrative Council, in an interview with "The Varsity," pointed out that this is a very reasonable price considering the number of games to which a student is admitted.

Last year the rugby season tickets were $2.50, and the hockey tickets $2.00, and these were for senior games only. This year's price is fifty cents less than the total for last year and gives admittance to all fixtures, including Mulock Cup and Jennings Cup finals, for which last year's tickets were invalid.

The early purchasing date is arranged so that these tickets can be used for the Interfaculty Track Meet on October 10th and the initial rugby game when McGill plays the Varsity team here on October 13th.

The tickets in the book will be numbered, and a notice will appear in "The Varsity" before each game or meet telling what number will be used for that particular fixture. Only one ticket can be used for each game.

Mr. Burns stated that the chief reason for this innovation is that in the with its twenty-three thousand students scattered all over London, was also contemplating a building for student activities which was to incorporate many of the features of Hart House.

The Warden said that Hart House, without losing the reputation it already enjoyed as a place of good fellowship and good times, was becoming a great unifying influence and a great spiritual force in the life of the University. He reminded the students that they were building for generations to come, and the achievement of the future depended on their realization of what Hart House was trying to accomplish and on their wise and whole-hearted support.

graduate organization. Its success is said to be due largely to the efforts of Messrs. F. L. Mills, T. E. Hayhurst and A. A. Somerville.

For undergraduate students who do not wish to become members of the C.O.T.C. or those who are members of the C.O.T.C. and wish to become better marksmen the rifle association affords the opportunity to practice both outdoor and gallery shooting. Rifles, ammunition, etc., are supplied by the Department of National Defence, and only a small membership fee is charged. Each member is eligible to compete in sweepstakes and for the O.R.A. silver medal, the Interfaculty Bronze Medals (5) presented by Prof. Delury, the Intercollegiate Association medals (7 silver, 1 gold), the Delury Shield, the Mitchell Cup and the Intercollegiate Trophy and 8 miniatures.

During the winter (November till March) indoor shooting is held in the Hart House range. In this as well as in outdoor shooting good coaching is given, and every effort is made to teach the novice to shoot and the marksman to improve. Indoor shooting is instructive and competitive; sweepstakes, trophies, etc., may be won.

The Association welcomes again the members of former years and invites men of the first year to enroll.

Shooting begins on Long Branch ranges this afternoon. Days for shooting will be Tuesday and Friday afternoons and Saturday mornings during month of October. For further information students are asked to report at Hart House range from 12.30 to 1.30 p.m., Oct. 1 to 5.

All former members and others who are interested will meet in the Hart House range, Monday, 12.30 p.m., to organize for the coming year.

OLD-TIME SABBATH STRICT AND QUANT BUT BROUGHT PEACE

Dr. Maltby Declares World to

CONVOCATION HALL SERVICE

British Preacher Urges Modern World to Guard Well
Its Heritage

In speaking at Convocation Hall last evening, Dr. Maltby of England took as his subject the great heritage handed down to those of the present day by past generations. "You had a great birthright in your hands; for God's sake, and for the sake of those who come after you, take care of it and leave it richer than you found it," was his earnest injunction. Taking as a leading example of this precious heritage the Sabbath Day, he pointed out that the rules laid down by our forefathers for the keeping of the Sabbath seem arbitrary and quaint to us to-day; yet the fact remains that in a world half deafened with its own noise, we gain quiet and a different mental air—a spiritual life not to be let go. On the Sabbath we should find the time to stand back from daily toil; to listen for the ten thousand voices which proclaim the great debt we owe to those who have handed down this heritage to us. We are its guardians, as Esau was the guardian of Abraham's heritage.

Abraham, obeying some indefinable urge, had torn himself away from all that he knew and loved best. At this great cost he had discovered the possibility of converse with God; he kept his secret, treasured it and held it. The whole world had been waiting for this secret, yet when it came into Esau's possession he valued it so lightly he sold it for nothing—for a morsel of meat. Dr. Maltby pointed out that our heritage has likewise been created. Stage by stage and at the price of great patience and toil. Unlike Esau, however, we should not sacrifice it for momentary gain, but should guard it and add to its richness. To carry out this aim we should remember we are sent into the world with two purposes: to build character and to do a certain work. To be truly effective the one should neither be offset by nor neglected for the other. A common mistake is to neglect the soul for the sake of work.

Furthermore, he declared, these ends

LUNCH ROOM RENOVATED FOR HART HOUSE MEN

Reading Room Annex is Added to Comptroller's Offices

Due to the growth of the administrative staff in the Warden's and Comptroller's offices, the familiar alcove in the Hart House reading room has been converted into another office for the Comptroller's department.

Last year the hall committee gave careful consideration to the improvement of the lunch room adjoining the Tuck Shop. Since a considerable number of students bring their own lunches, the Comptroller felt that steps should be taken to make the room more attractive. Accordingly a detailed scheme was worked out and confirmed by the Board of Stewards. During the summer, the walls have been re-plastered and specially painted in an artistic colour combination. A number of chairs with special table attachments have been installed also.

Opening For Reporters

Several openings on "The Varsity" news staff are available this year, owing to promotions and graduation. Students who desire journalistic training are asked to report to the news office, in Hart House, at once.

Correct Addresses

Each student is reminded that he should use that his correct street address and telephone number are entered with the Registrar of his College or the Secretary of his Faculty. The University Directory is now in preparation and it is necessary that correct addresses and telephone numbers be furnished without delay.

MANY FRESHMEN COME TO SEEK B.A. DEGREE

MEDS LOSE: OTHERS GAIN

New Men in Arts Outnumbers
Last Year's Classes

Early registration figures from the various Faculties and Colleges indicate that there will be fully as many students enrolled this year at Varsity as in 1927. A continued decrease in first year Medicine and a far larger registration in Occupational Therapy are the outstanding changes according to the figures available at present.

The freshman year compares very favourably, from the point of view of numbers, with past generations. There are already 840 registered in first year Arts, with quite a number still to register. Last year 830 was the total registration in first year Arts. Registration figures for the higher years are not yet obtainable, owing to numerous late arrivals.

The first year Meds are weak again this year. Only 96 are registered as compared with 123 now in the second year, most of whom were fresh last year; in 1927 the freshmen numbered 120. The total registration in the Faculty of Medicine is 703, a decrease of 13.

GOLF ON THE CAMPUS AT U. OF KANSAS

Two Courses Laid Out at University of Kansas for Undergrads

BOTH MEN AND WOMEN

Special to "The Varsity"
Lawrence, Kansas, Sept. 29.—Two golf courses, a nine hole and a six hole one, have been added to the athletic equipment of the University of Kansas here. Both these courses are situated in the university grounds and are available for use to all students who are members of gymnasium classes. The fee for other students is to be five or six dollars a year, or 25 cents a round.

These links have been made in connection with the athletic departments purpose of "every student playing his favourite game."

The first fairly of the nine hole course is directly beside the engineering building. The remainder of the links lies off across one corner of the campus. It is regarded as a "sporty course."

Both men and women may play on the courses, and it is thought that once it is started a large number of students will take part.

SOPH-FROSH FRACAS AS JAPANESE USES JUI-JITSU AGAINST FIVE

The first fracas of the season between sophomores and freshman to reach public attention occurred Saturday at Victoria College. This was of a nature altogether apart from the customary tapping, bed-dumping and horse-play. A Japanese student, M. Akiyama, who has spent some time at Albert College, Belleville became involved with five sophomores in regard to styles of wearing the conventional tie, and in the course of the argument is variously reported to have laid out cold from one to five.

A fellow freshman of Mr. Akiyama's living in the Charles St. residence informs "The Varsity" that the sophomores, five in number, set upon Akiyama in an effort to shear his tie as a penalty for wearing it within his vest. They succeeded, but Mr. Akiyama, not versed in western ways, resented the attempt and laid about him with a few jui-jitsu tricks (in which he is an expert) and knocked out one of the sophomores. A few minutes later he entered the residence, wearing the mutilated tie and apparently not resenting the treatment meted out to him.

It is understood, however, that Mr. Akiyama had previously been warned for refusing to wear a tie, and when he approached wearing his tie inside, it was forcibly removed and sheared. Then one of the sophomores, F. B. Hart, Parry Sound, attempted to retie the tie and was treated to a blow not accepted by the Marquis of Queensbury rules. Mr. Akiyama then stamped upon the tie. Mr. Hart had to be carried to his residence and has been in bed since then.

It is not known what Mr. Akiyama's reactions to the tie wearing have been. He has spent over a year at Albert College and is not inexperienced altogether in western ways. He had previously been informed of the bizarre tie-wearing customs in force here. He claims that his blow was quite in accordance with the rules of jui-jitsu. He is understood to be a Christian. His father is a Buddhist and his mother a Christian.

The ruling of the Caput forbids violence of a physical nature. The offence would seem in this case to have been on the side of the sophomores. R. Fredenburg, President of the Victoria College Students' Parliament, was away and could not be reached over the week-end. Chancellor R. P. Bowles repudiated the account of the affair which appeared in an evening paper on Saturday.

FOOTBALL MANAGER HONORED PERSONAGE

U. of South California Ap-

Teams

ALL HAVE EQUAL CHANCE

Special to "The Varsity"
Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 30.—What next?

Football managers at the University of Southern California will wear a distinctive dress this year. They will wear blue jeans with salt and pepper sweat shirts. The junior managers will wear a uniform consisting of cords and white sweaters trimmed in cardinal and gold.

Canadians will be relieved to learn that it is no longer necessary here for a man to work four years for a senior manager's job. Every man that reports for a sophomore's job will be given an immediate try-out and the best will be selected. At the end of the year the five best sophomore managers will be appointed by the board of student managers to junior managers. This position rates along with any junior class office. The best junior manager will in turn be selected as the senior manager.

"We urge not only fraternity men to try out but also any men on the campus who are willing to work for the honour. Any man who reports will be given the same treatment and

Suspicious Shun Signs Warning of Real Danger

Owing to failure in some of the ties, the tower of Victoria College is being repaired. Signs warn students to keep to the west side of the front steps, but meet with general disregard owing to the suspicious attitude of students at this time of year. Pieces of tile and scuffling have been seen falling past windows, but so far as is known no one has been hit.

Dr. Maltby is Preacher in Trinity College This Week

No man in religious circles in Great Britain holds a higher place amongst students than Dr. Maltby, who is in Toronto at present.

He came over to deliver the third series of the Burwash Memorial lectures in Victoria College. He was present at the Student Christian Movement Conference at Elgin House, and spoke in Convocation Hall last night.

Dr. Maltby will speak every day this week in Trinity College, Hoskin Ave., at 5 o'clock. These meetings are being held especially for students, and all men and women in the University are cordially invited to attend. He will also be speaking at other times in the several colleges.

AMERICAN COLLEGE DOES ATTEND CHURCH

But Also Drinks, and Does Not Read the Holy Scriptures

SO SAY 'UNDERGRADUATES'

Special to "The Varsity"
New York, Sept. 30.—Eighty-three per cent of American college men and ninety-one per cent of the women attend church regularly.

A fondness for liquor is the chief point of moral deterioration admitted by 39 per cent of the men and 33 per cent of the women.

Only seven per cent make a practice of reading the Bible. About half read it occasionally.

The foregoing estimates are the conclusion of a report made by the Institute of Social and Religious Research, and entitled "Undergraduates." Senior students in 22 colleges throughout the States were questioned. The majority expressed satisfaction with their own moral progress and stated that their religious convictions had strengthened since their first year.

Over eighty per cent replied that they believed in evolution. Less than fifty per cent stated their belief in the Bible as an historical record. The most regarded it as the presentation of a satisfactory system of ethics, a beautiful piece of literature and a "significant, though not entirely authentic, history."

NEW LIBRARY SCHOOL IS U. OF T. NOVELTY BEGINS THIS YEAR

One Year Course in Library Management Leads to Certificate

ADMINISTERED BY O.C.E.

Present Form is New But
to 1911

A school of instruction in the science of library supervision is amongst this year's novelties at the University of Toronto. The Library School, as it is called, is to be connected, for the purposes of administration, with the Ontario College of Education and the course of training will be conducted in the building of the College.

Despite the fact that the school is new to the University, it has, however, a history behind it dating back to 1911.

In that year a short course in library work was inaugurated by the Ontario Department of Education under the supervision of the Inspector of Public Libraries. The next milestone in the history of the institution occurs in 1916, when the Ontario Library School was instituted, with a three months' course of study. This school continued till just last year, when the present school was decided upon in order to widen the course of instruction to include a full academic year.

The course is to include an intensive study of library theory and practice, and lectures are to be delivered by a staff of competent lecturers. Professor William Pakenham, B.A., LL.D., has been appointed dean of the library school, and Winifred G. Barnstead, B.A., will be director of studies. Included among the special lecturers scheduled to address the school during the academic year are such distinguished names as Dr. George H. Locke, Chief Librarian of the Public Library, Toronto; Mr. W. O. Carson, Inspector of Public Libraries for Ontario; Professor W. Stewart Wallace, M.A., University Librarian, and others.

The course is to consist of one full academic year of study and practice, and will lead to a Librarian's Certificate, awarded by the Department of Education.

TEA FOR U.C. SENIORS HELD AT WOMEN'S UNION

Mrs. Kirkwood Speaks to Fourth Year on Living Essentials

A large representation of the Senior year of University College attended the tea given by Mrs. Kirkwood to the women of the fourth year at the Women's Union, Friday afternoon. To consider some of the essentials of living was the purpose of Mrs. Kirkwood's address, which aimed at offering suggestions rather than giving advice. The speaker congratulated the fourth year on being young and being seniors, who to the members of other years, stood for the highest thing in college life. Napoleon, questioned as to the meaning of happiness, had declared it meant the "opportunity to use one's powers." So the years spent at college were the happiest period in life and the best preparation for future happiness if one made use of the opportunities which college offered. The art of living included grace of manner which was the fruit of a fine and delicate consideration of others, the speaker concluded.

A FRESHMAN OBJECTS

It may be true, as Rudyard Kipling has it, that East is East and West is West. But we have had demonstrated in our midst during the past week the palpable falsity of the corollary, namely, that never the twain shall meet.

For they met, with a loud bang, at Victoria College. The dramatis personae were Mr. Hart (Canada), a second year student, and Mr. Minoru Akiyama (Japan), a first year man. Mr. Hart took the constitutional stand that the place for a yellow tie was around Mr. Akiyama's collar. Mr. Akiyama was of the frank opinion that it was dulce et decorum to grind the badge of all Victoria frosh into the gravel beneath his feet. Then the representative of occidental civilization, dissatisfied with a passive and inglorious constitutional stand, became an apostle of direct action.

In this he had the backing of his fellow sophomores, but he reckoned not with the hidden power of the inscrutable Minoru, his mastery of jiu jitsu, the outdoor and indoor pastime of the Land of the Lotus. With all the speed of his namesake, the horse "Minoru," which won the Derby for the late King Edward, and that dash and intrepidity with which his little nation wrested Korea from Cathay, ancient and haughty, and staggered the self-sufficiency of the Czar of all the Russias, Minoru Akiyama moved to the attack.

The result of the epic combat was the justification of Professor Spengler's thesis: the decline of the west. Mr. Hart, to use a slang phrase, "saw stars." How beautifully Vergil described this condition:

Suadent cadentia sidera somnos.

Will the freshmen follow their new champion and rally in rebellion against custom, and like the fallen angels be counselled by Satan to throw off the hated badges with "courage never to submit or yield"? In any event an anomaly has been exposed. The Caput forbids interference with the personal liberty of any person or violent treatment of any person. Yet as a concession the faculty student officers were allowed to impose a distinctive tie or cap. But if a freshman objects, what is to be done?

It may be said that this particular case has arisen from a misunderstanding of our language and customs on the part of a foreign student. That does not disturb the undoubted fact that freshmen have been roughly handled for breaking this or similar rules, authorized by the faculty. Their only fault was their ignorance of jiu-jitsu.

HART HOUSE

THE GREAT HALL

The Great Hall of Hart House is the University Dining Hall. Due to the fact that so many of the University Organizations hold their banquets and dinners in the Hall, it is possible to serve meals at extremely low prices as follows:

Breakfast - 15, 25 and 35 cents
Lunch - 25 and 35 cents, Sundays 35 cents
Dinner - 35 cents.

The hours at which meals are served are as follows:

WEEK DAYS	SUNDAYS AND HOLIDAYS
Breakfast 8 to 9 a.m.	9 to 10 a.m.
Lunch 12 to 1.30 p.m.	12.30 to 1.30 p.m.
Dinner 5.30 to 6.30 p.m.	5 to 6 p.m.

The Dining Hall Department is prepared to supply punch, lemonade, food, equipment, and service at strictly University functions, held on University property. Society and class executives are asked to make enquiries at the Comp-troller's office regarding prices and menus.

The Intercollegiate Football Quartet will now oblige with that stirring Rugby aria, "After the Ball."

C-C

Freshmen are warned against slickers selling the following wares: Subscriptions to "The Varsity," tickets to chapel and Convocation Hall and ground hockey and tiddley-wink games in the stadium. We also advise a suspicious attitude to men canvassing for radiator fees and moneys to buy spats for indigent Zulu students and also to erect statues in the quad of former editors of Champus Cat.

C-C

Mr. Edgar Allen Poe will now come across with the well-known freshman residence solo, "At midnight there came a tapping."

MALICIOUS MONKEY SHINES
With a somewhat sour attitude we note the frequent imbecilities inflicted upon the bewildered, befuddled and bewitched freshmen. Our spies upon second year executives (for we have agents and con men in all such dreadful places) inform us that after wearing a helicopter or sky-blue pink polka dotted cravat for a spell, the freshman evolves into a higher sort of being and his coarseness and impudence and exuberance (alleged) are groomed into the sleek semblance of the real college man in the hottest traditions of Percy Marks, Ann and Lois Montross and the Collegians.

This theory has a value indistinguishable from that of a hole in the ground. It is based upon the palpable absurdities of the old-time initiation system; a foolishness evolved by organisms with the ratiocinatory powers of the average fraternity man. The victim of the initiation or tie yanking feels one impulse, and a mighty one, which, far from being on a lofty, soulful plane, is to view his tormenter at the business end of a saved-off shotgun.

We go on record that a man possessed of an undue brassiness and bounce will not be enabled to hear celestial voices through any tie-wearing, for we have seen too many boys clumped, tapped, bumped and greased, all unavailing, to have any such ideas, and when we do you may be sure that we are well on our way over the hill to the bug house. Razzing and ritzing may be a fat joke to the operators, but it does little good to those who need it most, viz, boy orators, cheer leaders, committee men and such fauna; whilst upon those of delicacy and sensibility it has this effect, ergo, and to wit—it turns them into suspicious characters of a type that may be seen slinking about the corridors uttering sinister sneers and

U.C. PLAYERS' GUILD

The first meeting of the University College Players' Guild will be held on Wednesday of this week at 4.30 p.m. in the auditorium of the Women's Union. No play will be produced at this meeting, but refreshments will be served and the aims and plans of the Guild will be presented by Professor Dale and Mr. Raymond Card. The executive hopes that all former members will be present and that a large number of others who are interested in the drama will attend this meeting. A very special welcome is extended to members of the first year.

Many Subjects Studied in University College S.C.A.

Plans for the work of the Students' Christian Movement at University College this year were outlined by Miss Enid Walker, the president, at a tea at the U.C. Women's Union yesterday afternoon. Groups in Art, Music, International Relations, Eugenics, Student Problems, Life of Christ and other subjects of interest have been organized and will be led by Arthur Lister, Mr. Atkinson of the Conservatory of Music, Professor Larry McKenzie, Dr. Norma Ford, Miss Mary Rowell, Dr. Taylor, Dr. Pidgeon and other noted leaders. Special lectures will also be given during the noon hour.

Dr. Mahby spoke of the S.C.M. in universities he had visited throughout the British Empire.

Mr. Atkinson described the course in music which he hopes to present.

Dr. Ford and Miss Mary Rowell also presented their plans to the large number of girls who attended the tea.

Hart House authorities are encouraging the members of the House to use the check room as a solution to the problem offered by recent thefts of overcoats.

The President of Reed College, Portland, Oregon, U.S.A., is a graduate of the University of Toronto.

skeptical hoots at the contemporary burlesquerie of the academic world.

Here we welcome the first contribution of the season on a topic of general interest:

Dear C-C: We hear that a Japanese student at Victoria laid out five sophomores when they attempted to pin a tie on him. We suggest the following penalties to be inflicted at a special session of the students' Parliament: A—That he be forced to eat six pounds of soda biscuits and then whistle "My father sent me to Victoria." B—Learn the inscription in the Great Hall which runs around under the picture railing and then repeat it backwards in chapel. C—Be given sixteen bars a posteriori on the bandstand in Queen's Park with Acta Victoriana. These sentences to run concurrently. Yours, Banzai.

Apparently when east meets west it is not a case of the tie that binds. Shear nonsense!

Scores of Parker Pens Have Been in Constant Service for 30 Years and More. See How We Guarantee the Duofold

Made with a jeweler's precision, Parker Duofolds are permanent pens—a feature of Parker Pens made 30 years ago also, not merely an advantage of the modern models.

Through Pressureless Touch, the feather-light weight of the Duofold itself is now sufficient to start immediate writing and continue it without pressure from the fingers. No effort. No fatigue.

Yet these pens are 28% lighter than rubber, and barrels are non-breakable.

They come to you in five flashing colours—modern efficiency in the modern style.

Then we add a "guarantee against all defects—to assure you lasting satisfaction.

So look for the imprint, "Geo. S. Parker — DUOFOLD," on the barrel to be sure you have a permanent pen.

Duofold Pencils, $3, $3.50 and $4, in colours to match Duofold Pens.

*The Parker Duofold Fountain Pen is made to give lifelong satisfaction. Any defective parts will be replaced without charge provided complete pen is sent to the factory with 12c for return postage and registration.

ENGINEERS EXPERIMENT ON HART HOUSE POOL

The possibilities of lighting in the Hart House swimming pool were demonstrated on a large scale during the recent convention of the Illuminating Engineers. Twenty special lights were placed under water and a colourful background was provided for an exhibition of swimming and diving. The expense of the project is said to prevent an undergraduate society using it for a dance during the year.

GOBLIN ANNOUNCES $10,000 PUZZLE CONTEST

Goblin Magazine, which it will be remembered, started as an undergraduate college comic at Varsity in the spring of 1921, is now announcing its fourth great puzzle contest with a $10,000 prize list, the first prize being a La Salle car valued at $3,875.00. Since Goblin's entering the field of national publications it has increased its circulation to more than 40,000 and is now recognized as one of the foremost humorous publications upon the continent, and although the majority of the original staff have dispersed and gone into newspaper and advertising work, two of the founders have continued with the magazine, its Editor, J. E. McDougall, U.C. 1923, and its Business Manager, E. B. Harshaw, Trinity '23.

In the spring contest of this year W. T. Grant of North House, who won twenty dollars, was the only prize winner giving a university address. Perhaps in a few weeks one of the freshmen or freshmen who are now sporting their various distinctive adornments will be able to give the girl snicker to upper classes and they whiz by in a luxurious La Salle. —(Advt.)

Profs and Cows on Campus Ran Amuck

Varsity Changed Since Educated Beef Was Sold

The campus, if one has a parched by the highly whooped-up thirst for the truth and light, is a spherical area covered entirely by broad leaved plantain and thistles (cardus arvensis). It may also be inflated to cover the field of all university activities which is quite in accordance with etymological principles when one considers the meaning of the word "campus"—i.e. "field" if one knows one's Robertson and Carruthers.

The campus is used for sports, among these being soccer, football, cricket (in summer) and padling (in winter). Another sport is peka-bo played zestfully by first year School men. Peck hard and you find a magnetic bearing. In olden days it once sheltered kine, and one has naturally heard the story of the prof. who, colliding with one, bowed elaborately and said, "I beg your pardon, madam." Presently colliding with a real lady he said angrily, "Is that you, you old brute!" He is not at present on the University staff.

The present Carillon concerts were anticipated by a cow who mooed lustily from the top of a U.C. pre-fire tower. She had been put there by active students, and had to be butchered in the process of getting down.

Like an umbrella, she went up but did not come down. The meats served in the common rooms then ran: Roast beef, cold roast beef, hamburger steak, hash, croquettes, ptomaine poisoning.

Upon another occasion a York county drove herded two cows through the learned halls and then demanded a 20% higher price for them as they had been through the university. Readers may, or may not, draw an odious comparison from this.

Nowadays the campus is a lively place which mirrors the contemporary college life. It is the despair of cynics and patriots alike. It may be viewed in prospect in the columns of "The Varsity."

MANY VARIED JOBS FILL SUMMER MONTHS

Summer employment seems to be an essential feature of Canadian and American college life, and the diversity of jobs secured by both men and women in any year is even greater than the diversity which will prevail after that year graduates, according to one authority on modern student life. "The Varsity" during the week-end interviewed a number of men and women in all faculties and found this statement to be substantially correct.

No line of activity seems especially favoured, though retail selling is perhaps as common as any other single activity. Most of the S.P.S. men and almost all those in Forestry spent their time on work in connection with their course, but the occupations of Arts men varied all the way from rolling pills in a patent drug factory to acting as bally-hoo man in a circus or as stock man in a corset factory.

Among the women similar variety obtained. One girl in U.C. proudly boasted of running her own garage and filling station for tourists, while one fair linguist acted as interpreter in the western provinces for several months. Several were found to declare that there was both money and pleasure to be found by acting as ladies maid for a few months.

If experience counts for anything, the majority of undergrads can say that they have not entirely wasted their years at college, even though they have never passed an examination.

U.C. Seniors Attend Tea at Women's Union, Friday

On Thursday at the Women's Union Mrs. Kirkwood received the women of the first year of University College. She extended a warm welcome while tea was served. Later Mrs. Kirkwood talked to the girls in such a way as to make them realize the vital importance of mingling pleasure with business in a quantity corresponding to the amount of academic responsibility assumed by the student. She stressed the opportunities of intellectual and social development presented to the student by the various clubs on the campus.

Dr. Wallace's address was cordially informal, but he left his listeners with the impression that perhaps the staff was not so formidable after all. As soon as the freshmen realize that a forbidding black gown often hides a sympathetic heart, then will that gulf between staff and students cease to be.

DOUBLE BLUE BEATS BLUE AND WHITE MEN

In the second quarter Argos forced the play and Chantler kicked a place from the 15 yard line.

Argos now opened big holes in the Varsity line and Turville kicked for a point.

Half-time score: Argos 10, Varsity 0.

To open the third quarter Thomas kicked for another Argos point.

Argos 11, Varsity 0.

Argos gained possession on the Varsity 15 yard line and then tried an inside. Darling made a beautiful catch and ran the ball out to the 15 yard line. Argos last point was made on a rouse to Darling.

Three-quarter score: Argos 12, Varsity 0.

Varsity now seemed to find themselves and a marked improvement was seen. "Wally" Bean was ripping up the Argo line for good gains. Varsity stopped two Argo plunges, and following a blocked kick on the Argo 25 yard line Darling kicked for a point.

Argos 12, Varsity 1.

Continuing the good work, Varsity added another point.

Argos 12, Varsity 2.

Varsity's last point was made on an attempted drop by Darling, which went for a single.

Final score: Argos 12, Varsity 3. Varsity with a little more experience playing together are bound to improve. A most encouraging feature was the failure of the Argo "beef" to bowl over the Varsity wing-men. Now on to Queen's!

Varsity: Flying wing, Harrison; halves, Darling, Davey, Traynor; quarter, Snyder; snap, Keith; insides, Long, Morgan; middles, White, Bean; outsides, Dunn, Baker; hots, Hallam, Squires, Smith, Gooderham, Rudell, Bell, Wood, Morin, Solandt, Cartwright, Sinclair, Carrick.

Argos: Flying wing, Barrett; halves, Harris, Sinclair, Chantler; quarter, Baldwin; snap, Wright; insides, Nicholl, Hendry; middles, Wilson, Brown; outsides, Irwin, Hutchison; backs, Neal, Palmer, Boden, A. Thomas, McLennan, C. Thomas, Armstrong, Beal, McKay, Turville, Shaw, Gregg, Daly.

MEDICAL STUDENT SURVIVES MANASOO DISASTER IN BAY

Arthur Middleboro, One of Ill-fated Crew When Vessel Founders in Georgian Bay

SIXTY HOURS ON RAFT

Middleboro's Heroism Saves Men from Certain Death in Gruelling Experience

To be adrift for sixty hours on a life-raft twelve by eight, buffeted by the dirtiest of seas; to be hungry and thirsty, numb with cold at night, and scorched by the sun by day—such was the experience of Arthur Middleboro, second year Medical student, and pursuer on board the ill-fated "Manasoo" that foundered recently in Georgian Bay.

At three-thirty on the Saturday morning there was a moderate sea, one that the ship had often weathered. But on a sudden the vessel took a list to port, its stern began to sink, and with bow in air, it plunged without warning beneath the waves. There was no time to lower the boats—Middleboro, on the bridge until the stern went down, was forced to climb over the starboard side, and to swim for the land that was not far distant. Clad only in the thinnest of B.V.D.'s, he made for the raft, that he had at first mistaken for a couple of cattle, and found sanctuary thereon.

Now the raft, with its precious cargo of six, began to drift—not towards land, as the survivors hoped, but driven by a change of wind toward the open Bay. Early in the morning the "Manitoba" have in sight, but failed to see the lonely raft, and passed on unheeding. Having drifted to within sight of Christian Island, the frail craft was blown by a fresh change of wind out into the Bay, where it was unceasingly tormented by the heavy seas. But hungry and numb with cold as they were, the six gallant men made no complaint. McCutcheon, the chief

ARTILLERY COMPANY MARCH TO CAMPUS

Ancient Honourable Artillery Company from Massachusetts Go Through Manoeuvres

STUDENTS ATTRACTED

Strains of "Onward, Christian Soldiers" and "Auld Lang Syne" floated across the campus yesterday afternoon as members of the Ancient and Honourable Artillery Company of Massachusetts went through various military manoeuvres. The organization, which is several centuries old, is in the city on a good-will visit from Boston.

Attracted by the martial blare of a band, students flocked to see the colourful array. A lavish display of flags and a striking variety of uniforms gave the company a spectacular appearance, as they wheeled and marched on the front campus. The Artillerymen are not, as has been thought, all millionaires, but are men of reputation.

The visit to Toronto is one of a series of annual excursions undertaken by the organization. Some of these have been as far afield as England; close affiliation is maintained with the Honourable Artillerymen of London. This is the second occasion on which the tour has been to Toronto.

Important Staff Meeting

There will be an important staff meeting in "The Varsity" news office at 4.30 this afternoon. It is necessary that all reporters, including new men, be present.

Medical Examination

All students of the first and second years are required to take their medical examinations before entering classes for physical training or C.O. T.C. The hours at Hart House for same are from 10 to 12 a.m. and from 2 to 5.30 every day excepting Saturdays.

FAITH AND REASON DO NOT CONFLICT

Religion Must Be Reasonable
So It May Be Understood
By Ordinary Mind

DR. MALTBY PREACHES

Justifying his lectures which are being held this week in Trinity College Chapel, Dr. Maltby stated yesterday afternoon that he had two qualifications. One was that he knew when he did not know, while the other was a passion for clearness in the things he did know, having a predilection for monosyllables in the matter of language.

"Religion," the speaker declared, "is the deepest meaning of the universe and the total truth of our relations with God and man." Ethics and religion were closely connected, for religion should point a way to a better style of corporate living. Yet religion must not merely be judged by its ethical output or moral turnover, nor its value as a social antiseptic, but must prescribe the right relations with one's neighbours.

Dr. Maltby stressed the fact that religion was universal and had room for all kinds of people, for if religion could not be made intelligible to ordinary people, then it was not true religion. The deepest things in life were hidden from the wise and prudent and revealed to the simple, ordinary folk.

Religion must be reasonable. There was no antithesis between faith and reason. One ought not to think there was a region covered by reason and then make a leap in the dark to choke down one's throat something one had read about and call it faith. Jesus had made religion strangely reasonable and had found material for His illustrations in the common life of the common people. If our eyes had not been damaged by trafficking with weird things spiritual realities would be revealed.

ST. MICHAEL'S FROSH CLASH WITH SOPHS IN VIOLENT MELEE

Wild Irishmen Running Amuck Exchange Mutual Buffets in Friendly Spirit

SHOE POLISH ON DEMAND

Authority Arriving Suddenly Drives Enraged Combatants
Into Peaceful Paths

"The Varsity" has been informed that something in the way of a friendly rencounter between the frosh and a party of their elders occurred at St. Michael's the other night. A few of the frosh had incurred the ire of the seniors, and under cover of darkness approximately fifteen of the latter proceeded to secure vengeance. In the absence of the tender frosh they invaded the "Freshman's Academy" and adjusted some of their beds in a manner not calculated to foster profound repose. While the party was in progress the outraged juveniles returned in force and a semi-serious melee took place with one of the black-robed Basilians (of yore a noted rugby player) refereeing the affair and ensuring fair play for all concerned. The scene of festivities gradually shifted to the S.M.C. playgrounds, as the intellectuals attempted to carry off one or two of the frosh. These latter, however, rent the air with piteous bleatings and were rescued by superior forces of their brethren.

Later in the evening two prominent members of the sophomore and senior years were known to have removed considerable patches of a substance resembling shoe polish from their immaculate epidermises, and there is but scant need of speculation as to how said polish got there.

All in all it was a gala evening with a joyous spirit of glad "camaraderie" prevailing and the spoils of victory rather well divided.

The second episode of this friendly rivalry took place Monday night. Attired for some reason or other in only semi-respectable clothes, a party of at the frosh residence. Though most seniors, juniors and sophs dropped in were burning with high courage a few seemed imbued with the feeling best expressed by Falstaff's famous line, "Zounds will they not rob us." At any rate a most pleasant and diverting evening might have been expected had not the untimely arrival of the President on the scene of action broken up the party.

UNIVERSITY SPORTS COMBINED UNDER NEW SYSTEM

Revolution in Method of Selling Undergrad
Tickets

ONE TICKET PER PERSON

Hockey Will Probably Be Given
More Support Under
New Plan

An increased demand is predicted in sporting circles for university athletic events as a result of the new ticket system. One ticket is to be issued covering all events—football, track and hockey—at the Stadium or the Varsity Arena. The cost of the ticket will be four dollars. It is hoped in this way to stimulate attendance at hockey games, the popularity of which has been on the wane for the last few years.

Organized rooting at Varsity games will be carried on under a new system. There will not be separate practice meetings of the Rooters' Club such as were held last year. Five cheer-leaders are now being sought to handle the different sections in the Stadium and arena where Varsity students are gathered. One purpose which it is thought will be served by this method will be arousing the interest of Varsity graduates and supporters and inducing them to join in the yell.

To facilitate this plan, Varsity songs and yells will be printed in the programs for each game or event. The tickets, it should be explained, do not entitle the holder to reserved seats, but it will be a case of the early bird getting the worm. The best seats will be awarded to the first arrivals.

The tickets go on sale next Thursday and Friday at 1 p.m. in the West Common Room of Hart House, and on Thursday morning in Room 82, University College.

Faculty Tea for U.C. Students Will be in Senior Common Room

The first Faculty Tea for the session will be held in Croft Chapter House, University College, from four to six o'clock on Thursday, October 4th. Lady Falconer, Mrs. Malcolm Wallace and Mrs. W. A. Parks will receive.

All students registered in University College are cordially invited. The teas will be given monthly this year instead of weekly as formerly.

Rhodes Scholar 1925 Returns

College

MARRIED ABROAD

Louis A. Mackay, appointed to the staff in classics in University College, is a Rhodes Scholar of 1925 and a gold medalist in Classics. He occupied the position of fellow at Victoria College, and produced a play in Hart House Theatre. He also took part in other productions, including "Fanny's First Play." Early this fall he was married abroad to Miss Constance Charlesworth, daughter of Hector Charlesworth, editor of "Saturday Night." Mrs. Mackay, who has been studying in Europe on a scholarship, is also on the staff of University College as a lecturer in French.

Mr. Mackay during his undergraduate career won fame for his proficiency in classics, his acquaintance with the Grand Guignol theatre, his participation in fencing and basketball, and his fondness for wearing a remarkable tam o' shanter about the campus.

At the time he was made Rhodes scholar from Ontario for 1925 "The Varsity" carried the following appreciation:

QUEER PROCEEDINGS ON HOSKIN AVENUE CAUSE CURIOSITY

Strange to Say All the U. of T.
Residences Were Lit Up
Late Last Night

TRINITY HOUSE INVADED

Raiders Return to Middle House
Where Orgy of Bed Dumping Takes Place

About one o'clock this morning one hundred men dressed in very informal attire were seen rushing and yelling along Hoskin Ave. toward Trinity House, from the direction of the U. of T. Men's Residence, possibly with the view of repeating the famous melee of some years ago, when several bishops had their beds dumped upon them. The invaders confined themselves to making a loud noise on St. George St. outside Trinity House. Soon lights appeared and the insults were hurled back from the lips and windows of the men in Trinity House. After a short time the U. of T. once more returned homeward, chiefly to Middle House, where they contented themselves with an orgy of bed dumping, shouting and general horse play.

When viewed by "The Varsity" late last night it was noticed that all the U. of T. houses were lit up and pyjammed or even less tastefully attired figures were seen going to and fro through the windows. From time to time a basin of water (that is, the contents) was heard to hit the gravel with a loud resounding splash.

IRATE SOPHOMORES KIDNAP FRESHMEN

Upper Classmen Take Revenge on Sermion Quoting

RUMOUR NOT DENIED

The upper classmen of Victoria College, swept off their feet for the past week by jui jitsu and out talked by loud mouthed freshmen, are reported to have taken revenge in the form of a kidnapping party which occurred last evening.

To have been "taken for a ride" as the Chicago idiom has it was the experience of a first year man according to reports in circulation around Burwash Hall. This newcomer had previously made himself obnoxious to his betters by the common method of delivering Sunday sermons on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday and also on Sunday for good measure.

What happened after a hurried bundling in blankets, a swift ride through the city and an informal court-martial on the city's outskirts is a matter of mystery. Fourth year men, while refusing to admit that anything of an unusual nature had transpired, were reluctant to deny that a weary freshman had dragged himself back to the residence. His language on reaching the haven is said to have gone farther than the conventional "Thanks for the buggy ride."

DR. W. R. MALTBY

Of London, England, who gave the first of a series of addresses in Trinity Chapel last evening. Dr. Maltby will lecture throughout this week on subjects appertaining to religion. These addresses are arranged especially for students.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1928

TO BALANCE THE SCALES

Having adjusted ourselves to the intricacies of our time-table, and having (some of us) become accustomed to the brilliant colour which blooms in the region of our Adam's apple, we have now to decide the important question, "What are we going to do at the university?"

Now it must be explained to the members of the first year that if you answer that question with the obvious "Study, of course," you will be considered mildly insane and will perhaps have to submit to examination by a psychiatrist. It is fashionable to come to college in search of a good time, or to play rugby, or because your people have always done it, but—to study,—it simply isn't done.

For this reason, and in order to keep the undergraduate constantly busy so that he will have no time to spare for possible studies, a number of philanthropists about the University have banded themselves together in clubs, societies, or what you will, and through the medium of these organizations the so-called student is offered opportunities to dabble in art, religion, science, music, the drama, journalism, and other like pursuits. In fact, if you were to devote all your time and intelligence to active work in these associations, you would amass a fund of general knowledge second only to that of the great Caesar Smith.

Fortunately, however, both for you and for the hopes of the parents, teachers and friends who are expecting great things of you, you will have no desire to connect yourself with more than one or two of the societies which are already soliciting your interest. You will, moreover, have decided, long since, that you'll run the risk of being thought "queer," for you are quite sure that you came to college to study, and "That," you say firmly, "is what I am going to do!"

We agree with you. Though we have been accused in former years of "frittering away our time in journalism" we do maintain an interest in the academic side of University life. In speaking the other day to a group of students, Dr. Maltby divided college into two distinct parts, the academic, and "the rest." He claimed that they were equally important and urged his hearers not to neglect one for the sake of the other. This seems to us very sound advice, so sound that we want to pass it on. If it were followed, we feel that each graduating class would be one of normal, happy people, not one of either butterflies or bookworms.

WHAT ABOUT HER?

We have seen bobbed hair and bobbed skirts, and now, everywhere, we see bobbed ties. We are told that one of these ties, always brilliant in hue, and usually much abbreviated, is the insignia of the freshman. He is thus adorned in order that he may be distinguished from the upper classmen (who were once freshmen too!), that he may be more conveniently hazed, and that he may, with impunity, ask for advice and direction. All of which seems very reasonable and satisfactory, but—what of the freshman?

Though marked in the privacy of the residence by a green hair ribbon or some other token of newness, the freshman wanders unrecognized through college halls. Why, we ask, is this discrimination against the female of the species? Why should not she also display some emblem of her rank?

The freshman, though he may be somewhat embarrassed by his vivid neckwear is saved much inconvenience because of it. When he strays by mistake into a fourth year lecture, he is immediately recognized and is told gently but firmly that that is not yet his place; but when his feminine class-mate makes the same mistake, no one realizes it but the unfortunate freshman herself, who finds, when it is too late to withdraw, that she is plunged deep into the mysteries of some unknown study called psychology. If the freshman had only been marked as a being apart, she would have been kindly directed to her Latin lecture, and thereby have been saved much mental discomfort.

Besides saving the freshman trouble, how much embarrassment would be saved the sophomore? When a second year girl (so almost new herself), meaning to be helpful, asks a stranger if she is in her first year, and meets the chilling reply, "No, fourth year!" what must be her sensations!

It seems that the only way to avoid many misunderstandings is to label the first year women, and we fail to understand why the enterprising sophomores haven't done it.

Freddie the freshman is refusing to fuss this year as he is going through for a Bachelor's Degree.

Are there necessarily deaconesses home at a Deaconesses' Home?

We shout concerning the contracting at enormous expense of Miss Asthma Hay McTeever who will write a daily joke, if all goes well, which has been heard or seen before and is not claimed as sprung full-panoplied from the pen of Dee. Miss McTeever will turn in a wheeze for every issue if we can fix it up with the little lady. As her first effort she tells the old one about the young lady who refused to buy a motor car. Salesman after salesman pestered her, all to no avail. Finally one salesman, more conciliatory than the rest, offered to paint her initials on the doors of a smart roadster job free for nothing. What did the lady say? Yes, what did she say? You'd never guess! "It ain't the initial cost. It's the upkeep!"

It was with great interest that we viewed the Royal Artillerymen from Boston, Massachusetts, on the front steps of University College yesterday afternoon getting their picture taken. They are all supposed to be millionaires, we understand, and seemed to be having a swell time despite the appearance of being over-stuffed and over-dressed. If when we have made our pile, we can still enjoy life to that extent!

Poem, the Scholar's Lament:
Though platonic our friendship is purely,
To follow the Logos and light,
Yet I like you to smile up demurely,
I'm glad that your eyes are so bright.
I'm a slave to your wisdom and knowledge,
I admire your caustic and wit,
We're both getting the most out of college.
Yet couldn't you love me a bit?

A good bull was caught (for a wonder) in one of our news stories last night. It was written that the signatures of notables in Hart House Library were "perpetrated" for posterity. Need we correct to "perpetuated?"

Give a sentence with the word "ulcerate."
And the professor said, "Attend your lectures ulcerate you low."

EVOLUTION DOCTRINE IS WIDELY ACCEPTED

"The vast majority of students believe in evolution even when they first come up to this university, and all do, before they leave it. It is accepted even in all up-to-date theological colleges."

This was the opinion expressed by Mr. F. J. Moore of the Students' Christian Association when interviewed by "The Varsity" yesterday.

In reply to the general question of whether Varsity students, as a class, attend church services, Mr. Moore said he believed that many of the undergraduates are going to church. However, in commenting upon the report of the Institute of Social and Religious Research, that eighty-three per cent of American university undergraduates and ninety-one per cent of the women students attend church regularly, he said, "I can hardly see how they found it that high, but it is impossible to generalize concerning our own students."

Questioned as to the extent of the liquor habit among students, he replied: "I haven't come across any liquor drinkers to speak of, though I'm not so simple as to believe there is none at all. From personal observation, I would say, it is no serious problem."

OPPOSES VACCINATION

Dear Sir:

In the Arts Calendar there is a new rule that is of interest to every undergraduate and of momentous interest to the freshman. If you doubt me, look on page 10. It runs—

"By order of the Board of Governors, every candidate for admission must submit a certificate of successful vaccination with his or her application, or agree to submit the certificate within ten days after the opening of the session. Dr. Porter and Dr. Edith Gordon will arrange for this."

It is quite convenient for those who have been vaccinated to sit back and laugh, but how about those who have not? How about the poor freshman? What new form of initiation is this? I am sure most of us would rather swim Lake Ontario covered with lampreys than have a dose of bacteria shot into a normally healthy body.

And compulsion—where do they get that stuff? Other universities have no compulsory vaccination, and there is no real reason why our university should get "high-hat" unless it is to satisfy the whims of a few pro-vaccinists in the medical office. What do you think?

Yours truly,

279.

THE EMPIRE: JIMMY'S WOMEN

This play is not as risqué as the name might suggest, but it is good comedy all the same. We fear you know the type: a handsome hero, a funny fellow, a young dumbbell, a ranting woman with social pretensions, who gets heavily sat on, her henpecked husband and pretty daughter (believe us, though, she is pretty this time), a fatherly old chap with a sense of humour, a clever woman who manages things, a lawyer, and a negro cook, together with lots of repartee and bedroom stuff.

But it really is funny and the repartee is good, rising to positive brilliance in spots. The only thing which robs it of perfection is that the dénouement becomes a bit obvious toward the middle of the second act, so that the last act drags a trifle. The plot needs just one more twist.

The acting and presentation would do credit to a travelling company; for stock they are magnificent. Mr. Edmund Abbey, the senior lead, is a thoroughly first class actor. We are surprised that a stock company can hold him. He thinks his part right through and acts just as well in those trying silences as he does when speaking. This is saying a lot. Mr. John Holden is a good comedian, and Mr. Robert Leslie and Misses Marjorie Foster and Deirdre Doyle play their leads very capably indeed. The rest of the cast is fair, grading down a bit toward the minor parts. Miss Frances Dade looks like the girl in a Saturday Evening Post auto ad. come to life. She can act, too.

Finally, the music is good. Sinding's "Rustle of Spring," played before the last act, was really rather fine.

B.D.B.

Mr. Moore agreed with the American report that comparatively few people "make a practice of reading the Bible." "However," he continued, "I believe it can be made a very readable book for the modern minded student." "Is Atheism prevalent to any extent in the University?" he was asked. "No," he replied. "What I have found is a real interest amongst both men and women in religious questions. At the same time I should think the majority are content to let ultimate questions alone for the time being."

BLUE TEAM IS SMOOTHING OUT ROUGH EDGES FOR QUEEN'S GAME

FIRST DAY'S PLAY SEES CLOSE MATCHES IN TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Standards of Varsity Players Show Great Improvement Over Last Year

U. OF T. COURTS NEEDED

Martin and Gunn are Favoured But Other Promising Men Appear

The opening day's play in the U. of T. tennis tournament produced some excellent tennis and some very close matches. The standard of play of the Varsity players seems to be greatly improving, and if only the U. of T. could secure courts a decided advance would no doubt be noticed.

Walter Martin and Don Gunn, the two favourites, advanced quite easily. Both boys were hitting hard and showed great control. In addition to these two, several others showed great promise. Art Balfour played convincing tennis in his match with Bridge, as also did Boulbee and Horace Johnson. All these men will no doubt make strong bids for a berth on the Intercollegiate team.

In yesterday's matches Morrow defeated Hertel in an interesting and hard fought match. Coupland defeated Smith in a very close second set and then defeated Gould. Coupland is playing very well, and his match to-day with Boulbee will be well worth watching. Paul Hamilton disposed of Hetherington quite handily and will be a strong contender for a position to represent Varsity.

Play starts at the Toronto Tennis Club at 10.30 and competitors are kindly requested to be on time. The doubles draw has been posted and play will start to-day.

Martin def. Abrahams 6-0, 6-1.
Drury def. O'Hare 6-2, 6-3.
Morrow def. Hertel 3-6, 3-6, 6-3.

U.C. WOMEN PLAY GOLF TOURNAMENT

The women of University College are planning to stage a one day Golf Tournament a week from this Friday at the Toronto Ladies' Golf and Tennis Club. Rather than have the tournament held out for an indefinite period, "medal" play will be in order. In this form of conducting a golf tournament the first place is won by the player who has the lowest score at the conclusion of the one day tournament.

When interviewed by "The Varsity" Miss Edith McCollum of University College said she hoped many women from U.C. would enter this tournament.

Hutner def. Holmes, default.
Martin def. McFadyen, default.
Noyes def. Millman, 6-2, 6-1.
Boulbee def. McKay 6-3, 6-0.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

With the Queen's game this coming Saturday staring them in the face, the Intercollegiate squad went through a stiff practice at the Stadium yesterday.

Following a signal practice, the two senior squads were lined up and went through a heavy scrimmage. Coach Blackwell showed his charges no mercy, and any errors of commission or omission resulted in the culprit being told to warm the bench for a while. As a result a little more "pep" was shown, and the team-play took on more polish and smoothness. Any weakness apparent on Saturday will be corrected as much as is humanly possible. The game at Kingston will give the team its first acid-test and it will be a tough one. Queen's have on paper a good line-up, but what Tigers did to them is now an old story. One sure thing is that Saturday's 28-2 reverse (even though the "terrible Tagers" done it) shows that the Tricolour won't amble off with any pennant without real opposition from Varsity and McGill.

Speaking of Queen's reminds us that the red, yellow and blue uniform will be worn once more by the dashing "Irish" Monahan. This aesthetic individual was a great favourite with the Varsity Intercollegiate champions of 1926. For the benefit of the freshettes we shall explain that Mr. Monahan's favourite Saturday afternoon pastime during the fall season is to go on excursion trips. He is frequently stopped by his admirers at distances varying from three to fifteen yards. We forgot to mention his "habits" are fields generally known as grid-irons.

Several new plays were tried out at the Stadium yesterday. In the Varsity-Argo affair there was a most noticeable slowness on plunges hitting the centre line, Harrison alone making any headway. This will have to be remedied in the next few days, and with the mastery of several recent additions to the bag of tricks the boys will be all set for their little jaunt to the eastern end of Lake Ontario.

KNOX COLLEGE HOPES FOR SOCCER HONOURS

Mr. D. D. ("Doug") Davidson was elected manager of the Knox College soccer team at a meeting held yesterday. Practically all of last year's interfaculty finalists will be available for the coming season, including "Bill" Jack, Rowland, McCulloch and the newly elected manager. Several promising new comers are also turning out for the daily practices, and Manager Davidson is confident that Knox will have a much stronger eleven this year to make a bid for the soccer honours of the University.

Rugby practice is also getting into full swing at Knox, and considerable interest prevails.

Perrie, Barclay, Young, Stewart and others of last year's squad will be on the job again this season, and there will evidently be some keen rivalry before the team is finally picked out, as there are some newcomers to try out for places.

BLUE RUGBY HOPES HAD STIFF WORK-OUT AT LAST PRACTICE

Coach Blackwell Adopts Tactics Used by Argos

SCRIMMAGE WITH O.R.F.U.

Orphans Are Preparing for Struggle Against Kitchener

In rugby practice yesterday play was working very smoothly. The team tried out several new plays. They were put through a scrimmage with the O.R.F.U. team half the time.

Coach Blackwell is working the men very hard. Mistakes were pointed out plainly. He has taken a leaf out of Argos book, namely, kicks from placement.

Saturday's Argo-Queen's game, in which Queen's suffered a 28-2 reverse, shows that Queen's will have no easy task in walking off with another intercollegiate championship without strenuous opposition from U. of T. and McGill.

The coaches used the teams up and sent them through a stiff practice. In spite of the fact of Argos game Saturday afternoon, they held a heavy scrimmage. The tackling of Maurice Kelly featured the practice.

Backfield strength in abundance continues to be demonstrated in the practices of the O.R.F.U. team.

Jack Sinclair, last year's Intercollegiate star, was outstanding in yesterday's practice. Teaming with him effectively were Bill Spence and Charlie Baillie. There is enough kicking, plunging and running strength in this trio to hold up Varsity's end in the O.R.F.U. race. They will be assisted by linemen that have shown plenty of gameness and tackling ability.

The way the Orphans tore into the Intercollegiate team in practice yesterday indicates that the Kitchener pretzel pushers will have no soft snap next Saturday against the Blue, even if they are in their own home town.

vealed to us. Thus Jesus had turned our own demand back on us as He required that we be reasonable and had directed us to the place where we could begin to be reasonable. A logical faculty for religion was essential and decidedly lacking in most people. Moral defeat gave us a sense of humiliation and an ethical system that did not take note of moral defeat was stupid. Yet Jesus could begin with a man in his moral weakness, however great it was. One must not brag about one's faith, for if one were to put a cushion on its plank it would never carry man across the Atlantic. God did not require man to say he believed a host of things when he really did not. By accepting the teachings of Jesus, mankind would no longer be clinging to a single plank, but trusting to the guidance of the Almighty Hand.

engineer, a man used to tropical climates, was unable to withstand the deadly cold, and within two hours of the rescue, expired. His body was slipped overboard, and his clothes used to rekindle some warmth in the bodies of the five half-frozen survivors. In a short time, however, the wind changed, and the raft was blown, provisionally, into the path of the "Manitoba." At 4 p.m. on the afternoon of the third day, the remainder of the crew of the "Manasoo" were picked up.

Mr. Middleboro, whose heroism in saving the other men from slipping into the sea has been highly praised by his captain, was badly sunburnt, and when rescued was numb with cold and faint with hunger. Yet, after such a gruelling experience, under which a weaker man would have collapsed, he is still able to tell his story to "The Varsity" with no indication of the strain he has undergone. Mr. Middleboro can give no reason of the Manasoo's having sunk—in all likelihood the vessel sprung a leak; but why, seaworthy as it was, it should founder in a moderate sea, will always remain a sealed mystery.

M'GILL STUDENTS MUST BE VACCINATED

demanded. Only one in five prospective medical students were allowed to begin their studies.

Due to a scare this summer, vaccination is being imposed upon everyone, and the department doctors are busy dispensing free serum. Several hundred have already been vaccinated.

A book exchange on the system in vogue at the University of Toronto has been opened and is doing a good business.

Dean Martin of the Faculty of Medicine is acting Principal of McGill in the absence of Sir Arthur Currie, who is in the south of France recovering his health. Dean Martin spoke at the annual convocation. E. W. Beatty, the Chancellor of McGill, will preside at the Founders' Day on Friday. No honorary degrees will be given.

The most unusual story going the rounds in the aftermath of the summer vacation is the plight of a professor of French who had the misfortune to be lost in the woods for twenty-four hours without his foot.

Staff changes include the appointment of Professor Percy Corbett as Dean in Law. Doctor F. C. Harrison, professor of Bacteriology, is acting dean of graduate studies in consequence of Dean Rutan's retirement.

This balmy season with zephyrs blowing merrily from various points of the compass is noted especially for sports; the heavy colliquin sport and just plain sport which involves exercise of one or more limbs of the human body. And of these sports the most widely patronized is the standing marathon as commonly practised before the bureau of the registrar, doctor, porter and dean. It is strange, but none the less accurate, that the more one stands the less is one's standing in June likely to have been of a high percentage. One may also adduce the opinion that the university student stands for a bit, chaperoned and headed by the blue-coated agents who roar on as gently as any sucking dove.

Officially, one stands in a queue, which, if treated as an importation from the language of la belle France, means "tail." This evidence is not brought forward as an attempt at waginess. One may also view the standing before the brass wickets as a part of the University attempt to fit the student for future occupations, for life, after all, is just one long standing in line until one bangs up against the pearly gates and the celestial registrar. The petition for readmittance to the faculty of such and such a popular source of line-standers. The lad or lassie—they're silly but they're classy—who desires to consult on the practicability of switching from Patagonian Ethics, A, to Irreligious Knowledge, C, also does his (or her) time at remaining in upright positions for long consecutive periods. The bursar's office of course attracts a long "tail" and is composed of students clamouring to turn in their dough. The more irreverent may be heard commenting on the unique difficulty of giving away money. And just to show that he is not doing it for money's sake alone, the clerk will not accept money without a registration card to prove that there is nothing phoney about the transaction. It is amusing for one whose credit, and whose parents' credit back home, has been unquestioned for years, to have cheque all but smelted before acceptance. It is darn unfortunate for the Blue and White that that cynosure of all eyes, glasses and monocles, the Rugby Football squad, has not as powerful a line-up as the Bursar. The Bursar is another word sneaked from the French, related to the word "bours," and means, of course, the man with the money. And who would not therefore be a Bursar and be able to refuse money with the grande maniere?

Correct Answer Unknown

To guarantee to every one taking part in this contest that no one holds the correct answer to the puzzle, several figures were erased after the original drawing was made and before the puzzle form was printed. The figures were removed by Messrs. Perry J. Giffen, Toronto Star Weekly, William Houston, Regina Leader-Post, and T. B. Geoffrey, chartered accountant, who kindly consented to act as judges of the contest. The figures were removed from the chart at different times, and the judges hold the total of the numbers which they erased. No one knows what numbers were erased. None of the missing numbers were made and are now under lock and seal. When the contest is over, the numbers erased from the puzzle chart will be added together and subtracted from the original total. The contest department knows the correct answer before the figures were taken out, but now nobody knows the correct answer. The answer now will be the sum total of the figures appearing in the chart above.

There are no tricks in this contest. It is merely a matter of skill in finding all the numbers shown and then adding correctly. We wish it clearly understood that there are no hidden prizes. Every number can be plainly seen. The degree of your care and skill will determine the prize which you will win.

THE ONLY requirements for entry to contest are those listed here. You will note their extreme simplicity, and a careful reader now will avoid any possible confusion later.

$350 SPECIAL BONUS PRIZES

Twenty times the subscription remittance will be paid to the candidate sending in the first correct or nearest correct answer to the puzzle, received in Goblin Contest Office, not later than October 13th, 1928. Bonus not to exceed $200.00.

Ten times the subscription remittance will be given to the second nearest solution by this date. Bonus not to exceed $100.00.

Five times the subscription remittance will be paid the third nearest solution by this date. Bonus not to exceed $50.00.

The contestant winning a Special Bonus Prize will not be barred from winning one of the regular prizes. Special Bonus Prize winners will be announced along with the regular winners.

Secure Correct or Nearest Correct Total of Numbers Above to Win La Salle Car

The problem is to add together all of the numbers shown above. Each figure is nine's a straight stem; all are single numbers, there are no combinations; add them as if each figure stood one above the other in a single column. Every figure in the picture is complete. If in doubt about any of the figures, send in the chart with a figure marked, to the contest department, who will gladly tell you what it is.

This new 1928 model, 3-passenger McLaughlin-Buick Sedan is first prize in the window contest forwarded to the contest office under the conditions noted in Prize List found in this Advertiser.

Goblin is the most strikingly original publication in Canada. Its humor is native and spontaneous. The language is interpreted with kindly wit and whimsy, the more amusing episodes of our daily life. It is widely awake in its outlook, penetrating, yet always fair in its criticism, and the most entertaining and amusing publication in the Dominion. Goblin reflects in humorous perspective the life and thought of this country, as seen through the vigorous pens and brushes of many gifted Canadians.

Through this Great Contest you will secure the most brilliant of Canadian publicity. The regular subscription price, and at the same time, if you are fortunate, win one of the major prizes absolutely without cost.

In this, Goblin's Fourth Great Puzzle Contest, the value of the awards has been increased to over $10,000.00. This is the greatest Prize List ever offered in Canada. In a few weeks the division of these prizes will be made. Someone will win this luxurious and magnificently appointed La Salle Car. Will it be you? Your decision is NOW what determines whether you will be that fortunate person! The first prize represents a modest fortune in itself. Someone will win it. You alone must decide whether you will be that person!

IRATE TRINITY MEN IN CONCLAVE REFUTE RUMOUR AND TELL TELY OFF

"The Telegram report is entirely untrue—a fabrication of groundless rumours and a wild imagination," declared a prominent Trinity College undergrader to "The Varsity" last night when questioned as to a front page report in the Evening Telegram to the effect that Trinity House had been invaded and beds damped by men from the University residences on Monday night.

It was officially ascertained by "The Varsity" that no such raid had been made, and also that no Trinity men had engaged in a dispute with men from other colleges as was also reported to be true in the Telegram story. Any recurrence of an invasion as took place three years ago when professors and students were mingled together in a wild melee, was regarded by those interviewed as highly improbable, if not actually impossible. Trinity students were evidently highly aggrieved at the imputations contained in the story. At a very largely attended meeting of the student body held last night, the matter was seriously considered and keen indignation was expressed by several speakers who referred to the false reputation that such reports would give the college. After consideration it was unanimously decided that the secretary of the college meeting send the following letter to the Evening Telegram, demanding complete retraction of the questioned statements:

The Editor,
The Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,
In the Evening Telegram of date Oct. 1, appeared the following statement, at the conclusion of a long recent page article on certain activities of men in the University of Toronto residences on the preceding night.

"At the conclusion of this act-

ANNUAL EDICT VETOING CROSS PATHS IN PARK ISSUED

"The making of cross paths is forbidden in this park." So runs the order posted in Queen's Park by the civic commissioner.

Last spring the city authorities showed they were in earnest with regard to this matter. The main paths were restored, the cross paths were re-sodded and a policeman was stationed by the band stand to see to it that people used the proper paths.

But now with the guardian of the crossways gone, students are taking the forbidden short cuts that make life easier for those that have consecutive lectures at Victoria College and the Medical building or Baldwin House.

In this matter the citizenry are in complete agreement with the students—for once anyway. In going to and from their work they too take advantage of the cross paths. And then at dusk they must leave the main paths for the benches, where they find rest alone or friendly intimacy with a fellow mortal.

VACCINATION RULING AROUSES NO PROTEST

Anti-vaccinationist Excites No Sympathy—Has Fear of Unpopularity

NO COMPLAINT FROM WOMEN

When asked by "The Varsity" whether any difficulties had arisen in regard to the compulsory vaccination rule, Dr. Porter replied convincingly: "There is no trouble at this office."

"Strange as it may seem," he said, "for there are generally exceptions in every crowd, not a protest has been raised among the hundreds of freshmen affected by the rule. Many of them have been vaccinated, and the remainder have it done in a matter of fact way, and that is all there is to it." Being in a conversational mood, Dr. Porter gave it as his opinion that the fear of unpopularity was what accounted for the lack of rebels. "At one time," he remarked, "the anti-vaccinationist was looked on as a martyr fighting for his rights, but now in the University he is merely the silly ass who gets smallpox and causes his house-mates to be quarantined. Sympathy is the last emotion he excites," said Dr. Porter, "and his popularity is at zero."

"Have you any comment to make on the letter in to-day's 'Varsity'?" he was asked. "I don't think it was written by a student at all," replied the doctor, hinting darkly that it was the work of one known to him of old, a sort of amateur psychologist who was anti-everything and no longer a University student.

Dr. Edith Gordon, the women's medical adviser, when interviewed at St. George, also reported a complete absence of any complaints from the women. "They are all coming in with beautiful new vaccination marks," she said. Dr. Gordon had not seen the letter in to-day's "Varsity." "They never send me a 'Varsity' any more," she said, "and I used to love to read it."

Remarkable Library Growth Commented on by Prof. Wallace

From Prof. W. S. Wallace, Chief Librarian of the University Library, "The Varsity" learned that while in the period 1926-27 a record had been set which was considerably in excess of the previous high mark, last year a still further increase resulted which eclipsed all other records.

A comparison of these figures reveals that whereas 159,000 books were handed out during the 1926-27 session, about 180,000 were handed out during the 1927-28 session. Thus the increase for the yearly period is seen to be 21,000 books. That this is enormous may not be readily granted until it is found that it means an increase averaging over 431 books per day.

Another interesting fact was gleaned from Prof. Wallace. Last year's total was just treble the total established in 1912-13.

OUR FAITH IN GOD MUST BE OPTION

Certain People Object Strongly to All with Personal God

LIFE REQUIRES LOYALTY

"If I say anything to convince you, you might look convinced," was the winning request of our English preacher friend who is attracting interested groups of students to Trinity Library. "Some people will not let us have a personal God. They think we ought not to have any bias. Bertrand Russell and Bernard Shaw are such people. They enjoy intellectual battles. There are those, too, who, when they are satisfied that they have discovered God, turn to some other philosophical tangle. God is no God if He can be so easily discovered."

"Faith in God ought always to remain an option," said the speaker earnestly. "The whole question of our moral freedom is bound up in it. If we are to be religious we must have a chance at being irreligious. Jesus would not coerce any man to his faith."

"I am glad I am in a world where faith is left an option," continued Dr. Matby. In lighter vein he said: "I often wished that irreligious people were as bad as they ought to be."

The great need of loyalty in life was the concluding thought of the speaker. He showed how loyalty to goodness, to beauty, and to truth were essential. One had even to be loyal to art. A succession of small disloyalties destroyed the sense of what was true. Any want of loyalty was disablement to our moral vision. We became damaged goods.

We set out noisily to find God. We knocked loudly and hastily three times, and finding no answer said: There is no God. We must be patient with ourselves. If we go to masters of music and of art, why not go to a master of religion such as Jesus Christ?

SNAPPY BLUE JEANS NOT FOR CARROLL

But Distinctive Dress for Managers Would Make Them Easier to Recognize

U.S. SELECTION SUPERIOR

Should football managers at the U. of T. wear a distinctive dress, as the University of Southern California football managers are doing this year? "Lou" Carroll, manager of the Senior Intercollegiate football team, showed quite plainly his opinion on the matter when he replied emphatically, "I'd never wear one." He laughed sarcastically when it was suggested that he would look quite snappy in blue jeans and a salt and pepper sweat

GRADUATE IS SNOB LOAFER AND WASTER SAYS IRATE FATHER

"College Has Turned My Son From a Good Democrat to a Snob"

CUTTING COLLEGE CRITIC

College Teaches False Ideas About the Other Sex to Young Son

Special to "The Varsity"
New York, Oct. 2.—The typical college graduate is a snob, a loafer, and a waster, according to an article in the recent issue of a prominent American magazine.

The article, written by the mother of a senior in one of the largest and oldest Eastern universities, is a considered indictment of "the weakness, littleness and mistaken viewpoint" which American colleges are accused of imparting to their product. The writer says:—

"College has turned my son from a good democrat into a bit of a snob. His present mental attitude is anything but decently democratic. And aside from the moral cheapness of snobbery, I feel that it is a thing he must outgrow if he seeks business success."

"He has an equally inflated notion of his present economic value. He is a dawdler and shrinks from 'hustle.' I cannot imagine his plunging into a job and working his head off to make good, yet that is the average employer's acid test for an ambitious young man. He has a confirmed habit of academic leisure."

"He has a rigid and extravagant standard of dress. He thinks he must continue to clothe himself in the style to which college has made him accustomed."

"College has taught my son extravagant and wasteful ideas of hospitality. When he takes his first job, he must learn that he can't relieve boredom by spending from $30 to $50 on one girl for one party."

"College has taught him absurd ideas about women. He is without the faintest conception of sex equality. He believes in the double standard and not only of morality but of propriety. He has notions which have been imposed on him by four years of living in a man-made college world, a world of, by and for men."

"College has given him many fine things, I am sure. But it seems a pity that it has also given him these handicaps."

shirt. Said Coach Blackwell as he peered about the Stadium in a vain search for the other managers. "It would make it much easier to find them if they are needed if our football managers would wear some sort of distinctive dress."

Manager Carroll informed "The Varsity" that he thought the method of selecting football managers in the U.S. is superior to our method. In his opinion the water-boy of one season on an American team stands the best chance to become the football manager of the next, providing he knows the game well, promotion being the big factor in the appointment of managers there. On the other hand, the managers on the Varsity teams apply for the jobs, the best applicants being selected for the positions. Manager Carroll believes that a great deal more consideration is given rugby football in the American universities than at the Canadian.

CHARLES HOUSE MEN ENTICED TO GLOOMY SOPHOMORE HAUNT

Hapless Victim Driven Up Yonge Street and Abandoned By Lonely Swamp

REINFORCEMENTS RUSHED

One of Number Lured Into Parlour and Trussed by Six Stalwart Sophs

Intrigue and warfare reared their heads last night in the Victoria College Charles St. Residence. A phone call came inviting the President of the House to visit a domicile in the gloomy precincts of King Street. Suspecting unfriendly motives, a staunch band set out prepared for battle, but one of their number was lured into a parlour and securely trussed by six conspirators who were lying in wait. His compatriots were at the same time forcibly ejected into the street to avoid unpleasant complications.

But reinforcements were quickly sought, and the whole of Charles House came trooping down eager for revenge. The sophomore president was taken prisoner and rushed to Charles Street, where he eventually promised to rescue the victim from whatever dire fate had befallen him. But when the convoy returned to King Street it was too late; the unlucky frosh had been whisked away. It was not until well after midnight that a sadder but wiser young man returned to his residence. He had been dumped in an auto, taken away up Yonge Street, treated to a swamp, and then forced to walk back. What do these sophomores not stoop to!

YALE LOSES HONOUR

Special to "The Varsity"
New Haven, Oct. 2.—Yale has abandoned the honour system in examinations as a university policy. The fall sessions in all classes except academic freshmen and the Sheffield School will have supervised examinations. There will be no more examinations given at which at least one instructor is not present in the capacity of proctor.

WYCLIFFE CONVOCATION HELD LAST NIGHT

A Challenge and Opportunity for Wycliffe Graduates in West

The Autumn Convocation of Wycliffe College was held last evening in the Sheraton Memorial Hall. A feature of the evening was the announcement by the Acting Principal, Rev. Dr. W. E. Taylor, that the Jubilee Appeal for a Library Building Fund of $150,000 had been reached and exceeded, and that the college hoped before next autumn to have the new building erected.

The degree of Doctor of Divinity was then conferred upon two Wycliffe graduates recently elevated to the episcopate—Right Reverend G. A. Rix, Bishop of Caledonia, and Right Reverend Peter Yonetaro Matsui, native bishop of Tokio.

Then followed an eloquent and glowing address by Rev. Professor T. W. Isherwood, M.A. (Oxon.), on "Wycliffe Graduates and the Church in the West: a Challenge and an Opportunity."

The meeting closed with the Benediction pronounced by Right Reverend J. O. Stringer, Bishop of Yukon.

Former Victoria Star Coaches Alberta Team

Special to "The Varsity"

Edmonton, Oct. 2.—"Wallie" Stirling, Toronto '27 and former Victoria College rugby and athletic star, and recently appointed coach of the University of Alberta rugby team, has been attracting much favourable comment towards himself and his team since practice began a few weeks ago.

Other western universities are closely following the progress of Edmonton team. The Manitoban, weekly paper of the University of Manitoba, has the following to say concerning it:

"Alberta has already shown the spirit that counts and has let it be known that the Green and Gold will be to the fore in the rugby race this year. Last year the westerners were defeated by Manitoba and they have set out to avenge this defeat. Coach Stirling is putting the boys through their steps, and when he speaks of them undergoing intensive training he means it. He has been deeply impressed by the brand of rugby displayed by the candidates. He is a coach who realizes the necessity of real training and co-ordination among the players and he is overcoming this obstacle."

TORONTO CO-EDS ARE TO TAKE THIRD YEAR ABROAD

Former Members of Varsity Staff Leave to Pursue Studies in Europe

Miss Kathleen Sutton and Miss Kathleen Stewart of University College, both of whom were former members of "The Varsity" staff, are taking advantage of the alternative (offered by the department of Modern Languages) of completing their last two years in this course at European universities. They are leaving this fall to study for one year in France and Germany, thereby completing their third year in Moderns. These two enterprising co-eds intend to spend the first part of the year in France, very likely in Paris, and in the spring to go on to Germany for the spring and summer term. They will enroll in whatever university they choose, as regular students, and when they return to Toronto next fall to complete their last year, they ought to have a knowledge of French and German such as could never be gained even by years of study at home.

Miss Helen Husband, of Victoria College, is also choosing to go abroad this fall for her third year.

The professors hope that many in future will spend the year abroad because their presence in the classes when they return cannot but raise the standard of the whole class.

GENTLE CLASHES FEATURE FRACAS

St. Michael's Men Once More Have at Fellow Warriors Very Politely

WELL POLISHED EXTERIORS

The might and majesty of the sophomores, juniors and seniors of St. Michael's College received a masterful vindication in a friendly clash which occurred last night under cover of darkness on the college campus. The impression appeared to have gained strength among the frosh that they were practically "the works" thereabouts, and could afford to set the injunctions of betters at naught. Accordingly a powerful and well-organized band of upper classmen took cover behind fences and shrubbery about the grounds and when the freshmen attempted to cross the field proceeded to take the right of way. The fracas that ensued was not unlike a Mulook Cup game—that is without the customary ball. There were flying knutes that would have delighted Knute Rockne himself. The costumes of the assailants would have graced a masquerade or a museum, and the finesse of the movements would put the Marquis of Gooseberry to shame.

But we must not gather the impression that this affray was similar to the horrors of genuine cold-blooded initiation. A delightful air prevailed throughout—especially delightful to the sophs. In fact one burly frosh who had been overcome by a smarter opponent was seen to respectfully congratulate his conqueror. When the avengers had satisfied their whimsy and there were no new worlds to conquer—or frosh to polish—the affair broke up with "Hoikety-Clonko!" and a "Toronto" in which all and sundry joined with much gusto.

FRAT. BRO ELECTROCUTED.

Special to "The Varsity"

Austin, Texas, Oct. 2.—The abolition of all fraternities at the University of Texas is mooted here as a result of Nolle McElroy being electrocuted in a fraternity initiation. The Regent of the University says that a plan is being considered to build a special group of residences to compete with the boarding fraternity.

A grand jury inquiry has been instituted in regard to McElroy's death which was caused by crawling between bed-springs charged with electricity.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1928

AN ARMY WITH BANNERS

War will cease when peace can make the same vivid and picturesque appeal as a military display. A statement to this effect is credited by an exchange to George Jean Nathan, and if we remember rightly, the same thing has been said by more than one critic.

On our own campus the other day we were entertained with the spectacle of a martial to do put on by an "ancient and honourable" company of artillery from Massachusetts. A number of old gentlemen who had been through all the wars in their country's history marched up and down the field behind an earnest band. And though one might notice evidence of some rather shaky marching on the part of veterans, most of whom had waists far beyond their control and some of whom were too obviously proud in the possession of a uniform old enough to be thrown out, one could not help but be impressed. Not only were the men themselves impressive but they represented an imposing military tradition which began with the organizing of their company in 1638.

That the ritual of 1638 should be continued in 1928 seems strange in view of our notion that we of the post-war era should frown on war and all its paraphernalia. It may be said that this particular unit was here merely in fulfillment of one of its social engagements and that one should not connect its accoutrements with the idea of war. Yet all peace time militia units have the same social bias. The important thing is that even a group of pensioners marching to "Auld Lang Syne" or "Onward, Christian Soldiers" can make an appeal to the eye and the ear and the emotions far out of proportion to their immediate importance.

Against the superior emotional appeal of things military, advocates of a practical scheme to prevent war have what is largely an intellectual appeal to offer. They may stress, of course, the misery and death occasioned by war, but the fear of these has always faded in the heat and hubbub and dust of the beginning of war when militants can always formulate catch words which will complete the excitement stirred up by posters and bands and marching feet.

We of the generation following the greatest war in history can hardly believe otherwise than that humanity has sickened of war. But in years to come it will be interesting to watch the battle waged by the League of Nations with its courts and constitutions and committees against the tendency of people throughout history, to go crusading on a large scale, without counting the cost beforehand.

Prohibited Parking Rules
Gradually Increased Here

With the advent of the new academic year there have appeared at two or three places within the University grounds fresh "No Parking" signs. The one to which most attention has been given is that on the east side of University College, where in former years cars were packed thickly enough to rival the proverbial sardines.

When the authorities were interviewed, "The Varsity" was informed that this was merely in pursuance of a gradually widening policy which prohibits parking on both sides of the drive. The reason for this, it was said, is because nowhere except on the main drive is there any possibility of cars passing each other if cars were parked on both sides of the street. It is hoped that students in the common interests of safety will observe and abide by the new rules.

Art, Music and Drama

Brigden's Exhibit

The initial exhibition for this year as arranged in the Sketch Room of Hart House by the Sketch Committee consists of some three score small paintings from the brush of the president of the Ontario Society of Artists, F. H. Brigden. This artist has chosen to represent these many admirable little scenes through the medium of water colours. The spectator is at once impressed by the remarkable way in which these water colour sketches seem to stand out, almost wishing to believe that they are done in oils. Apart from the obvious technical dexterity of Mr. Brigden, this effect is explained by the fact that what is known as opaque water colours has been employed. This type of water colour when viewed through the glass of the picture frame has much the same appearance as oils, and is, the writer understands, considerably in vogue among water colour painters at the present time. Besides possessing the excellent perspective quality already referred to, the exhibit as a whole is characterized by a warmth and harmony of colour and by a picturesqueness of scene that renders each individual work a delight to the eye. The artist evidently has a nice sense of what constitutes a beautiful and interesting picture as well as skill of the first degree in executing what he has chosen to depict. If we stop to consider the very few scenes of rare beauty that we have been fortunate enough to observe in nature, we are obliged to marvel at the man who can in a comparatively short period of time paint dozens of such bits, any one of which merits comparison with the best that we have seen.

It is hardly fair for the artist to show us so many fine things all at once because the tendency is that in our eagerness to see everything we will not fully appreciate anything. Furthermore, the poor critic is handicapped because he dare not give special mention to certain pictures lest some wily reader question, with ample justification, his omission of some equally good picture! To ensure himself against failure to appreciate any one picture, the visitor might with some benefit adopt the method of an acquaintance of mine of artistic inclinations and temperament, who declares that when visiting an art gallery she spends all the available time before one painting and not infrequently finds herself obliged to weep! As for me, I shall retire gracefully while there is yet time with the aged observation that space precludes further mention of the exhibit—which is the truth. A.L.W.

LIBRARY USE INCREASES

lished in 1921-22, meaning that for every book given out then, three are given out now.

A considerable number of new books have been added to the library recently. The complete lists have not been compiled as yet, but will be made available when the President's report is complete.

Prof. Wallace was asked regarding the amount of shelf-space.

"The placing of new books is certainly becoming an increasing problem," he said. "Shelf space is rapidly disappearing and the library will soon be taxed to its capacity."

Asked whether this would occur, Prof. Wallace denied that it would happen this year.

Slow and Subtle Changes in University Library

No longer can one enjoy the peace and solitude of quiet study—if one ever courted—in the women's reading room of the University library. Every man who ever laid claims to goodness or badness has elbowed his way onto those walls that used to be so bare and green. The fathers of Confederation gather discreetly behind the door (all in one frame to save space) and beside them Wolfe dies. "The paths of glory lead but to the grave"; yet Abraham Lincoln is there to assure the weary in May that every slave shall be free. What of that! Wellington viewing the relics of Napoleon calls to mind recurring Waterloo. Disraeli, knowing all things, sighs with such pained seriousness that chattering freshettes lapse into awed silence and the window blinds cease to flutter flippantly in every breath of wind.

ST. MICHAEL'S COLLEGE ORGANIZES WORK FOR YEAR

The plethora of societies about St. Michael's College are gradually reorganizing for the work of the coming year.

Just now the feature which attracts most attention around the College is a frantic race to membership being staged by the two principal oratorical clubs. The Oratorical Club, the older organization, is apparently profiting from its superior prestige and has already attracted a number of candidates larger than sufficient to fill existing vacancies. The Arcophagus, an organization of more recent formation, is apparently faring well also. Perhaps the enterprise of its secretary is responsible as he stole a march on the official of the rival club by securing an earlier distribution of notices soliciting membership.

TRINITY MEN TELL TELEGRAM OFF

ivity events began to drag, so it was suggested that the residents of Trinity College might be sleeping too soundly. Whereupon hue and cry was raised and a number of Trinity men had the misfortune to find themselves dumped headlong into a pile of boots and suitcases beneath where their beds had stood. This, however, could not go unnoticed, and rumor says there was a retaliation laid upon the U. of T. houses, in which confusion was spread among the tormentors of the night.

I have this night been instructed by a full meeting of the students of Trinity College to write to you, denying in toto these statements and insinuations, and to request from you a complete retraction of this story, which it is unanimously felt is very liable to give an entirely false and misleading impression of the spirit which at present pervades the college.

Even if it were possible for such an event to have occurred, the student body of the college would on no account consider it worthy of their position to attempt any such feeble retaliation as that suggested by your account. We trust that you will immediately publicly deny the implications contained in your entirely erroneous report.

Yours truly,
John Gilmour,
Secretary Trinity College Meeting.

GIRLS' TOURNAMENT FINALS TO-DAY

Places on Collegiate and Inter-collegiate Teams Filled by Finalists

YEARS WELL REPRESENTED

The tennis season at University College has begun, and although it is expected to be a short one, a great deal of "tennis enthusiasm" has been aroused among the girls.

Every girl who felt she could swing a racket and miss a lecture or lab, signed up for the tennis tournament. The first round started Monday at 9.30 on the University courts, and it is planned that the weather permitting, the finals will be played off to-day.

Each year is well represented by women who are aspiring to the role of member on the college and inter-collegiate team which is filled by the finalists. The part we might remember was played last year by Ruth Higgins, a graduate of 278.

Judging from the past and present list of entrants for the tournament there is no reason why U.C. won't produce this year a second Betty Nuttall and Suzanne Lenglen.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The Intercollegiate squad was sent through a stiff workout last night and Les Blackwell certainly did not spare the whip. The Firsts, working with the Orphans, went at the battle with the zest of a team in a regular fixture, and the Douglas squad did not back up an inch. When the Orphans and Intercollegiate hook up there is bound to be fireworks, as the outstanding men of the Seconds are fighting for a chance to gain the top berth.

The Blackwell system of working the team at top speed on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday with only light workouts on the remaining days has kept the outfit remarkably free from injuries, and the result is that Blackwell will have a strong though rested team ready for the "crocial" fight on Saturday at Queen's.

The Orphans were going like the proverbial house a-fire with Baillie on the half line doing some brilliant running. Teamed up with Jack Sinclair, they should provide plenty of trouble for the Kitchener on Saturday.

The Track and Field candidates are making a great show at the Varsity Stadium these afternoons. There are at present no outstanding sprinters that have to be catered to, and that means that there are a number of new boys that are fighting for a place. Frank Halbus is looking after the sprint squad, and there are several promising candidates that look promising. The field men under the direction of Martin are shaping up as likely point gainers. The distance men are coming along nicely under Dr. Halbus' tuition, and before the popular coach will be through with them the McGill boasts will likely be shown up as quite empty.

Out of the depths of Kingston comes the wail that five of their players are injured. "Bubs" Britton, "Irish" Monahan, "Ike" Sutton, "Bud" Gorman and Stuart are all casualties as a result of the attempted tail-twisting of the Bengals by the Intercollegiate champions. It is likely that they will all be around in good shape for Saturday's encounter with the Blue and White squad, with the possible exception of the mountainous Monahan, who had his dainty toe squeezed by the none too gentle jaws of the Tigers. It is to be hoped that the smart plunger will be in the line-up, as "Les" Blackwell would want nothing better than to have a real test against the Tricolour at their full strength.

The strength of McGill in the Football Union is of the unknown quantity, but the other teams can be assured that the Red and White clad stalwarts will have a team equal to the strongest. The team has lost its popular captain, "Buz" Bazin, who has left the University to study Medicine at Edinburgh. There are, however, a number of new men who have shown considerable strength, particularly a number of American stars who are out to make places on the line. The work of Don Young, a newcomer on the second line of defence, is giving the Red coaches many glad moments; his plunging and tackling in practice has been above the average. Another lad whose showing is making the railbirds sit up and take notice is this former Airman, Jack Moar, who is barking the shins of many a hopeful with his deadly tackles. Altogether the Montreal twelve is shaping up as the possible dark horse of the Intercollegiate race.

The Varsity soccer team has not won a championship since 1923, but is after the trophy this year. There is a good deal of new material coming out to to-night's opening practice, and although the quality of most of that raw lot is unknown, Jackson, the manager, is banking on giving McGill, the present champions, a tough time of it.

The University is after another Tennis championship, and with the material showing at the present tournament should be well on the way to duplicate the success of last year. Martin and Gunn, two of the finest players in University circles, are sure men for the team that will represent Varsity this season. Balfour and Coupland are two men that have been showing well in the matches at the Toronto Tennis Club courts.

The English Rugger laddies are working out now regularly and are after the scalp of the McGillites. The Intercollegiate Rugger Union, although only containing two teams, University of Toronto and McGill, provides plenty of close competition. The squad this year is under the guidance of Coach Secombe, who formerly starred at Oxford. His experience will go a long way towards sending Varsity to the top of the heap and the possession of the McTier Cup. Among the brilliant players out with Secombe are Roome, Goldenberg, Gale, Burton, Stewart, Kelly, Wilson, and Lee, who will form the nucleus of a strong squad.

GOLF TOURNAMENT FOR ROSEDALE

Tournament to be Held Friday on Rosedale Course, Yonge St.

INCREASINGLY POPULAR

At a meeting of the golf committee which took place last night definite plans for the forthcoming tournament were made. In addition to this Bob Wilkinson of IV Meds was elected captain and Reg. Mooney, IV Arts, vice-captain and manager of the team. Rosedale Golf and Country Club have generously offered us the privileges of their course, and it is up to every man who is interested in golf to turn out and make this tournament an overwhelming success. The tournament proper will take place on Friday and on Thursday morning if Friday is not convenient for some players. Each player will endeavour to complete 36 holes, but in any case he will turn his signed card into the Athletic Office or to J. R. Mooney at the earliest possible moment.

Golf is beginning to take a large place in our activities and it is only by players of every calibre turning out that we can make the event an unqualified success. As announced before, there will be prizes for best gross and net scores (high and low) if a sufficient number come out. There are four members of last year's team eligible again this year—J. Selder, III Meds; J. R. Mooney, IV Arts; G. Edwards, II Arts; L. Wilkinson, IV Meds—but it is the wish of these men and of the committee that all should understand that each and every position on the team is entirely open and that the six best players will be chosen to represent the University at the

CHEER LEADERS

Applications for the positions of Five Cheer Leaders in the Rooters' Club should be sent in immediately to Students' Administrative Council Office, Hart House.

One man to be chosen from each year.

O.R.F.U.'s All in Fine Shape to Meet Kitchener Saturday

The Ontario Rugby Football Union team is working away full of pep and confidence for their tough tilt with the Waterloo-Kitchener outfit at Kitchener on Saturday. Jimmie Douglas has the half line working beautifully, and the result of the Sinclair, Baillie and Adams team working together against the Firsts showed that the Orphans will give the last year's Intermediate champions a great scare.

It is likely that Sinclair, Adams and Baillie will start, and if the last mentioned pulls off a few of the runs that he was so successfully carrying off in last night's practice against the Firsts the W-K squad will find it tough going against the Blues. Sinclair's kicking, of course, will be a thorn in the side of the K team.

At quarter there will in all likelihood be Don Wood, of last year's juniors, who is handling the team in real senior fashion. His tackling is good enough, while at flying wing Art Snyder will likely hold down the regular position. The line, although not of the beefy variety, are stalwart enough to stand the graft of even the O.R.F.U. teams who spare not. The wings are tackling pretty consistently, and by Saturday should be going nicely. The strength of the Orphans will be given the acid test on Saturday, and if they come through at the large end of the score they will in all likelihood capture the group.

forthcoming match at McGill. If any additional information is desired please enquire at the Athletic Office or phone J. R. Mooney, Hill. 4483. In the next few weeks the committee will endeavour to arrange for an interfaculty competition.

WILKINSON LEADING TRINITY TRACK MEET

Enthusiasm of Onlookers Not Dampened by Slow Times on Heavy Track

INTER-YEAR COMPETITION

Keen competition among a large number of contestants was a feature of the Trinity College Track Meet at Varsity Stadium yesterday afternoon. As inter-year competition is being introduced this year, enthusiasm ran quite high among the small number of onlookers. A cool, dull day with a cloudy sky gave no inspiration to record-breakers, and consequently times on the heavy track were rather slow. The entire programme was not run off yesterday, the javelin throw, three mile run, and relay race being postponed until a later date. A summing-up of points at the close of the afternoon showed Wilkinson leading for the individual championship with Rapsey running a close second, one point behind. The fact that a number of distance men are in training for the three mile run should make it a feature of the meet.

The following is a record of the winners of the various events:—
100 Yards Dash—1st, Rapsey; 2nd, Murrell-Wright; 3rd, Fair.
220 Yards Dash—1st, Wilkinson; 2nd, Bilborough; 3rd, Murrell-Wright.
440 Yards Dash—1st, Rapsey; 2nd, Howard; 3rd, Martin.
Half Mile Run—1st, Walters; 2nd, Wilson; 3rd, Little.
One Mile Run—1st, Walters; 2nd, Wilson; 3rd, Little.
High Jump—1st, Wilkinson (height 5 ft. 4 in.); 2nd, Benwick; 3rd, Clough.
Broad Jump—1st, Rapsey (distance 17 ft. 4 in.); 2nd, Clough; 3rd, Walters.
Pole Vault—1st, Hovey (height 8 ft. 7 in.); 2nd, Benwick.
Discus Throw—1st, Coleman (distance 78 ft.); 2nd, Clough; 3rd, Wilkinson.
Shot Put—1st, Wilkinson (distance 31 ft. 4 in.); 2nd, Clough; 3rd, Coleman.

DOUBLES START TO-DAY

The second day's play in the Varsity tennis tournament produced some great tennis, although the day was very unfavourable with showers and cold.

There were several very close and exciting games in yesterday's play. Horace Johnson sprang somewhat of a surprise when he eliminated Russ Armstrong in two easy sets. John- (Continued on page 4)

John M. Singe Comes to Commerce Matriculated Monk Apes Students

Prominent among the late arrivals who are still trying to register is John Millington Singe. John Millington, we might explain, is our pet ape, a cultural summary of wide travel and experience who has been in all the best zoos of the world and who is now seeking to register at the University of Toronto. If a champion pugilist can deliver lectures at Yale and a deluxe plumber occupy the spotlight at Queen's, then John Millington concluded that there must be a place for such as him at Toronto.

But we have had difficulty in arranging for John Millington's admission. He wished to enter Medicine, but when he walked through the Medical building there were murmurs of "high-brow" and "arts snob" from the Tercias. This failure to appreciate him on the part of the Meds hurt John Millington badly, so we hastened to trot him across the campus to Simcoe Hall in order that we might find a suitable course for him. As soon as we approached the august counter of the Registrar's office a beaming young lady came up and addressed John M.: "You must be in Commerce and Finance."

His academic career is therefore launched in the course in Commerce and Finance, and we are hopeful that he will outdistance many of his classmates. In order that he may feel thoroughly at home, he will take special lectures in political science.

Follow the interesting career of this our latest guest in forthcoming issues of "The Varsity."

Two of O'Neill's plays are on the shelf: "Marco Millions," a satire on American life based on the story of Marco Polo (albeit a little unkind to the shades of Marco), and "Strange Interlude," the long, long play with the asides. Everyone thinks out loud in "Strange Interlude" and the two people after "Napoleon," and Papini's autobiography, "A Man—Finished."

On the general shelf were noticed "Count Luckner the Sea Devil," that tale of the German raider which ran in "Liberty"; "A Book About Paris," either for the benefit of those who go on university tours or those who don't; a tale of adventure by an English war spy, and a very interesting looking sketch of political and other figures of the United States.

There is much more splendid stuff, most of it very recent, but these seemed to catch the eye. Altogether, there seems to be quantities of the very thing one would choose to read.

Bright Green Bows Adorn the Unrestrained Locks of Many a Freshette's Hair

No cosmetics allowed! The Vic. Freshettes are not a colourful lot, but their pallor is not due to fear and awe inspired by lofty college halls but to soap and water applied by mighty soaps. All those happy innocent little faces, where the schoolgirl complexion has undergone renovation, are quickly freed from all that is artificial in the good old fashioned way. Freshettes with an artistic bent must express their passion for painting in other lines.

Unrestrained locks of hair are neatly caught back with a bright green bow—the feminine members of Vic. 312 have acquired the habit of wearing hats.

The summer's crop of freckles has at last come into its own. It is no longer suppressed by the powder puff, for Vic. Freshettes must put all such things aside. Noses are left to shine in all their glory, and blushes are the only means employed to attain that healthy glow. All of which makes for a retiring manner—especially when members of the opposite sex appear. This is, of course, as it should be, although unusual in Freshettes.

The music department is divided into vocal, piano and violin, with Mr. Frank Blachford in charge of the violin section. son meets Gunn to-day and it will not be a surprise if he gives his more experienced opponent a hard battle. Bill Noyes is another who will bear watching, as was evidenced by his convincing victory over Harold Martin. Art Balfour did well to defeat Armstrong in a long three set battle featured by the hard hitting of both players. Balfour is playing very well and if he maintains his form he will be hard to stop.

Don Gunn and Walter Martin, the two favourites, also advanced in easy fashion. Paul Hamilton also defeated Stewart in a match in which Hamilton did not have to extend himself at all.

The doubles start to-day and will be played after the singles. All the matches on to-day's programme will be well worth watching and should attract considerable interest.

Yesterday's results:

Martin def. Drury 6-2, 6-2.
Noyes def. H. A. Martin 6-1, 6-3.
Coupland def. Boulbee 6-3, 6-3.
Gunn def. Walker 6-0, 6-2.
Johnson def. Russ Armstrong 6-1, 6-1.
Balfour def. Armstrong Jr. 4-6, 6-1, 8-6.
Hamilton def. Stewart 6-0, 6-1.

To-day's draw:

Morrow vs. Hutner.
10.30
Martin vs. winner Morrow-Hutner.
Noyes vs. Coupland.
Gunn vs. Johnson.
Balfour vs. Hamilton.

Downtown Press

No action whatever will be taken by the Victoria College Students' Parliament in connection with the alleged jui jitsu episode of last week, according to R. L. Fredenburg, President of the Parliament, who was interviewed by "The Varsity" yesterday.

"The newspaper accounts which I read did not stick to the facts of the case, and exaggerated the affair out of all proportion," he continued. "As it actually occurred, it was a trifling episode, and would have aroused but little comment even in Victoria College had it not been played up by the papers. There was no scrap with five men. A Japanese student who was treated in exactly the same way as several hundred other freshmen on the campus are treated unfortunately lost his temper and struck a second year man. That was the end of the affair as far as any action was concerned. Hart was playing rugby two days ago."

They gave as a reason that they were busy already with other matters.

H. T. Pritchard, pro tem chairman of the Mechanical and Engineering Club and candidate for Presidency, remarked that the affairs of the Engineering Society were in a tangled state due to the resignation of last year's president, Mr. Rochester. It is expected that Mr. Rochester will render the new executive assistance in solving such difficulties as the affairs of the society at present.

In opposition to Mr. Pritchard is J. H. Wright, previously secretary-treasurer. In the election for the office of chairman, Mr. K. F. Tupper opposes V. L. Henderson. Both seemed of the opinion that it was more or less of a contest between the Electrical and Mechanical departments, Mr. Tupper representing the Mechanical and Mr. Henderson the Electrical. Both were in absolute doubt as to the outcome.

There will be no elections in Fourth Year, as A. W. Davidson as President and D. L. McCarthy as Vice-president have both been chosen by acclamation. The consensus of opinion appears to be that each is equal to his position.

As previously announced those leaving town on the "trip" on Friday may cast their votes on Thursday afternoon.

OBSESSIONS COMPILED

Special to "The Varsity"
Boston, Oct. 3.—A university man's garb, always the object of much scrutiny by clothiers, is again in the limelight. These go-getters have completed another of their "surveys," this time in three widely separated educational institutions.

In the South, Vanderbilt was selected as a typical university in a "university town." In the North, Yale was chosen for the same reason. And for middle ground, Princeton was selected. The results were combined and the following statement (which they would have you believe) made:

"In all of these colleges, observers found that almost unanimously, the students had tended from the 'slouchy' college tendency of recent years, to a tidiness and care in dress that was surprising."

"In all the colleges, the starched collar was found to be so nearly universal that it appears to constitute almost a uniform. The comfortable low, pliant, starched varieties were most in demand in both North and South."

COMPULSORY VACCINATION AFFECTS FEW FRESHETTES

Difference of Opinion Exists Among Those Who "Must"

Compulsory vaccination affects comparatively few of the first year women. Most of the students bring with them their certificates of successful vaccination. The greater part of those who have not such proofs have submitted willingly to the injection, which in the present method is quite mild, as was pointed out by Doctor Gordon's secretary. One anti-vaccinationist was met with, who was not one of the numbers who needed to be vaccinated. Another freshman was heard to remark that he had been so sick after his vaccination that he was unable to eat any of the refreshments at a tea. Still another, who had not as yet yielded, stated that she was a conscientious objector, but she supposed she'd have to submit to the dictum of authority. However, most of the students who were interviewed accepted the rule.

TICKET SALE POSTPONED UNTIL TO-MORROW NOON

On account of an unexpected delay, students' season tickets, which were to have gone on sale to-day, will not arrive in the city until to-morrow. It is therefore necessary to postpone the sale until to-morrow at 1 (one) o'clock for men students and at 10 (ten) o'clock for women students.

NOMINATIONS HELD

Election Speeches by Various Nominees to be Held Week from Friday

"This meeting is really to welcome the students of the first year," said Miss Eleanor Barton, President of the W.U.A. at the women's mass meeting in East Hall on Wednesday at 1 p.m. She proceeded to point out the various activities and interests of the woman undergraduate. "Gown Week" is to be held next week, starting Monday. Although it is not compulsory, Miss Barton explained that it is very much preferred if the students do wear gowns. Faculty teas for U.C. students only are to be monthly instead of weekly affairs this year, and everyone who turns out is promised a hearty welcome. The various undergraduate societies, Classical, French, German, Italian-Spanish, Literary, etc., should prove of interest. A badminton club is to be formed this term, and musicals are to be held for the first time.

Miss Walker then spoke for a short time on the University Settlement. Real University Settlement

Opens Arms to Students

"What! You don't mean to tell me I've missed something! Why, I've been at college a whole year. Do tell me about the University Settlement. It sounds interesting."

Well, in his first place, the University Settlement is situated directly behind the Art Gallery, at 23 George Road. It is not a religious institution, but rather a club house which, with the help of University students, tries to give the neighbourhood some of the interests in life which otherwise they would miss.

All students are invited to visit the Settlement any hour any day except Sunday. You may find the Jolly Chums, boys of nine and ten, hilariously playing games, or the Little Neighbours having a tea-party. The Mothers' Club may be dancing the Virginia Reel, or the "Night Hawk" young men's club bowling or playing billiards.

If YOU visit the Settlement you may be served tea, and you will certainly become an enthusiastic supporter, if not an actual worker. It is a university institution, and volunteer workers are greatly needed. If you have any spare time at all, your services will be duly appreciated. If you haven't, your presence will at least be stimulating. Come one, come all!

It is YOUR Settlement and your cooperation is needed.

Part of Work

With much shouting, laughing and singing, the frosh of S.P.S. were officially welcomed by the lordly sophs in the East Common Room in Hart House last night. On entering the room each person was given a card on which he wrote his name and home town. These cards were attached to their coats so that everyone would know everyone else without the formality of an introduction. Then the frosh proceeded to sing songs under the capable direction of Ross Workman. Many S.P.S. and Toronto yells were also given. Warden Bickersteth in a very interesting speech welcomed the School freshmen to Hart House. He remarked on its unique qualities and spoke enthusiastically of the support which School men had always given him on the different committees.

Mr. Rochester, President of the Engineering Society of S.P.S., then delivered a speech of welcome and up-

Sophomores Deny Repeated Rumors That Plan of Vengeance Has Been Formed

SHOULD DROP MATTER

That there was any feeling of animosity between the sophomores and freshmen of Victoria College, as a result of the affair between the now well known Japanese freshman and certain members of the second year, was flatly denied by Mr. J. Binning, president of the Victoria sophs. There is a spirit of good fellowship between the first and second years, and there is no organized plan of vengeance being formed against the freshmen. The sophs have taken the affair like sports, he averred.

"The whole thing was pretty much of a misunderstanding, and there is a general feeling that the matter should be dropped," said one Victoria man.

There have been several directly conflicting reports circulated around Burwash Hall about the kidnapping of a freshman by upper classmen and taking him for a "buggy ride" around the city, but this report has received as yet no confirmation.

The Students' Parliament of Victoria will make no changes in its regulations concerning freshmen as a result of the demonstration, nor has the faculty thought it necessary to interfere.

MORE STUDENTS WANTED FOR TRIP TO KINGSTON

Unless there are a few more names signed up at the Athletic Association Office, Hart House, for the bus for Kingston, it will not be possible to engage one. So far only eight women and six men have signed and thirty are required to make it possible. The list will be open at the Athletic Office until 5 o'clock this afternoon.

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO IN DANGER OF AMERICAN COLLEGE INFLUENCES

University College Tutor
Chosen S.A.C. President

George A. McGillivray, B.A., second year student at Osgoode Hall, and a graduate of University College of 1927, was yesterday elected president of the Students' Administrative Council for the year 1928-1929 at the first regular meeting of the council.

Mr. McGillivray, who is acting as tutor in the University College residence, was prominent in undergraduate activities throughout his student career. As a sophomore he was president of the second year in University College, and during his last year he was chairman of the Common Room committee.

He was also interested in Hart House affairs, especially in debating. In March 1927 he debated in the Hart House Parliament supporting along with the Hon. Hugh Guthrie, at that time leader of the Federal opposition, the affirmative of a motion on Maritime rights.

A feature of the appointment is that Mr. McGillivray by virtue of his position as tutor in the U.C. residence will make the third representative of the faculty on the Council.

NEW LATIN DEPARTMENT ADDED TO ST. MICHAEL'S

Father J. T. Muckle Will Head
This Branch of Mediaeval
Research

Considerable interest has been aroused by the announcement that a department of Mediaeval Latin has been created at St. Michael's College. This department, which is offering courses for the first time during the current year, is headed by Father J. T. Muckle of St. Michael's staff.

The formation of this new department is part of the policy being pursued by St. Michael's in the establishment of an Institute of Mediaeval Studies, which, it is expected, will open in 1929 under the direction of Dr. Etienne Gilson. At present undergraduate courses in Mediaeval Latin are offered in the Department of Philosophy and as pass options in the Philosophy course.

The work of the Department of Mediaeval Latin will form a valuable auxiliary to the work of the Mediaeval Institute, as a knowledge of this subject will permit a student to read the philosophical writings of the great scholastics.

About thirty students are already enrolled in the new course.

SKITS OF FRESHETTES AMUSE QUEEN HALLITES

George Young and Pig-skin
Peters Were Given
New Life

Queen's Hallites assembled en masse last night to be entertained by the clever stunts of the freshettes at the regular initiation. Some youthful musicians of great promise were unearched for the soundless orchestra, which was notable for its complete lack of discord. The Just Kids Safety Club put on a skit which should be a solemn warning to beware the dangers of runaway horses, and this was followed by a picturesque chorus from the Follies. The Wrigley Marathon was delayed a little at the start until George Young recovered from a severe attack of hiccups, but the favourite soon had to be pulled out of the water and resuscitated with hot-water bottles. Pig-skin Peters put up a good fight, but was finally out-distanced by Michel, well padded with cushions.

PERCY WILLIAMS AFFAIR

American Bait

It is generally thought in the East that western colleges are in grave danger of becoming modelled after American college systems. The publicity given lately to the affairs of Percy Williams, the Olympic star, made this impression particularly strong as regards the University of British Columbia. This, however, was not the opinion of Miss Jean Talmie, last year editor-in-chief of the U.B.C. periodical, the "Ubyesey," and now taking graduate studies at U. of T.

"The University of Toronto is, I think, much more in danger of Americanization than is U.B.C.," she told the representative of "The Varsity" yesterday. Contrary to general opinion, Miss Talmie said that few Japanese students were registered and that there were probably more at Toronto, and also that few Americans attended the Pacific coast college. A large number of English students from India come to U.B.C., she stated.

Intense interest is taken in sport, Miss Talmie said, in answer to a question from her interviewer, but it is mostly in inter-city leagues, and is a sort of friendly rivalry. She also pointed out that competitions with adjacent U.S. colleges had not changed the essentially English nature of the President

The first meeting of the U.C. Players' Guild took place yesterday afternoon. The president extended a welcome to all newcomers.

Mr. Robert Finch was nominated Honorary President of the Guild, to succeed Professor Dale, who has resigned owing to the stress of outside duties. It is interesting to note that Mr. Robert Finch was the Guild's first president. Miss Constance Shiell was elected secretary by acclamation. For the benefit of the newcomers, Professor Dale outlined the origin and aims of the Guild, stressing the fact that the Guild offered opportunities not only for acting, but also for all kinds of stage-craft. Mr. Card, the director, also spoke on the work of the Guild.

THE HONOUR SYSTEM

In our issue of yesterday appeared a brief but significant despatch: Yale has abandoned the honour system. This is significant for two reasons: The Students' Council recommended the change and the university in making it followed Amherst, Rutgers and Western Reserve University into the steadily increasing group of universities which have returned to the older custom of supervising students in their examinations.

The system has the advantage of being introduced in the United States by the old and distinguished College of William and Mary. It consists of two principles. First, the faculty leaves the undergraduates alone in examination and expects them to turn in a paper which is their own and unaided work. Secondly, if a man sees a fellow student cheating he is supposed to report it to the faculty at once. This plan has also been applied to the social life and conduct of the student.

In this idea we can find only one defect. It presupposes in both of its points a type of mind too rare to consider when formulating a scheme that is supposed to approach the practical. We must admit that we have studied little of the evidence which might be adduced in its favour, not only because we have not seen it attempted here, but because the current of criticism has lately been running against it in the United States. Some people might believe that the average mortal, if left to himself, would not stoop to dishonest methods to pass an examination. Considerably fewer would believe that the average mortal would report an erring comrade to the authorities when he has been trained to detest "snitching" from boyhood.

Boyhood and its influences were apparently overlooked by the sponsors of the honour system, who were evidently secure in the delusion that when a young man comes to a university he is just beginning his life. All of the boys that come to the universities, and the girls too, have been watched closely at school, and most of them have been watched closely in their homes. Indeed those that are considered the flower of American civilization owe their peculiar prestige to their descent from a community of Peeping Toms camped on the edge of the Atlantic who included in their daily regimen a goodly time for godly snooping and prying and who divided their lofty moments of spiritual tensity between casting their long faces skywards and parking them alongside a key-hole, determined that heaven should be the only thing of which it could be said: Eye hath not seen.

The first weakness, then, of the honour system has been that it has run contrary to the early training of the students. The second is that it runs contrary to the direction in which university life has developed. University life in our century has been characterized by the growth in actual value of a degree. A degree is no longer merely a license to teach or the formal acknowledgement of having read for so many years. It means money. And this does not apply to the professional degrees only but to the arts degree as well. Students speak of the immediate practical purpose for which they are taking a certain course. He is pitted and scorned who does not know how he is going to get back the money he is expending. He is unbusiness-like, i.e., he is in the same position now as a man who admitted atheistic views in the Middle Ages.

The former generation was composed of men who came to college to reflect upon literature and philosophy without a definite notion as to how they might display their knowledge of these in the employment office of a large corporation. For these impractical people there was no necessity to cheat, and besides it was a foolish and inconsistent thing to do in the light of their study of the liberal arts. The great majority of them came either from the homes of clergy or from wealthy and leisurely surroundings where they were able to afford one or two points of ethics. The generalizations that applied to them are still being vehemently preached by professors, but they are one by one being quietly dropped.

Princeton University still retains the honour system and it is interesting to note that its chief proponent there was the late Woodrow Wilson, an unfortunate who rushed at twentieth century problems with an idealistic mentality typical of the nineteenth century in the wisdom of which he was steeped and of the weaknesses of which he was unaware.

Ray Stannard Baker in his life of Wilson tells an interesting story of how his interest was aroused in this matter. It seems that the students soon learned to gather at the house of the radical young professor Wilson. Some of them complained to Mrs. Wilson about the shame of being watched during their examinations. She passed this on and started something. Doctor Wilson afterwards gave a post graduate course under the honour system at Versailles. Some of the pupils proved a bit unruly.

The sentimental appeal of the idea is well illustrated by a story written recently in The Saturday Evening Post by Mr. Day Edgar. This story described the plight of a young man who had difficulty with only one subject, which was threatening to prevent his graduation and disgrace him in the eyes of those at home. His difficulties were aggravated by the personal dislike harbored towards him by the instructor. During the final examination, which was held under the honour system, he determined to leave the room and copy the answers from his mates. This he did, but one of the questions, on "honour," caused a revulsion of feeling and he forbore from handing in his paper. He lost his degree, but when he told his father all about the soul struggle he had had, the jolly old pater welcomed him home. How does that sound to you?

Comes Back at Dr. Porter Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

Dr. Porter has spoken openly on the subject of vaccination. His views regarding compulsory vaccination for University students are emphatic but not astonishing—no, not when you take his position into consideration. Mussolini thinks his government is the best in the world.

I am not an anti-vaccinationist (and I may state in passing that I am not an amateur psychologist who is anti-everything, as the eminent Doctor "hinted"). Vaccination is a specific treatment and may help a certain cause at a certain time. Wholesale application of it without discretion to "all the people all the time" is not only harmful but wasteful.

As for jeopardizing my popularity, I refuse to believe that this is the case when I elect to give such an opinion. "Let well enough alone" is a maxim that is respected by a good many.

Yours truly,

Protest from a Purist

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

In your issue of Tuesday, October 2nd, there appeared in the column "With the Theatre" over the signature "B.D.B." a comment on this week's production at the Empire Theatre, "Jimmie's Women," which in my estimation is entirely misleading. The critic says the play is not as risqué as the name might suggest. I wonder what he would call risqué? Last night, influenced by the favourable criticism in "The Varsity" (in times past the undergraduate has been able to accept "The Varsity's" dramatic comments as reliable), I visited the Empire Theatre with a number of friends. We considered the play suggestive at almost every turn, and interspersed so profusely with profanity as to make it repulsive to a normally moral mind.

It seems to me that either the mind of our dramatic editor has reached that sad state where a drama of this nature comes within the bounds of his approval, or we have in him a young man so thoroughly unacquainted with the world in which he is living that the allusions so prevalent throughout the drama passed entirely over his head. In case of the latter, surely the profanity at least should not have escaped mention. However, in justice to him I would say that his comments on the acting and music were highly commendable.

MARTIN AND GUNN ARE STILL FAVOURITES IN TENNIS TOURNAMENT

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Saturday next marks the official opening of "big-time" rugby. For Varsity students, however, the big attraction is being held at the Richardson Stadium, Kingston, where the Blue and White will be the guests of the Tricolour.

The first game of the Intercollegiate series will give a pretty good line on where the championship "mug" will repose for the following year. Several weeks ago Queen's were decided favourites, but the reverse at the hands and feet of the Tigers caused a considerable decline in their stock. McGill, who started with a bang last year, and then fell by the wayside, have not been saying much but will likely have a good team. The presence of Don Young, who has decided to vacate the Capitol and the Ottawa Senators in the bargain, will be a most welcome one to the followers of the "Red."

The fans will remember that early in the season of 1925 the aforesaid Mr. Young and his team-mate, Harold Starr, both of whom were counted on by Ottawa, suddenly decided to go to Queen's. Apparently that venerable institution of learning did not agree with them, or else they found the Barstone, Leadley, McKelvey, Thomas outfit a little tougher to break into than they expected, for they did not tarry long in the Limestone City. Returning to Ottawa they lined up with the Senators and had the satisfaction of helping to put the "kibosh" on the Tricolour's aspirations for four straight Dominion championships.

This year's Intercollegiate team appears to be one of the youngest that ever wore the Blue uniform. No new players of exceptional ability and of great reputation have as yet placed their names with the Registrar. Unlike Queen's which has attracted a notable collection of piskin chasers, with several exceptions Varsity will send in a line-up composed of remnants of last year's outfit, bolstered by former Orphans and Juniors.

The opening O.R.F.U. game at Kitchener will likely uncover several prospects for the first team. Charley Baillie on the Orphan backfield is one of the fastest runners in senior football, and his work in rounding the ends is a treat to watch. A bit more steadiness in the catching end of the business and this lad would make any of the Intercollegiate halves step mighty fast to hold down their places.

It is to be hoped that none of "Jimmy" Douglas' "hopefuls" will sample too generously Kitchener's light lunches—said light lunches featuring beer and pretzels. We know that pretzels alone taste pretty awful, but beer is another matter altogether. If you start on the shrivelled doughnuts the only cure is a good dose of Pilsener, and of course the latter always tastes better with the Deutsch soda-biscuits, and so on, etc., etc.

VARSITY INTERMEDIATES HAVE BRIGHT PROSPECTS

Regulars of Last Year Form Nucleus of Large Squad

From present indications Varsity is going to have a team to cheer for in the Intermediate series. Formerly the Intermediates were almost invariably a collection of ambitious but inexperienced men. They tried hard but never got far. This year, however, Freddy Bartlett has some real material experienced and ready to go the route.

The local season opens October 13 with a visit from Western, last year's champions. Western have been for many years the class of the league, even entering a petition this year for senior intercollegiate grouping along with Varsity, Queen's and McGill. Their application was refused, and so it seems quite likely that they will this year attempt to prove conclusively that they are justified in their ambitions for senior rating.

O.A.C. and Osgoode, the other teams in the group, are both good, but from present indications should not overly worry either Western or Varsity.

Amongst those out last night were Bonwell, Seagram and Knowles from last year's team and a host of others, some with real ability. The squad seems all pepped up, just biding their time until they take on Western. At present there are enough men out for three teams, but the next week or so should see the team cut to workable proportions.

MULLOCK CUP MANAGERS

MATERIAL UNEARTHED AT MED TRACK MEET

Freshmen Threaten Seniors in Annual Inter-year Tussle

In the Medical Track Meet yesterday afternoon the freshmen bid high for year honours when they captured 38 points, as against the 40 points won by Fourth Year, who captured first place. Second Year placed third with 15 points.

George Sparrow of Fourth Year easily captured the individual championship with a total of 22 points. Sparrow, by the way, will be eligible for the Intercollegiate team this year, from which he was barred last fall. Kasler, a freshman, who proved by his performance that he is a sprinter also, came second with 15 points, and McLennan placed third, winning 13 points for Second Year.

Quite a crowd of supporters turned out to cheer the men on, the faculty being well represented in the audience. Quite a number of freshmen and "Meddies" loyally and loudly supported their year teams.

The meet yesterday showed that Meds have quite a strong track team, and should do well in the Interfaculty Meet. Sparrow was the outstanding athlete of the day, with Kasler showing up well in the sprints, and McLennan leading the distance men.

The following are the results of the meet—

100 Yards Dash—1st, Kasler (10 4-5 secs.); 2nd, Sparrow; 3rd, Atkinson.
220 Yards Dash—1st, Kasler (25 2-3 secs.); 2nd, Sparrow; 3rd, Atkinson.
120 Yards Hurdles—1st, Sparrow; 2nd, Allin.

440 Yards Dash—1st, Kasler.
Half Mile Run—1st, Williams (2 min. 12 4-5 sec.); 2nd, McLennan.
One Mile Run—1st, McLennan; 2nd, D. Wilson.

Three Mile Run—1st, McLennan (18 min. 20 sec.); 2nd, W. G. Young; 3rd, T. V. O. B. Wilson.
Pole Vault—1st, Contway; 2nd, Gunn.

Discus Throw—1st, Sparrow (84 ft. 7 in.); 2nd, Barner; 3rd, Wilkinson.
Running Broad Jump—1st, Sparrow (18 ft. 7 1-2 in.); 2nd, Allin; 3rd, Contway.

Running High Jump—1st, Allin (5 ft. 4 in.); 2nd, Wilkinson; 3rd, Contway.

Shot Put—1st, Barner (34 ft. 7 in.); 2nd, Wilkinson; 3rd, Sparrow.

SEMI-FINALS IN VARSITY TENNIS MATCHES REACHED

Four Players Are Left After Eliminations of Yesterday

The semi-finals were reached in the Varsity tennis tourney after yesterday's play. Gunn, Balfour, Martin and Noyes are the four who have reached the semi-finals. To-day Gunn meets Balfour and Martin meets Noyes in two matches, which should be excellent from a spectator's standpoint.

Balfour scored a very impressive victory over Hamilton in the closest and best match of the day. Balfour was the steadier of the two, and this gave him the edge.

Don Gunn played lovely tennis to eliminate Johnson in two easy sets. Gunn played remarkably well to eliminate a player of Johnson's ability in so easy a fashion.

Bill Noyes also did well to defeat Coupland in straight sets. Both these lads are very steady, and for a while it looked as if they would never finish.

Walter Martin, as was expected, came through his match with Morrow quite handsly. Although Morrow put up a great fight he could make no headway against Martin's powerful strokes.

Squads of Various Faculties Put Through Soccer Practice

Soccer took up the front campus yesterday. There were several squads out practising, including S.P.S., Wycliffe, U.C. and Trinity. Later on Wycliffe played U.C., both strengthened by several Varsity soccer men. The practice game was slow and quite featureless. The men are rounding out their team play and getting in condition. Some of the Varsity men out were Cox, King, Hadley, Jackson, Davidson and Downey.

Halliwell is the present Varsity soccer crack. He played goal for Ulster in the Old Country and now is with Toronto Scottish. He is putting the team through some hard snappy work and expects the team to be one of the best this year.

ARGOS PRACTICE WITH HELP OF SEARCHLIGHTS

The back campus of the university has been the scene of great activity of late. Not only by day does the ground echo to the thud of feet, but even after darkness has fallen the scene goes on. The Argonaut Club rugby team is making use of the campus in the late evening aided by the light from several searchlights.

Until almost sundown the various interfaculty teams make use of the grounds, but with the coming of darkness the grounds are illuminated and the Argos begin. The Argos have used this means of getting in their practice and have found it fairly satisfactory. Since many of the Argos men are employed until evening, this suits them particularly well as they are enabled to make use of the later evening hours for practice which, without lighting of the campus would be impracticable if not altogether impossible.

PLAY-OFFS IN ST. HILDA TENNIS HELD YESTERDAY

Enthusiastic Student Support Augers Well For Undertaking

The first round of the St. Hilda's tennis tournament was played off yesterday with Peggy Groat, last year's University champion, emerging as the victor of thirty-two entries. Although the team has lost three of last year's strong players—Joyce Findlay, Dorothy Fraser and Dorothy Cox having graduated—Enid McCall, Peggy Groat and Dot Langley remain. Very promising freshmen are Beatrice Simmons from Bishop Strachan School, and Carol Denison. The courts are much improved and the enthusiastic support evinced by the college proves that the high standard of former years will be maintained.

Sixty hopefuls have signed the lists of the Victoria tournament, the first round of which will be played off by the end of this week. Lois Reynolds, Eleanor Taylor and Norma Bateman of last year's team are ready to uphold Vic's ancient honour, though graduation has taken the toll of three reliable players, namely, Helen Richardson, Jean Bateman and Lou Bates.

In Wonderland With Archie
Methods Newer for Interviewer

Archie, or Scotty, the well-known caretaker of University College, is a mine of information on the ancient traditions of the building. Recalling his good nature in the matter of straying umbrellas, lost books and the like, we approached and boldly demanded the dark truth about some of the hidden secret places of the building. Archie, however, believes in the direct method, so, fingering a bunch of venerable keys, he led the way to the "places." We first learned that Croft Chapter House at one time sheltered the College of Education and sported a balcony or two somewhere near the roof. Then Archie strutted his stuff. We passed door after door, mounted stair upon stair and finally arrived at the foot of several flights of ladders leading far up into the mysterious recesses of one of the many towers of U.C. Bravely we ascended through cobwebs and dust, listening the while to Archie's tales of weird nocturnal sounds and happenings, punctuated by the mournful croon of the pigeons and the ghostly flutter of the bats which infest the place. Slightly dizzy, very dusty, but nothing daunted, we made the hazardous descent and prepared to make off and impart our information to all and sundry. But Archie, muttering something about "special honour," crawled under a pipe and through a door which opened in the wall and revealed the opening to a black cavernous passage about 4½ feet high and 4 feet wide. Striking a match, he motioned me on much in the manner of Hamlet's ghost.

We stumbled on by the fitful gleam of Archie's match through a maze of hot steam pipes and telephone wires, finally emerging with a sigh of relief into a store-room, where we viewed stacked upon stacks of jugs and sealers which, we were told, were used in the dim past when home-cooking was in vogue for the preserves of the faculty dining hall. Having expended his store of information on this particular spot, Archie advanced to the door which was to lead us back to light—we were to us, it was bolted from the other side. There was only one way out—that dreadful passage. A paralyzing thought occurred to our overwrought mind—if Archie didn't have any more matches we were ruined! He didn't—we were! But with confidence born of long acquaintance with the place, he rose superbly to the occasion. "Here," he said, "I'll take your books and you take my coat tail." In this manner we traversed the stygian gloom, barking our shins and knocking our heads against the steaming pipes. We finally emerged, viewed the remains and decided not to interview any one else that day. Nevertheless we are not discouraged in our pursuit of adventure, and as Archie has promised us another "interview," we in turn promise to tell you all about it.

college to any extent. While on the subject of sport, Percy Williams, of course, entered the conversation. In answer to the many reports declaring that Williams would leave the U.B.C. Miss Tolmie said that the scholarship donated by citizens of the city of Vancouver for the brilliant athlete would probably do much to offset rewards dangled before his eyes by colleges south of the boundary line.

"Why did you choose Toronto for the pursuance of graduate studies in preference to an American university?" asked the perceptive reporter. "In the first place," said Miss Tolmie, "I had a scholarship to this university, but I always understood that Toronto had one of the finest graduate studies departments in America."

As a keen student of journalism, and a former editor of the U.B.C. paper, Miss Tolmie expressed interest in "The Varsity," but thought that it should devote more space to original contributions. "A whole page is given to sporadic contributors at U.B.C.," she said, "and it is one of the best features of the paper."

The fact that U.B.C. is a smaller college than Toronto was instanced by Miss Tolmie as a reason why social activities embraced more thoroughly the complete student body than at U. of T. "While fraternities and sororities had slight actual influence in college affairs," she further stated, "they are recognized by the Caput, which I understand is not so here."

The Dean of S.P.S., coming next, urged the students to take an active interest in everything in the university life. He said that outside interests were almost more important than the purely academic side. Many professors were then introduced to the student body.

Rev. F. J. Moore in his speech outlined the history of the Student Christian Association in the University and mapped out the programme for the coming year. He promised many useful and interesting lectures by several prominent men.

The last speech of the evening was delivered by Professor C. R. Yonge with the aid of lantern slides. He outlined the progress of engineering in recent years and showed photographs of many eminent men and outstanding works in that profession. At the conclusion of his speech the chair-

DENTALS' SOPH-FROSH BANQUET CELEBRATED IN EXCELLENT STYLE

Nearly Sixty Present at Ford Hotel on Occasion of Fine Programme

SHOULD KEEP UP STANDARD

Great Advances in Research Made Here in Last Three Years

The new Ford Hotel was last night the scene of a happy assembly when nearly sixty gathered to celebrate the Dental Freshman-Sophomore Banquet of 1928.

The guests of the evening included Dean Secombe of the Faculty of Dentistry, Dr. W. E. Willmott and Dr. H. A. Hoskin, both also of the faculty; Padre Moore of the S.C.M., Roy Gilley, Comptroller of Hart House; and A. G. Burns, Secretary of the S.A.C. Warden Bickersteth of Hart House was not able to be present, having been called away to conduct the Dedicatory Services in the Memorial Union of the University of Wisconsin.

After the appetizing menu had been dispatched with apparent relish, the assembly rose and sang the National Anthem and drank the toast to the King, proposed by Roy Currie, toastmaster. The toast to the Dental profession was proposed by O. G. Halderman, and responded to by Dr. W. E. Willmott. He reviewed the history of the Dental profession, and said that no other profession had made so much progress in so short a time. Dentistry was the youngest profession, having been organized only about 90 years on this continent—sixty years in Ontario. He congratulated the freshmen on their choice of profession and assured them they would find plenty of opportunities for service.

W. L. Wood, President of the Sophomore year, proposed the toast to the class of '33, to which S. Jamieson, President of the first year, responded. The toast to the Faculty was proposed by A. A. Somerville, track representative of fifth year, and this was responded to by Dean Secombe, who came in late, having just returned from London. He stressed the wonderful advances made in dental research here, especially in the last three years. The freshmen had come to University not only to be trained as dentists but to be trained as men, so that they might be able to solve the many difficult problems of life. The character of the dental profession of to-morrow was in their hands, and it was their duty to keep up the standards, that the profession might be even a greater factor for the betterment of mankind than it had been in the past.

Hart House Warden is Guest at Opening of American Union

Mr. Bickersteth, Warden of Hart House, left last evening for Madison, Wisconsin, where he will be the guest of the University of Wisconsin for a few days. The occasion is the dedication and opening of the newly built Wisconsin Memorial Union which is designed to serve the students of the University of Wisconsin somewhat as Hart House does at this university. The chief ceremony will be held outdoors on the terraces of the new Memorial Union which faces the lake. There are various attractions offered in the way of entertainment following the ceremony, including a boat race and a football match between the University of Wisconsin and a rival team.

Directory Information

A number of students have failed to furnish their city addresses and telephone numbers for the new issue of the Directory. This information should be given at once to the college registrars in the case of Arts students, and to the faculty secretaries in the case of students in other faculties.

CHECHA EPE TELLS OF AMERICAN VISIT

Thinks That Canadian Students Although More Thoughtful Are Too Self-satisfied TOOK COURSE AT CORNELL

"Canadian students taken as a class are more serious-minded, more considerate and more human than American students," states Miss Checha Epe, who has just returned from a summer course at Cornell. She is a graduate of Madras University, and has for the past year been engaged in post-graduate work at Victoria College.

When interviewed by "The Varsity," Miss Epe would give only a few general impressions of life at an American university, because she felt that life at Cornell, as she had observed it during the summer months, might not be at all representative of the life at the same university during a regular session. What she found to be true of American college students might also be characteristic of Canadian short course students, she said. "While most Canadian students attend university with some definite end in view, some vocation, or life-work to prepare for, the main object of American students seems to be to have a good time. And," she added, "they usually get what they go after."

In her experience she has found Canadian students to be more friendly than their sisters to the south, and less inclined to stick together in small groups to the exclusion of all others. They are more thoughtful and considerate of other people and not so frivolous as the majority of the American co-eds. "I do not wish to say too much in praise of your University, because I think you are pretty self-satisfied as it is," she added with a smile.

LECTURESHIP STIMULATES INTERNATIONAL AMITY

Harvard Professor Chosen to Give Series of Lectures in January

To stimulate the international amity already existing between the United States and Canada is the idea behind the Pearson Marfleet Lectureship, which was founded in 1910 by Mrs. Lydia A. Marfleet of Prophanston, Illinois, in memory of her husband. The Lectureship has been made a perpetuity by the Governors, who every four years select some person or persons to give a course of lectures in the University of Toronto. The person so chosen is selected for ableness in setting forth some phase or phases of the national movements of each or both countries.

The next course of lectures will be delivered on January 23, 24 and 25, 1929, by Professor William Bennett Munro, M.A., LL.B., Ph.D., holder of the Jonathan Trumbull Professorship of American History and Government, and professor at Harvard University since 1912. He was born in Almonte, Ontario, and took his B.A. degree at Queen's, and then studied abroad.

COLLEGE GRADUATES ARE NEITHER SNOBS NOR WASTRELS

University Professors Say Snobishness Rarely Found at U. of T.

FEW FLAUNT DEGREES

First Year Students Too Much Occupied with Social Side of College

That the charge of the typical college graduate being a loafer and a snob is far-fetched and most extreme is the opinion generally held by the Faculty of the University of Toronto. The fact of graduation implies that a certain amount of hard study has been done; and even admitting the snobishness, which is principally intellectual and is often fancied by the sensitive man in the street, it is an innate trait of character, and not developed in the short space of four years. A college course, indeed, should tend to cure snobishness, since the best education develops a sense of humility.

"No class of person is less open to the charge of being either a snob, a wastrel or a loafer," said Professor C. E. Auger, Registrar of Victoria College, when questioned by "The Varsity." The B.A. course here is made sufficiently difficult in proportion to reason and the aptitude of the student. It is less likely to apply here than in mushroom universities where the scholastic standards are not as high.

The loafing, as charged in a recent issue of a prominent American magazine, is mostly in the first year, and students who enter with such a notion are quickly weeded out. In the opinion of Dr. Eakin, Principal of Knox College, first year students are apt not to have a true conception of a university and are too much occupied with the social side. This is true especially in the American colleges, where the sons of rich men attend as a matter of course, and the average student is fairly well off. By far the greater percentage of students in Canadian universities work their way through, more so than in the States.

There is, however, a danger of snobishness. Certain colleges, such as Oxford and Cambridge, Harvard and Yale, have an atmosphere of social snobbery. Non-graduates have a snobbery all their own, and often attribute to the grad a sense of superiority from a consciousness of their lack of education; while with the increase of graduates university education is becoming commoner, and very few, if any, flaunt their degrees. It simply isn't done.

"It is only human nature, however," said Professor Dale of University College, "for a man to be proud of a good education. There is no time when a man is more apt to think well of himself. No one has a right to be conceited, of course. And it is quite possible for a lazy but clever man to get through, but the standards have been raised."

"In England," said Professor C. R. Fay of the Economics Department, "the few rich used to gain a dangerous sense of superiority, but with the greater competition and the larger number of graduates."

DIPLOMATIC SERVICE CLAIMS PROFESSORS WRONG AND PEARSON

L. B. Pearson Given Post as First Secretary of External Affairs

H. WRONG AT WASHINGTON

"Mike" Well Remembered as Coach of O.R.F.U. and Hockey Teams

Within the last two years, the History department of the University of Toronto has lost two men to the diplomatic service of the dominion. Mr. Hume Wrong, who was granted leave of absence for the academic year 1927-8 to serve as a member of the Canadian embassy in Washington, D.C., has definitely resigned from the staff. Now Mr. L. B. Pearson has deserted the professoriate and Baldwin House to become first secretary in the department of external affairs at Ottawa.

With Canada's growing importance as an international power, it was found necessary to enlarge the staff in the office for external affairs, Mr. Pearson being the first to hold the post of first secretary. As the appointment was made by the Civil Service Commission, candidates were forced to try a competitive examination. At Varsity it is apparently possible to learn to pass as well as to set examination papers.

Mr. Pearson served overseas during the war, returning to finish his course at Toronto. After a few years at Oxford he came back to his Alma Mater as lecturer in history. At the time of his resignation he was assistant professor in the Department of History at Baldwin House.

On the campus and among the athletic life of the University Mr. Pearson was known as "Mike." For three years he coached the O.R.F.U. team during the fall term, and the senior hockey team during the winter.

LIFE PROBLEM TO BE STUDIED BY S.C.A.

Prominent Speakers to Take Important Parts in Conference

Something unique in the history of the Women's Student Christian Association in the University of Toronto is to take place this week-end, when women of all faculties are invited to assemble at a conference to discuss the question, "What shall I do with my life?"

Several prominent speakers are to take important parts in the conference, among them Dr. Malby, Dr. W. R. Taylor, and Mrs. E. A. Bott. Dr. Malby and Dr. Taylor will address evening meetings, and Mrs. Bott will have forums dealing with the special problems confronting girls. Miss Rutherford, of the Canadian Student Christian Movement, who has had wide experience with varying groups of students, and Dr. Marion Hillard, who is conversant with student life abroad, will also be leaders at the conference, while Dr. Norma Ford will be the hostess.

Addresses, discussions and forums will occupy most of the sessions, and on Saturday afternoon there will be a hike, followed by a picnic supper. On Friday and Saturday the conference is to assemble at the Heliconian Club, 35 Hazelton Ave., and on Sunday the meetings will be held at Wymilwood.

Correction

In yesterday's issue an account on page one of the reception to the first year men in Applied Science and Engineering arranged by the Student Christian Association appeared under an erroneous headline. This referred to the "soph-frosh banquet," whereas this event has not yet taken place in this faculty.

JOURNALISTS' COURSE PROVES POPULAR

John M. Elson, Author of "The Scarlet Sash", To Be Tutor

FEW JOURNALISTS ATTEND

"Is there enough in the study of Journalism to warrant a three-year course?"

Mr. W. J. Dunlop, Director of the University Extension Department, smiled genially but challengingly across his desk in Simcoe Hall at the representative of "The Varsity" yesterday afternoon.

"That is our question," he continued. "Because if there is—we shall have it."

Mr. Dunlop went on to outline how the Extension Course in Journalism had grown from an enrollment of twenty at its inauguration six years ago, until last year when over a hundred people entered the portals of University College one evening each week to explore the mysteries of "the newspaper game" and kindred fields. When the seventh session commences next week, Mr. Dunlop pointed out, the beginner will face a two-year course in Journalism instead of a one-year course as heretofore. The work which has constituted the entire course in previous years will be taken now in the elementary class, while the advanced class will consider such subjects as the feature article and the short story.

"The tutor in charge," stated Mr. Dunlop, "is Mr. John M. Elson, at present one of Canada's foremost free-lance writers, who has had a wide experience on many newspapers. He is the author of 'The Scarlet Sash,' and was at one time mayor of St. Catharines. There is no field of Journalism in which he has not worked, and I consider him the ideal man for this kind of thing. That he is successful we have concrete proof in the fact that last year his classes kept up to the one hundred mark right through. You know, if a lecturer does not suit these people, they do not attend."

The representative of "The Varsity" was anxious to know what sort of people attend these classes.

"There are a few journalists," said Mr. Dunlop, "but for the most part they are business people. There are a good many women—not a majority, I should say, but a good many." The course, Mr. Dunlop said in conclusion, was a forty-hour one—each class of two hours' duration, one night a week for twenty weeks.

Further results were: Vice-Pres. III Year—James Clancy. Pres. II Year—Leo Leavy.

QUEEN'S IN READINESS FOR FRAY FOLLOWING FRACAS WITH TIGERS

Expect to Have Best Players in the Line-up for Tomorrow's Game

WORK BEHIND LOCKED GATE

Promising New Material Will Take Place of Lost Stars

Special to "The Varsity"

(By R. W. Clark, Assistant Sports Editor of the "Queen's Journal") Kingston, Oct. 3.—Early indications favoured Queen's to repeat their success of last year when after a poor start they forged their way to the top of the Intercollegiate heap and were crowned champions.

The loss of such stars as the one and only Harry Lee Batstone, "Chiff" Howard, "Liz" Walker, "Hank" Brown, "Honey" Reynolds and "Gib" McKay should have given the Tricolours hopes a severe setback, but Varsity and McGill fared badly also. Graduation and other divers causes wrecked the Blue and Red machines. Queens, with a remnant of last year's squad as a nucleus, started to rebuild, and some of the brightest collegiate and high school prospects were to be found at the opening workout on September 17th. In addition to these newcomers, some of last season's ineligibleities, after a term of serious study, convinced their professors of their "scholastic prowess" and are again in good standing. Under the amiable Jimmy Bews, some forty-eight candidates were put through strenuous "P.T." and rapidly mounted into condition. The Hotel Frontenac was again utilized for training quarters, and in this way a spirit of friendship and team play was established. Heavier scrimmages were gradually injected into the practices, but the players were not driven too hard. On Saturday, September 29th, Queen's journeyed to Hamilton to play the terrible Tigers an exhibition fixture. Time and space need not be wasted describing the debacle of that day. Tigers' heavier wing line tore the Tricolours to pieces and crossed Queen's goal line four times. In addition to crushed pride, the Limestone City students suffered several casualties. Captain "Bubs" Britton, "Irish" Monahan, "Ike" Sutton, Stuart and Gorman were rendered "hors de combat" and have been absentees from practice since returning from the ambitious city. The squad resumed the training grind on Monday afternoon. Gone to stay were the easy methods and happy-go-lucky tactics of the early season. Coach Carson, aided by Harry Batstone, "Chicks" Mundell and "Doc" Campbell, working behind locked gates drove the players as a chariot driver drives his horses, never slackening up and pushing them to the limit, until after dark. Football is serious business, and nowhere more so than here in the Limestone City. Again on Tuesday the relentless drive lasted for over three hours.

There is nothing nice about a football player's existence this time of year, and some of them are beginning to realize it. No information was forthcoming from the authorities regarding those injured last week; but it is understood that all will be in shape for all part of Saturday's clash. Coach Carson has cut the squad to twenty, and unless something untoward happens, these men will represent Queen's. In addition to Britton, Warren, Carter, Sutton, Monaghan, Nagel, Durham, Agnew, Wright, Monahan, Handford, Albright, Kilgour, (Continued on page 2)

THE SPREAD OF CIVILIZATION

Two years ago initiations were formally abolished. Last year the preparation of and participation in the Centenary celebrations served to keep the undergraduates quiet, or at least diverted their attention from the torturing of the first year. But this year surface happenings have led some observers to conclude that a revival is taking place in what used to be optimistically and euphemistically labelled "the old college spirit."

The judgment is a superficial one. A few rounds of jiu-jitsu and a crazy succession of tie-shearings have been merely ruffles on the tranquil surface of undergraduate affairs. For rowdiness has disappeared from the campus, never to appear again. For good or ill, civilization has been impressed upon the many-headed.

Rowdiness has been justified in the past by a formidable number of specious arguments and lofty appeals to the idealistic mind. For many a year the peasantry were of the firm belief that to belt a harmless and friendless unfortunate across a campus was a fitting introduction to the pursuit of culture in an institution of learning. It seemed that the freshman had to be "taken down a peg." He had to be "shown his place." And naturally those delegated to adjust the pegs in the scheme of things and show poor wretches their places were a lot of big monkeys who might better have been occupied in reading The Five Foot Shelf or even a reputable dictionary. The choice thing about this ceremony was the custom existing among the faculties proud of their barbarous initiation, of excusing athletes from undergoing the same. In other words, the able bodied who could stand the initiations were allowed to escape them.

All of which peculiar jollity has gone forever. It has not gone because the undergraduates are any better than those of former years, but because they are interested in other things. "Other things" mean co-eds and the multiplicity and diversity of non-academic activities. "Fussing" and bawling platitudes in debating societies and looking wise on committees have replaced the venerable custom of banging one's brethren.

And now the heavy executives and their followers have caught the spirit of pacificism. Because something happened at Victoria College and a downtown newspaper reported that it had happened, the frantic Mr. Fredenburg froths about "yellow journalism." Another paper carried an article repeating the traditional story of the row between Trinity students and University residence men. As a result the Trinity College meeting has demanded a retraction from the journal for insinuating that Trinity men would stoop to such a thing. (Don't get excited. The Evening Telegram has not yet apologised.)

Yes, we have moved a long way from the day when University of Toronto students fought the police in the city streets and crossing the city limits forced the limbs of the law to listen to abuse delivered by perfervid orators from the tops of barrels.

Students Constructing Aeronautical Glider Special to "The Varsity"

Lawrence, Kansas, Oct. 9.—Five students in the department of mechanical engineering, under the direction of Prof. E. D. Hay, are engaged in preparation for the construction of a glider for tests in the aeronautical field. The instructor recently came to the University from the University of Wyoming, where aeronautical engineering was his specialty for the past five years.

MORE OF YELLOW TIES

The conviction that freshmen are evading the duty of wearing their yellow ties at Victoria College is regarded with apprehension by sophomores. Mr. J. W. Binning, Second Year President, intimated to "The Varsity" that action would probably be taken in the near future.

Second year men are in better condition than first year were, judging by the physical health examinations conducted by Dr. Porter. A very high per cent of the student are physically efficient.

COURAGE IS NEEDED BY ALL IN PRAYER

The Faculty of Prayer Must Be Exercised and Disciplined

HORIZON WIDENING

"We come to a time when we have to pray, and not just say our prayers," was the quiet but forceful message of Dr. Malby at Trinity Library yesterday afternoon. "We are all guilty of insincerity, never so much as when we think ourselves perfectly honest." It was this very insincerity, often unsuspected by ourselves, which made prayer so difficult. "We are learning the use of a new faculty, the noblest faculty that we have." This new faculty of prayer would have to be exercised and disciplined. We used inferior faculties like the blind man who has just recovered his sight.

"Prayer is difficult. It needs courage. A certain width of horizon is necessary before one can pray successfully. There must be a time for everything in this busy life. You must make a time for prayer. I am sure of it!"

Most of us were guilty of ejaculatory prayer, particularly when in great difficulty, or near death. Dr. Malby would have prayer given a special part in the day. He suggested an inspirational book, and this book was not necessarily about people "who were permitted to rejoice," or of a concentrated religious type.

Climb up a few steps, and you will find the horizon is widened. Climb up and get away from the dust. Borrow from other minds noble thoughts and inspiration. "We haven't been in the custom of putting into words our best thoughts. But I am sure," concluded Dr. Malby, "that there are great discoveries for us in the kingdom of prayer."

Queen's Prepares for

Basserman and Gourlay, who have performed on former teams, there are the following: Armour, Munro, half back, Toronto; "Red" Gilmore, half back, Oakwood C.I.; "Red" Gorman, middle wing, Delta Collegiate, Hamilton; Lackie, inside wing, Toronto; Stewart, middle wing, Lamberville, N.B.; and Jamieson, snap and inside wing, Camp Borden. Munro and Gilmore have been showing rare form and should be intercollegiate stars this year. The other newcomers have been performing well and will in all probability be used much throughout the intercollegiate campaign. Though badly defeated at Hamilton last Saturday, Queen's were "in there" gaining valuable experience, and with an additional week's hard work beside them will be right on edge for the Blue invasion.

RUGBY AND HOCKEY SEASON TICKETS GO ON SALE TO-DAY

SPEAKING OF SPORT

It won't be long now! For several weeks past the campus and Stadium have resounded to the thud of leather on the pig-skin and the sound of bodies hitting "terra firma." To-morrow will show much of what has been accomplished.

At Kingston "Les" Blackwell's proteges under the able direction of Murray Snyder will take the field to do battle with the Tricolour. Kitchener will be hosts to Jimmy Douglas' Orphans, marking the former's entry into the senior series.

Football fans who are not going to Kingston for the game with the Tricolour will be able to enjoy a mighty good second-best by putting in an appearance at the Varsity Stadium. The dish to be served up is the Argo-Tiger reunion, and it will be one red-hot struggle. Statisticians say that Tigers have not defeated Argos in Toronto since the war, but yours truly is firmly convinced that Saturday will see the shattering of that record. The men from Toronto's suburb are rarin' to go, and after the appetizer provided by Queen's it will take some strenuous opposition from the Oarsmen to prevent Mike Rodden's darlings from swallowing 'em whole.

"Huck" Welch, Tiger's recruit half, is considered the smartest junior that has advanced to senior company in some years. Welch is probably the best kicker in Canadian football and is lightning fast. Last year he teamed up with Caldwell on the Hamilton Delta outfit, and rumours were flying about that the pair were to go to Queen's in search of higher education, but Caldwell alone has entered Batstone's and Leadley's Alma Mater.

Dispatches from Queen's contain the following: Head gate-keeper at Richardson Stadium received this wire, sent collect:

"Owing to previous engagement regret am unable to be present at Saturday's festivities. Count upon seeing me later.

Pig-Eyed Donnelly."

Mr. Donnelly, as you know, is world's champion gate-crasher. He has, however, never succeeded in passing the guardians of our own stadium, but on his last visit to Toronto was confident of soon adding it to his long string of successes.

The 'Big Blue' Squad Complete Preparations for Queen's Game

A light workout at the Stadium last evening put the finishing touches to the hard grind in preparation for the Queen's game. The "Big Blue" squad went through a snappy signal drill, and Captain Murray Snyder had the boys working nicely. "Les" Blackwell has evolved several nifty trick plays which should keep the opposing defence looking cross-eyed.

This year's outfit seems to be entirely free from "Old Man" Over Confidence who has put the skids under many a promising collection of athletes, and if Varsity go in there imbued with the idea that every man on the team has got to give his best, they will sure give Queen's lots of action.

TENNIS TOURNAY HELD YESTERDAY

Finals in Doubles Won by Default Due to Sprained Ankle

MARTIN AND GUNN WINNERS

The finals were reached in the Varsity tennis tourney at the conclusion of yesterday's play on the courts of the Toronto Tennis Club. In the upper half Walter Martin defeated Noyes in three straight sets (6-3, 6-1, 6-4) after a very good match. Noyes was hitting nearly as hard as Martin, but his shots were not nearly as well directed nor was he as steady as his more experienced opponent.

In the lower semi-final Don Gunn disposed of Art Balfour 6-0, 6-3, 7-5. The play was quite close, however, especially after Balfour got his bearings about the middle of the second set. Again it was a case of superior steadiness. Balfour's best effort occurred in the third set when Gunn led at 5-2. Here Balfour braced and evened the score at 5-5, but the effort was too much for him, and Gunn ran out the next two games for the match.

The finalists of the doubles were also decided when Martin-Gunn defeated Armstrong-Johnson 6-0, 3-0, default when Johnson twisted his ankle. In the other half Smith and Walker won by default from Hamilton-Armstrong. Both finals will be played this morning.

Results:—
Gunn def. Balfour 6-0, 6-3, 7-5.
Martin def. Noyes 6-3, 6-1, 6-4.
Martin-Gunn def. Armstrong-Johnson 6-0, 3-0, default.
Smith-Walker def. Armstrong-Hamilton, default.

To-day's draw:—
10:30—Martin vs. Gunn.
11:30—Martin - Gunn vs. Smith-Walker.

O.R.F.U. Team Meets Kitchener in First Game on Saturday

The Orphans will stack up against a hard hitting scrappy bunch on Saturday at Kitchener when they open the season against the Intermediate champions of last year. The combined Kitchener-Waterloo outfit, led by the versatile "Cammie" Seagram, are out for the Blues' hide, and if determination and general toughness means anything the O.R.F.U. squad is in for a none too soft ride. The Orphans, however, are no lady-finger children, and though the going may be stiff they will not be backing up.

The half line that will likely start will be Jack Sinclair, Charlie Baillie and Bill Spencer, a trio that should give the Westerners plenty of trouble. Jimmie Sinclair was going well and may start at the flying wing position. The outsiders, although there are a number of good boys tackling well, will possibly be Frank Scott and Tommy Kirk, although the decision will not be made until they get to the game. Murray Scott and Maurice Kelly will in all likelihood hold down the inside wing positions, while Gal-lowsay at snap looks certain.

DENTS '29 WIN TRACK MEET FIFTH TIME

Individual Championship Keenly Contested For By All Years

JACK MARSHALL WINNER

Dents '29 added another laurel to their string of victories yesterday afternoon at the Dental Track Meet when they won their fifth successive inter-year championship in track athletics. During the past five years this class has swept to victory by a large number of points. To Jack Marshall, who piled up 27 points to win the individual championship yesterday, and who participated in almost every event on the card, goes a great deal of the credit for Class '29's past victories. In past years Dents Meet has been rather slow, owing to the fact that a few stars carried everything before them, but this year the individual championship was any man's until the last whistle went. The following is Baillie Elected Captain of O.R.F.U.

Charlie Baillie, the speedy half, was last night elected captain of the Orphans for the present football season. Lovely Laura Louise Develops Dormant Feline Propensities

(By D. Kendall)

Toronto University. I know that you'll forgive me, dear. And he says that if he gets a ticket he'll take me to the Masquerade in Hart House (Men Only).

Dear Betty:

Oh! the packing and the transfer man and the registrar and getting into the right room at U.C. You see the numbers are terribly mixed up. Nine's under the stairs and ten is away two turns down the corridor. I know I promised faithfully to write you every day, but honestly I've been awfully busy—and how. It's so different from High School, my dear. You go to the room, if you can find it, and then the teacher, I mean the professor, comes and if he doesn't you go to get a chocolate bar or a glass of milk. Oh! that reminds me that they're putting up a new flagpole. It's going to be terribly high. I almost got arrested. Isn't that awful? Don't tell the kids, please. I was in a terrible hurry and I walked right across the Park. A big policeman yelled at me and said, "Where yer goin'?" My heart simply stopped. But you know I always was a quick thinker, so I said "I was just going to feed the squirrels." Wasn't that clever of me?

I'm awfully ashamed of what I am telling you, but, honest, it wasn't my fault. I was so lonely I was thinking of the Church Social and I almost cried wishing I was there. So I phoned Jimmy. I know that Jimmy was your beau, but I was so lonely. He's at School. That's part of the University. He wears a green tie, cut awfully short. He has to. He says he's in Meturgury. We had a lovely time. We went to a wonderful show and had eats afterward. It was simply heavenly. I know that you'll forgive me, dear. And he says that if he gets a ticket he'll take me to the Masquerade in Hart House (Men Only). I'm so thrilled.

All the girls in the house came in to see me one night. We had a gorgeous time and had Honey Dew and Red Hots. Jean is one of them. She isn't pretty, but she was actually in Europe last year and has the most wonderful clothes. I can have her wrap if I go to the Masquerade. You won't mind, will you dear? She's so sweet. She gave me awfully good advice. I should only make dates with the boys from Rosedale; they've got cars and frats and everything.

The English professor has the most wonderful accent. It's English. He is too. One of the girls is simply crazy over him. I'm not. I wouldn't think of marrying a man that says "Just retarded fawnn abraww!" Even if he has simply the most gorgeous hair.

But Betty, you mustn't put Toronto University on my letters, even if I am at Varsity. It isn't done. It isn't it, only it is the other way round. It is the University of Toronto.

There! I've told you everything. Remember me to all the kids at School (High School, I mean). I'll tell Jimmy that I wrote to you. He's coming to see me to-night, about his work.

Write soon and tell me all the news.

Your dearest friend,

Laura Louise.

P.S. I hope you really don't mind about Jimmy. L.L.

number of scholarships their number has lessened, especially since the war, until they are almost negligible."

Snobbishness, however, according to another member of the faculty, does not apply to the University of Toronto as much as to colleges where the students go through on others' money.

It is well known that true education makes for intellectual humility and industry.

Announcement

It is with a feeling of pride that we announce the opening of our New Men's Store on Bloor (just West of Bathurst).

To the students of the University of Toronto we extend a very sincere invitation to visit us at our opening on Friday, October 5th, at 8 p.m., when there will be no selling but plenty to see, and also hear Charlie Bodley's Orchestra while browsing about this smart store.

This business of ours is a different sort of place. A place for men, yet for ladies too, where money back if you want it is not the big advertising feature, but something we just do, and have always done.

This shop of ours is a place you ought to know, a place that caters to men's likes and dislikes, where a man may find the things to wear that are new, when they are new—Wearables that are distinctive, yet not expensive, selected by experts who know what men want, a place to buy haberdashery and smart clothes that will express one's personality—where a man gets style without extravagance.

Come Friday night or Saturday, come sometime, and see this most unique men's shop.

It's a place you ought to know.

STUDENTS' COURT HEARS CHARGES AGAINST DISOBEDIENT FRESHMEN

Sophomores at Victoria College have been extremely busy the past week hailing all suspicious characters whom they consider possible freshmen evading the yellow tie act.

"Freshman?" they ask. "If you don't wear a tie you'll come up before the Students' Court."

Is the Students Court to be revived to enforce ties upon stubborn frosh? A graduate told "The Varsity" that not for four years had this court been used.

Talk about Burwash Hall indicates that this former dead letter in the V.C.S.P. Constitution will indeed be revived. This is said by residents of Burwash to be indicative of the active brushes between the two lower years; more active than in any year since initiations have been abolished.

It is understood from a resident of Burwash Hall that a definite charge has been laid before the Court; with names of freshmen accused of publicly refusing to wear ties cited and witnesses offered. Mr. Joseph William Binning, President 371, intimates last week to "The Varsity" that this step was to be taken. It is believed that the Court will meet early in the week. The Court consists of the president, vice-president, secretary, senior and junior S.A.C. representatives of the Students' Parliament.

This is to be a test case. The Court is understood to have the power to levy a fine or other penalty. If the case fails, the enforcement of tie-wearing will be in a peculiar position. If it is carried, tie-wearing will continue as a custom at Victoria. The Caput, of course, expressly forbids violence of a physical nature.

HART HOUSE THEATRE HAS NO FALL SEASON SCHEDULED THIS YEAR

Four Plays Only Being Given in 1928-29 by Little Theatre

XMAS PRODUCTION FIRST

All Presentations Are Billed for Longer Runs Than Usual

For the first time since Hart House Theatre opened its doors in 1919, this year there will be no official productions for the fall season. According to present arrangements, the first play will be the Christmas presentation opening on December 26.

Mr. Aitken, who is again directing the local Little Theatre, is expected back from British Columbia this month. Until his return final announcement as to the season's activities cannot be made. But it has been definitely ascertained that, including the Canadian bill, there will only be four productions in the theatre this year.

In the past it has been found necessary to run certain plays longer than the customary week; but a feature of this year's programme is that all the plays are being billed for longer than one week.

The season opens at Christmas with the presentation of Masterlinck's "The Bluebird." In February comes Sean O'Casey's "Juno and the Paycock" from the Abbey Theatre, Dublin. Following this comes the Canadian bill, and finally the Shakespearean presentation, "Antony and Cleopatra."

NO GREAT LINE-UPS OF TICKET SEEKERS

General Attempt to Purchase
Tickets for Friends Proves Futile

DETACHED TICKETS INVALID

Friday at 1 o'clock the sale of the four dollar combination tickets took place in the east common room of Hart House (for the men) and in Room 82 of University College (for the women).

The students paid four dollars to one man, had their registration cards punched by another, and received the tickets from a third. The tickets are in the form of a little booklet with six pages. Each page, every one different in colour, is made up of five tickets, making thirty in all. Each book has a number and every ticket in the book is also numbered. The number of the ticket for the various events will be printed in "The Varsity" and also posted on the notice boards. In all there were about 400 tickets sold.

Friday morning brought approximately 150 women to Room 82, U.C., for the purchase of season tickets, though the line-up of former years was quite lacking. "The majority of the students seemed to understand the system," Miss Parkes, the secretary, remarked, "but a few were anxious to use the tickets for the Argo-Tigers game, and an occasional inquirer asked if the games at Queen's and McGill were included." Many students tried to buy tickets for their friends, producing as many as ten registration cards and four times as many dollars. This, of course, was not allowed. It was necessary to explain that the tickets are not valid if detached.

FIGHTING VARSITY BOYS VICTORS COME FROM BEHIND TO WIN 10-7 BEAT QUEEN'S IN INITIAL TEST

Chances to Score

SNYDER, GOODERHAM & TRAYNOR SHINE FOR BLUE TEAM

Varsity got away to a flying start in the 1928 collegiate series by downing Queen's at Kingston on Saturday by a score of 10-7.

Overcoming a 6-0 deficit secured by the Tricolour early in the first quarter, the Blue tied it up by half-time, and outscoring Queen's in the last half, rolled up four points to the enemy's one. The victory was doubly pleasing as the first Varsity win in Kingston since November 1922 and as a tribute to the fine work of the new coach, "Les" Blackwell.

STYLES AND GOSSIP AT THE BIG GAME

An Enquiring Reporter Throws
Light on Divers Proceedings

Queen's frosh have plenty of colour. Engineers' 32 sported black bonnets with green ribbon. Meds '34 displayed shapely calves beneath rolled up jeans. Green paper caps added to the general chic effect.

The Tricolour freshettes looked very neat with odd stockings—one green—and berry box hats a la R.M.C. Ages and weights, etc., printed on the lids made classification easier.

Hirsute adornments for 1st year men are not encouraged by the sophs. Immediately preceding the game the old Gillette was brought into action and another John Gilbert disappeared.

Reports indicate that a prominent member of S.P.S. has the coveted Queen's yard sticks in his possession. Three years of perseverance have been rewarded. For further information inquire of "Woody" Woodsie.

Rabbit racing is the latest Kingston sport. A half-time race between the Queen's rooters and Uncle Wiggly was won by the latter by a big margin.

The Varsity rooters—the whole 42 of them—made up in quality all that they lacked in quantity.

Guy Curtis, who starred for Tricolour teams for nearly a decade, was given an enthusiastic reception by the Queen's rooters. "Alfie" Pearce per usual was master of ceremonies.

Lunch Room Said To Be

The number of students who bring their own lunches is gradually increasing, as it is becoming generally known that the lunch room adjoining the Tuck Shop in Hart House has been greatly improved.

The specially constructed chairs with table attachments are said to be a real convenience to all using the room.

Visitors who have seen it are of the opinion that by the re-plastering and re-decorating it has been greatly improved, and has become one of the important facilities of Hart House.

Foreign Interest in Unique Work Done by U. of T. in New Science

That the University of Toronto is bound to become an important centre of aeronautical instruction and research is the opinion of Prof. J. H. Parkin of the Department of Mechanical Engineering at S.P.S.

"The University of Toronto," declared Prof. Parkin, "foreseeing some ten years ago the important part to be played by aviation in Canada, and recognizing the need for an aerodynamic laboratory in the development of aerial transportation in the Dominion, established the aerodynamic laboratory."

Upon this basis and to supply a demand for aeronautical engineers, the University of Toronto has this year established an undergraduate course in Aeronautical Engineering. The course is closely bound up with that of Mechanical Engineering and has therefore been established as an option for specialization in the fourth year with introductory instruction in the third.

Due to the limited demand for aeronautical engineers in the Canadian industry, the University will limit the number taking the option to not more than ten men. The American industry has been officially estimated to absorb only a hundred and twenty engineers per year, and from this fact, says Prof. Parkin, we deduce that the Canadian industry will absorb not more than about six men per year. Hence the limitations of the number in the course.

At the present time there are five men enrolled in the third year of the new course.

JACK WRIGHT VICTOR IN S.P.S. ELECTIONS

Two Acclamations Mark Result for First Time in Recent Years

PROCEEDINGS ARE QUIET

As a result of the elections held at S.P.S. on Friday, Jack Wright is president of the Engineering Society for the coming year. K. F. Tupper was elected to the chairmanship of the M. & E. Club.

In marked contrast to the furore which accompanied the elections in the spring, Friday's elections aroused little or no excitement. This, however, was partly to be attributed to the fact that they were by-elections and that a large number of fourth year men were away on their annual excursion to Queenstown. These voted at an advance poll held on Thursday.

For the first time in recent years two of the offices went by acclamation.

On the whole the poll was about the same as other years, about eighty per cent of those eligible voting.

Other results of the elections were:

279 Executive—
Pres.: A. W. Davison (accl.).
Vice-Pres.: D. L. McCarthy (accl.).
372 Executive—
Pres.: W. Bowes.
Vice-Pres.: W. Quaint.
Sec.-Treas.: S. Jewett.
Athletic Rep.: J. G. Porter.

TRUE LOVE UNKNOWN TO A HUMAN BEING

Dr. Maltby Concludes Addresses in Trinity College
Friday

"It is well to remember that the Cross has lain at the heart of Christian experience down through the ages," said Dr. Maltby, speaking on the subject "The Cross and the Meaning of the Cross," in Trinity College Friday afternoon.

Dr. Maltby continued by saying that it was irrational to dismiss the cross as though it had no particular meaning for us, even though it may have in the past been presented to us in language and forms which made it difficult of perception. Jesus Christ did not only offer a sort of moral equivalent for the sin of the world. He loved men. If a man loved, it meant that he bound himself to the recovery of the one loved. God's love was like this but greater. Friendships with limited liability. Real love such as Jesus displayed was friendship with unlimited liability. Without reserve Jesus dedicated himself to the task of our recovery to God through time and eternity.

TENDENCY TOWARDS IRRESPONSIBLE LIVES

Dr. Maltby Stresses Problems of Modern World and Solution

S.C.A. WEEK-END MEETING

On Friday, Oct. 5, in the Heliconian Club, the first session of the S.C.A. Week-end Conference took place. Doctor Maltby elaborated the question, "What shall I do with my life?" He claimed, "Our greatest contribution to the world is not service or thought, but the contribution of what we are."

Doctor Maltby remarked that life was now more complex, and the tendency was to lead irresponsible lives. To offset this, he recommended the simplification and intensification of our lives, as "we habitually behave below our optimum and enervate below our maximum." Doctor Maltby left this stimulating question for consideration, "There is a modern demand for self-realization; there is a Christian demand for self-renunciation; are they incompatible? Are they both Christian? Can we reconcile them?"

On Saturday morning, opening with a short service of worship, the conference proceeded to a discussion of Doctor Maltby's address, led by Miss Rutherford.

The one-year course for the training of graduate nurses for teaching and administrative positions in hospitals and up-to-date course that can be given," says Mr. W. J. Dunlop, Director of the University Extension.

"The University was asked by the Nurses' Organization in Ontario to provide a course to train nurses for this work," Mr. Dunlop explained. Then the course was decided on and opened on September 25th, 1928.

When asked as to the number registered in the course, Mr. Dunlop replied: "There are not a great number registered. Owing to the lack of accommodation the enrollment has been limited to twenty students, but I have been good-hearted and allowed an extra one in, making twenty-one now registered in the course."

TWO LETTERS

Of the many letters which have recently reached us, two of the most interesting appear in the batch printed in to-day's issue.

A young woman whose frankness is evidently due to her inexperience of things here wants an exchange column in "The Varsity" through the medium of which men and women could without formal introduction arrange social engagements. This would be for their mutual advantage or at least for that of the woman.

A man in third-year objects to the present system of issuing season tickets for the rugby games because it is inconvenient for him when he wishes to go to the games accompanied.

Unaccustomed as we are to public shirking, we hereby step aside and leave these weighty matters to the consideration of the campus butterflies.

Art, Music and Drama

VICTORIA DRAMATIC CLUB

On Friday evening the Victoria Dramatic Club opened the season happily with the presentation of Miss Dolton's Roses, a two-act comedy by Margaret Cameron. It was a nice sugary little play, which would have been angels' food for our recent correspondent. It was full of just the kind of good, clean fun in which one would expect him to revel.

We usually avoid synopsis, but just now we are in the mood. It went a bit like this: Someone sent the fascinating Miss Dolton orchids, to the vast annoyance of Mrs. Belknap and Polly Winslow, who suspected Mr. Belknap or Polly's sweetheart. The poor ladies had always thought that they were their lover's first loves.

They found a sympathizer in Miss Bess Maynard, who was guaranteed fool-proof as regards men. She didn't trust any man, was ready to say "I told you so" at the news of the flowery philandering and positively hated one McAllister. (He immediately feared she would end in marrying him. She did.) The plot thickened: the two suspected criminals returned (they seemed criminals by this time) to a frigid reception. Expressions of innocence, of martyrdom, even outright gifts of carnations availed nothing. But then entered Mr. McAllister. In one fell swoop he sized up the situation, defended the innocents, and won Miss Maynard to be his own forever. It seemed someone else had sent the orchids. Everyone was overjoyed. Refreshments were served and they all lived happily ever afterwards.

The play did have its moments of humour and they were well brought out by the cast. The players were as follows:

Hard Up

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

As an introduction I shall commend or condemn myself by admitting that I am a freshtee. However, let's hasten over that fact as I have something really vital to say.

My first impression of university life has been almost startling. I realized that there was a want felt very keenly which all the various clubs and societies had overlooked. What is needed is a column in "The Varsity." I have no suggestion for its name, unless you like "The Helpful Hopefuls" or "Fair Exchange," through which students could ask to meet other students could ask to meet other students, who would have something to give, or whom you would like anyway even if they had nothing to give. But enough, I must get to the point and shall do so by illustration.

I know of a charming miss who has been to every Dental dance for four years. She is enthusiastic about their parties but feels she ought to have the stimulus of moving in another sphere. In short, she is just dying to get a kid to the "Med At-Home." I also overheard a medical student remark that he would like very much to meet an Arts man for the sake of the cultural benefit he would derive from such a friendship. I could cite instances of co-eds needing masculine aid in learning to skate, while many a youth at Knox would be delighted to receive feminine instruction on the dance floor.

The following will serve as a typical petition:—Co-ed, interesting talker, blonde, good dancer, and owning several fancy dress costumes, would like to meet a Varsity man who is sure he can get a ticket for the Masquerade. No obligation if dissatisfied.

This will give you a rough idea of my proposal, so I retire.

Freshly.

A Complaint Against Season Ticket System

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

May I be allowed a small space in your valuable paper to draw the undergrads' attention to the astonishing lack of perception displayed by the Athletic Directorate. They have assumed us to be a collection of woman-haters. I refer to the absurd system (Continued on page 3)

Yes, the WRITING Tipped the scales

... and so the "80" became a "90"!
Let this pen help you to better grades

It actually happened. Jack and May were trying for an Honor Grade in Latin. Jack got it but May fell just short of it, though both seemed to have "answered" equally well. Jack had a clean, neat looking paper. May's seemed to be "more laboriously written."

Setting aside all other Parker Duofold advantages, Parker Pressureless Touch alone makes writing easier, and, therefore, smoother and so much more impressive generally that teachers and professors naturally give such papers preference, with resulting better marks.

Add to this Non-Breakable, Perma-ink Barrels, a Choice of Five Modern Colours, absolutely Non-Leakable Caps, Largest Ink Capacity of any pen of its type and size, and a "Guarantee Against All Defects"—and you have the finest school or college pen that can be made. Try one now at a near-by pen counter. Look for "Geo. S. Parker—DUOFOLD" on the barrel to be sure.

BLACKWELL'S BOYS SURPRISE CRITICS AND DEFEAT QUEEN'S 10-7

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Saturday was the first set-back for the "form men." Queen's, favoured to win the College title, were handed a bump that was heard clear across the Dominion. The Blues, called by many of the critics to end up a slow third, put the "kibosh" on the team that was supposed to have it all sewn up, by the tidy score of 10 to 7. It was the start of what promises to be a close Intercollegiate race with the winner a toss-up.

Give the "Les" Blackwell boys credit for their courage. A tough break like the one that gave the Queen's boys the touch would have broken the heart of any team endowed with less fight, but the boys in Blue just pulled down their helmets and fought an uphill battle that was a treat to watch.

Queen's got their touch only three minutes after the game started when a poor snap out by Keith was handled in a weak fashion by Snyder. That break was taken advantage of by the Tricolour in a smart fashion. In two plays, Carter in a run of 35 yards and Munro in a buck of 3 yards sent the ball across. Carter converted against the wind, which meant that Varsity was faced with a lead that looked insurmountable. The way they came through in the face of what looked like sure defeat speaks worlds for the spirit "Les" had instilled into them.

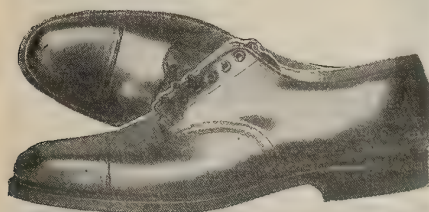

To-day the Blue and White will get down to a grind that will put them on edge for McGill on Saturday. A win over McGill and it will be a difficult job to dislodge them from their berth at the top of the heap.

The Orphans, although they lost to Kitchener, by no means look like being out of the running. The Pretzel Town boys scored a touch that was not converted in the early part of the game when "Cammie" Seagram galloped to place the pigskin over the Blue line. From then on it was a Varsity game. The Blues kicked until they had the score to within a single point of tying it up, but the combined Kitchener-Waterloo team held them off to win the encounter 5 to 4.

Just watch the Orphans. They have the worst part of the schedule with the first two games away, but when they will round into mid-season style they will give the last year's Intermediate teams a run for their money.

The really first opening of Intercollegiate sport took place unceremoniously on Friday afternoon when St. Michael's College started the ball rolling in the Intermediate series by a decisive defeat of Osgoode Hall by the one-sided count of 31 to 0. That game shows the Saints as another strong contender this year that may give Western University, the favourites, plenty of trouble.

Walter Martin, by his defeat of Donald Gunn to win the Interfaculty singles tennis tournament, showed himself as a most outstanding net star and he should go far in the Intercollegiate tennis tourney on October the 18th at Kingston.

Close Battle as Youthful Regina Star Becomes New Champion

A new tennis champion of Varsity was crowned at the Toronto Tennis Club Saturday when Walter Martin, youthful Regina star, defeated Donald Gunn 7-5, 6-2, 4-6, 7-5. The score well indicates the closeness of the battle and every point was hard fought. Both players hung on till the last, and in the fourth set it looked as if Gunn would tie it up at two sets apiece.

Martin started out well and ran to a lead of 4-1 only to have Gunn equalize at 5 all. Martin, however, aided by his opponent's errors, ran out the set at 7-5.

ORPHANS LOSE 5-4 TO KITCHENER TEAM

Last Year's Intermediate Champs Prove Too Strong for Varsity

UPHILL FIGHT FOR LOSERS

Kitchener marked its entry into the senior division of the O.R.F.U. from the last year's Intermediate section, by a close victory over the Varsity invaders. A feature of the first period was "Cammie" Seagram's touchdown for Kitchener, about two minutes before the whistle blew. Varsity was losing at the end of the first period by a score of 1 to 5.

In the second period the Kitchener-Waterloo team continued in the offensive, but failed to score further for the rest of the game.

During the last half of the game Varsity fought steadily uphill, scoring one point in the third quarter, and two in the last, failing, however, to overtake Kitchener's first-quarter lead.

The final score was: Varsity 4, Kitchener 5.

The line-up was as follows:

Varsity: Jim Sinclair, flying wing; Adams, right half; Jack Sinclair, centre half; Baillie, left half; Wood, quarter; Galloway, snap; Kelly and Stutiner, insides; Furbur and Henderson, middles; Cartwright and Snider, outsides; subs, Spencer, M. Scott, F. Scott, Kernohan, Morgan, Rudell, Wright, McCullough, Gray.

Kitchener: Ferguson, flying wing; Schneider, right half; Peters, centre half; Hill, left half; C. Seagram, quarter; Dreihaupt, snap; Ruppel and Moore, insides; Wocle and Hendry, middles; Springstead and Munroe, outsides; subs, F. Seagram, Sevbusch, Norman, Evans, Woodcraft, Fries, Kinsman, McDermott.

Referee: Sweeney Davis; umpire, Ross Craig.

Both players have been seen to better advantage than on Saturday. The soggy condition of the courts with low bounding balls may have been the reason for their being not at their best. From this distance, however, it looks as if Varsity are going to be hard to beat for the Intercollegiate.

This morning the challenge round begins at 10.30. The winner of this has the right to challenge either of the two beaten semi-finalists for their place on the team.

To-day's draw:
10.30—Drury vs Bouthbee.
Coupland vs Hamilton.

LAWYERS SWAMPED AS ST. MIKE'S WIN

Six Touches and Kick to Dead Line Spell Ruin for Osgoode Hopes

LOSERS GAVE BEST TILL END

The opening tilt of the western group of the Intermediate Intercollegiate schedule was played Friday afternoon on the back campus when St. Michael's warriors took Osgoode into camp at the tail end of a 31-0 score. St. Michael's points were piled up by six touch-downs and a kick to the dead-line.

Of the newcomers Queen of Ottawa College seems to be a find. He starred at tackling and carrying the ball, and after some experience in senior company will be a valuable player. Mogan, the other wing man, got in some deadly tackling which dashed Osgoode's hopes at various times. The lawyers had no outstanding stars, but all worked hard and gave all they had all the time.

Of last year's veterans, Young, Sheehan and McGahey were outstanding.

St. Michael's: Whelliham, flying wing; Culligan, Young and Quinn, halves; Burns, quarter; Flaiff, snap; Plick and Hyde, insides; Sheehan and Sammons, middles; Kehoe and Mogan, outsides; McGahey, Oakley, Cameron, Haffey and Dell, subs.

Osgoode Hall: Loane, flying wing; Van Horne, Clement and Millman, halves; Cartwright, quarter; Bagwell, snap; Sifton and Rankin, insides; Crow and McIntyre, middles; Ciglen and Eckhardt, outsides; M. Grant, D.

by which we are allowed to view our athletes in action this year.

The fair co-eds are to be carefully segregated from the vigorous males, and the stadium and arena will assume the atmosphere of a decorous church meeting. In short, if one of us wishes to drag his frail to the Queen's or McGill struggle, it is theoretically impossible. He must either come with the "boys" or stay at home. Of course he can go downtown and buy a brace of tickets at the general public's price; but why should he be compelled to do this?

A co-ed of my acquaintance, on enquiring the reason for this rigid separation of sheep from goats, was told that as the seats had to be scrambled for, there was danger of the women being trampled. Quite a boast for the gallantry of the U. of T. men. What? Is anything going to be done about it, Mr. Reed? Are the barriers going to be thrown down or are there to be students' single tickets as of yore? I know several, and I suppose there are others, who are holding back from the $4.00 season ticket on this account. Hoping for a solution.

I remain,

Sweet Dreamland Faces Pass Through Happy Hunting Ground

(By A. Arrell)

"One Ticket is to be issued covering all events, football, track, or hockey at the Stadium or Arena." Such a modern ingenious idea—this take one, takes all policy—the mere fact that Mose's father in law put it over on him (but note Frosh he had not yet wandered 40 years in the mysteries of the wilderness) in 2000 B.C. is invalid.

And so we wandered to the Entrance of the Happy Hunting Ground, and there we were met by Chief Red Coals, who orated as follows: "Since Potomus had left the University in the Land of my Inheritance, the Educational qualities of the Stokers who heated the Happy Hunting Ground had greatly deteriorated and they needed greater support, and that while circulars had been sent around to Monte Carlo, the Ginity Lit and all the other important prep. schools yet the attendance continued to fall off. While I recognise that you have no common interests with those in the lower regions (I was with Percival at the time); that you do not know the difference between the Ginitities and the Wencliffs; that you do not know the difference between English Rugby and Chesterfield Rugby (we admitted hearing you got mussed up considerably in each) that you still think options refer to University courses; and I consider you are telling the truth when you say you have never shot craps or any other kind of birds (we admitted putting salt on a sparrow's tail one time); and when you say that moonlight walks are taken for exercise. Nevertheless the Sainly Angelic Chiefs had decreed that the educational qualities of the Stokers must be raised yet they still recognized our claims to the Happy Hunting Ground (I was still with Percival) and they had therefore decided to sell us a ticket to both Places. And they did half the ticket being black and the other half white.

Percival said he would like to hear Paris lecture on his Personal Memoirs to the tune of 'How Could Red Riding Hood?' So I said I would like to hear John Barleycorn lecture on his Personal Memoirs to the tune of 'Pop Goes the Weasel.' Chief Red Coals said that Satan Assembled in Council took possession of us that night and we would have to use the black part of our ticket and go and hear Aimee lecture on 'Who I am and why I came Here.' We figured we had used up most of the black part of the ticket by the time that was over but Chief Red Coals said that we could do what we liked the next night but Satan Assembled in Council said we would have to hear Aimee's mother the night after. Well the next night I should have had a good time but as I said to Percival when he was tucking me into bed that this worrying about the Stoking the next night had spoilt the whole evening. Well we talked it over the next day and I said I wanted to go back to earth. Percival said however that the Sainly Angelic Chiefs had liked the way he parted his hair and had appointed him as Manager of Aimee's Radio Station and he thought the new way they issued tickets was a modern ingenious idea. Just then Chief Red Coals entered and Percival stood up and said "YES SIR." Very loudly yet very inferiorly.

I awoke to find Paddy standing before me with his newest scheme which was a clothing dummy with a marvelous part in its hair and which he called Percival and which he said he was going to sell to the Solemn Asses in Concave to fill all their important subordinate positions then he pressed a button and it said "YES SIR" very loudly yet very inferiorly.

ed placement on Queen's 20 yard line went for a safety touch and two points for Varsity. Darling followed this up by kicking a rouge for the third point. Carter for the Tricolour was showing some good kicking against the wind and held his own with Darling.

With the wind at their backs in the second quarter, Queen's tried an aerial attack but could not make much headway. The Blue worked the ball to Queen's 20 yard line and then Darling tied the score by a kick from placement. The Toronto tacklers had freed themselves and were making life miserable for the Queen's halves.

Early in the third quarter Darling kicked for a single and Varsity took the lead for the first time. Queen's fumbled on their 25 yard line and Varsity secured the ball. Murray Snyder finished the Varsity scoring by dropping over a nice field goal. W. C. Darling attempted to make a running catch on his own 25 yard line, Durham for Queen's gained possession. "Ike" Sutton came on for Mungovan and the Queen's rooters showed lots of life. Darling redeemed himself by gathering a bounding punt behind his own goal line and running it out 10 yards. This took a lot of pep out of Queen's.

In the last quarter Varsity got a real break. Davey had fumbled on his own 20 yard line and Carter's drop failed to clear the scrimmage. Carter kicked a high one behind the Varsity goal line and Darling dropped the ball but picked it up. Then just to tantalize the Queen's tacklers he dropped it again but finally narrowly averted a Tricolour touchdown by falling on it for a rouge. This ended the scoring. Although Queen's pressed hard they could not obtain the necessary points and Varsity left the field with a valuable win away from home and with great hopes of giving McGill a similar dose when they invade Toronto on the 13th.

Varsity: Flying wing, Harrison; halves, Darling, Davey, Traynor; quarter, Snyder; snap, Keith; insides, Morgan and Long; middles, Bean and White; outsides, Goderham and Dunn; subs, Hallam, Wood, Solandt, Baker, Carrick, Bell, Morin.

Queen's: Flying wing, Durham; halves, Munro, Warren, Carter; quarter, Mungovan; snap, Nagle; insides, Baseman, Handford; middles, Stuart and Gorman; outsides, Gounley and Agnew; subs, Gilmore, Caldwell, Sutton, Kilgour, Jamieson, Lackie, Wright.

On the conclusion of the performance the president outlined in his address the programme for the coming season, which promises to be unusually strenuous as the club plans to produce a play a week. The club expects to secure Hart House for future presentations. This will give a splendid stimulus to dramatic work in Victoria and should meet with real success. We think, however, that the club merits a more ambitious type of play.

HART HOUSE QUARTET

We received with some pleasure the announcement that the Hart House String Quartet is to continue throughout the coming season the series of special students' concerts which were so popularly received last year. For the benefit of the newcomers in our midst, may we say that these concerts were given in Convocation Hall under the auspices of the Music Committee of Hart House with the express aim of bringing to the acquaintance of the students the very best in Chamber music, played by some of its most renowned exponents and of presenting such concerts at a minimum of cost to the students themselves. As a rule the recitals will be given during the coming year at 5 o'clock on the afternoon preceding the advertised concert of the Quartet which are given in the theatre of Hart House.

The programmes which the Quartet itself is to render are of real interest to the music lover and will include among selected works of Brahms, Schubert and Mozart, Cesar Franck's Quartet in D major (first performance in Toronto) and Respighi Quartetto Dorico (first performance in Canada). During the course of the series, a unique opportunity of hearing various combinations of instruments in ensemble, will be afforded—not only will there be the pleasure of hearing well-known artists like Madame de Kresz and Leo Smith in Piano and String Quintets respectively, but also the chance, not to be neglected, of meeting Mozart in a different guise when Henri Lefroy of Paris conjures him in the Clarinet Quintet. Madame Dusseau's French Songs arranged by Willan and McMillan and the repetition of the Pargeter "French Canadian Quartet" will impart a particularly national atmosphere to the concerts. There will be a sentimental and artistic interest attached to the appearance of the world famous Flonzaley Quartet, in Toronto for the final public recital.

It would surely be a reflection on the artistic intelligence of the undergraduates, were we to recommend these delectable concerts as "worthy of their support." Rather we announce them with the assurance that no one will neglect willingly such an unquestionably fine opportunity to hear and enjoy the music of the greatest masters.

MEDICAL BUILDING ALTERATIONS ADD TO ACCOMMODATION

Third Floor Renovated, Attic Space Enlarged and Improved

LOST APPARATUS REPLACED

Department of Physiology Will Move Research Animals from Anatomy Building

Since the disastrous fire which occurred in the Medical Building last January extensive alterations have been made. The fire completely gutted two rooms on the third floor which were used for research purposes, and the water and smoke further damaged the whole floor. The third floor is occupied by the Department of Biochemistry. The gutted rooms have been rebuilt and the whole floor has been renovated and decorated.

The most extensive alterations have been made to what was formerly the attic and which served as a general storeroom. The ceilings were low, so that it was almost impossible for a man to stand upright in the rooms, and the whole floor was generally dark and ill-ventilated. A squad of carpenters, electricians, plasterers and plumbers have been at work throughout the summer. The roof has been raised and windows cut out, skylights installed, so that the attic is now one of the brightest and best ventilated spots in the building.

For some years the Department of Physiology has been somewhat hampered by the fact that it was necessary to keep some of their research animals in the top floor of the Anatomy building. Three large rooms have been fitted up in the new floor of the Medical building, which will enable them to have one of the best equipped animal rooms on the continent. It is expected that the carpenters will have finished their work by the end of the month and that these new rooms will then be ready for occupancy.

The staircase at the north end of the building has been extended to reach this new floor. The remainder of the floor will serve as a storeroom as before, but with better facilities for such a necessity.

The new biochemistry research laboratories are fitted up in the finest manner with lockers, hot and cold water, gas, compressed air and glassware cupboards. The old doorways opening between each room which served as an efficient means of spread for the fire, have been closed up, so that each room is now a separate unit.

Most of the damage to the building and contents was covered by insurance, and already much of the lost apparatus has been replaced, so that the laboratory is equipped in the most up-to-date fashion.

CHARGES AGAINST SEASON TICKET SYSTEM ANSWERED

Individual Tickets May Still Be Purchased at Hart House

COST CONSIDERABLY LOWER

Students Appreciate Saving Afforded Under New Arrangement

That general admission tickets to all games as hitherto might be purchased at Hart House previous to each game and that the present arrangement with regard to season tickets is identical with that of last year, was the statement of Mr. A. Gordon Burns when interviewed on the significance of the letter "A Complaint Against Season Ticket System" signed by one "A Disgruntled 3T0" (of undetermined gender). This letter appeared in "The Varsity" issue of October 8. "The only change," the secretary-treasurer continued, "is in selling a season ticket covering both rugby and hockey games in a single book at a cost appreciably less than the combined price of the two season tickets of previous years."

The letter writer erred in his statement that one desiring to "fuss" would have to purchase tickets down town, for such tickets for separate games will be on sale at Hart House on the Wednesday or Thursday preceding each game, as has been the case in previous years.

"The purpose of this ticket system," further remarked Mr. Burns, "is to encourage rooting together as much as possible, not to diminish feminine attendance as the letter seems to imply. In no college do men and women sit together in the rosters' sections anyhow."

The general opinion gleaned from several interviews on the campus is that the new system is a distinct and welcome improvement. Adverse criticism came only from those with the idea that only season tickets would be sold in the athletic department.

SOCIAL BUREAU DEEMED IMPRACTICABLE NO RESPONSE TO FRESHETTE SUGGESTION

BALLAD OF WHITE HORSE IS EPIC OF VAST SCOPE

Declares Father McCormick in Addressing Loretto Literary Society

"Chesteron's 'Ballad of the White Horse' is an epic of vast scope," said Father McCormick of St. Michael's in his address to the Literary Society of Loretto College. Father McCormick went on to say that the theme is of epic grandeur—a titanic struggle of great chiefs symbolic of a titanic struggle of great ideas.

The ballad is marked by flashes of high poetry, the reason that the poem is not better known, being due to a certain diffuseness that can be traced to Chesteron's newspaper training. After enlarging upon the tradition attached to the title of the ballad, Father McCormick read representative selections throughout the eight books.

A vote of thanks was then tendered him by the President of the Lit. Miss V. Harris, 2T9.

Miss M. Atkinson, 2T9, played a piano solo, the "Romance" by Schubert, and the meeting closed with an informal reception of the undergraduates.

CANADIAN DEBATERS WILL NOT ATTEMPT BRITISH METHODS

N.F.C.U.S. Sends Students on Debating Tour in British Isles

RELY ON CANADIAN SYSTEM

Kenny and Alexander to be Away for Two Months and a Half Trip

Special to "The Varsity" Montreal, Oct. 4.—The Canadian Overseas debaters will not attempt to ape the British methods of debating upon their tour, said Melvin Kenny, the leader of the team, when interviewed by a Daily representative last night. To try to beat Oxford and Cambridge at their own game would be sheer folly, and he and Bernard Alexander, the other member of the team, would attempt only to adapt themselves to the different audiences they addressed.

Mr. Kenny and Mr. Alexander sail to-morrow on the White Star liner Albatross. Their tour is being arranged under the auspices of the National Federation of Canadian University Students. They will be gone something over three months, in that time covering the greater part of the British Isles, debating against both university and non-university speakers.

The Oxford type of debating is that type which is fostered by extemporaneous speaking, attempting to amuse rather than convince or instruct an audience. Epigram, as Mr. Kenny said, is more valued than deep thinking. The Americans, on the other hand, have reduced debating to a science, working it out beforehand as they work out their football plays before a game. Debaters go into "training" with a debating coach and a card index system. The Canadian system, as far as it can be characterized at all, is a combination of the American and English, and it is this type that the overseas debaters intend to follow.

Their tour will last for two months and a half, and will cover almost the (Continued on page 4)

On Thursdays at 1.30, an Open Forum will be conducted by Mr. Moore on the "Creed of a Christian."

Fortnightly on Sunday morning at 11 o'clock a service is to be held in the college chapels alternately. The first service will be Sunday, October 14, in Knox College Chapel, with Dr. Salem Bland as speaker. The next will be Sunday, October 28, in Trinity College Chapel, with ex-Principal Hutton as speaker.

Once a month on Sunday evening a special service will be held in Convocation Hall. The first of these took place on September 30, when Dr. Malby spoke to a very large gathering of students. The next service will be held on Sunday, November 4, and the speaker will be Professor Nathaniel Micklem of Queen's.

The S.C.A. is open to all students of the University, and Mr. Moore will be glad to see any students and answer any inquiries, in the S.C.A. Office, Hart House.

Fire Hazard is Reduced by Further Precautions

Is there adequate fire protection for the buildings of the University? The apparatus for prevention of fire, sufficient and always ready to cope with such a sudden conflagration as befit the Medical building on January 30, 1928?

Since that fire, more protective apparatus has been installed to cope with further outbreaks. All the necessary repairs have been effected and extra precautions taken.

It was said that a gas burner in a bio-chemical laboratory started the conflagration. This burner had rubber tubing, but now metal is being used instead. All danger of a similar occurrence has been practically eliminated by this step.

VICTORIA COURT WILL DISCIPLINE ERRANT FRESHMEN

Special Meeting Called to Cope with Outbreak of Lawlessness

FRESHMEN DIVIDED

Penalty to be Imposed on Those Who Refuse to Wear Yellow Ties

The Victoria College Students' Court, instituted by the Students' Parliament in 1924 to deal with recalcitrant freshmen, but idle for the past four years, will meet about the middle of this week to deal summarily with those of the freshman class who have refused to wear their distinctive neckpieces. Circumstances have prevented the earlier sittings of the court, but a definite date and hour has now been arranged.

In the opinion of the judges of the court, Messrs. Reinke, Fredenburg, Lockhart, Leslie and DeWitt, all members of the Students' Parliament, there has been a gradual evolution from the time when the freshmen expected and submitted to impositions, however mild, and for the past two years, this term especially, there has been a marked breakaway from tradition. The freshmen demand:

"What can you do to us if we refuse to comply?" And thus far no answer has been forthcoming.

But the worm has turned.

Three men of the second year, working on their own, came with their charges of non-obedience to regulations to the President of the Students' Parliament, who is Chief Justice, ex-officio, of the Court. On that evening, the President called a meeting of the Court, which consists of the five judges already named, a clerk, and a prosecuting attorney. They will pass on the cases, and impose a penalty, which will be decided at the sitting of the Court.

SIX DAY WEEK

Special to "The Varsity" Norman, Okla.—A six day week has been established at Norman in order to relieve classroom congestion caused by the unusually large enrollment. At the University of Oklahoma the present enrollment is 4,656; 224 ahead of the registration figures for a comparative date last year, and it is the opinion of George E. Wadsack, registrar, that it will go over 5,000.

TRINITY COLLEGE NOT TO RESTRICT REGISTRATION

Plan to Limit Non-residents Due to Inadequate Facilities for Increase

It has been rumored that Trinity College is going to restrict its registration, but Professor Woodcock of Trinity College assures us that this is not so, at least for this year. Next year, in all probability, the registration will have to be limited on account of the smallness of the College is losing, to some extent, the unity and college spirit which it had when it was down on Queen Street, where there were only resident students. Since the College has moved to the new building on Hoskin Avenue the number of non-resident students has been increasing steadily, and if any restriction is to take place it will be in the ranks of these non-residents.

MY LADY SPEAKS

There is this year no Women's Debating Society in University College. Neither is there any apparent enthusiasm for such societies among the women of the affiliated colleges. These statements may not in themselves seem particularly startling, but they seem to us indicative of a gradual change in the thinking of the women of the University.

We remember when the now defunct Debating Society was organized. There had been for some time a growing interest in women's affairs which culminated in the decision that the co-ed must learn to speak in public. Immediately all sorts of Debating Clubs sprang into existence, and one of the last to be formed was the deceased society at U.C. We remember seeing important looking seniors and juniors and sophomores rushing about, and eager freshettes being lured on by the golden thought of a possible debate in Convocation Hall against Queen's.

How very different was all such enthusiasm for forensics from the staidness of former generations of women students. They came to college to become Bachelors of Arts and then to be qualified as teachers in High Schools, and the extent of their extra-curricular activities was their appearance at two class parties a year. But, into the midst of their calm lives came the feminist movement (though why it should be thus called we cannot see) and conditions were changed. Women adopted, as far as possible, masculine attire, and with it they developed a proprietary interest in hitherto masculine concerns. They invaded the professions, they mounted into the House of Parliament, they even aspired to a seat in the Senate.

And so for several years women disclaimed any interest in so-called feminine pursuits, competing everywhere with their contemporaries of the other sex, even demanding that they be admitted to Hart House, that sanctuary of masculinity.

Now it seems that the tide has turned. Those who know claim that styles in women's dress are assuming a much more feminine trend, and we humbly corroborate the statement, for we too have seen frills and furberlows and long hair. Women are showing interest in the ancient and honourable art of home-making (witness the ever-increasing registration in the Faculty of Household Science) and forgetting their ardent efforts to prove "that this House deprecates the common use of cosmetics."

Do these facts mean that the women of our generation have renounced their ambition to follow in the footsteps of Miss McPhail? Are they content, having met and occasionally vanquished their male opponents, to retire once more into the background?

There are yet many women who are registered in Political Science, and there are also many who have political ambitions. One wonders, if debating societies are to be allowed to die out, how these aspirants to leadership will gain the necessary experience in the clear and forceful expression of their thoughts.

SOCIAL BUREAU DEEMED UNWORKABLE

istence was questioned by several frequenters of the rink. Thus this official attempt to aid students over the convention of introductions has proven itself to be rather useless. The S.A.C. probably considered its duties onerous enough without undertaking the almost impossible task of finding congenial souls and bringing them together.

Those students who lived an intensive life at Varsity seemed automatically to come in contact with others of their kind and scorned the idea of being meekly presented to another human being with the polite reminder that, because they had nothing in common, they would doubtless be excellent friends. Freshmen wandered about blindly looking for lecture rooms that were always in the same place and for professors who were fairly well known on the campus, and yet the same freshmen failed to see the difficulty involved in keeping tab on over five thousand students pursuing as many different interests. "The Varsity" in half a day's search was unable to find a single student of the upper years who considered an official solution of "Freshy's" problem worth the effort involved.

Cultural cut-ups at Hutton House, as "Why I came to college" as featured by a reporter of "The Varsity".

When each freshie had pledged her allegiance to the residence, the sophs, a goodly number, proceeded to test the mettle of the newcomers. Handicapped by bound hands, a couple of the novices battled with apples generally coated with molasses, while another pair did a marathon after a marshmallow. A cereal breakfast proved to be a mixture of bran and flour which the freshies heroically swallowed under the vigilant eye of the sophs. The Prisoner's Song came in a mournful wail from the depths of a trunk containing someone whose costume bore a marked resemblance to that worn by the inmates of 999 Queen St. Having previously characterized the sophs as donkeys, one freshette was made to repent her rash statement by being made to wear a long tail and flapping ears. Free shots at a nigger baby proved quite hilarious as two of the freshies aimed marshmallows rather widely of the mark.

The freshettes in their turn entertained the rest of the house with a couple of amusing skits. One experienced all the thrills of a ride in an antiquated Ford as the freshies imitated the queer inarticulate noises common to that animal.

"Wild Nell of the Plains" was portrayed in fine style, while Nell, after re-uniting the lovers, stepped out of the picture by severing the bread of life.

THE EMPIRE—THE PRIME MINISTER

This play was written by Hall Caine and had many of the elements of a magnificent tragedy. However, it had one most grievous fault—the author utterly forgot the limited capacity of the human mind to endure. A serious play must have its tense scenes, but "The Prime Minister" was nothing but one tense scene from beginning to end. There was no humour, not even of the most refined, no love story, no minor thread, no small talk, nothing. It was like a symphony in one movement. The result was obvious. Although there was a really splendid close, I doubt if anyone appreciated it fully: the audience was worn out.

The story was somewhat in vacuo. It was about a fictitious Prime Minister of England who was forced to declare a fictitious war against, for want of a nation, Germany. It concerned solely the personal character of the Prime Minister and a side of war little thought of, the position of innocent

A Freshman Favours Vaccination

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

An article appeared under the heading of "Correspondence" in a recent edition of "The Varsity" which opposed vaccination.

It seems to me that the writer of such an article has tried some means of getting his writing into print, but unfortunately has selected a very poor subject.

Vaccination is, as everybody is aware, a necessity, and the fact that the University of Toronto has recognized this condition, leaves it no alternative but to make it compulsory. Not only has our University enforced this rule, but all the recognized institutes, both in Canada and in the U.S.A.

If that article was written by a freshman there would be a reason, but there's no reason why a student in upper classes should find fault with vaccination. If we don't kick, why should you?

A Freshman.

Much Ado About Nothing

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

Influenced by B.D.B.'s laudatory review of "Jimmie's Women" and by "STO's" lurid indictment of the wickedness of the same, I bided me to the Empire and witnessed the performance of myself. My disappointment was great. For I had there neither brilliance nor yet wickedness. I found the whole thing deadly dull with the exception of John Holden's delightful presentation of the character of Billy Wells, embellished aptly with his improvisations, and of an occasional repartee which struggled from the depths of mediocrity to the heights of second-rateness.

"STO" was right in a way. The play tried to be suggestive, but the result was so feeble that it was an offence against good taste rather than against morals, as he suggests. The two risqué situations were both ruined by the knowledge beforehand that everything would be above board; besides which they were artistically poor, as they were dragged in clumsily, purely for the sake of naughtiness. As for profanity, it occurred but two or three times. "Hell" and "damn" are not profanity.

The play was, as B.D.B. admitted, a collection of stock characters, and, moreover, as he did not admit, a mélange of stock situations and hackneyed dialogue. The only freshness of dialogue was in the part of Billy Wells, and occasionally in that of Miss Standish. An example of the repartee is the dear old joke, "You can't make a fool out of me." "No, God did that," which was repeated no less than five times later in the play. Poor Edmund Abbey, a splendid actor, of real dignity, had to descend to such lines as "Adam thought he could handle one woman alone, and look what a hell of a mess he made of it."

I trust that in future we shall have less glowing reviews of such cheap stuff, as well as a dearth of the unpleasantly censor-like shudders of "STO."

Yours truly,

Paul A. Gardner.

A Bright Idea

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

On hearing the carillon an idea suggested itself which might prove of some interest. Instead of the annual collar-wilting contest held in Hart House, why could not a real carnival be held on the campus with the bells as a twenty-three piece orchestra? Yours, etc.

FRESHMEN, LED BY HYMMEN, WIN SCHOOL TRACK CHAMPIONSHIP

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Varsity are certainly sitting pretty in the Intercollegiate Series. If the Blue win their games at home they cannot finish worse than tied for first place, even though the game at McGill should be entered on the wrong side of the book. The win at Kingston on Saturday has added the necessary confidence, and the Red are in for a tough struggle when the Montreals take the field here this coming Saturday.

Old McGill will be without the services of Ralph St. Germaine, who for several past years has been the greatest scoring threat in the College series. Ralph was laid up last winter with a severe illness which put him out of the final hockey game with Varsity. A star of the first magnitude in both the fall and winter pastimes, he will be sorely missed from the Red uniform.

The Varsity-Queen's tussle exhibited plenty of loose ball-handling. Several of the efforts made in the last quarter brought back the still green memories of last year's backfield fumbles. Very fortunately, however, no damage was done, but it might be a different story next time.

The McGill-Balm Beach exhibition, which was won by the latter 7-6, shows that McGill have an outfit which must be reckoned with before either Varsity or Queen's claim any championships. In contrast to last season, when the easterners proclaimed "this is McGill's year," and the Red outfit faded badly, few advance reports have come out from Montreal. Perhaps no news is good news.

The welcome Blue victory should stimulate interest in this Saturday's game to a high degree. With visions of Varsity wrestling the Intercollegiate title from the Tricolour looking rosy, the stadium will likely see a capacity crowd. Better get hold of a season ticket if you haven't one already parked away.

VARSITY SOCCER MEN DOWN TO HARD WORK

Blues Will Make Strong Bid for Intercollegiate Title This Year

SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED

Coach Halliwell put the Intercollegiate soccer men through a snappy practice yesterday. The squad is gradually being thinned down, and regular positions on the team are being hard fought for. Davidson and Roland are showing up well. Hadley, Jack and King are getting down to form.

The team is getting down to hard work in preparation for the R.M.C. game which will be played on the front campus the 27th of this month. Last year Varsity won 2-1, but reports show the Cadet team to be much stronger this year. On the 10th of November Varsity play McGill in Montreal. McGill won the Intercollegiate title last year, but Varsity is out to bring the cup back this year.

Interfaculty soccer opens Wednesday when U.C. hooks up with Wyckoff. The Anglicans have a snappy team this year and expect to emerge victors. The tussle promises to be fast and interesting.

VARSITY TRACK TEAM WILL APPEAR STRONG IN INTERCOLLEGIATE

Interfaculty Meets Bring Out Much New Material to Replace Men Lost

FRESHMEN OUTSTANDING

Remnant of Last Year's Team Strengthened by Newcomers and Freshmen

There's much ado these days on the Varsity track in preparation for the Interfaculty Meet to be held next Wednesday.

Practically every one of Varsity's Intercollegiate champions has to be replaced, and for this reason more freshmen are turning out this year than has been the case for many years.

It is unfortunate that so many of the top notchers such as Harley Russell, Jim McKenzie, Alan Christie, Cam Mabee, have left the University, and Johnny Fitzpatrick has gone to Milwaukee. In other ways, however, it is very fortunate indeed because no one is sure of his place on the team, and there is going to be some mighty hard fights for places. This is bound to give track and field athletics a tremendous impetus.

Freshmen with high school intercollegiate records as long as your arm will vie with one another for the chance to make the trip to McGill, where the Intercollegiate championships are to be held this year.

The only standbys who are left of last year's Intercollegiate team are Fred McTaggart in the javelin throw, Bill Finlayson in the broad jump and discus throw, George Sparrow of hurdling fame and Jack Davenport in the pole vault.

Two valuable men in Bobby Thompson and Weaver have come from Queen's to pursue their studies at O.C.E. Bobby Thompson has been Queen's crack half mile for four years, and Weaver is the man who was right on Christie's heels in the quarter mile two years ago.

In the sprints there is a newcomer in Hyman of Kitchener, who is reputed to be very fast. There is rumour afloat also that he is good for more than twenty feet in the broad jump.

Two freshmen, Jack Vila and Fred Lee, are both intercollegiate mile champions. Much is expected of both, as the "old reliable" "Me" Mitchell is not out this year.

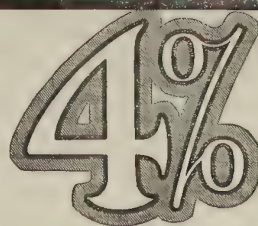

The coaches, Mr. Halbus and Mr. Martin, are more than delighted with the way things are shaping up, and they both look to the keenest competition that has ever been seen at an Interfaculty meet.

Freshettes Appear Prominent in U.C. Tennis Tournament

Although all the players of last year's U.C. tennis team have left, there is no doubt that there will be a good one this year. The tournament has been full of interest, and the freshies particularly are doing splendidly. Audrey Purkis, the winner of the ladies' singles championship at the Granite Club, is baffling her opponents by her left-handed stroke. Margaret Kerr and Agnes Jamieson, also freshies, are coming along well, while Jessie Gray and Ede McCollum are showing their usual good form. It is hoped that the games will be played off as soon as possible as the tournament is to be finished this week.

Grapefruit by any other name would still squirt in your eye.—Ron Everson.

Intermediate Intercollegiates

Have Stiff Signal Practice

Coach Fred Bartlett put the Intermediate Intercollegiate men through a stiff workout last night. The practice consisted entirely of signal work, and was certainly a success. When the team open this season, on Saturday,

Oct. 13, they will have available practically two and a half tons of players to use against their opposing team, the Western. The Intercollegiates looked real smart, not like any world

beaters, mind you, but a much improved team over anything displayed

yet. It should be a red-hot battle on Saturday, and it is expected that a fairly large crowd will attend.

Junior Rugby Team

Boast Large Turnout

Due to the hurry and scurry and speculation as to the chances of the big blue rugby team in the Intercollegiate race, the work of the Juniors has been as usual almost entirely overlooked. But on its past record and present prospects the Junior rugby team deserves just as much encouragement and support as its more widely known big brother. There are enough players out in uniform every afternoon to compose two complete teams, and then some. It is almost impossible at the present time to say what the line-up for the first game will look like. On the backfield there are a couple of chaps by the name of Smith who look good. Glen Smith from Humberville is a good broken-field runner and the other Smith is a fine punter. Heintzman from U.C.C. has in him the makings of a good quarter. On the line Ralph Connor and Farwell, another U.C.C. man, both look to have the goods. On the whole, Coach Chaffe looks to have a fine lot of material from which to mould another championship team.

Random Reminiscences Started When Door Inadvertently Slams

(By Edith Martin)

A door slammed to-day! It set us thinking, so you can see, or rather hear, it must have been a very loud slam. Doors are like people. Some are loud when they slam, and others are gentle and do not slam. Usually one does not mean to slam the doors, or one's best girl, or even the lunch tray in the particular cafeteria one patronizes. There are too many "one's" at this sentence. Talking of "one's" reminds us of the change we get after going to a dinner dance down town, up town, or any other town. But coming back in doors let us "slam" some more. We remember one occasion when, during a lecture at the beginning of the term, someone got in the wrong room. The person under discussion expected it to be a lecture in Spanish, and wondered for what particular words "concepts," "percepts" and "synapse" stood, and recognized with pardonable self-esteem the common suffix "ps" (speaking functionally now and not merely about letters). However, at half-time he was disillusioned, somewhat in the same manner as the Tricolour will be on Saturday, and walked out enraged, slamming the door. We wondered at the time whether he slammed the door in contempt at himself or us.

Slamming is very useful. It expresses one's feelings so adequately. We learned it at home when a younger member of the family annoyed us, or we were told not to talk in a "piping tone." Piping reminds us again of the Tricolours and

"Cha gheill! Cha gheill! Cha gheill!" But we hope we will be the pipers soon. (This is not a case of attempted slamming! We're too gentle for slams.)

Doors do not get half as many slams as "The Varsity." However, just as doors get used to being slammed so does "The Varsity." This is all we know about slams except that we made a grand slam in bridge last night and that in the irreligious knowledge you heard about a day or so ago we are becoming familiar with Islam. But whether Islam or Inot-Islam is right will not depend upon the Koran entirely but upon whether or not the object of our slamming is in doors or out.

Member of Fraternity Warned Off Campus

A scene more familiar in December than in October was witnessed yesterday afternoon in front of Convocation Hall. Chief D'Arcy of the University police and Officer Proudfoot obliged a member of the well-known "Hoboes fraternity" by showing him the most direct path to the boundary of the University grounds. The offence was canvassing without permission from the Students' Council—the worthy charity solicited the usual "cup-of-coffee-and-a-bop." Officer Proudfoot claimed the object of his attentions was a freshman from Victoria, but his attire suggested Burwash Reformatory rather than Burwash Hall.

Wymilwood Conference Holds Sessions

On Sunday the third day of the conference opened at Wymilwood with a service of worship presided over by Helen Craw. Miss Bertha Hamilton led a discussion on Dr. Taylor's talk of the previous day, "What shall I do with my life in college?" Miss Gertrude Rutherford, choosing as her subject "The Place of Jesus in my life," next led the group in a discussion which might well be summed up in "We need more than human strength to carry on."

The afternoon meeting was in charge of Miss Simpson. Miss Bott continued the discussion began on Saturday. She said, "Life is work, love, and play. Mental health means a proper balance between these three."

The evening session of the conference heard Dr. Marion Hilliard, one of the University's graduates, who has been taking graduate work in Medicine in England. Dr. Hilliard in her subject, "My Life in the World," spoke of the meaning of a master passion in life. She defined a master passion as the "tremendous vitality which comes to people making them do things." In this age we lack discipline. "We have to develop a discipline of our own."

The whole of the British Isles. The arrangements for the tour are in the hands of the National Union of Students, the central representative body of English students, upon whose invitation they are going, and who are financing the trip. It has been made possible by the formation last year of the National Federation of Canadian University Students, for it was only through such a nation-wide association that an invitation to Canadian students as a whole could be sent. Its purpose is to foster inter-student relationships.

The debaters will spend the first few days of their tour in London. From there they go to Devon, Wales and Liverpool. All this time they expect to speak about twice a week, and to debate against both university and non-university debaters. From Liverpool they expect to journey to Scotland, spending about two weeks there, and then going on to Manchester and Birmingham. The climax of their whole trip will be the visit to Oxford and Cambridge, where they will speak at the famous University Unions.

enemy aliens at the mercy of an unreasonable war patriotism. The plot itself was rather good, though the statesmen uttered platitudes and orated in private, a thing distinctly not done among statesmen.

Mr. Edmund Abbey again did a very fine bit of acting, closely seconded this time by Miss Marjorie Foster. Good character parts were done by Mr. Robert Thompson and Miss Deirdre Doyle, while we were very pleased to see Mr. Raymond Card of the Players' Guild do a good part well. Some of the minor characters were a trifle stiff.

For the benefit of our critic, whom, by the way, we welcome, we might say that this play is almost free from the taint of suggestiveness; in fact it might be be-rated grade A by the Society for the Prevention of Naughtiness. There was, we regret, one very slight suggestion in the second act, and as for profanity, the hero did say "What a pity" once, but that was all. We might remark on it as odd, that a young man living in this day and generation should never have been to Loew's, to say nothing of the Folies. Probably he has had a good home influence.

it is quite in keeping with tradition, and is, in most cases, an excellent thing, yet the Court should be appealed to only in case of serious difficulty between the years. And the question was brought up by a prominent professor, of where the Court gets its authority. Does it represent the student body as a whole? If so, the proceeding is quite legitimate, in his opinion.

The freshmen are of divided opinion on the subject. Some of them, having obeyed the rules, say that the yellow tie is more or less a necessary evil, and they raise no particular objections to it. They are, on the other hand, indifferent to the idea of a court. Others frankly say the idea is a joke.

may move to improve conditions. Widen the roadway in front of Hart House by about 15 feet and paint lines for angular parking similar to the road behind the Tower. This would provide accommodation for about double the amount of cars in addition to making it much easier to park and to get out. The widening would do much to relieve congestion on nights of the big dances and would provide greater safety for both motorist and pedestrian.

Thank you.

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

May I enquire the reason for the discontinuing of the "Diogenes" column? It was much superior to the various innovations which appear from time to time in your sheet, and was, as a matter of fact, to The Varsity what the South-East corner is to The Globe. With the request that Diogenes may be revived and allowed to lend interest to your lower left hand corner, I am, Pericles.

[Editorial Note: Thank you, Pericles. But we do not understand the force of your statement "and was as a matter of fact to The Varsity what the South-East corner is to The Globe."]

U.C. FRENCH SOCIETY HAS GLORIOUS PAST; HOPES FOR FUTURE

Professors Squair and Fraser Were Members in Undergraduate Days

ONE-ACT PLAYS PRESENTED

Society Began as "Modern Language Club," Devoted to All Modern Languages

This is the first of a series of articles dealing with undergraduate organization in the University of Toronto.

The French Society of University College is indeed a venerable organization. Some 43 years ago, about the year 1885, the students of the University felt that they needed some medium, outside of the classroom, where they might meet to extend their interest in the modern languages which they were studying.

Prominent amongst this body of students were the late Professor Squair and Professor Fraser, then in their undergraduate days. Magistrate James Edmund Jones, as an undergraduate, was also interested in its formation and has always taken a keen and active part even to the present day.

At that early date it was quite common for a student to study all of the modern languages available, so that it was possible to form the "Modern Language Club" devoted to the extension of interest in English, French, German, Italian and Spanish.

The early meetings of the club were held in the rooms of the college and later in the professors' homes. Finally when the Women's Union had come available the meetings were held there, where there was greater scope for the club's activities.

Due to the growth of the German and the Italian-Spanish Clubs within the University, and the increasing number of students taking an interest in French in University College alone, it was decided in 1926 to change the name to the French Society of University College. With this specialization in French it was found that more could be accomplished for French study with a knowledge of French only.

The Society is managed entirely by the students, and it is the chief concern of the executive to provide a programme which will be of interest to all years. Addresses are given from time to time by French-speaking friends of the society. Besides this (Continued on page 4)

ORGANIZED CHEERING TO REPLACE ROOTERS' CLUB

Pres. Marshall Will Have Song Sheets Well Distributed

On being approached regarding the arrangements made for organized rooting at the football games this year, Mr. Marshall, President of the Rooters' Club, delivered the following information: There is to be no fresh-man Rooters' Club as in former years. Mr. Marshall was of the opinion that these had displayed lack of enthusiasm in the past and a new plan was to be tried. Song and cheer sheets were to be distributed among the student sections and organized cheering led by a squad of cheer-leaders. Mr. Marshall thought that the new system of selling tickets would be a great help to the rooting. Formerly only the freshmen sat together, now the whole student body will be massed and ought to make a mighty clamour.

Professor De Witt To Lecture at "The Pitt"

N. W. DeWitt, Professor of Latin at Victoria College, now on leave at Cornell University as acting-professor, has accepted an appointment as special lecturer for the coming summer session at the University of Pittsburgh. Dr. DeWitt is a widely recognized authority on the life of Virgil and semantic topics. He is the author of the Ontario High School Ancient History. Pittsburgh will be remembered as the seat of the famous skyscraper university.

BLAKE THE MYSTIC SUBJECT OF ADDRESS

Poet Who Regarded Himself as "Secretary of Muses"

PROF. DAVIS AT LIT.

"Isaiah and Ezekiel dined with me," quoted Professor Davis from the works of the mystic Blake, in addressing the U.C. Women's Literary Society last night. Blake regarded himself only as the secretary of his Muses, who were in Eternity, and who gave birth, through him, to the visionary and imaginative creations that mark his inspired genius. Was Blake mad, as contemporaries thought, or was his the inspiration of the true poet, which is often akin to madness? "Exuberance is beauty," was his credo, and all his works have that quality which makes them alive. The spirit of mischief which sometimes peeps through is illustrated by the characteristic engraving "Ghost of a Flea."

"There is the loss, not mine," he said in reference to his lack of personal fame, and felt confident that posterity would give him his due. The land of dreams was his workshop and his "vegetative life" he considered unimportant. His wife, the daughter of a market gardener, is about the most perfect wife on record. She shared all his strenuous activity, and opposed him only once, when, in a patriarchal mood, he proposed to add a second wife to their little domicile.

"Thank God I was never sent to school," expresses his contempt for all kinds of training.

EVOLUTION NOT AN EVIL TO EDUCATION

Word of Biologist Preferred To That of Clergyman

ANSWERS REV. INKSTER

"I prefer the word of a biologist to the word of a clergyman in the matter of evolution," declared Professor Satterly, of the Physics Department, in an interview with "The Varsity" yesterday. Reference was made to a sermon by Rev. John Inkster, of Knox College, last Sunday evening, in which he averred that the doctrine of evolution was an impatient theory and a danger to education.

But the general theory of evolution, according to several University authorities, is of course applied to life in general, which is merely growth—sometimes for worse, sometimes for better. There is, however, no moral evil or danger to education in the teaching of such a fact, in the opinion of Professor Satterly. Instruction in the evolution doctrine occupies a very small part of the time; and, such as it is, is necessarily backed up by (Continued on page 4)

"SPEED" SKATING TABOO

(By Special Correspondent)
Guelph, Oct. 9.—Men students at the University of Toronto may think that the girls are watched pretty closely, but they ought to hear from the boys at the O.A.C. MacDonald Hall, the women's residence, has a set of rules that ought to hold any complaints from Toronto for a while. The Hall rules themselves are kind of harmless—one must not wear knickers in the dining hall—but the outside rules are strict. Frezample, No. 2, Campus Rule.—Students may not walk about after 6 p.m. No. 3—Students are warned that standing outside the door on arriving home in the evening from anywhere is strictly against regulations. 5—Girls may not spend the night with friends in Guelph.

Off Campus.—(1) Residents may not walk from town after dark. (2) Students motoring or going to theatres, etc., with young men must see Mrs. Fuller or the President of the Students' Council about a chaperone. (3) Students are not allowed to attend balls, dances or dance halls in the city of Guelph unless a college function. (4) Two or three couples may not go on a picnic. (5) Boating or skating on the River Speed prohibited. (6) Girls are not allowed to go to cafes or tea-rooms after theatres down-town.

"Green" Freshman Leads Gullible Party of Sophs in Wild Goose Chase on T.T.C.

On Monday evening a love lion freshman from Victoria was observed wending his way down Yonge St., conspicuously minus the yellow tie which is being worn in certain V.C. circles this season. The observers were four husky sophs, closing in from behind. The freshman, already late for "Bob" practice, quickened his steps; those behind followed suit. Apparently flight was useless. Then a bright idea struck the first year man. Turning into a side street, he went over to Bay St. and boarded a north-bound car. The sophomores got on right behind him. After a short argument one of them produced a quarter and paid their fares. The freshman paid no attention to them. At the corner of Bathurst St. and St. Clair Ave., however, he jumped from his seat and left the car. His pursuers pursued him. At the corner he spied a yellow tie and hailed its wearer. "Hello! Going to Bob practice?"

INDIAN LUCK STONE ADORN'S VIC CHAPEL

Fails to Attract Buffalo to Its New Location

GIFT OF REV. G. McDUGALL

One of the landmarks in Victoria College is a meteorite which was brought by Rev. George McDougall from Iron Creek in North Saskatchewan. Its three hundred and eighty-six pounds travelled first to the Methodist Mission rooms, but was later installed in the old library in the college until it made its final move to its present position between the chapel doors on the second floor.

It is strangely coincident that it was placed in that peculiar spot where it forms a mute contrast between the prehistoric religion of ignorance and the enlightened creeds of to-day. According to Rev. McDougall, the Indians were rather enaged at having their good luck stone carried off. They fondly imagined that it grew in size, and having fallen from the skies, attracted lightning; they also believed that it attracted buffalo too, for after it had departed and these animals disappeared, they looked up these two events with their unusual logic, to form a significant coincidence. However, no buffalo have as yet put in their appearance at Victoria.

If the students should suddenly revert to the beliefs of the superstitious Indian, the second floor of the college would present a weird aspect before (Continued on page 4)

Coeds' Complexions Said To Be Strictly Genuine

Co-ed complexions are not artificial, indignantly maintained Varsity girls when confronted with a report that the touring British public school boys had asserted that they commenced to paint and powder while at college. The general feeling was one of anger that such a statement had been made, and all insisted that the allegation was unwarranted.

U.C. FRESHMEN MEET SENIORS AT LAST LIT

Work

"HAP" GILBERT IN CHARGE

"If you read the names on the walls of this room, you will read the names of the men who got the most out of University life they possibly could, and went into the world best prepared to cope with its problems," concluded Mr. F. C. Carter in the annual Honorary President's address to the University College Literary and Athletic Society last evening in the Junior Common Room of U.C.

With an attendance of nearly 200, about four-score of which confessing to be freshmen, the meeting heard and passed reports of the various committees, listened to an address from Mr. Bickersteth, the Warden of Hart House, and elected occupants for various vacant offices.

One feature of this first meeting of the seventy-fifth year of the Society's existence was the Frosh Reception. The freshmen were required to repeat after "Hap" Gilbert the hallowed phrases of "Uni-Uni-Varsity," and they performed their task. They were then told to sit down and nominate officers for the executive of 372. Officers will be elected next Tuesday and the results announced at the Sophomore Banquet in the evening of that day.

The meeting adjourned with the serving of "eats" in the offices of the "Lit."

REV. BARCLAY SPEAKER

"It is not always in stately edifices that the most impressive services are held," said the Rev. W. Barclay, B.D., of Central Presbyterian Church, Hamilton, in addressing the crowd that filled Knox College Chapel last evening at the formal opening of the college. The speaker went on to describe the service that had impressed his memory most, a quiet communion service before a gun carriage, with an audience of seven, behind the lines in Palestine during the Great War.

Mr. Barclay stressed the fact that services should be made attractive, in the sense that they attracted people to the house of God for the tremendous duty of praising His name. He urged that students experiment with their services, and after having found the most attractive form, to use nothing but it.

Rev. J. B. Paulin, B.A., conducted the opening exercises, followed by a short address by Principal Eakin. Dr. Eakin was very happy to announce that seventy-two men had registered in (Continued on page 4)

DIOGENES' RETURN ANXIOUSLY AWAITED ALL ABOUT CAMPUS

"PEP UP" PAPER

Interesting Personal Comment
in True Diogenes
Fashion

If opinion as expressed by those on the campus is in any way a measure of student feeling in general, then "Diogenes" would be welcomed back to "The Varsity" with open arms. In answer to a letter by "Pericles" in yesterday's "Varsity" asking that "Diogenes" be revived, a reporter set out to find just what the student opinion on the subject was. In all, over twenty undergraduates were asked for their opinion and only two dissenting voices were found. One was based on the charge that in the past "Diogenes" had been merely silly; the other, that it had not really represented student opinion at all.

On the whole, however, opinion was strongly in favour of its return. There seemed to be a somewhat general feeling that so far this year "The Varsity" had been lacking in some of the "pep" that characterized it last year, and many were of the opinion that "Diogenes" would help to make up for this loss. Many thought it had been a splendid way of stimulating student thought on questions of the day.

The following are a few of the characteristic opinions expressed:

H. Ward, II Pol. Sc.: "I would like to see 'Diogenes' back again this year, because several of last year's humorous features of 'The Varsity' have been dropped and I think 'Diogenes' would add life to the paper."

M. Barnard, II Arts: "I have no very convincing reasons either one way or the other. Half the time I didn't get a chance to read it anyway."

J. B. Merzler, II U.C.: "I think it was an interesting feature of 'The Varsity' last year and ought to be revived."

L. H. Ausman, IV C. and F.: "Yes, I enjoyed it very much. It was always the first thing I turned to. It certainly reflects student opinion on interesting and vital questions of the day, provided of course that the questions are not ridiculous in the extreme."

L. M. Gelber, III U.C.: "'Diogenes' always was a sad creature and in his endless quest for truth he gives entirely the wrong idea of our University life to the freshman year. Let him die but on one condition only: Let there be buried with him that editor fellow, 'Dec,' and other such wild-eyed intelligences."

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1928

DAY OF JUDGMENT

Victoria Students' Parliament is going to hold a session of what may be termed, to use a phrase very much in use these days, its ancient and honourable Court. They are going to solemnly investigate the full extent of the depravity which possessed certain of the first year even unto the abandonment of their yellow ties.

We realize that in commenting on this matter when it is sub judice we are running the risk of being summoned for contempt of court. And anxious as we are to follow the example of certain great journalistic figures and go before Royal Commissions and browbeat the counsel learned in the law, yet we hesitate at the prospect of gazing into the stern and awful countenance of My Lord Chief Justice Reinke and receiving sentence of several days in durance vile, while the visage of Mr. Justice Fredenburg, the terror of the yellow press, hovers in the background against the purple.

Nevertheless we cannot but give vent to one or two things that occur to us as we behold this latest phenomenon in the history of jurisprudence. The grievous offence and transgression, to quote the Reverend Dr. Butler, for which the freshmen have been summoned to the bar of justice, is their failure to wear the yellow ties which are de rigueur in men's fall wear in the first year of Victoria College. Pursuant to which we beg to submit the following consideration: Since "subjecting any student to personal indignity" is condemned in the regulations on page 20 of the Arts Calendar, why are freshmen forced to submit to having their ties cut by any sophomore with nothing in his head and just enough in his pocket to be able to afford a pair of shears?

If the spectacle of a supposedly adult individual wearing a tie snipped off immediately below the chin is considered a dignified one by the learned judiciary of Victoria College in all sobriety, then we should like to watch the recreation periods of Messrs. Reinke, Fredenburg, Leslie, Lockhart and DeWitt when they have reached the full age of twenty-one and the burden of the pledge no longer rests heavily upon them. And if that is the conception of personal dignity entertained by this particular noblesse de la robe we would suggest that the prestige of the proceedings of the Victoria Students' Court would be enhanced by the active attendance of a pair of hurdy gurdies and a comic chorus chosen from among the choice spirits who figure in Daffydill Night and Denticants.

And, finally, if the freshmen must be found guilty and sacrificed to the impartial severity of the Statutes, may we urge the Court to be consistent and impose no trifling punishment. Those guilty, if the judges are in a Rhadamantine mood, should be forced to read ten consecutive lines of Acta Victoriana. This Draconian procedure should take place only, however, in the presence of a reputable physician who may advise when the victim has expired his crime.

Wandering Reporter Finds Tokens of 'Those Parties'

A poor wandering reporter has been attempting to bring to light some interesting details about the women's residences. The first discovery was a genuine, unquestionable mystery. It resides over the hall fireplace of the Women's Union. Not even the Gentleman of Vienna himself could answer all questions about it satisfactorily. From its gilt-edged security (not quite secure enough on one sad occasion) it baffles those who would solve the secret of its name, age and maker.

Some strange, dis-used store-room of the Chemistry building has recently yielded up a treasure which will soon be transformed into a conboy lamp to lighten the troubles of studious maidens, while for those who grow weary of Plato and Horace it is now possible for the privileged to learn the gentle art of spinning under the direction of the guiding genius, Miss Barber.

For those with modern, if not moderate tastes, there are a number of works from the well-known Group of Seven in such familiar places as the green room at Wymilwood, the entrance of Annesley, where a rather chilly scene refreshes the eye, and in the dining room of the Union. Particularly fortunate is the graduate house, for several of its rooms are now brightened by a very beautiful collection from our Canadian naturalist-painter, Mr. Holmes.

At the door of that terrible tribed called souvenir hunters another crime has been laid. An elaborately wrought key which represented Queen's Hall's only claim to the traditions of the past had joined the list of the missing after one of "those parties."

The University of Oxford has discovered that one of its students is working his way through college by acting as attendant in a beauty parlour. The enterprising undergraduate is said to have acquired much knowledge which is not obtainable at Oxford.

CHAMPUS CAT

To-day we propose conducting a Canadian Poets' and Authors' Rodeo with specimens of, and comments on, various styles. As the first example we give a stanza of one of those soulful longing poems where one goes about detecting one's spiritual affinity in marshes, lakes, lagoons, pools, puddles, ponds, creeks and swamps. We advise all those who are falling in love to consider the matter of swimming lessons. What one's true love is doing in the water is not explained, unless it be, possibly, to catch minnows, which is a little prosaic as an under-water occupation.

NATATOR

One gleam across the faery night
The silver river sighs
And in its gleaming silver light
My seeking summons dies.

For deep within the placid pool
I sense one call and then
I float within the eddies cool
And know my soul again.

One must not worry about these apparent high-dives. As far as the poet is concerned, his affinity might go sit at the bottom of Lake Tanganyika singing polly-woodle doodle all the day. We suggest the following as more appropriate:

One churche across the marble till,
And cash that follows soon;
A silver stream, a dollar bill,
Will find my soul in tune.

We follow hard upon the I-wanna-go-where-you-go poem with a lyrical effusion on the Northern Lights.

AURORA BOREALIS

The squadrons of the Northern Dawn
Sweep up the starry sky
Fierce floods of flame that sweep
Along

From low to heaven high.
It may be fire of Paradise
From out celestial depths
It may be love in your wide eyes
Where brimming beauty leaps.

We also have our suspicions of this. For one thing, fire is not conventionally associated with Paradise, but with somewhere else, (you know) and under these circumstances it is hardly tactful to speculate on it being in one's beloved's eyes. And then, to continue, there is the occasional poet, and the less occasional, the more we commend his efforts; yet, unfortunately, the word is a misnomer, for his Musc goes after him on the slightest pretext. Here is one upon the winning of the Horse-shoe Picking Championship by the Orilla Gorilla in a play off vs. the Saskatoon Spinach:

GLADIATOR

I hail thee, sportsman! And warrior art thou;
Who newly sprung from lineage
sturdy, strong,
Arose in might and left the spade and plough

And fought in happy tournament
'gainst wrong . . .
(10 more lines)

There is still much to be said, but it had better be left for a future date.
Ray for Calliope, Euterpe, Clotho and Laches!

U. OF T. RADIO SOCIETY HOLDS FIRST MEETING

Short Wave Receivers to be Discussed at the Next Meeting

The first regular meeting of the University of Toronto Radio Society took place yesterday at 12.30 p.m. Mr. J. F. Hill, the president of the society, was in charge of the meeting and gave a brief survey of the past record and explained the aim of the society, which was to further interest in radio work amongst undergraduates, graduates and members of the faculty of this University. Members of the society holding operators' licenses operate a short wave station in the Electrical Building, where valuable experience can be gained in radio work. A lively discussion on various radio topics followed the president's address, and plans were made for the next meeting of the society, which is to take place on Tuesday, Oct. 16.

More About Vaccination

Dear Sir:

If you will re-read the letter on Vaccination that headed your Correspondence column in "The Varsity" issue of October 9th you will readily understand why I write.

Further, having re-read the above mentioned letter you will agree that a poetic disposition is not necessary to appreciate the colour that emanated from its depths (?). It was the colour of fields and trees in late spring and, as such, it made the subscription "A Freshman" appear rather superficial.

Keeping such in mind I suppose we should be lenient with Mr. Freshman when he says:

"If that article (Note: he means the letter of '279') was written by a freshman there would be a reason, but there is no reason why a student in upper classes should find fault with vaccination."

When Mr. Freshman acquires enough sense to see that compulsory vaccination is a questionable necessity and as such merits student discussion, he will do well to confine himself to discussion alone. As a third year student I might hint that it is not considered the best etiquette for a freshman to attack upper classmen (whether they are right or wrong) when they broach an opinion.

Yours truly,

Third Year U.C.

MANY RULES GOVERN POSTERS IN U.C. HALLS

Aim is to Give All Organizations Fair Degree of Publicity

"Blessings on the poster but use discretion," seemed to be the attitude of Mr. McAndrew, Registrar of University College, when interviewed concerning the express squares which enliven the walls and waylay the students of University College. They are not likely to dampen the ardour of him who makes posters. Mr. McAndrew summed up the rules concerning posters in University College. Posters must be presented for the Registrar's stamp of approval in the form of his initials placed upon the poster. University College activities are given the preference over those of other institutions. The academic societies are considered before societies or functions that are extra-academic. Quality not quantity must count in placards.

WOMEN TENNIS STARS PREPARE FOR INTERFACULTY TOURNEY

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Co-ed sporting activities have begun this season with marked enthusiasm. The drawback of previous years is again evident in the lack of tennis courts. Had it not been for the generosity of the men in allowing the women the use of the U. of T. courts, U.C. and St. Mike's would have been greatly handicapped.

The basketball season will begin very shortly, and the curators of this popular activity are faced with the serious difficulty of procuring gymnasiums. U.T.S.'s floor is seldom available, and with such limited facilities the numerous basketball teams will again have to repeat their tale of woe.

College tennis tournaments have not yet been completed, but it is hoped that next Monday will mark the official opening of the Interfaculty tourney, which promises excellent tennis judging from the splendid exhibitions in the college matches.

An Intercollegiate tennis tournament has not yet developed. Last season the Blue and White team issued the invitation and are this year waiting for one of her sister colleges to make the initial move.

Basketball fans will remember that last year the Intercollegiate games were battled in the Hart House gymnasium. The Blue and White team this year will journey to McGill as a strong contender for the Intercollegiate title.

The return of Athol Westley and Phyl Griffiths in the capacity of coach is widely appreciated by all those concerned in baseball and basketball circles.

U.C. WOMEN SEEK BASEBALL HONOURS

Many of Last Year's Players Again Seen in Their Former Positions

ROOTERS WANTED

U.C. women have started on their way to the baseball championship (D.V.) by practising Tuesday and Thursday evenings at 7 o'clock in the U.T.S. gym. Athol Westley, again the coach, is working on considerable very promising fresh material as well as polishing up those of last year's team who remain. Fortunately, U.C. possesses half-a-dozen old players of no mean repute, viz., Ede Blackwell, pitcher; Marg. Dixon, catcher; Frances Dale, 1st base; Marg. Hickey, 2nd base; Dot Batchelor and Ethel Hogg, fielders.

In spite of this fairly complete team there is still room for players of experience and ability. Unfortunately, several of the freshies, as well as Ede Blackwell, are in the disconcerting quandary of having to choose between baseball and basketball. According to present rules, no girl is allowed to play on more than one team without special permission from Dr. Gordon—hence the dilemma.

With their nucleus of former players and plenty of "simply peachy" (the manager's very own expression) freshettes, U.C. should be able to hold out hope of winning the championship. But there are never any U.C. supporters at the game. Last year Vic. won the championship; Vic. rooters turned out in full force at all encounters. Draw your own conclusions, and if you cannot play baseball yourself, help those who can by your moral support.

INTERFACULTY TRACK SIX LEFT IN WOMEN'S MEET AT STADIUM TENNIS TOURNAMENT THIS AFTERNOON

Keen Competition Expected in Large Quota of Events

VETERAN STARS ON HAND

Winners to Receive Positions on Varsity's Intercollegiate Squad

The climax of arduous training comes this afternoon when every track man in the University will strive to win a place on Varsity's Intercollegiate team. With all the new talent that has poured in this year, to attempt to call winners in the different events would be pure folly.

Varsity's hopes for retaining the Intercollegiate title were made brighter than ever when "Mo" Mitchell turned out for training on Monday. "Mo" was the 1927 half mile champion of Canada, and for the last few years has been unbeatable in the Intercollegiate mile. He is entering the quarter mile, half mile, and mile in to-day's events. This is his final year, and to-day will be the last time he will ever run before a Varsity crowd.

In the 100 yards there are half a dozen men who are good for close to 10 seconds. Inches only will separate such men as Finlayson of U.C., Hymmen, a freshman from school, and Howe, likewise a freshman from school.

The quarter mile will be a hum-dinger. Weaver of Queen's, now at O.C.E., Connolly, a freshman at Victoria, Hewett, a school frosh, and King, a second year Victoria man, have all done 52 seconds or better. With "Mo" Mitchell of Meds an added starter, anything may happen.

The mile and half mile may or may not be "Mo" Mitchell's. By the time he has finished with two races, he may be in no condition to dispose of such crack freshmen milers as Jack Vika of U.C. and Fred Lee of School, and such good half milers as Hal Williams of Meds and Bobby Thompson of O.C.E.

Hap Gilbert looks like a good bet in the three mile race, but there are a great many entries in this event and some dark horse may take him.

George Sparrow seems to have the hurdles cinched, but you can never be sure about a hurdle race—hitting a single hurdle has caused the very best man to lose his race.

The field events are the ones that are likely to bring forth badly needed material. Hymmen will cause Bill Finlayson plenty of trouble in the broad jump. Freshmen shot putters like Ed Peaker are likely looking men. The pole vault has received entries from several newcomers. In addition to Jack Davenport of School and Bob (Continued on page 4)

Showing This Year Forecasts a Strong Interfaculty Team

TWO GAMES BEFORE FINALS

Six are left in University College women's tennis tournament. The players have been handicapped by damp weather, which never did agree with the Hoskin Courts. However, the enthusiasm keeps up, and there are just two more games before the semi-finals. Audrey Purkis, first year, had a bye, and plays in the semi-finals with the winner of the game between Beryl Goettler and Ede McCollum, both fourth year. Margaret Kerr, another freshie, plays Rhoda Howe (fourth year) Wednesday morning, the winner to go into the semi-finals against Jessie Gray, second year.

It is unfortunate that none of last year's team are in the tourney this year. The players have made a good showing this year, however, and U.C. expects to have an interfaculty team that will be hard to beat. The freshies have all played plucky games, and the left-handed player, Audrey Purkis, has an exceptionally good stroke. Beryl Goettler and Ede McCollum are both consistent players and should have a good game—the play-off for the semi-finals.

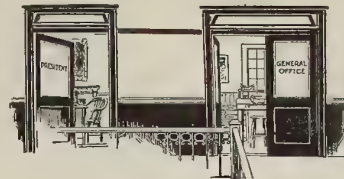

Jessie Gray has showed good form and is in the running for the interfaculty team. Marg. Kerr and Rhoda Howe are both careful players, and either should make good backbone for a team.

U.C. women always have to put up with the fact that they have no courts of their own. This caused great inconvenience last year and meant that the girls had a long street car ride before they could get to the rented courts. This year the Hoskin courts were secured, and "when they are good, they are very good, but when they are greasy, they are horrid."

Greater Interest Shown in St. Hilda's Tennis Tourney

This year in the St. Hilda's Tennis Tourney there was a larger entry list than formerly, the freshies showing enthusiastic interest. There is a lot of promising material for the team, so the competitors are being closely watched in order that the players who are chosen may do as well for St. Hilda's as the teams of other years have done. The third round of the tournament was started on Monday afternoon on the St. Hilda's courts.

It is hoped that the cricket club courts may be procured for the semi-finals and finals, so that the players may have every opportunity to play in the best of their ability. Marjorie Winspear, Bee Symmons, Peggy Groat and Mary Winspear are favoured as the semi-finalists.

PROSPECTS ONLY FAIR FOR GIRLS' BASKETBALL

But Many Promising Recruits May Yet Regain "Bronze Baby"

How are Varsity's hopes for a championship girls' intercollegiate basketball team? To say the least, the prospects are gloomy. Three girls remain of last year's outfit, Al Muckle, Dot Kerr and Betty McDonald. Through a bit of tough luck Ede Blackwell, flashy forward of the last two years, will not be in the line-up, and her place will be a mighty hard one to fill. Forwards are a minus quantity, and outstanding players on last year's college teams will have a good opportunity to fill the gaps. U.C. has two or three likely prospects, including Phyl Howard and Marian Henderson, while Vic., senior champions in last year's interfaculty series, can be counted on for some promising material. It is rumoured that a number of freshettes will make a good showing this year, practices having begun at Lillian Massey. Some good material is promised if high school stars such as Lorraine Harvey and Wilma Haslett are numerous.

Queen's loss is Varsity's gain in the case of Honor Lett, a third year student in Household Science, who came to us this year, and because of her experience with the Queen's team should have a good chance to represent Varsity this year.

In order to bring the "bronze baby," lost to Western last year, back to Varsity, many good recruits will have to be on hand by the Christmas season to send a real outfit down to McGill where the intercollegiate series will be held.

U.C. FRENCH SOCIETY HAS GLORIOUS PAST

games are played and songs sung, which create no end of enjoyment.

Perhaps the most interesting and enjoyable item on the year's program is the presentation of the French plays by the members of the society. At the meetings throughout the year it is usual to have a small one-act play read by different members, so as to give all who wish a chance to take part. In the fall, one or two large plays are presented in costume, which usually attract a large audience.

The meetings of the society are held about every three weeks at 79 St. George St., at the close of which a social half-hour is devoted to refreshments and conversation.

The society has in the past enjoyed the co-operation of the students, faculty and friends, and trusts that the coming year will repeat the successes of the past on an even greater scale.

"GREEN" FRESHMAN LEADS MULLIN PARTY

left the car and began to walk. Soon it started raining. After walking about two miles in various directions, the sophs began to grow angry. They had spent all their money on car fare, and were completely lost. They halted a moment to discuss the situation. A mocking laugh from ahead further enraged them, and they broke into a run. However, just as his faithful followers rounded a corner, the freshman disappeared into a lane. The four waited for him to reappear, muttering dire threats of vengeance to be exacted when he should. But they never saw him again. He slipped off in the darkness, leaving his pursuers stranded in the rain, far, far from home, and "stony broke."

Further Adventures of J. M. Singe (C. & F.) Fraternity Row Repels Cultured Monk

(By L. J. R.)

My pet monkey, John Millington Singe, is now comfortably ensconced in the course in commerce and finance. But he is of the opinion that in order to be a thorough going monkey he must also join a fraternity. So the other day I marched him up St. George St. past all the houses I thought were anxious to take in more monkeys in order to pay off their overdue charges.

As we were passing the FIE CAP house we heard voices shouting "Hello Freddie!" We turned, and there were Richmond the Dickey Bird and Bee Jay the Corn Cure, waving to John Millington. "This isn't Freddie," I explained with dignity, to which John Millington added a low growl. "This is an intelligent friend of mine."

"A bright young fellow, even if he is a friend of yours," said Richmond the Dickey Bird. "He looks like real Fie Cap Material. Hurrah! Fie Cap Material! Let's pledge him!" "No, wait till we find out how much money his old man's got," cautioned Bee Jay the Corn Cure.

"Who's his old ma—his father?" asked the Dickey Bird. "I am sure you will be impressed with him," I replied humbly; "he is a well educated monk—"

"What!" interrupted Richmond, "he isn't an R.C., is he?" But I calmed his agitation by assuring him that John Millington was a strong Modernist and a life long Republican.

"Very well," cried Bee Jay the Corn Cure, "send for the Pledging Committee!"

Out came the famous Committee, composed of Horner and Benny. "Is he affiliated with the League?" asked Benny sternly, while Horner went through the candidate's pockets. After dividing the loot they gazed at me severely and demanded "What is the occupation of this our future brother?" I replied sternly: "He is an auditor." With a frantic yell Horner and Benny rushed into the House, where they were found several hours later half smothered under a Chesterfield.

"Well, why don't you pledge him?" I asked. "What's his name?" countered Richmond the Dickey Bird. "——" I replied impishly. There was a yell at the top window.

"Don't you dare pledge him! I'll black ball him! Oh my contracts! Oh my contracts!" It was Geedee the Ad Machine. Well, that settled that and we started down the walk. Whom did we meet coming up but Bob the Blob!

John Millington scented a friend and brother. With a yelp of recognition he ran for Bob the Blob. "Shame, John Millington," I cried. "Shades of Darwin and Huxley! How could you fall so low!" But my pet was quite loath to leave the Fie Caps and I had to drag him all the way up the street to Newman Club. And as we went my companion muttered the beautiful lines originally written in The Trinity University Review:

CHANT DU DEPART

Fie Caps! Fie Caps! Do not cringe, If ever you wish to go on a bungee I'm your servant, J. M. Singe.

rugby games and examinations. Huge piles of beads, old neck-ties, broken pen-knives and like line-a-brace would be banked about the chocolate coloured wedges. However, it does not serve in any such striking function, but all freshettes and freshmen inspect it with great curiosity and feel quite gratified when they can discern the semblance of a rather supercilious face among the various bumps and waves. The value of the meteorite lies in the scientific interest it excites, and also in its role as a curio. Not only is it a tangible part of one of the otherwise unattainable stars, but the one time venerated stone idol of the early inhabitants of the continent.

biological truths. Among scientists, the evolution question has been dormant for fifty years, and the modern clergyman must place his sermons on a high intellectual plane. "But the preacher who believes in a purely strait-laced and fundamental doctrine is driving his crowds away," said Dr. Satterly.

Loretto Freshettes Impress Seniors by Programme

The inauguration ceremonies of the freshman year at Loretto College culminated last evening in the form of a concert, followed by an informal party. The feature presentation of the programme was a clever skit in which the "first impressions" of afternoon tea in the Common Room and of the seniors were given. The presentation of "Snow White," the prescribed frosh play, showed enthusiastic preparation.

The freshman year at Loretto is large and talented, and judging by last evening's performance will be a credit to the anxious seniors.

REGISTRATION UP GREATLY AT KNOX

Knox College this year, these men either being in theology or in courses leading to theology, as compared with fifty-five men last year, and forty-five in the year preceding that. The principal then made an appeal for students for the ministry of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

The Rev. David Perrie, D.D., at the close of Rev. Barclay's address, nominated Rev. Ephraim Scott, D.D., for the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity from Knox College. Dr. Scott is one of the leading men in the church to-day, and has been such for the past twenty years.

Dr. Perrie mentioned that Dr. Scott, who has been editor of the Presbyterian Record for the past thirty years, has been an invaluable aid to the church not only as one of its spokesmen but also through the medium of his pen. Dr. Scott received the degree of D.D. from Pine Hill College, Halifax, his Alma Mater, but that college has since gone into the United Church of Canada, and in no more fitting way could the Presbyterian Church show its appreciation than by bestowing upon him a degree from old Knox.

The Principal, Rev. Dr. Eakin, conferred the degree upon Dr. Scott in the name of the Senate of the College, and the meeting was dismissed with the benediction from Rev. Dr. Mustard, Moderator of the Presbytery of Toronto.

New records are bound to be established with such a galaxy of material. The coaches have the men in the best of shape possible and are only praying for a good day.

Dents Default to Pharmacy Opening of Soccer Season

Dents made a poor start in the Inter-faculty soccer league Tuesday when they failed to show up for their scheduled match with the future Druggists. Winning games by default is not the most satisfactory way of achieving victory. Soccer is not so popular a sport that it can afford to have defaulted matches so early in the season.

WHITE MEN ARE HONOURED IN SOUTH AFRICA

Mr. Riley Late Assistant Commissioner in Nigeria Tells Interesting Tales

MUST KILL TO BE MEN

Englishmen Have Built Up Respect for British Administration

Last night "The Varsity" made the acquaintance of Mr. C. J. Riley, M.C., late Assistant Commissioner of the Colonial Civil Service of Nigeria, who was full of interesting reminiscences of his six years in Africa.

Mr. Riley described a novel wedding party which took place during his stay in Africa. A certain pair of native brothers, having found their soul mates, decided to get married. But to their great dismay they found themselves frowned upon by all the old men of the tribe. They were politely informed that they were not worthy of taking unto themselves wives because they were not men. They found the trouble to be the fact that they had not killed anybody! Having discovered the fault they proceeded to remedy it. Hieing themselves towards the coast, they came upon a Yuroba, one of the itinerant traders of the district, whom they greatly despise. A whispered consultation, a rush, a thud and it was all over. A day later the assistant commissioner saw unrolled before his astonished vision the head of the erstwhile trader, with the explanation that since the white man was wanted of them all, the brothers wanted him to know that they were real men. They got their wives!

This conveys the idea that the white men have great prestige, which is one of the beauties of the present administrative system. The white men always dress for dinner, always take a large retinue of servants with them, and in this and other ways they have built up a name for British service. (Continued on page 4)

BRITISH GIRLS VISIT WYMLWOOD

Canadian College Girl Not Like Those of Oxford and Cambridge

PREFER ENGLISH BOYS

Several English schoolgirls of seventeen and eighteen years of age, representing sixteen different schools, were entertained by the Women's Undergraduate Association of Victoria College at Wymilwood last evening. The party, which consists of about twenty-five members, has been touring Canada since the first of August. It is at present divided into three sections, each of which is visiting a different Canadian university.

"We've noticed much more make-up on Canadian girls than we are accustomed to at home," asserted a fair Britisher at Wymilwood, brandishing a powder puff vigorously.

"Did you notice it, too, in our universities?" questioned "The Varsity." "Yes, but not nearly as much. And the girls there don't apply it as crudely as those one sees on the street."

One young Britisher ventured the explanation that it was American influence that caused the lavish use of the beauty jar in Canada.

But it was unanimously agreed that (Continued on page 4)

METRE IS PIVOT OF POETIC DICTION

Intellect of the Poet Acts as a Steady Influence

ART IS IMITATION

"The poet to the plain man is primarily a man who years," said Professor Owen, addressing the English Association in the Junior Common Room of University College last night. The paper was a plea for the old distinction between poetry and prose. But poetry is words arranged in metrical as well as in rhythmic order, the art of metrical language.

"Poetry is the easiest of all arts to practice," said the speaker, "and to the ordinary man is all tender thoughts, dainty fancies, indescribable longings." He went on to say that there was more silliness expressed in poetry than in any other way. It provided a merciful atmosphere of unreality. About the best poetry floated an atmosphere of infinite suggestion, which all arts tried to express. But he said that the greatest poets never wrote poetry was ineffable.

"The Greek definition of art as imitation is a true one," continued Professor Owen. Art imitated emotion which it aimed to recreate. This it did by describing the object that aroused emotion. The grammatical form of words alone could not express emotion, and the poet resorted to the additions of tone and cadence. There was no such thing as a poetic subject; the same thought might be expressed in poetry, prose and music; the difference depending on the effect desired by the artist. In poetry, thought played the same part as the laws of grammar in the conversation of thought. The man who did not like poetry regarded it in the light of prose, and thought it the medium used too elaborate. Peacock called poetry "the mental rattle that awakens the attention of the intellect." TWENTIETH CENTURY WILL SEE BIRTH OF A NEW WORLD

HOPE OF WORLD PEACE

Aided by Development of Science, Civilization and General Education

"I believe firmly in the possibility of world peace—not through treaties and beautifully worded resolutions, but through a consciousness of our fundamental unity," stated Dr. J. H. Randall to a gathering of interested students in the lecture room, Hart House, yesterday afternoon. Dr. Randall is Director of the World Foundation Unity and is at present in Toronto attending the sessions of the conference of that organization.

"The great event of the twentieth century will be recognized in history as the birth of a world," said Dr. Randall. "Formerly we existed in fragments; there was no world. But the World War brought the progress of a hundred years to light. We are becoming internationally-minded, world-conscious, and aware of the fundamental solidarity and mutuality of mankind."

Dr. Randall went on to mention the agencies by which this awareness had been brought about.

In the first place, modern science had, with the tremendous progress in the means of communication during the past century, annihilated space until nation touched elbows with nation and men lived "in each other's back yards." "We have been brought together, but with all the old hates, rivalries, and prejudices. How can we learn to live in harmony, peace and co-operation?"

Secondly, in the rapid rise and spread of our industrial civilization, we have seen the gradual growth of a condition of interdependence among nations. To-day nations, just as individuals, are specialists. "Modern man," said Dr. Randall, quoting a well-known French publicist, "is truly a citizen of the world; but as yet he is totally unaware of it." Already our bankers, merchants and economists have become internationalized. "We must stop trying to put a new world into the old thought-forms," declared (Continued on page 4)

WISCONSIN UNION IS SIMILAR TO HART HOUSE

Mr. Bickersteth Present at Opening and Addressed Over Three Thousand Men

MUST DEVELOP SPIRIT

Hart House Recognized as Model Both for Building and Student Life

Interviewed by "The Varsity" with regard to his observations on his recent journey to the University of Wisconsin to be present at the opening of the Wisconsin Memorial Union (an institution corresponding to our Hart House), Mr. J. B. Bickersteth made the following remarks:

"The Wisconsin Memorial Union consists of a large central building with two wings, one as yet unfinished. It has been erected by the subscriptions of alumni and friends of the University for the use of men and women."

Continuing he said: "I was asked to give the men's address at the open air meeting on the shores of the lake with between three and four thousand people present."

"They have no athletic appliances in the house, as their tanks and gymnasiums are housed elsewhere. The house contains a lounge room, dining rooms of various sizes, a large dance room, which they call the "Great Hall," a few guest bedrooms, offices for the "Cardinal" and the "Octopus," their campus publications, and for the Dramatic Club. In the basement they have a large rathskellar for light refreshments. It is beautifully equipped. The attractive interior decorating has been done by a noted French expert."

Anent the management, he observed: "In the organization of committees they have drawn a fair number of suggestions from us. In the house they have a council like our Board of Stewards, and committees like ours heading up into the council."

"The problem lying before them is the development of the right kind of spirit within the house. It seems to me recognized that Hart House occupies a leading position with regard to all other houses devoted to student activities not only in the building itself but, what is far more important, in the life which is being developed by the students themselves within that building."

Your Paper

We bawl vigorously of something new on this tabloid, to wit, the back page feature. Every morning some matter of exceptional polish and intellectual witticism will run on the fourth page as an antidote for the previous three. We commend it.

Therein will bounce around John Millington Singe, one exuberant monkey, educated to a high finese, and registered in Commerce and Finance and at present contemplating taking the high dive into some fraternity. The Hon. Singe will appear Wednesday.

And then every Monday we have arranged for Mr. A. Arrell to write a piece in the best similes of James Branch Cabell, deep, and yet superficially enticing. We advise that Mr. Arrell's work be read at least three times.

Friday, Mr. D. Kendall, M.A., has consented to tell in the form of the "Letters of Laura Louise" the happenings of the week viewed through a kindly, yet satirical and dangerous eye. Watch out for Laura Louise.

On the feature staff are also enrolled Miles. Greta Reid and Edith Martin. Both are Fourth Year members of "The Varsity" staff endowed with great acumen and perspicacity. Miss Reid is the author of to-day's feature.

Look out for the back page feature. Note: the editor assumes no responsibility for those laughing right out loud in class while reading the b.p.f.

VICTORIA STUDENTS' COURT DECIDES QUESTION OF UNIVERSITY IMPORTANCE

SEASON TICKETS ARE SELLING BRISKLY

Expect to Sell Out for Game with McGill on Saturday

MOST STUDENTS APPROVE

There was an optimistic attitude yesterday at the offices of the Athletic Association about the sale of tickets for Saturday's rugby game. There was quite a long line-up in the early part of the morning, and a steady flow of customers continued all day. It was stated that only about three sections, or two thousand seats, are still unsold, and the probabilities are that the stadium will be completely sold out by Saturday. This is considered a very large sale for the first home game, and those in charge of the sale of tickets expressed themselves as entirely satisfied with the way matters are turning out.

At the office of the Students' Administrative Council, which is taking charge of the sale of student season tickets, Mr. Burns told "The Varsity" representative that he also was very well pleased with the sale. "At the beginning of the sale," he said, "there was quite a line-up for tickets and altogether we have sold about six hundred and fifty already. We expect to sell quite a few more before Saturday; after that, of course, the sale will probably drop off somewhat."

"This method of selling tickets is still in the experimental stage here," continued Mr. Burns, "but it seems to be turning out very satisfactorily. It has been in use quite successfully at McGill University for some time. One student suggested to us that purchase of a season ticket be made compulsory here, as it is at McGill, and that is the only comment offered us that might possibly be construed as a complaint about the system. As the officials in charge have decided that it is not desirable at present to make the purchase of any ticket compulsory, we hope that the voluntary sale will be as large as possible."

"Of course there are always a few perennial fusers, such as the one who wrote a complaining letter to 'The Varsity' lately; but apart from that, all the comment we have received has been quite favourable. Unfortunately, there was a misunderstanding right at the beginning. The student season ticket is primarily a rooter's ticket, and in the rooters' section the men and women are kept separate. If a student wishes to take a girl to a rugby game, he must buy the ordinary tickets that are on sale to the public. But this is precisely the arrangement that existed last year, except the students have now the extra privilege of buying a season ticket and seeing all the games at reduced prices."

"We expect that the season ticket system will also increase the attendance at hockey games and track events. Students who would not ordinarily be interested will attend these events simply because they already have tickets. This should increase the popularity of these sports, and that in turn will probably mean an even greater (Continued on page 4)

First Year Men Summoned By Sophomores For Infringement of the Freshman Rules

DID NOT WEAR YELLOW TIES

Clash Between Personal Liberty and Authority of the Student Government

To-day, student legislative history is in the making. All eyes are turned on the Students' Court of Victoria College Students' Parliament.

This judicial body was instituted by the authority of the Students' Council, and indirectly of the Caput, to pass judgment on undergraduates transgressing minor rules or traditions of the college.

During the past four years there has been no occasion for calling this court. It has been summoned to meet to-day as a result of the complaint of the sophomore year that a number of freshmen were defying tradition, and the specific instructions of the V.C.S.P. by attending classes without their regulation brilliant cravats. Each of these offenders was served with a summons, issued by the secretary of the court, to appear before that body this afternoon at 4.30 o'clock.

The plaintiffs claim that the accused had violated the laws of the University by refusing to obey an order of the Students' Parliament.

A number of freshmen are eager to press a counter-charge against the second year of subjecting fellow students to personal indignities and violence. Commenting on the fairness of the editorial in yesterday's "Varsity," a member of the executive of J.T.2 stated that his year had a greater grievance, but had laid no charge to the court.

Naturally there is a great diversity of opinion among Victoria undergraduates. A large number of first year men feel that they have displayed their (Continued on page 4)

NO DIRECTORY FOR SOME FEW WEEKS

Mr. Fennell Fears There Will Be Many Wrong Addresses

GREAT CARE TAKEN

The University Directory of Staff and Students will not be ready for some weeks, according to information received by "The Varsity" yesterday at the Registrar's Office in Simcoe Hall.

"A lot of people in the faculty of Arts, apparently, are going to be very much disappointed when they find their addresses and telephone numbers are obsolete," stated A. B. Fennell, assistant registrar of the University, when interviewed. "The reason for this is that the Arts registration cards are filled out in February, then in the fall the students fail to see that new addresses and telephone numbers are entered on these cards. The registrar's staff is engaged in the preparation of the lists for the directory, and have to spend a great deal of time telephoning, gathering information, and verifying addresses."

A VICTORIA MAN COMPLAINS

That "The Varsity" "has tended quite frankly towards yellow journalism" is the charge made in a letter signed "3TO Vic." which we print in to-day's issue. That the writer of this letter tends to reveal his own ignorance and inexperience is our immediate conclusion. But his status as a junior in a college great both in its size and its well deserved prestige requires a detailed explanation.

Our correspondent begins by condemning us generally for our "frequent lurid accounts of initiations, of wild and weird encounters between frosh and soph." This must refer either to happenings inside Victoria or outside Victoria. If he is referring to things outside Victoria, we might ask him how it is that he is in a position to judge the accuracy of our stories. These accounts were written by men registered in the college in which the event took place. We published stories, for instance, about "wild and weird encounters" which were written by participants therein. If three years at Victoria College have developed in our correspondent the power of omnipresence as well as that of infallibility, we must conclude that it was his duty to inform us as to the inaccuracies in the stories written about events in faculties outside of Victoria by men who were at the scene of action. Since our critic has not condescended to correct us here, we therefore conclude that his general condemnation is of no effect, because with regard to events outside Victoria College, he does not know what he is talking about.

Concerning things inside Victoria College, he tries to be definite at least. He accuses us of distorting the facts with regard to the jiu-jitsu incident, the raid on Charles House, "most extraordinary kidnappings," yellow ties and the Students' Court. Since he has gone so far as to name the stories, he might have specified the particulars in which these stories erred, written as they were by Victoria College men after consulting witnesses and participants.

"3TO Vic." evidently means to refute our editorial about the Students' Court by blaming "irresponsible idiots who frequent the halls and surrounding campus of U.C." for shearing freshmen's ties. For his particular benefit we repeat what we have already said, namely, that to cut off a man's tie, whether he be a freshman or not, is not respecting his personal dignity according to the Regulations. If U.C. men are responsible for cutting Victoria freshmen's ties, why did not the Victoria College Students' Parliament protest to the University College Literary and Athletic Society instead of summoning its injured freshmen to court?

"A morning paper" is the source of the text upon which our critic has preached his sermon. Which morning paper does he mean? It is not long since the editors of both Toronto morning papers were summoned to the bar and rebuked by a supreme court judge for printing unsavoury details about a case which "3TO Vic." is still too young to understand.

It is laughable, too, that these morning oracles are used in the attempt to link the name of the Hearst press with that of our own newspaper. Our latest news about W. R. Hearst is that he is supporting Hoover in the American presidential election, a course which the editor of "The Varsity" refuses to follow. We leave our tea-drinking friends at the northern end of the campus to supply the Hurrahs for Herbert.

Lastly, we are accused of failing to live up to the standards of former years. "If '3TO Vic.' had read 'The Varsity' occasionally he ought to realize that, regardless of the personnel, it has never missed an initiation story, if it could possibly be discovered. The S.P.S. initiations of 1923, the University College initiations of 1925, the dispute between Knox upperclassmen and freshmen in 1926, have all "cluttered up" our news and editorial columns. Our paper has always been "yellow" to those who refuse to subscribe to the wonderful motto: The truth shall make you free. Does "3TO Vic." recall seeing this anywhere, over a doorway for instance? We are publishing more initiation activity, and there are a good many people who have something else to do than sit in a corner and write baseless letters. Of this particular letter we may say, to reverse one of its phrases, "unimportant but regrettable."

Que la helle! Here they go after little Dee again and openly make cracks about him in print, as viz and to wit the following:
L. M. Gelber, III U.C.: "Diogenes' always was a sad creature and in his endless quest for truth he gives entirely the wrong idea of our University life to the freshman year. Let him die but on one condition only. Let there be buried with him that editor fellow, 'Dee', and other such wild-eyed intelligentsia."

This gives one a sad pain. We know a Gelber in University College, but he is a terribly sapient fellow and not given to making such wild cracks about harmless individuals such as we. It must be some other Gelber.

And as for these people who disparage puns and hide about in corners, steps shall be taken to eliminate them. Only one contributor has so far submitted puns worthy of publication, namely, that prince of footballers and peer of scholars, "The Lost Gord."

The others were of the calibre of the old gag about the silver nitrate, i.e. 15 cents cash, or the following: And as Perceval, the Big Swede, said to his aged and descending grand-mother, as he playfully removed the chair:

"Ay banjo king."

Weak but Pure

Kitty.

Then, we refuse to print riddles. Why is a so and so like such and such? Boo! Why is the Cat like a berth on a steamboat? They are both the bunk.

C—C

There we are. Tell us something of intellectual standards slightly above that of the average fraternity man and see how fast it goes into print.

C—C

Has one seen the lobster salad fliver on the campus? It looks like the kind of car that the boogey man rides around in collecting bad boys who eat Käse mit Preiselin just before bed. As we say, it has variegated doors, sky-blue-pink polka dotted, sassafras, mauve, taupe and billious. It may be a car, but hooneel wants to ride in it? These galloping sewing-machines may be quite the thing, komulifo, in the States, but frelache, why here? We view with alarm.

C—C

And again vaccination bothers the correspondents. We have suspected the respected Dr. Porter since last year. We went to interview him, and he grabbed us and he stabbed us and we went away with 1,607,000 more bacilli than we had previous to the attempted assassination. This makes 3 times and we hesitate to get excited although admitting being narrow-minded enough to wear an envelope for a skull cap.

C—C

Who wants to be broad-minded? We want to enjoy life and have a few opinions of our own. Broad-mindedness and frivolity are not synonymous, we adduce, but narrow-mindedness is lots of fun, too.

C—C

We are not going to the game. Are you? Do you feel that getting up at 7 a.m. and waiting 3 hours is the value of a good seat? Or that the game is worth a yip as a spectacle from the sort of seat procurable at 1 p.m.? Shame! Fuss the use!

Dee.

A Complaint

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

An editorial in a morning paper played the Hearst papers for their policy of distortion of facts in order to provide sensational reading for the public.

This criticism unfortunately might well apply to "The Varsity." The policy of your paper has tended quite frankly towards the yellow journalism which it professes to condemn. Frequent lurid accounts of initiations, of wild and weird encounters between frosh and soph, have cluttered your front page. In particular, Victoria has suffered from your unwelcome attentions. Reports of incidents, regrettable perhaps but certainly unimportant in themselves, have been exaggerated and distorted into almost alarming proportions.

Misrepresentations and seemingly deliberate misquotations have been only too common; it is necessary to specify the episode of the jiu-jitsu expert, the raid on Charles House, most extraordinary kidnappings, and now your latest story of yellow ties and the Students' Court. It is painfully evident that "The Varsity," in her new role of mischief-maker, has, for the sake of sensationalism, descended into the depths of so-called "yellow" journalism.

As for tie-hearing, it has been only too evident that this practice, almost entirely, has been confined to the activities of those irresponsible idiots who frequent the halls and surrounding campus of U.C., and with a fine disregard for faculty colours, snip and cut to the delight of their manly hearts.

I write this letter not from sheer disgust but from a keen regret that "The Varsity" should have lowered the standards set and so well lived by former years.

3TO Vic.

Mulock Cup Schedule Corrected by Doctor Young

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

I do not know who is responsible for the schedule for the Mulock Cup series as published in to-day's issue of The Varsity. Therefore I am offering a quite impersonal criticism. Under the Federation Act of 1887 and amending Acts, "University College" ceased to be identical with the "Faculty of Arts." The latter term applies at the present time to the undergraduate body collectively of four colleges—University, Victoria, Trinity and St. Michael's. Hence it is incorrect (Continued on page 4)

At the suggestion of the representatives concerned the Committee of Management have decided to group together the four teams which formerly comprised Groups IV and V in the Interfaculty Series. Knox, Pharmacy, St. Michael's and Forestry therefore will henceforth be known as Group IV, and team managers will find the new schedule appended herewith.

There will be no change in the dates of games for Groups I, II and III, but Trinity College will play their home games with Victoria and St. Arts on the field north of Trinity College instead of on the back campus.

Team managers are again reminded of the necessity of handing in eligibility certificates before their first game takes place.

Additional applications for the position of referee in the Interfaculty Series will be received at the Athletic Office, Hart House.

FIRST TEAM TIES ARGONAUTS IN STIFF PRACTICE

Traynor Makes Touchdown as Blue Line Holds Argos Down

SEVERAL CHANGES IN TEAM

Maurice Kelly and Dunn Now Promoted to Intercollegiate Squad

Coach "Les" Blackwell is evidently taking no chances on the McGill game. When the Blue enter the fray this Saturday several changes will be seen on the team. Wood and Carrick have been shifted to Jimmy Douglas' Orphans, while Maurice Kelly and Dunn will step up to the first team.

Following a stiff signal practice last night the Varsity lined up against Dr. Frank Knight's Argos outfit and both teams "stepped on it." The result was a tie, 5-5, and the Blue made a very good showing, especially along the line. Argos, who held Tigers to a low score, had their hands full. Traynor provided the feature by tearing down the field for a well-earned touchdown. The Regina lad has been playing great football this season and turned in a beautiful game against Queen's. If he and Gooderham repeat against McGill the Red will not get away for many long gains.

ed from U.C. activities, it was thought necessary to have some form of initiation.

Miss Laird gave a very interesting account of the history of the course. It was through the interest taken by Lillian Massey Treble and Chancellor Burwash that the Household Science course was finally inaugurated in 1913. The President of the Club extended a welcome to all and asked all freshies to enrol.

Among those who enjoyed themselves were the representatives of English schools who are visiting the University at present.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Saturday will be the first home game for the Varsity senior teams. The Intercollegiate will be hosts to the Shaughnessy-less McGillites, and as usual there is a heavy demand for tickets. Contrary to expectations, single tickets were sold to the students and every man has the opportunity to "drag a frail" to the big event.

Sceptical Sam, President of the Showme Club, showed up yesterday. Sam was very interested in the feminine spectators at the football games. This worthy gentleman contends that at least sixty per cent of the "weakies" the sex don't care a hoot about the game itself, but are present because it's the "place to go." Big sister tells little Susie, who hopes to be the sweetheart of '32, that she simply must be seen at certain places. Varsity-McGill and Varsity-Queen's are on the list. If the game bores her or the "boy friend" gives up as a hopeless job the task of initiating her into the finer points of the great fall spectacle, there always remains to observe what that tall blonde from Vic. is wearing, etc., etc. Sam became very indignant on our refusing to agree with him, and at last calmed down enough to promise to make another survey this Saturday. We trust that he will soon change his opinion.

We felt that something was missing this year. Sure thing—it's nothing more or less than Old "Shag's" annual production of trick plays. In past years rumours always came out from McGill to the effect that Shaughnessy had several aces up his sleeve which would stultify the opposition. The opposing teams were ready for anything from rubber tests to chorus outfits as accessories. Speaking of the chorus reminds us that "Shag" was one of the first to introduce shifts into the Canadian game.

The Interfaculty Track and Field Meet has once more produced a collection of hopefuls who will carry the Blue colours in the coming Intercollegiate meet. Varsity will have to work pretty hard to live up to the records of former years.

VIC. DEFEAT TRINITY IN SHUT-OUT GAME

Victors Had Powerful Attack But Trinity Team Also Quite Good

Victoria, last year's Interfaculty soccer champions, defeated Trinity Tuesday afternoon 4 to 0. The score does not do justice to the Trinity team, who deserved to break into the score column. However, Vic's attack was more powerful and sustained, which earned for them the victory. The first goal of the game was scored by Little, a new man on the Vic. team. He also got the last one. Terry raced in fast for the second goal shortly after half time. The remaining goal was scored by Cragg on a long kick. For Trinity, Gunn was prominent throughout.

Trinity: Goal, Findlater; backs, Chadley, Hadley; halves, Lund, Gray; forwards, Sinfield, Wong; Gunn, Hudson, McPherson; sub, Ryan.

Victoria: Goal, Cowan; backs, Snell, Inglis; halves, Robinson, Allan, Beaton; forwards, Cragg, Ramsay, Little, Hughes, Terry; sub, Armstrong. Referee: King.

Columbus, Ohio.—Fritz Kreisler, noted Austrian violinist, is in favour of the adoption of American college sports in European universities. So he intimated in an interview given here after his concert at the University of Ohio. Also he was rather inclined to doubt the supposed academic superiority of European colleges.

"I believe the universities of Europe and America are about equal," he said, "and the new schools on the continent are taking up your American sports."

FOURTH INTERFACULTY SOCCER GAME PLAYED

Team Need Practice But Played Clean Game Throughout

Yesterday afternoon the fourth Interfaculty soccer game was played by U.C. and Wycliffe. Both teams seemed to be rather out of practice and lacking combination, but after they got warmed up the play grew interesting and was clean throughout.

In the first half Wycliffe seemed to have the best of the play. Wilkes, the goalkeeper, Gibbs, and English being effective for Wycliffe, and Sobel and Jackson doing good defence work for U.C.

With the opening of the second half the play seemed to change, and U.C. began to press Wycliffe pretty hard. Despite good play on both sides, however, the game concluded a scoreless draw.

The line-up was as follows:
U.C.: Sobel, Jackson, Richardson, Goldenberg, Urquhart, Gray, Melkile, John, Shearer, McKenzie, Klein, Bull. Wycliffe: Wilkes, Watkins, Gibbs, Cannon, Prior, Crawshaw, Geary, English, Worrall, Webb, Bailey.

clined to doubt the supposed academic superiority of European colleges. "I believe the universities of Europe and America are about equal," he said, "and the new schools on the continent are taking up your American sports."

SCHOOL EMERGES VICTORIOUS FROM INTERFACULTY MEET

Given Hard Tussle by Meds and U.C. Who Came Second and Third

FINLAYSON IS CHAMPION

Javelin Throw Won By McTaggart is Only Record to be Broken

In the Interfaculty Track and Field Meet at Varsity Stadium yesterday afternoon the S.P.S. track team triumphed over Meds by 4 points, with U.C. a close third. The summary at the end of an afternoon of keen competition showed S.P.S. with 39 points, Meds with 35 points, and U.C. with 33 points. Finlayson of University College piled up the most points to win the individual championship, obtaining 11 points. Sparrow of Meds was but one point behind, with 10 points; and Peaker gained 9 points.

Despite the gracious smile of the Weatherman, and the fact that six hundred turned out to cheer them on, the boys seemed loathe to break records yesterday, only one being broken. McTaggart of U.C., with a magnificent throw of 147 ft. 1½ in., broke Shanasy's record of 144 ft. 2½ in., and thereby became eligible for the Brown Medal, a special award in this event. Peaker of S.P.S. also broke the record to obtain second place, when he hurled the javelin 145 ft. 2½ in.

Though Varsity has lost many of her old stars, quite a number of new men showed up well yesterday afternoon, and competition was quite keen. The sprints were keenly contested, and in the distance runs many surprises were sprung. McLennan of Meds afforded a surprise in the three mile run, when he came from behind at the two mile mark to lead "Hap" Gilbert, the favourite in the race, home by a hundred yards. "Mo" Mitchell, who at the last moment decided to enter the meet, though not at his best, romped first in the 400 yards dash, and took second place in the half mile. King of Vic, evidently not discouraged by the number 13 on his back, stepped out in the last 220 yards to beat Mitchell home in the half mile.

In the 220 yard dash, Connolly of St. Mike's were almost abreast as they came down the home stretch, to finish in the order named. A laugh was afforded the spectators in the mile run when a collie dog insisted on pacing the leader for two laps, in spite of the efforts of Coach Martin, Dr. "Wally" Graham and others to distract its attention from the race. A large number of entries in the 100 yard dash made it necessary to run four heats, followed by the semifinals and the final, which was won by Finlayson of U.C., followed closely by O'Leary and Ryan of St. Mike's.

The following is the record of events:—
100 Yards Dash—1st, Finlayson, U.C.; 2nd, O'Leary, St. Mike's; 3rd, Ryan, St. Mike's. Time 10 5-5 sec.
220 Yards Dash—1st, Connolly, Vic.; 2nd, Kasler, Meds; 3rd, Ryan, St. Mike's. Time 23 4-5 sec.

ORPHANS FACE STIFF SCHEDULE

Some Changes But Still Have Strong Team with Wood and Carrick

CONCEDED REAL CHANCE

The Orphans are certainly having no easy time in the O.R.F.U. schedule. Last week they played Kitchener at the K town, and this week they meet the strong Sarnia outfit away from home. Two fixtures in a row away from home is not giving them any breaks.

The team is losing Jimmie Sinclair to the first team and Maurice Kelly, while they are getting in return Alex Carrick and Jerry Wood. This will mean a strengthening of the first team, but the trade is not to the great disadvantage of the Orphans, as the work of Carrick and Wood is good enough for O.R.F.U. company.

Jimmie Douglas has the squad working with plenty of pep, as he figures the Orphans as having a real chance for the group, even though the defeat was suffered at Kitchener last Saturday. There are a number of changes outside of those mentioned above for the game, but there has been nothing handed out as yet to show the way the wind will blow when they hitch up for the game with Sarnia.

Dear Sir:

Allow me to suggest to the freshette who recently set forth the advantages of a pre-matrimonial bureau that if she has the patience to wait until Varsity rink opens, there is no better place to find a lonesome and agreeable pal. I have already heard it referred to as "The Happy Hunting Ground."

And, furthermore, is not the letter itself a strong argument in favour of the ancient squabble, "Resolved, that co-eds in the pass course are husband hunters?"

Lonesome Lady Languishes Mid Glum and Gruesome Gargoyles

(By Greta Reid)

We tell about the gargoyles of Hart House—not that we know anything about the gargoyles of Hart or any other house, but then, no one is supposed to know about anything anyway, so . . .

The first to attract our attention as we strolled nonchalantly by this abode of the male population, was an old man who seemed to be suffering intensely from tooth-ache, neuralgia, mumps or something. One side of his face was horribly swollen! We ask you—can't something be done about it? A good old-fashioned bread poultice might help the poor lad, and would certainly add an original touch to the building. Surely Mr. Bickersteth knows nothing of the agony of this member of his flock.

We hastened from this distressing sight, only to quail before the menacing gaze of a fierce warrior "bearded like the pard." We bet he knows his oaths, too. We didn't hesitate, but passed on to bask in the radiant smile of an ancient professor with a "remarkably easy-to-get-on-with" expression. We would never have recognized him as such if it hadn't been for his morar-board which he wore rakishly shading his starboard ear.

We next made the acquaintance of the most vacuous, inoffensive-looking monk. Please don't misunderstand us —we do not refer to the gargoyle that cuts similar capers at the main entrance. A close observer, however, might notice a striking resemblance between the two; for, while the former may originally have sprung from the latter, he certainly didn't spring far enough!

Then we made our great discovery—an erring architect has actually used the figure of a woman to decorate the walls of HART HOUSE! She is a medieval princess with decidedly modern ideas. She was the only one which we could be certain was meant to be a lady, and she doesn't seem to be much of a lady at that, for she wears her crown simply hilariously, casts a glad eye in the direction of Queen's Park, and carries on a perpetual flirtation with one of those common Parliament Building gargoyles.

By this time we had developed water in the eye, a kink in the neck, and a lecture in the office; and besides, our protracted wanderings in front of Hart House were attracting entirely too much attention from the inmates, particularly from an obnoxious person with a closely-cropped green tie, who seemed to think we were smitten by his feeble rendering of "That's my weakness now" (from an upper window). Little did he reck!

TWENTIETH CENTURY VICTORIA COURT SEES NEW WORLD DECIDES QUESTION

Dr. Randall. "It simply doesn't fit." Finally, the widespread knowledge of the present day: the study of comparative religions; the exchange of literature, art, music, and drama, and the vast increase of world-travel—all have given men everywhere a new appreciation of what other peoples have to give. "The old line of demarcation between superior and inferior races has been disproved. Anthropologists and ethnologists tell us that all races given the same chance and conditions, will display the same mental, moral, and spiritual capacities."

"The idea of world unity," concluded Dr. Randall, "is not a new one." He spoke of Dante and the system of unity which he had outlined in "De Monarchia." "But Dante's idea of unity spelled uniformity. The modern ideal is one of unity in diversity—the recognition and acceptance of differences, realizing the fundamental unity. John Dewey states that our greatest need is for a sense of the new relations into which we have come on this planet. We must have a new spirit, a new consciousness. This can come only from a knowledge of the facts."

Dinner To Be Held For

Hart House Committees
 There will be a dinner held at 7.15 p.m. on Thursday, October 18, in the Great Hall for the members of the various committees of the house. The affair will be quite informal, as its purpose is to foster a get-together spirit among the members, who number considerably over 100, with undergraduates vastly in the majority.

insignia of "freshness" with better grace than the newcomers to U.C., School and Meds. They consider the action of the court rather high-handed. G. L. Mitchell, one of the defendants, is quoted as saying, "They may impose a fine on me if they like, but they will have a tough job collecting it."

Most of the upper classmen, on the other hand, are of the opinion that the offenders have failed to live up to their obligations as frosh and should be punished, though not too rigorously.

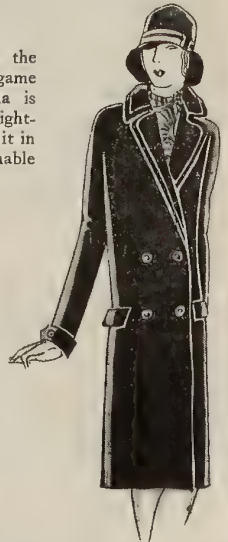

This trial is of great importance, not only to Victoria College but to the whole University. It is a test case which will determine the future power of student courts.

The Caput has always shown itself favourably disposed towards granting as much independence as possible to student government. Two years ago stringent laws were passed regarding interference with the personal liberty of any student. As the freedom of the individual increased, the authority of the collective student body decreased. The questions to be settled today are: "Can this court—the mouth-piece of the official link between undergraduates and faculty—settle this dispute? Will the Caput uphold its judgment they pass regarding the offenses of the freshmen and the reprisals of the sophomores?"

"The good girls enjoy tempting men as well as the bad ones," declares the Oklahoma Daily in an article attempting to describe the wiles of the educated co-ed.

 the type of university girl in Canada was entirely distinct to that which sought knowledge in the halls of Oxford and Cambridge.

"But the boys!" exclaimed one with some vigour. Then she closed up and refused to commit herself further in spite of "The Varsity's" earnest entreaty. "Oh! they're all right," was all she would say. "They jiggle a lot when they dance and they're great fun."

"Are they better looking as a whole?" inquired "The Varsity."

"Oh! we don't care about looks! It's about they are themselves," was the prompt reply.

Another English miss exclaimed, "I wouldn't mind marrying one myself, but I can quite agree with the English boys that Canadian girls are all right to go out with, but—to marry!"

The representative of "The Varsity" also interviewed several students of the various faculties, and nearly all approved of the season ticket system, though some said they would like to be able to buy two tickets and take a girl with them. The supporters of hockey were especially enthusiastic, as they felt it would increase the attendance at hockey games and make the sport more popular.

Victoria French Club Holds Meeting for Organization

Victoria College French Club held its meeting yesterday at 1.15 in Room 18. There was a fairly large turnout considering the half-holiday, and a good deal was accomplished. The following officers were chosen: President, Donald Cormack; Vice-President, Sheila Sissons; Secretary, Grace Fuller; Treasurer, Jack Scott. These officers were delegated to draw up a constitution and to present it to the next meeting. Plans for this season, including folk-songs, plays, and games in French, indicated that the future meetings would be full of interest.

WHITE MEN IN SOUTH AFRICA

 which is honoured by all the natives under the administration.

On one occasion Mr. Riley got a letter worded, "Honoured Sir—My wife she kill a pig (pork). Do you like her two legs."

While travelling on his second tour, Mr. Riley said, he was amused at an action of his steward, a native boy. It was his custom to start at about 3 a.m. and walk for a couple of hours until the sun rose. His steward would go ahead, putting up the hammock at the stopping place and would mix a cooling drink consisting of milk, eggs and a drop of (?) to give it flavour. But he always spoilt it for Mr. Riley's taste by adding too much sugar. The precaution was taken of doling out the sugar to him, but still it was too sweet. One day Mr. Riley, hot and disgruntled, took a sip of this "syrup," and throwing it away in disgust asked in an overwrought tone why it was always made so sweet. "Well, massa," was the reply, "I not put too much sugar they eggs stink rotten!"

"These," said Mr. Riley, "are the pleasures of Colonial life."

 reader's sense of irritation was really his appreciation of poetry.

"Poetical technique means mainly metre," said the speaker. The repetition stimulated the reader's mind and forced attention. Poetry, unlike prose, had two rhythms—line and sentence. Free verse, if built on one rhythm, would be merely prose. Metre was the most unerring and therefore the most satisfactory form of expression. "The poet's experience has to stand still till his intellectual experience has floated to the top and been crystallized in words, thus providing a steady influence."

Professor Fairlie in starting the discussion suggested that the question, "What is poetry," was peculiar to the English language.

M'GILL FIELDS TEAM WEAK AND SHATTERED BY MANY INJURIES

Practice Scrimmage Proves Disastrous to Brawny Red Shirts

MANY FANS ON WAY

In Spite of Broken Bones Spirits Run High in McGill Camp

Montreal, Que., Oct. 11.—A weakened McGill football squad will take the field against Toronto Varsity on Saturday at the Queen City. The Red squad will be without the services of Gerry Altman, regular snap back, who sustained injuries in a practice scrimmage against the Montreal Interprovincial twelve yesterday, thus necessitating a complete shift in the final line-up.

Jack Moar, who was slated for the flying wing position, was prevented from going at the last minute, and the coach will shift Urquhart to that position, leaving Don Young and Sammy Granger at the outside wing post. Dave Munroe, a McGill veteran with three years of Intercollegiate football behind him, will start at the snap position. A final scrimmage against the Intermediate to-day completed the training of the Red squad, and tomorrow noon twenty-two men will train for Toronto to signalize the start of the McGill twelve in the twenty-ninth race for the Intercollegiate title. The line-up as announced to-day by Coach Flanagan following the scrimmage: Flying wing, Urquhart; halves, Tremaine, Dougherty, Lovering; snap, Munroe; insides, C. Church, Littlefield; middles, McTier, H. Church; outsides, Young, Granger; quarter, Brown or Teskey; subs, Jacquays, Krizwiser, Chard, Swaby, Talbenny, Smyth, Russell.

Confidence reigns in the McGill camp prior to the departure for Toronto. Heavy scrimmage has put the men in the pink of condition, and the followers of the Red team are banking on a heavy line and feet backs to beat Varsity and put them at the head of the Intercollegiate race. Saturday will find hundreds of McGill students in the Queen City, the Red team's followers leaving Montreal to-day by every source of conveyance.

Drinking Fountain in Women's Union Reminder of Mads Fire

It seems strange that a drinking fountain should remind one of a fire, much less the fire which some time ago damaged the Medical building; but this is what actually happened.

The beautiful drinking fountain presented to the Women's Union was in use to-day, and as the thirsty women filled their glasses with water running from a lion's mouth they recognized the piece of architecture as the one seen on the memorable day when the Medical building was burned.

At last erected and in use the stone fountain stands in the lunch room of the Women's Union and attracts a great deal of attention to the unique and appropriate miniature of the University crest and of University College carved on its face. Its curved top, its oval bowl and its pedestal to gather express grace and beauty to a high degree.

LOSS OF EFFICIENCY IN DEMOCRATIC ERA

Arthur Collins Declares Modern Govt. Preferable to Dictatorship

BOARDS NOT EFFICIENT

Declaring that loss of efficiency is the price we must pay for democracy in local government, Mr. Arthur Collins, speaking yesterday noon in Baldwin House, said that, nevertheless, "we would rather govern ourselves imperfectly than trust ourselves to the perfect government of a dictator with the reputation of the Archangel Gabriel." Mr. Collins, England's foremost authority on municipal government, gave the greater part of his one day in Toronto to the Department of Political Science of the University. He outlined vividly the basic differences between democratic management of local affairs and the administration of a great business corporation, pointing out that the latter more nearly paralleled the government by dictator such as obtained to-day in Italy and Spain and, in the form of a minority machine, in Russia.

F. BARLOW ADDRESSES U. OF T. LIBERAL CLUB

Stresses Economic Aspect of Project of St. Lawrence Waterways

MONTREAL UNWARRANTED

At the opening meeting of the U. of T. Liberal Club last evening in Hart House, the members listened to an excellent address by Mr. F. H. Barlow of this city on the economics of the St. Lawrence waterways system. Mr. Barlow stressed the point that the Liberal government of Canada is very anxious to complete the system, but at present is being held back by minor details concerning the co-operation of the various provinces.

"The completion of the St. Lawrence waterways system will mean increased prosperity for Western Canada, particularly, but also the Maritimes," said Mr. Barlow. The speaker intimated, however, that British Columbia is very much opposed to the system, since Vancouver is at present making great progress in shipment from the Western Provinces. Mr. Barlow also produced figures to indicate that traffic on the St. Lawrence has increased tremendously in the last few years and inferred from this that Canada will benefit greatly in various ways by increasing facilities to meet the demands for better transportation along the St. Lawrence. Montreal's cry that such development would ruin her trade is groundless, said the speaker, for experts are agreed that ocean liners will not come beyond that city.

A short skit, "The Lost Ticket," was put on under the direction of Mr. S. Goldhar. Refreshments and dancing concluded the programme for the night.

SORORITY IMPORTANT IN YANKEE COLLEGES MORE SO THAN HERE

Moguls at Toronto Consider Female Organizations Frivolous

STUDENTS DO NOT AGREE

Several Varieties at Varsity and Number Increases in West

Doubtless the sorority plays a greater part in university life in the United States than it does in Canada. The reason for this is that sororities are restricted in few of the larger universities there, whereas in Canada there are few universities which favour the organization of such groups. There are over forty national sororities functioning in the United States, of which only ten exist in Canada, at the University of Toronto.

The view probably held by the governing bodies of our colleges is that the sorority is merely a social organization, frivolous in its aims and outlook. But to those who really understand the sorority, it takes on a different aspect. This group offers a fuller, broader life at school, developing character and leadership, stressing the academic side of school. Then too there is the organized support that the group gives to college traditions and aims.

These facts are making an impression on the student body so that the sorority is ever becoming more prominent on the campus. This is demonstrated by the increase in the number of sororities in existence from one in 1887 to eleven in 1928. The most recent of these was founded as a local group in the spring of this year, not long after becoming nationalized.

In the year 1927-28, there were approximately 773 women enrolled in those faculties where sororities exist, the faculties of Arts, Household Science, Medicine and Dentistry. Out of these 773, there were 301 sorority members, which is well over one-third. Of the eleven sororities in Toronto, there is one professional journalistic sorority, three Jewish sororities and eight national sororities.

It was in 1919 that the first sorority was organized at the University of British Columbia. At present there are five in existence, three of these having become nationalized within the last year.

Similarly in Manitoba the number of sororities is steadily increasing.

MEMORAH SOCIETY HOLDS STUDENT NIGHT AT UNION

Interesting Plans for Coming Year Outlined and Skit Put On

"The aim of Students' Night is to acquaint the new members with the various activities and aims of Memorah," said Mr. Fred Catman, President of Memorah, Wednesday at the Women's Union. Mr. Catman outlined the plans for the coming year: Intercollegiate debating is to continue as in former years; a play will probably be produced again at the Hart House Theatre later in the year, and musicals are to be innovated this year.

A short skit, "The Lost Ticket," was put on under the direction of Mr. S. Goldhar. Refreshments and dancing concluded the programme for the night.

SCIENCE GRADS NOT GOING TO STATES SAYS DEAN MITCHELL

Dean Howe Also Emphatic in Denying Exodus of Forestry Grads

CANON CODY MISQUOTED

The address of Canon Cody before the University Lodge of the Masonic Order Wednesday evening in which he was reported to have remarked about the number of University graduates going to the United States to practice their professions, has caused a great deal of discussion regarding the exodus of graduates across the border.

Dean Mitchell of the School of Political Science, when interviewed by "The Varsity," was emphatic in the following statement: "In the first place, though I was not present at the meeting, I have ascertained that Dr. Cody was misrepresented. With regard to the question, however, I may say that the greater part of the graduating class of the School of Practical Science last year found employment in Canada. Of the small number that went to the United States, there are some returning to Canada every day."

Dean Howe of the Faculty of Forestry, while of the opinion that University graduates in other courses might be leaving Canada for the United States, said: "I don't know of a single case of a graduate of the Faculty of Forestry who has accepted a position in the U.S. In the twenty years of our history there have been graduates of the faculty who have gone to the States, but these have only been American students, who had come to Toronto to take the course with the intention of returning to the United States. Last year we found the situation such that we could have placed more graduates in Canadian positions than were actually available."

The concurrence of opinion of these and other faculty members seems to be that graduates are now finding it possible to obtain employment in Canada, and that former graduates who had emigrated to the U.S. are rapidly returning.

U.C. FRENCH SOCIETY OPENS MEMBERS WELCOME FROSH

Lecture on Pierre Loti By Mlle. Juge of Havergal Event of Evening

To the strains of "O Canada," sung in "la belle langue française," the U.C. French Society opened its 1928-29 season in the Women's Union. Miss Madeline Lake presided. As usual the freshmen were overwhelmed with dismay by the torrent of French, and as usual, the more seasoned students favoured the required nonchalance. Professor Jounoret, as Honorary President, welcomed the first year students. This was followed by the election of the first year representative, Miss Haldeby.

The feature of the evening was a talk by Mlle. Juge of Havergal College. Mlle. Juge discussed an author, known to most college students, Pierre Loti. She gave a recit of his life, which was an adventurous and interesting one. Some of his characteristics were a touching description of family life, a love of the ocean, and a recurring note of sadness throughout.

Miss Doris Shiell, a former President of the French Society, favoured the meeting by singing several chansons. Refreshments were then served amid a buzz of French and English.

THREE FREED, EIGHT SENTENCED TO WEAR TIES FOR EXTRA WEEK

FIRST SCRAP OF THE YEAR

The season for scraps has been definitely declared open. As might be expected, the "shot heard round the world" was fired at School. The bloodstains from last year's Donnybrook's have hardly dried, and yesterday the Sophs and Frosh were at hammer and tongs once more. The front steps were the battleground and it was a good row while it lasted.

VARSAITY NOT HEARST RAG SAY STUDENTS

But Some Students on Campus Give Voice to Adverse Opinions

SENSATIONALISM CHARGED

Stirred up by the charges of "yellow journalism" and "distortion of facts to secure a sensation," "The Varsity" yesterday sought student opinion on the campus. One student who declined to give his name or college, stated in no uncertain terms that "The Varsity" was indeed resorting to sensationalism. He said it was doing the very same thing for which it denounced down-town papers. Other students were appealed to.

J. Ord, IV St. Michael's: In a mild way, I think the opinion of "The Varsity" is partly justified. I have noticed editorials denouncing "yellow journalism" in down-town papers, and then there have been stories tending towards sensationalism. Of course "The Varsity" is by no means a "Hearst rag."

M. Hatton, I Vic: No, I do not think this in any way applies to "The Varsity."

K. Erwin, II Vic: I think "The Varsity" is exaggerating facts to secure sensation, particularly in the case of the ju-jitsu incident and the Charles House raid. They have the facts, but they are distorted.

H. D. Kirby, II Vic: I don't think "The Varsity" is in any way a "yellow journal" or a "Hearst rag," but it could be a little more careful in some matters.

T. R. Millman, II U.C.: As far as I am concerned, I have perfect faith in "The Varsity" and its good intentions. I do not see in any way that it is exaggerating or distorting facts to secure sensationalism. It is in no way a "yellow journal."

P. C. Warnick, III Arts: No, I do not think that "The Varsity" is in any way guilty of "yellow journalism." It is a University paper and as such must necessarily deal with all affairs of student interest. Students realize the spirit in which all stories are written, and do not misunderstand it. The down-town papers create a wrong impression among the general public who do not know the University as it is. "The Varsity" is not trying for sensationalism, but it must publish facts about matters which are both amusing and interesting to all students. The student body does not want an uninteresting, dry-as-dust publication, but one which it will enjoy reading.

Gown Week a Decided Flop Declares Miss Eleanor Barton

That Gown Week has not been very successful this year is the opinion of Miss Eleanor Barton, President of the Women's Undergraduate Association. "Last year Gown Week was an apparent success," stated Miss Barton. (Continued on page 4)

Crowded Vic. Court Seems to Side With Defendants in Tie Case

NOT MET FOR FOUR YEARS

U.C. Frosh Accused of Clipping Ties Belonging to Vic. Freshmen

With an attempt at all the dignity and solemnity of the first courts of the realm, there were tried before the Victoria Students' Court last night eleven members of the first year jointly accused of the seriously regarded crime of refusing to wear the yellow tie required by their seniors. In three cases the charges were dismissed; in the remainder the sentence of the court requires the ties in question to be worn for an extra week, with the option of a fine.

Sharp at 4.30 the judges entered. Chief of them was Mr. Fredenburg, president of the court. Associated with him were Messrs. Lockhart, Leslie, Reinke and DeWitt. The prosecuting attorney was Duncan de Roche, and the defence attorney was J. Robinson. Also present in official capacities were the clerk of the court, to administer oaths; the sergeant of the court, to cry out, often vainly, for order; and a public stenographer to take note of proceedings.

As a preliminary to the trial of individual cases, the prosecution sought to establish the fact that tie-wearing was an official and established custom at Victoria, and that the freshmen had been given notice of this rule, and sufficient opportunity to purchase ties. Then proceeding to individual cases, the first of the accused, Lawson, was called.

Lawson pleaded not guilty, and declared that his tie had been clipped by strangers in front of Hart House so that he could not wear it. He had, however, worn it on his lapel after having been warned of the consequences of not doing so.

Mr. J. Binning, president of the second year, was called and sworn.

Pros. Attorney: When you accosted the accused what did he say?

Binning: I asked him if he was a freshman and he said he was not.

Def. Attorney (belligerently): What right had you to accost this man?

Binning declared that a group had decided to bring a number of cases before the court and it was necessary to secure evidence. Other sophomores corroborated this evidence.

Lawson then made a statement defending his actions. He was applauded on taking his seat, and throughout the trial there was constant applause, chiefly on the part of sympathisers with the accused. This may have been due to the fact that nearly half of those present were obviously freshmen. Laughter greeted the cries of "Order" that came from the bench.

The court dismissed this case, though declaring that the accused was technically wrong.

The case against McMillan, next on the calendar, also was dismissed when it was found that his tie had been clipped, but that he had resumed wearing it when on the advice of his mother he had by an ingenious arrangement had it mended. The bench eagerly examined the mended tie. The prosecuting attorney admitted that he had been grossly misinformed with respect to these two cases.

After, the next on the list, is son of the "Victory" Registrar. His only words early in his trial were, "Gentlemen, I am here to deny." He was allowed to proceed no further, until he was placed in the witness box. (Continued on page 2)

CLUBS AND DUMB BELLS

The large proportion of time in student life that it now being demanded by extra-curricular activities is reflected in the college press of both the United States and Canada. Sport alone does not take up all the space: the amazing growth and diversification of interests of a literary or scientific or political nature have required the increase in news space allotted thereto.

We have in this University societies with official status and non-official societies. The official societies have had a sort of fluctuating career. Active executives one year were replaced by incapable executives the next year and presidents that sacrificed their academic existence to the progress of a particular organization have been succeeded by people that regarded their election more as a personal compliment than as an opportunity for work. The students themselves have failed to elect fit and proper executives on many occasions, a defect innate in the democratic system.

On the whole it must be admitted that at present there is a decided lack of interest in the faculty societies. The drift of members is away from them and into the ranks of small groups, restricted in number and dealing with specialized topics. We have lost the vigorous and sometimes rough-house parliamentarianism that featured the undergraduate affairs of the nineteenth century. The students, particularly in the Faculty of Arts, where there is most time for non-academic activities, are losing the capacity for mass action and are meeting each other in small groups. Many of these small groups are concerned with a particular branch of study and their growth has been stimulated by, and has kept pace with, the development of the honour courses.

Besides those societies that are concerned with a special branch of the curriculum, there have sprung up in the past few years a great many "discussion clubs," composed of a number of young men and women who have read a certain amount and do not wish to read any more before they have repeated in public all that they have already read. They go to these clubs to pass around their bundles of intellectual dirty clothes to one another until the entire washing is left in the hands of the more reticent of the herd who have learned only half of the art of mental boxing, in that they know how to take punishment but not how to give it. The lady members of these learned societies are always present in full force and are in fact responsible for their existence. Their high moment comes when after an erudite enquiry on the fairly inclusive subject, "What is Life?" they can become intime over the angel cake with the tall dark man in philosophy who pronounced Schopenhauer so successfully.

The one thing that nearly all the organizations on the campus have in common at present is their attempt to frustrate the bogey of low attendance by offering special inducements foreign to the agenda of a learned society of a former day. Like our up-to-date churches they believe in "snappy, attractive services." Even the Honour Science Club, we hear, is being "pepped up" and fox trots substituted for the reading of weighty theses. The most common inducement which is calculated to bring the boys and girls from the solitude of the study, of an evening, is the serving of refreshments.

This is a really splendid idea, with only two draw-backs. In the first place, it requires all of the pin money our professors manage to save and even devours the royalties consequent upon the publication of their Ph.D. theses. Secondly, it cuts down the supper revenue at Hart House.

EIGHT SENTENCED TO WEAR TIES

from when he challenged the court to tie what was left of his tie either on his neck or their own. The attitude of the accused evidently displeased the court, who decreed that he must get a new tie and wear it from next Monday to next Saturday night or pay a fine of two dollars.

Similar treatment was meted out to Marshall, Bowerman, Newberry, Metcalfe, Garton, Smith and Isaacs, while Mitchel was dismissed. Those who must wear the tie for the extra week must do so at all times—except when in dress clothes according to the ruling of the court.

Interviewed by "The Varsity" after the court rose, Mr. Fredenbourg declared that the Victoria College Students' Parliament intended to take vigorous action against those in other faculties who clipped the ties of Victoria freshmen. One definite complaint was made to the court by Marshall, who complained that Ray Allen, a U.C. freshman, had clipped his tie.

Dear Champus Cat:

You say your column needs some new ideas, so may I suggest a few "spoonerisms." Dr. Spooner, an Oxford Don, and his wife recently celebrated their golden wedding and the following are reputed to be some of his famous sayings:

In church one Sunday he said, "Yes, indeed the Lord is a shoving leopard."

Almost as bad was his announcement of the hymn, "Kinkering conks their titles take."

A gentleman, on calling on the Dr., heard him tell the maid to put the visitor "in the rawing-doom and fight the liar."

He is said to have called on the Dean of St. Paul's and have asked, "Is the old bean dizzy?"

One legend goes that the Dr. once had a maiden aunt who attained a venerable age, not so venerable, however, that she deserved this greeting, "I am delighted to see you looking so hairless and cappy as ever."

Of a more ecclesiastical flavour in his remark about the "Reversed vision of the Bible."

Lastly, a Canadian cleric before the O.T.A. came into being is reputed to have said: "It is empty work preaching to heery wenches" (meaning it was "weary work preaching to empty benches").

Perhaps a few more from students would cheer us up.

Kayabee, 370.

C-C

Dear Champus Cat:
I'm surprised at you for making little of the expression "And how." Perhaps you are not aware that it was used by no less a person than Milton in his "Paradise Lost." When Eve, for the first time, sees her reflection in the fountain, she muses—

"much wondering where
And what I was, whence thither brought—And How!"

Look it up yourself if you don't believe me.

A Professor of Journalism
Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

As I understand journalistic courtesy, an editor should never use the columns of his editorials to flay his correspondents. Yet doubtless our worthy friend will again exercise his bitterly sarcastic pen to flay the writer of this article. If by so doing he thinks he is gaining the approval of his readers, I am a poor judge.

This letter is not written to condemn you, Mr. Editor, but to bring to your attention the fact that the editorial columns of "Varsity" are intended for comment upon the activities of the campus and not personal remarks about either its students individually or its faculties collectively.

The first necessity, Sir, of journalism is to be impartial. It seems to me that the comments upon the life at Victoria have become entirely unwarranted, to say nothing about being untrue. Victoria proudly boasts of the motto on her doors, "The truth shall make you free." Certainly a little more of this calibre of articles in your columns would be appreciated.

Sincerely,

Another 370 Vic.

BLUE SQUAD MEET MCGILL TEAM IN CRUCIAL GAME TO-MORROW

SPEAKING OF SPORT

To-morrow is the big day! Old McGill is coming to town to wage battle at Varsity Stadium. The Red always have a colorful team, and this year's bunch will be no exception. In the College Series, at least, the Montrealers are popular and never fail to draw large crowds. In spite of the fact that the master craftsman, "Shag" Shaughnessy, is no longer the McGill master mind, the followers of the Red expect great things from their pets. Saturday will show what the new board of strategy has accomplished.

The Varsity-McGill struggle will be one of two teams which are built on similar lines. Neither outfit has any outstanding stars who constitute a continuous menace to the opposition. In past years Varsity had "Warnie" Snyder, while Ralph St. Germaine wore the Red uniform for three years. Either of these men were likely to break up a game at any moment, and the fans generally got their plenty of thrilling plays. Perhaps to-morrow afternoon another luminary will shine forth to the accompaniment of roars of applause from the packed stands.

A Varsity victory to-morrow would mean that McGill and Queen's would have a tough job heading the Blue and White from the flag. McGill, of course, will be striving with might and main to pack away a "foreign" victory in the old ice-box. All-advance dope points to an evenly contested and interesting game which may be decided by the "breaks."

FIRST RUGGER ENCOUNTER SATURDAY WITH B.R.C.

The supporters of English rugby at the University will be interested to learn that the Varsity squad will line up in their first game of the season on Saturday next at 2:30 p.m. on back campus. The strength of this year's team is almost unknown, and the game to-morrow will provide an excellent opportunity to size up their chances in the Intercollegiate series. Their opponents for the first fixture will be the strong Toronto British Rugby Club, which looks to be the cream of the city teams. Varsity certainly has her hands full if they expect to take the measure of the "British," who the University Lodge of the Masonic However, Varsity has a trick of up-setting the dope.

ORPHANS AT SARNIA IN CRUCIAL COMBAT

Visit Tunnel Town Saturday With Elimination Staring Them in Face

SINCLAIR WILL NOT PLAY

The Orphans step into Sarnia to-morrow and stack up against the home-town boys, who are playing their first fixture in senior as a team. The town is all worked up over the game as a dispatch says, and the Blue will find what is a record crowd out to witness their tussle with the last year's intermediate team. The Sarnia boys, however, are not at full strength, as three of their stalwarts may be out with injuries. Bill Mandeville, George Blaikie, and Red Wilson, all of the wing line, are out with injuries at present and do not expect to start. Coach Jack Newton, however, is expecting to "take" the Blue. But Jimmie Douglas and Ralph McIntyre are not taking anything for granted, as they have a smart chance of gaining a game over Sarnia and over-confidence will find no place on the Orphan squad.

A defeat to-morrow would just about end the chances of the Seconds, while a win would give them a great chance to cop the group. The next two games will be played in Toronto, and if the Blue do pull off anything big they must gain that win anyway at Sarnia.

Jack Sinclair last night said that he would play no more football this year, and that means that there will be a gap in the half line that will be hard to fill up. Kelly and Jimmie Sinclair will play against McGill here, while Jerry Wood and Alex Carrick, a brother of Don, will play for the Orphans. That means that the Douglas clan will be weakened, but that does not mean lack of fight.

Promising Material Unearthed in Annual Tournament at Rosedale

WINNERS GO TO MONTREAL

Although somewhat hindered by a driving rain in the morning, the University Golf Tournament, which was played on Friday last, uncovered some very promising material for the forthcoming match with McGill and the tournament was a decided success. From the large entry twelve players have been selected to play another round, preferably on Saturday morning. In addition to this if there are any others who were unable to play on Friday they will play 18 holes at the Rosedale Golf Club on Saturday morning, handing their cards in at the Athletic Office.

The twelve men who will play again include the four old colours, R. Wilkinson, J. R. Mooney, J. Sikler, G. Edwards, and the following: Boeck, Anderson, Payne, Parsons, Frost, J. Taylor, Allen and Dewart.

The scores in the tournament were exceedingly gratifying. The low gross and medal for the 36 holes was won by J. R. Mooney, with 76 and 82 for a total of 156. The best gross first 18 holes by George Boeck 79 and the best gross second 18 holes by Murray Payne. The prize for the best net will go to George Edwards of Galt, with 166—12—142.

Letters of Lovely Laura Louise

D. Kendall

Dear Betty:

I was so glad to hear from you and to know that everything's alright. You know, my dear, I was frightfully worried, almost frantic, that you'd be sore at me.

I've been having simply a mela of fun. It all happened on Friday. You remember Jenn, the girl I told you about, who was actually on the Continent. Well, on Friday night she simply burst into my room. She wanted me to go to Kingston and see the ball game. I bubbled right over. Her cousin is simply the best looking thing you ever saw. He is like one of those Greek statues in the High School Latin book. You never saw anything like him. I simply adore him. He's got a car and it has vote for Al Smith on the back and front. He says the cutest things. He says Mr. Smith is a publican. I thought with a name like that he would be more democratic. I learned an awfully lot about politics from him.

We got to Kingston and had a ripping good dinner at Belleville. I got ripping from the English professor. It's considered quite mal de pros. The game was heavenly; it was simply wonderful. All the Queen's girls who were just starting were patriotic stockings like the football team. I was almost dead from shame. I was if I had to do that. I saw a hat that was simply wonderful; it was heavenly. It was in a shop window. I went in and they actually wanted twenty-five dollars for it, and I had only thirty-seven cents and two car tickets. So I said that it did not suit my face. But it really did. I would have looked stunning in it. Paul, that's Jean's cousin, said so, too; he really did, and he said he meant it, and I know absolutely he did. Queen's is a wonderful university to go to. All the men that I met down there said so, and they said that I was simply throwing away my life coming to Varsity. But I didn't wear a yard of blue and white ribbon for nothing. I wasn't going to let him say that Varsity wasn't what it was, even if he did take me to tea when Paul was fixing a tire that blew out with an awful bang just as you turn at the Park on the way to the boulevard. So I made an improper gesture and said he couldn't call and see me when he comes down to see Varsity win again from his team of rainbows.

The game was heavenly. All the Queens girls who have just come there wear the funniest stockings to match the boys who were playing ball. I'm glad that we don't at Varsity. I'd simply die of shame. I know I would. The professor just asked me a question. He always does when I am thinking about something else. He isn't at all considerate. Thank heaven he asked someone else.

I saw the track meet too. Oh, my dear! If you could only see some of those boys as they really are. There's one boy there, that I thought was awfully nice and good-looking, but when he's running, he's actually skinning the boys who were playing ball. I go out with are fast enough to run. Well, Betty dear, the lecture's over and I must simply run to get a macel for to-night. Give my love to all the girls.

Your dearest friend,

Laura Louise.

P.S. We won the game at Queen's. You needn't worry any more about Jimmy. L.L.

Women's Debating

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

In your editorial of October 9 I note with surprise that you consider debating is going out of fashion amongst the ladies of the University of Toronto. This you profess to regard as another tendency towards feminism.

Be this at it may, you labor under a misapprehension when you state that none of the affiliated colleges are showing any enthusiasm. St. Hilda's literary Society, for one, is reviving inter-year debates after a lapse of some years and is looking forward to open meetings at Trinity Lit. as much as in previous years.

No doubt the lapse of the women of U.C. will last for only one year, and that they will be back on the debating platform with renewed enthusiasm next autumn.

Do any of the other colleges feel inclined to back me up in this statement?

Yours truly,

Demosthenes.

Canadian Co-eds

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

"Canadian college girl not like those of Oxford and Cambridge." Quite so, the English girls are more like the Americans. Go to Oxford or Cambridge and notice the smoking rooms for use between lectures. This is by no means degrading, but it's paral-

The girls seemed to make an earnest effort to avoid the wearing of gowns on the campus. As compared with last year, the noticeable decrease in the number of gowns worn during Gown Week this year leads to the conclusion that the original success was due to the novelty of the occasion.

And so are the English co-eds and the Americans' complexions. In the populated districts of England there are few good complexioned or "good-looking" either. The roses are all rural there and in the States too. But how many times have I been "beautified" by a fair glimpse into staring rudely—at a Canadian co-ed. There are comparatively few girls here who use make-up.

As for the male sex—in this University and the American—well, they're not afraid of working to put themselves through. I ran into an English student the other day and he couldn't understand studies working in the summer unless pressed by financial difficulties. From my various contacts I should say, comparing the English graduate to the Canadian and the American, less finesse but more fineness.

LARGE AUDIENCE THROGS TO HEAR EUROPEAN DENTIST

Professor Gyse Lectures at Royal Dental
College

CONCLUDES AMERICAN TOUR

Forty Years Research Work and Well-known Invention Credited to Prof. Gyse

Friday afternoon Professor Dr. Alfred Gyse, of the University of Zurich, lectured at the Royal Dental College of the University on "Some Practical Conclusions from Scientific Research in Dental Construction."

Sir Robert A. Falconer, President of the University, introduced Dr. Gyse as a Dental Scientist of international repute and explained that the Doctor was concluding with this visit to the University of Toronto an extended tour of both the United States and Canada.

"The Varsity" learned from Mr. A. A. Somerville, President of the Dental Students' Parliament, that the speaker had earned his fame as the inventor of the "Gyse Articulator" which he used in setting teeth for plate work. A large audience greeted Dr. Gyse. Not only was the whole Faculty of Dentistry out in force, but also numerous of the city's leading dentists, many of them graduates, filed in to pack the large lecture hall to the farthest back seat.

In introducing his subject, the speaker said that he had spent forty years, since 1888, at his work, during which years he had made or had superintended the making of over twenty thousand full denture plates. He regretted that many of the public regarded the dentist as a mechanic and hoped that his lecture would show something of the scientific aspects of the work.

Teeth do not just come together but move in every direction, each describing its own arc, which vary greatly with the individual. His lantern slides, the result of long months of research

FIFTY-SIXTH ANNUAL BOB OPENS MID RIOT OF SONG

Varied Programme of Skits and Stunts Feature
the Event

With a veritable Babel of songs, yells, and everything else that would make a grand, hilarious racket, the sophs and frosh competed simultaneously for special honours in the Fifty-sixth Annual Bob of Victoria College in Burwash Hall on Friday evening.

The first year students, entering late, were compelled to run the gauntlet of the sophs, thereby losing many articles of apparel. The freshmen, however, stole a march on their superiors, for after losing their headgear in the onslaught, produced the hats, which really were a part of their outfits, from beneath their middie legs after they had passed the danger zone.

Marjorie Beer did the Stokowski act for the second year, with Francis Cameron at the piano, an indefatigable accompanist, while the frosh were led by Grace Cowan and Earl Davidson, the latter wielding an oversize edition of Jack Arthur's moon-tipped baton, known to the common throng as an Eveready. The sophs seemed intent on advertising a well known orange beverage, for its name was boldly emblazoned on all their megaphones.

CONFERENCE DEVOTED TO GRADUATE WOMEN

Women's Opportunities in Vocational Field to be Discussed

AUTHORITATIVE SPEAKERS

The Vocational Conference of Victoria College women is to start next Tuesday night with a meeting in Annesley Common Room at 7 o'clock, on "Opportunities in Educational Work." This is to be followed by three meetings in Wymilwood on October 19, 24 and 26 to discuss respectively opportunities in social, business and literary fields.

The object of the conference is to bring to the attention of the students opportunities in various vocational fields for the woman graduate. Short talks by business and professional women on work in their own sphere will feature the meetings, and will be followed by informal discussion.

Educational night will be devoted to a discussion of teaching in all its branches in high schools, college-institutes and universities. In addition teaching in vocational schools, in schools for underprivileged children, and in schools such as the child psychology school on St. George St. will be explained. Social night will include talks on girls' work, social service, occupational therapy and nursing. On Business night it is hoped Miss McCann of the United Typewriter Co. will speak on positions opening from secretarial courses. This will be followed by talks on opportunities in department stores, stock-brokers' offices and as saleswomen. The conference will be concluded by Literary night devoted to writing journalism and library work.

Meaford Mirror Falls to Alarm Faculty

No alarm is felt in University circles here over the statement in the Meaford Mirror that students from Ontario towns prefer smaller universities. The opinion among faculty members is that the personal contacts which are so desirable can be obtained through the system of federated colleges here as easily as in smaller institutions. Sir Robert Falconer considered that more students than ever were coming to the University of Toronto from small towns.

Cambridge, Mass.—J. E. McCallum, Commerce and Finance graduate of the University of Toronto, 1927, and now a student in the graduate school of business administration at Harvard University, has been elected to the editorial board of the Harvard Business Review, according to an announcement appearing in a recent issue of the "Harvard Crimson." The Harvard Business Review is a well-known quarterly devoted to economic criticism.

AUTHOR WOULD ADOPT AMERICAN CULTURE AS INEVITABLE

Morley Callaghan Sees Old World Ideas as "Dead Hand"

"WHY GRASP IT?"

A Unique Language Growing in Canada and U.S. Based on Slang

"Our culture is bound to be American, so why resist it?" asked Morley Callaghan, author of "Strange Fugitive," who spoke last evening at Newman Club.

Mr. Callaghan stressed the fact that a new language was growing up in Canada and the States. He cited as an example the phrase which an American columnist latterly made of Marlowe's lines:

"Is this the face that launched a thousand ships
And burnt the topmost towers of Ilium?"

Sweet Helen make me immortal with a kiss.

In plain "United States" it reads:
"Is this the map that spilled a grand
of skiffs

And burnt a bunch of Woolworths up at Troy?"

Sweet Nelly red hot-lip me once again."

An English writer trying to imitate American slang fails utterly to catch the swing of it and uses expressions which the living language has dropped.

The present trend in literature, said Mr. Callaghan, was a reaction against the ideas of Joyce's Ulysses to an attempt to reproduce a concrete man in three dimensions.

He traced the straight lines of our highways and sky-scrapers back to the straight lines of Art Deco architecture. Asked if Canadian civilization were the same as American, Mr. Callaghan thought so and remarked that the universities were to blame for foisting Old World ideas on us. We were very proud that the Soldiers' Tower was an exact copy of one at Oxford, but asked, "Why should we copy it?"

Ed. Rush wanted to know the difference between American and English poetry. Mr. Callaghan replied that which English poetry was indubitably there and was precise but nothing more could be said for or against it. American poetry concerned common-place subjects but would amount to something great.

Maurice Daly charged Mr. Callaghan with only representing the sordid things of life, by his realism. He maintained that realism should also contain the bright side of things. The author replied that he had written things which seemed sordid to other people but not so to him. Like St. Augustine he did it to show that "a rose could bloom on a dunghill."

Joe Mahon asked why Carl Sandberg's "vers libre" was called poetry and not prose, but Mr. Callaghan replied that poetry was anything that

A mock trial involving the removal of numerous nickels, an ordeal that came as near hazing as the stringent regulations of the caput allow, a painful passage through barrels, followed by a sing-song and light nourishment in Hart House were the lot of S.P.S. freshmen on Friday evening. The official entry of the budding engineers into University life was accepted by all in 'good spirit, and thanks to a rigid check, few escaped the initiation.

MEMBER OF FACULTY FORBIDS YELLOW TIES

"Why Let Those Sophomores Bully You?" Asks Professor Satterly

At a nine o'clock lecture on Friday Professor Satterly of the Physics Department declared that Vic. freshmen must not wear their yellow ties at his classes. "I will not admit any Victoria freshman into my lectures or labs," he said, "if he is wearing one of those abominable yellow ties. I don't see why you let those sophomores bully you. Why don't you assert yourselves? You ought to crack the heads of a couple of them against a brick wall, or knock their heads together, if they interfere with you."

At a lecture later in the morning Professor Satterly ordered two men wearing yellow ties to go out and take them off. Professor Satterly was wearing a dark blue tie with pink dots in it, each date encircled by a line of light blue.

MEXICAN GOVERNMENT FOR ABSOLUTE STATE

Revolutionists in Mexico Strive for Rights of Man, States
Father Burke

CRAFTY PUBLICITY

"The Justinian Code is the answer to the many queries with regard to present conditions in Mexico," was the purport of an address delivered by Rev. Fr. Burke at the first meeting of Loretto College Sodality. What is wrong in Mexico? Has the Social Revolution gone mad? Is Calles a tyrant? Have the princes of the Church become murderers? Is there a quarrel between Labor and Capital, with the government in favor of the working man and the Church standing for Capital? Has there been aggression on the part of the Church? Has she been interfering in politics? Is Liberal and Conservative lined up against each other? Are modern and reactionaries in conflict? What is wrong? asked the lecturer. "There had been so much mis-statement, exaggeration, suppression, positive lie that the average man is almost unable to get at the truth," continued Fr. Burke. "The publicity department of Mexico has been successful in getting its message to the world by the use of catchwords. There has been talk of 'crafty priest-hood, evolution of Mexican people, progressional legislation, Mexico for Mexicans, etc.' The Catholics of Mexico have been unable to get their case before the jury of mankind."

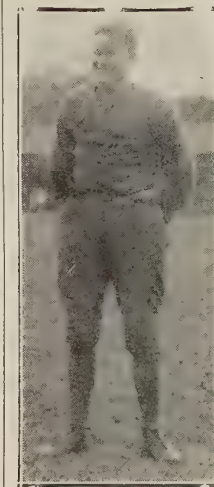

Fundamentally, he claimed, the prosecution in Mexico was the result of a clash of ideas. Two philosophies are in a death struggle. The Church would distinguish as Christ would what belongs to Caesar and what to God. The so-called government of Mexico declared that the state is supreme, is absolute and that all things belong to Caesar. "To determine what belongs to Caesar and what belongs to God, men are murdering each other."

"This is only history repeating itself," went on the speaker. "On many a field have they engaged in deadly" (Continued on page 4)

PROMISCUOUS SMOKING NOT PREVALENT

Question Re Smoking Rooms for Women Undergraduates
Not a Live One at U. of T.

RESIDENCES DISAPPROVE

The question in "American 370," letter regarding the similarity between American and English students in progress and outlook in contrast to those of Canadian universities has revived old problems.

Smoking has not yet become as widespread among Canadian girls as with those in the other countries. For this reason the debate as to whether smoking rooms in the university are to be or not to be has not been settled years ago. Also the presence of both smokers and non-smokers in the residences renders the situation difficult to handle.

The different houses about the university are unanimous in their disapproval of unrestricted smoking in individual rooms. This disapproval varies from a definite rule incorporated in the constitution to a system involving honour and consideration. There is definite dissatisfaction and yet the non-smokers have convincing arguments to entrench them in their defence position against any increase of liberty.

"The younger and more impressionable girls would easily fall in with the fad, and acquire the doubtful habit—that is as far as far as physical fitness goes," one girl very soundly reasoned. "There are plenty of tea rooms handy for the smokers."

The authorities also have the final word, and though the standpoint of moral transgression has been abandoned, for economic reasons smoking is forbidden. For insurance and personal safety are endangered by the presence of the inevitable careless smoker. His theory of similarity between America and England is particularly fallible in regard to their attitudes toward working one's way through college.

Touch in First Two Minutes

YOUNG STARS FOR MCGILL

Fatal Blunders in Backfield and Stellar Play by Red Men
Bring Score of 16-7

(L.C.D.)

MCGILL	5	6	5	0	16
Varsity	2	5	0	0	7

Taking advantage of the numerous Blue fumbles and glaring misplays, the red-clad men from old McGill turned back Varsity at the Stadium on Saturday to the tune of 16-7. Spotting the McGill a 5 point lead two minutes after the kick-off the Blue ran up 7 markers and then called it an afternoon while the Montreals went out and salted away 11 more on the score-board.

Outstanding in Saturday's struggle was the playing of Don Young, the McGill outside. The erstwhile Ottawa Senators' stalwart featured with crashing tackles and smashing plunges. His work in scooping up loose balls and in blocking passes made life miserable for the Varsity rearguard. Lovring and Doherty worked together nicely on the Red half-line, while McTeer at middle wing also turned in a real game. Brown at quarter showed good generalship.

None of the Blue players showed exceptional ability. Bell, who relieved on the half-line in the last quarter, caught and ran well as a refreshing change to his predecessor's performances. Harrison at flying wing and Little at middle made some nice plunges, and Baker at outside tackled well. The less said about the Varsity extensions and the work of the "catching" halves the more charitable it will be.

The game opened up with a bang. Hallam messed up Doherty's kick-off and finally recovered on the Varsity 15 yard line. On the second down, Hallam's kick was blocked, and McGill had a touch before three minutes (Continued on page 3)

BOTH SEXES CHALLENGE STATEMENTS OF VISITORS

Canadian Co-eds Championed in Cosmetic Conflict by Correspondents

The critical estimates of the Canadian girl given by the British girls visiting Wymilwood have drawn several letters to "The Varsity." Their summary remarks about make-up ending in the judgment "Canadian girls are all right to go out with but not to marry" are answered by the correspondent who signs herself "Vesta Canadian."

"After reading the article of October 11th—British Girls Visit Wymilwood—for the third time, I still feel as aggrieved as at the first reading. What have Canadian girls done to merit the remarks with which our English cousins have summed us up and—what hurts more—dismissed us?"

"In the latter part of the interview the English boys are quoted as having said, 'Canadian girls are all right to go out with but not to marry.' Like the pretty maid we might retort—'No-body asked you, sir.' We're more than satisfied with our own boys—even if they do 'jiggle when they dance.' And the divorce courts aren't so terribly crowded either."

Two gentlemen from S.P.S. signing themselves "Knocking the Knockers" have written:

IGNORANCE AND INSOLENT

Last Friday there was shown in Toronto a so-called educational film which is used by instructors in geography in American schools. It depicted Canada in accordance with Kipling's rather unfortunate description and claimed that the inhabitants were trappers who were frequently lost in the snowy wastes, and Mounted Police who spent their days rescuing those unfortunates who had gone astray.

This is, we suppose, one of the most popular misconceptions about our country, and is not held only by our neighbours to the south. All over the world, wherever the name of Canada is known, the picturesque and misleading phrase "our Lady of the Snows" is connected with it. We are not surprised that residents of Sydney or Melbourne should look bewildered and answer a bit vaguely when questioned about the geography of the far distant Canada, but it is a never-failing source of wonder to us that our nearest neighbours should feel it necessary to equip themselves with heavy furs, sleighs, and several weeks' supply of food when they venture across the border.

Ignorance, however, though long standing, is not an irremedial condition. The policy of education for the masses, which seems to have found acceptance in all countries who boast of a higher type of civilization, should in time lighten the geographical darkness of even these Americans. We rest comfortably in the assurance that eventually they will come to know us as we really are.

No, far from resenting a lack of knowledge of our country, we look upon it indulgently. What we do resent, what causes our national pride, which is still quite strong despite the efforts of a morning contemporary to discourage it, is the supercilious attitude maintained by many visitors from England, who, though accepting our hospitality, look upon our land as might a feudal baron surveying his domains, and upon us as he might regard his serfs. Statesmen and princes have long since accorded Canada status as a nation, but it remains for school boys and girls, endowed with few years and little understanding, to uphold the ancient colonial tradition. Time will, of course, remedy the first of their faults, but we are doubtful if any cure can be found for the second. In any case, it seems to us in remarkably bad taste for persons of such immature judgment and limited experience to make such statements as are reputed to have come from our recent visitors. We would point out to them the example of the lady, much wiser than they, who, when asked for her impressions of this University, declined to make any statement for she had "not been here long enough to have an opinion."

Art, Music and Drama

Hart House Quartet

The Hart House Quartet, we are told, leaves Toronto on October 14th for a short tour of the Maritime Provinces, during which they are to give concerts in Halifax and St. John, concluding with a radio broadcast from the C.N.R. station at Moncton, N.B. We single out for particular reference three concerts to be given at Mt. Allison College, Sackville, New Brunswick at Rothesay and Acadia University at Wolfville respectively, because they are tangible evidence of the keen desire on the part of the Quartet to foster in the centres of learning in Canada a serious appreciation of Chamber Music. This leads us to remark upon the good fortune of the undergraduates of this university in that they are privileged to regard the Hart House Quartet almost as a personal possession. Through its affiliations with Hart House the quartet brings renown and prestige to the university as it widens its circle of admirers upon this continent—to the undergraduate it brings an opportunity to hear some of the world's greatest music. The concerts which are being given this year should be a real influence in developing the students' appreciation of music and should foster a sense of pride in the university which has the distinction unknown in any other university of possessing a string quartet playing under its name and deeply interested in the musical welfare of the nation.

Mr. Blackstone informs us that the Quartet will return only in time to open their series here on October 25. We have mentioned before in resumé the programs of these recitals, but we are pleased to add to our previous announcement that the series will also include the evening recital of Hans Kindler, the 'cellist who gave such a remarkable performance here last spring. Both his recital and that of the Flonzaley Quartet are to be given in Massey Hall, and together with the four Convocation Hall concerts will be brought to students at the absurdly low price of one dollar. About a thousand subscriptions to last year's concerts reveal the value which students ascribe to such a program, and this season should prove a veritable triumph for musicians and music.

J.J.K.

We reversed our previously announced intention, and went to the game . . . Aw, well, Varsity has a nice line.

C-C

As our friend Phyllis announced, the game was chiefly mud and blunder.

C-C

The high spot in the game was when a man in our section obliged with a snappy epileptic fit. He had to be carried out. We are not inclined to think that he collapsed from excitement.

C-C

Yes, and the rooting was so tasteful; sort of high church, as it were. First and last chants, men! Possibly the cheer leader might be called the Chancellor.

C-C

Dear Dee: The b.f. Seidritz go to the game. Is that why it was a fizzle? Yours, Phyllis Uppenbanc.

C-C

Yes, when the fizzle blew at 1/2 time, we knew it was all up with the Blue & White.

C-C

Wheel shouting fight for the balloon white.

C-C

Appropriately Lovering was playing opposite Darling. 'In other words Little has Bean Dunn.

Why don't we organize a rosters' section of telephone operators? Imagine how they could yell "Hold that line!"

C-C

And now, the Football Anthem: "Fumble on, my great big skidding sweetheart!" Analogies to the Gypsy Love Song.

C-C

Watch Eddie Canter in Skid Boots.

C-C

Are you still chilly or will that rugby enough?

GLOOM SETTLES OVER VARSITY AS FIRSTS AND ORPHANS LOSE

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Saturday the 13th was not a lucky day for three of the Varsity football teams. McGill defeated the Intercollegiates 16-7 and Sarnia trimmed the Orphans 16-2 when the Blue blew up in the last quarter. The Intermediates gave Western a terrific battle and lost another tough game by a score of 26-1. The Juniors saved the day from being a complete loss by downing McMaster 20-5.

The Firsts played in a style similar to their Kingston game, but the McGill team of Saturday was not the Tricolour outfit of the previous week. In the Limestone City Queen's made as many errors as the Blue and were unable to take advantage of the latter's mistakes. In spite of numerous fumbles the Toronto backfield generally recovered them without any damage done, thanks to their own efforts, a lot of luck and the indifferent work of the Queen's tacklers.

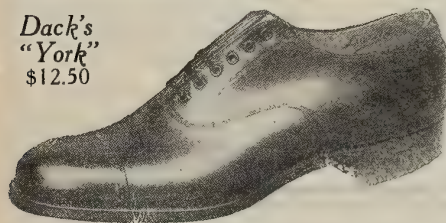

But McGill was another story altogether. Any time a Varsity player made an offering to Old King Butterfingers a red jersey dove after it and frequently came up with the ball.

While it is impossible to become very enthusiastic about the Blue backfield, some words of praise are certainly due the line men. From one end to the other they played a good defensive game and opened big holes in the McGill line in the last quarter. Varsity tackled well and held McGill to few large gains from running the ball either on catches or by extensions.

"Billy" Bell, who relieved on the Blue backfield in the last quarter, turned in a nice game. He ran well and, best of all, caught faultlessly. Hallam, after making a bad start, came back and showed his gameness by making some difficult catches before the final quarter ended.

Bell showed enough on Saturday to start against Queen's on the 27th. Charlie Baillie of the Orphans might make a good man to world with him. This would mean moving Bill Darling to secondary defence, with several shake-ups in the team resulting. Anyhow there is a gap of two weeks before the next game and a lot can be done in that time in the way of smoothing out things.

WESTERN VICTORIOUS ON SLIPPERY FIELD

Intermediates Defeated in Well Played Game

Varsity Outclassed

Varsity Intermediates opened their season on Saturday morning on the back campus when they were defeated by University of Western Ontario 26-1 in a game which considering the nature of the field was very fast and well played.

Western's backfield was very fast and they made the Varsity defence look weak at times with their speedy plays around the ends. Their wing-line was strong too and Varsity rarely got far from scrimmage.

Outstanding offensively was Hauch, who made several nice runs and who was responsible for three of Western's five touchdowns. He is very fast and husky and gave the Varsity tacklers much to worry about. M. Valeriot, who did the booting, and Kennedy were also effective. For Varsity, Jackson and Baillie were good, while Honey and Wilson were strong on defence.

Varsity scored their one point in the first quarter, when they secured about twenty yards out after Western had failed to make yards. Jackson kicked to the deadline. Western started early when Valeriot galloped 15 yards for a touch. Shortly after Hauch made a beautiful 60 yard run for another. Neither of these were converted.

In the second quarter Hauch again went over on an end run. This touch was not converted. There was no scoring in the third quarter, and in the final frame Hauch romped though for another, which was not converted. Jackson shortly afterwards was forced to rouge and Kennedy rushed over the final score.

Line-up:—
Varsity: Snap, F. Kegin; insides, Wilson, Brookhill; middles, Searle, W. Kegin; outsides, Honey, Legate; halves, Jackson, Baillie; quarter, Kirk; flying wing, Knowles, Bunwell; subs, Grosvenor, Emerson, Campbell, Sullivan, Dickson, Beckett.

Western: Snap, Diamond; insides, Swill, Mountain; middles, Kresz, Young; outsides, McLachlin, Jewell; halves, Horton, Kennedy, M. Valeriot; quarter, Little; flying wing, P. Hauch; subs, Ward, C. Hauch, Thompson, Bowen, Horton, Martin.

The Dean's office at the College of Education gives the information that this year should be a splendid one, as there are 243 students in attendance, besides 30 in the new Library School; that there are 16 universities represented, and that one-third of the registration is from other years than 1928.

Here is something of interest to you.

of the quarter had slipped by. Doherty's attempt to convert failed.

Following a Varsity end run and a no yards to Snyder on Lovering's short kick, the Blue had the ball on McGill's 16 yard line right in front of the posts. A buck failed to gain much and then an extension put the ball in a poor position for a drop. Snyder's inside then was kicked out of touch by Doherty and Varsity got their first point. Shortly after Hallam booted a long low spiral for the Blue's second point.

To open the second quarter Varsity had the ball on McGill's 30 yard line, a result of Traynor's recovery of Doherty's muff just before the teams switched. Murray Snyder attempted a drop from a difficult angle and it went wide. Lovering tried to take it on the run, but fumbled. Varsity recovered on the McGill 1 yard line and on the record down "Bill" Darling went over for 5 points and the lead. Snyder missed the convert.

Hallam and Darling played the kick-off badly, but recovered, putting Varsity well back in her own territory. Finally Lovering hoisted one over the Varsity line and Hallam ran it out 1 yard. The Blue failed to make yards on two attempts and then came a very poor display of football brains. On the last down with Varsity on their own goal line Hallam attempted to run instead of kicking, and Young threw him on his own 3 yard line, McGill getting possession. Young plunged over for an unconverted touch and McGill took the lead 10-7.

Hallam fumbled again and was replaced by Davey, who also dropped one which was recovered without any damage. After an interchange of kicks McGill secured possession on an offside near the Blue goal. The Varsity line held for two downs and then Darling took a Red onside for a rouge.

In the third quarter, when Varsity moved up an extension on their own 40 yard line, McGill gained possession. Following a McGill punt Varsity had the ball near their own goal line, and in running out the ball Darling attempted to pass to Davey with the result that McGill secured. Brown rolled over for a major score. Doherty again missed a convert. A glance to the north end now showed McGill in lead 16-7.

At the opening of the last quarter Bell and Hallam replaced Darling and Davey. The whole Blue team took on a new lease of life. Bell made some nice catches and Hallam came back gamely and played real well. With better defensive work on the part of the back-field, the plungers snapped to it and began to tear up the McGill centre. A series of good plunges went for little when Varsity was penalized on Snyder's onside. A Snyder-Harrison-Bell thrust gained 17 yards, about the best Varsity effort of the afternoon. Bell and Hallam continued the good work, but it was too late, and the whistle blew with McGill winners by a considerable margin.

ORPHANS RUN AGAINST STREAK OF HARD LUCK

Sarnia, Oct. 13.—The University of Toronto O.R.F.U. team ran into a streak of hard luck on Saturday here. After holding the Sarnia Imperials to a 3 to 2 count until the last few minutes they cracked, and the locals ran up two touches and a single to beat the Collegians 16 to 2. The Blue and White squad, after surrendering two of their best tries to the Varsity Intercollegiates and losing Jack Sinclair off the backfield, put up one of the gamiest battles seen here in many years, holding off the powerful Imperial team until only a short time to go in the final quarter.

Varsity: Flying wing, Harrison; halves, Hallam, Davey, Traynor; quarter, Snyder; snap, Keith; insides, White, Morgan; middles, Little, Bean; outsides, Gooderham, Baker; subs, Bell, Davey, Morin, Long, Sinclair, Dunn, Smith, Kelly, Solandt. McGill: Flying wing, Urquhart; halves, Doherty, Lovering, Smythe; quarter, Brown; snap, Munroe; insides, Littlefield, C. Church; middles, McTier, H. Church; outsides, Young, Granger; subs, Kritzewiser, Tesky, Swabey, Halpenny, Jacquays, Russell.

The following men have been chosen to represent Varsity at the Senior Intercollegiate Track Meet at McGill on October 19th: Finlayson, Connolly, Somerville, Mitchell, Jermyn, King, Vila, Williams, Lee, Gilbert, Marshall, Mason, Peaker, Davenport, Dennis, Vaughn, Barner, Hymmen, McTaggart.

He of the Brace and Bit Banishes Boredom in the Happy Hunting Ground

(By A. Arrell)

Now those who had been in this land a year were known as the Cognatesequi (to translate leave off the qui) and being only partially civilized desired to welcome in a fitting manner the new arrivals, the Teliesqui (refer to Laura Louise). After giving it their serious consideration (figment of speech) they decided that the most awful penalty they could impose was to stand in line and force the Teliesqui to gaze at them. The Big Chiefs in their infinite wisdom decided that the glaring bumpiness of the Cognatesequi would permanently warp the young things' mind and decreed that they should wear yellow glasses. And when the Teliesqui were patiently gazing at the Cognatesequi the Stokers or Devils from across the Taddle would invade the Happy Hunting Ground and cry "YOU SEE" "YOU SEE" (and when the Teliesqui answered nothing why we rather agreed with them) and then the devils, angered that the bumpiness should not continue to protrude, would seize the glasses and wear them in their belts. And now Little Chief Purple Robe and his cohorts were angered that the Teliesqui had not obeyed the ruling of the Big Chiefs and so they called the Campfire of the Valiant Courageous Solid Pathfinders, a body of Braves learned in the dignity of the law, to try the Teliesqui for this offence. The offenders claimed that in all previous regulations of the Big Chiefs' signs had been printed setting forth the degree, but in this case this was not done. Several Cognatesequi were then examined and the Campfire found that their bumpiness was so protruding that the Teliesqui must have known that the Big Chiefs would in their infinite wisdom provide for it; in other words that the bumpiness was itself sufficient notice provided that the Big Chiefs had have infinite wisdom. Having their final examinations yet to write the Little Chiefs found that the Big Chiefs did have infinite wisdom and that therefore sufficient notice was given. The new arrivals then claimed that their glasses had been broken by the Devils and it was useless to wear them in their belts as they could easily be distinguished from the Cognatesequi as they had not acquired enough bumpiness. On this ground the first three were acquitted. And then came forward He of the Brace and Bit who before putting forth same plea "Challenged Mr. Bench." The Campfire immediately decided that he could with the broken glasses in his belt pass as the President of the Cognatesequi. Chief Purple Robe decreed that while by their time in ordinary things the Teliesqui were past the formative stage yet this was too much and that the glasses should be worn inverted (they being somewhat in the nature of field glasses). He further lamented the fact that the Teliesqui was getting a yellow slant on things and he therefore decreed that they should be called "glasses of golden glow." (The idea being that after you drank sufficient and had on a good glow they appeared golden. . . . yes, we agree that we fail to understand where this knowledge was obtained. . .)

Paddy is standing over me telling me of his latest scheme. It is a solution which he is saying will turn "Yellow to Golden" which he hopes to sell to the Valueless Careless Senseless Penologists and to the Ginity Lit. The other being a "closed incident" here is how it works in the case of the Lit. YELLOW—"Whereupon hue and cry was raised and a number of Trinity men had the misfortune to find themselves dumping headlong into a pile of boots."

GOLDEN (after application)—Compliments were extended on both sides. (H.C.L., H.C.L., etc.).

SONGS AND SKITS THEME OF VICTORIA ANNUAL BOB

The second year attack was perfect. In fact, never did they allow the curtain to be drawn before they bursting forth "in full Pandean chorus." The first year songsters followed closely, in fact, in some instances, they got away first.

The second year company operated a projection lantern, throwing many and varied slides upon the screen at intervals throughout the evening.

The actual "Bob" was introduced by Professor C. E. Auger, who declared that the Bob was not necessarily an entertainment, but more of a ceremony. It was more solemn than a funeral, more interesting than a wedding. It had this in common with a wedding, that it changed the status of the contracting parties; they were never the same after.

The Bob committee, of which J. A. Falconbridge, 3T1, was chairman, had an interesting programme to offer. The "Most Excellent Tragedy" of "Just Kids" was presented in two parts. During the intermission a male quartette sang "The Bob Song." Part two of the entertainment took the form of a minstrel show with Rye Douglas as interlocutor. Stan St. John's 5-piece orchestra took a prominent part in this feature, winning repeated encores. Stan Packham was the vocal soloist.

However, although the profession evinced the keenest interest in all that was said, there was little that the layman could understand in the lecture which was filled with technical terms. Evidently teeth are not just "teeth" to dental scientists. They have, it seems, "Manibular Alveola Ridges", "Sagittal Inclination", "Condyle Paths" and many other things beyond the understanding of an Arts man.

In concluding his address, Dr. Gyse said that his holidays in the Alps, which he valued greatly, had been cancelled that he might visit America. But he considered them well lost in view of the eager intelligence with which the profession on this continent received the results of his research and also the cordial warmth of the welcome accorded him.

Dean Secombe of the Faculty of Dentistry thanked the speaker and expressed the regrets of the President, who had been called away by an urgent appointment.

As the meeting broke up, much praise was heard for Dr. George Wood Clapp, who had interrupted many times to give most lucid explanations of the slides which illustrated many difficult points in the address. Dr. Clapp is travelling with Dr. Gyse and assisting in his tour.

DISSATISFACTION RAMPANT OVER STUDENT TICKETS

Contradictory Statements With Regard to Selling of These Tickets

NO REAL ROOTING NOW

Separation of Men and Women Into Two Sections is Doubtful Advantage

Considerable dissatisfaction over what is claimed to be misrepresentation in the sale of student season tickets was expressed to "The Varsity" by a number of students interviewed yesterday. At the beginning of the season it was understood by many that the only tickets to sporting events that would be sold on the campus would be four dollar season tickets. The result was that many bought tickets that would not otherwise have done so.

When the first Varsity home rugby game was played last week it was found that tickets for the game could be easily obtained in Hart House. These tickets, of course, permitted the owner to bring a friend and to sit in what were considered better sections than those allotted to the season ticket holders.

In regard to the two apparently contradictory statements which appeared in "The Varsity," namely, that "no other tickets will be issued for the rugby games," and the later statement which appeared that "general admission tickets to all games as hitherto might be purchased at Hart House previous to each game," Mr. Burns, secretary of the Students' Administrative Council, declared that the first statement published in his name was erroneous. "It should be 'No other form of special students' ticket will be issued,'" he stated.

"Tickets for each game are available exactly like last year, at Hart House, where students can usually (Continued on page 4)

HART HOUSE MUSICALES REMAIN SAME THIS YEAR

Sunday Evening and Friday Afternoon Concerts and Songsters Feature

The musical activities at Hart House this year, as formerly, will be comprised, for the greater part, of a series of Sunday evening concerts in the Great Hall, a series of recitals held every Friday in the music room, and a group of Songsters held on Sunday evenings in the music room.

The first Sunday evening concert will be given on October 28 by the Hart House String Quartette. The following one will take place on November 18, with Victor Wellgenstein as the artist. The third, the programme of which has not as yet been announced, will be on December 9.

The Friday afternoon recitals will commence on October 26 and will take place in the music room every Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock until the beginning of April, with the exception of Friday, November 16, the night of the Hart House Masquerade. One of the features of these recitals will be a talk on the form of sonatas and symphonies with illustrations at the piano by the artist.

The Sunday evening Songsters will commence on November 1. The second will take place on November 25, and the third on December 2. They will again be conducted by Mr. Campbell McInnis, who will come from New York for each of these evenings.

Physics Professor Takes It

Doughty Pastor

DEFENDS HIS SERMON

Respects Evolutionary Theory
But Claims It Does Not Explain Universe

Critical comment from Professor Satterly on the special sermon for students delivered last week in Knox Presbyterian Church has drawn the following reply from the pastor, Reverend Doctor J. G. Inkster:

"My attention has been called to a new item in your columns of the 10th inst. The item deals with a report of an interview with Prof. Satterly of the Physics Department re my sermon to the students last Sunday night on 'The Dangers of Education.'

"The only excuse I can give for the perversion of the facts, which appears in your news item, is that neither your reporter nor Prof. Satterly either heard or read the sermon, which was reported rather fully in the Evening Telegram.

"By referring to that report—not the head lines or the prefatory comments—which was taken from the manuscript, you will notice that in dealing with the dangers of education I said in part—

"Nicomachus was not a man of affairs; he was a man of the schools and of books. He knew something of the struggles of the student and the dangers of education. In a sense his experience is universal; for most men, sometime or other, have moments of serious and disturbing thought—moments which reveal the highest and best in man. But these moments are also beset with dangers."

"This experience or which we are told in this matchless story, reveals some of these dangers. The story says: 'He came to Jesus by night—a most significant statement. Why by night? Some answer—because he was a coward—'For fear of the Jews.' This is a good reason, one that can be defended. What man is there who does not shrink from being ostracized by his neighbors. But that reason does not fully account for his coming by night. Hence, some say Nicomachus (Continued on page 4)

Saturday's Showing

Editor, "The Varsity."
Dear Sir:

Where has that old "Varsity spirit" disappeared to? May I ask why the band is allowed to play "The Blue and White" three times during a game and at the third time, why Ross Workman has to tell us to stand, some of the men doing so with heads covered and the cheer leaders calmly sitting having a nice little chat and smoke? Played at the first when the Blue team first runs out, a little effort on the part of the cheer leaders would have all rise at once and honor our Alma Mater.

What happened to the cheer leaders during the last quarter when the team needed cheering the most? We might at least go down with a smile and a cheer for the other team as well as our own.

Where also is that half-time stunt? Appreciated when produced but not worth the trouble of the overworked undergrad, I presume! "J."

FROSH WELCOMED AT ST. MICHAEL'S

Principal Feature of Evening Was Concert Given by the Freshmen

FACULTY PRESENT

In the presence of the faculty and fellow students the freshman class of St. Michael's College was accorded its official reception in the College Club Room last night. The newly elected president of St. Michael's Students' Council, Russel Morin, was in the chair. As has been customary, the principal feature of the programme was a concert presented by the freshmen for the benefit of the other students.

Father McCorkell opened the affair with a brief speech welcoming the newcomers to St. Michael's. He commented on their large numbers, on the proportion of students from the United States, and remarked that they hailed from points as distant as the Rockies. A freshman chorus led by Anthony Quinn told of their adventures to date in an excellent and original song number. They also obliged with an amusing parody on "That's My Weakness Now."

Two banjo solos by Walter Welch were received with acclaim, and the "Syracusan Trio" were good in their vocal offerings.

A skit by McDonald and Flanagan, in which Flanagan provided a "vocal banjo" accompaniment, proved a real hit with the crowd.

Arthur White got off a recitation entitled "Kerchoo," telling how the great crises in a young man's career were all ruined by his sneezes. This effort received a great hand. R. Blatter rendered a "trick solo" in which he did the gesticulating, but the voice came from the wings. The trick fooled nearly everyone.

A large number of St. Michael's old boys and friends were on hand for the affair.

Serving of refreshments concluded the evening.

MARVELLOUS FEATS BY MATHEMATICIAN

Demonstrates Some Interesting
Multiplication

S. I. KRIEGER PERFORMS

As the guest of members of the Mathematics department, Mr. S. I. Krieger, noted mathematician, gave a rather remarkable demonstration of his ability before an interested group in the faculty rooms yesterday. Some marvellous feats, to the layman's eyes at any rate, were performed by Mr. Krieger. Given any number, Mr. Krieger can indicate its logarithm without the slightest hesitation, or given the logarithm of a number he can as easily give the number. Mr. Krieger declares that he has a method of finding the logarithms of numbers to twenty places of decimals, for which he has been offered a quarter of a million, but is holding out for a million. Many other interesting feats of the faculty were amused on being told the day of the week of their marriage or birth on giving the calendar date. Mr. Krieger can multiply together two numbers running into seven or eight digits each in ten seconds. His remarkable power of memory was shown when he wrote down 94 numbers selected at random and afterwards recited them backwards or forwards with accuracy. Mr. Krieger also demonstrated several interesting figure puzzles.

A native of Hamburg, Mr. Krieger began to speak English less than three weeks ago.

Professor Beatty, of the Mathematics department, interviewed by "The Varsity" last evening, was rather skeptical regarding Mr. Krieger's claim to having evolved an entirely new theory of logarithms, which will revolutionize mathematics. "There is nothing that is new in his trick puzzles or day-of-the-week stunts," said Mr. Beatty, "although he certainly possesses marvellous powers of concentration and has highly developed the ability to visualize and hold in his memory numbers, and he certainly has marvellous speed and accuracy possessed by few men, amounting to a 'gift in him.' But his value placed on his logarithmic system is rather exaggerated. Mr. Krieger would certainly make a valuable man in any business office, however."

Mr. Krieger is giving a demonstration on Wednesday at 5 p.m. in the Physics Building.

PHYSICS PROFESSOR ADDS NEW PROBLEM TO VICTORIA COURT

Edict of Professor Satterly Refuses Admittance to "Yellow Frosh"

EMBRYO DOCTORS TABOO

Fellow Members of Staff
Unwilling to Comment on Action

Despite protests against "The Varsity's" "yellow journalism" from "Vic-3TQ," Victoria College seems destined to remain very much in the public eye. The Students' Court having settled the soph-frosh disagreements, Professor Satterly, of the Department of Physics, added a new problem to the much advertised class of 3T2 by refusing to lecture to students wearing the freshman's yellow tie. His aversion to this colour is so decided that he insisted that one student remove his cravat and take the lecture with his shirt bosom unadorned.

Never before has a member of the faculty undertaken to advise any undergraduate on the matter of taste in dress. Doctor Satterly, however, has never been greatly influenced by precedent. During the last six years this professor has declined to lecture to medical students. His antipathy to embryo doctors dates from the day that he expelled a medical freshman—a returned soldier—from his classes after a brief argument, in which personalities played a large part.

A number of members of the faculty, interviewed regarding Professor Satterly's edict, admitted that they had never had occasion to correct any student's attire. The majority felt, however, that the professor's acute sensitiveness to colour, and fastidious discrimination in neck-wear, while perhaps eccentric, were quite within the bounds of his authority. When asked if he did not consider it an indignity to sit through a class minus a tie, one demonstrator replied, "Surely a tie and student is no more conspicuous than a man sporting one of those 'yellow perils'."

Professor Satterly's fellow members of the staff were less willing to comment on his reference to sophomores as bullies. Dr. McTaggart of the Department of Physics remarked that he did not regard the traditional measures of suppression extended by the sophomores to their more verdant brothers, as "bullying." He believed that inter-year brushes furthered good feeling, and developed year spirit, college spirit and university spirit. "Becoming reminiscent, this popular professor recalled a soph-frosh battle as one of his most vivid recollections of undergraduate days. In this particular fracas the disputed trophy was a sophomore banner bearing a green goose. In his time, Professor McTaggart stated, initiations were dealt with more rapidly, the freshmen's period of humiliation lasting only a few days.

Macdonald-Cartier Club Plan Interesting Season

There are several interesting things in the wind for the Macdonald-Cartier Club, chief among which is a proposed luncheon for the Hon. R. B. Bennett. The executive met recently and planned a probable programme, without, however, deciding on dates. This club is the stronghold of student Conservatism and the parent organization of a number of young men's political clubs throughout the province.

CAMPUS OPINION DEPLORES DEMISE OF ROOTERS' CLUB

President of Club Replies to Criticism of Leaders and Lack of Stunt

STUDENTS DESIRE CLUB

Mr. Marshall Desires to Know
"Why the Students Go To Football Games"

"The old college football race ain't what it used to be."

Such is the wail of morning contemporaries of the Varsity, who attribute this fact both to the showing of the Blue team and to the lack of spirit among the rooters.

And the general campus opinion is that the none-to-friendly downtown sporting writers have hit the nail on the head. Settling aside the exhibition of the team, over which there was not much reason to cheer, there was something wrong in the stands. "Wally" Graham, Knox College, said: "There was more enthusiasm at Queen's than among all our fellows together. The alumni did more cheering than the students." Commenting on the disappearance of the Rooters' Club, he declared, "Every organization here seems to be shot!"

There is no longer an organized Rooters' Club. Formed originally to get the freshmen out, and to teach them the college yell, the club furnished rooters' tickets at a discount, to obtain which attendance at practices was obligatory. Those were the days when "Curly" Graham used to take the boys in hand, half a thousand of them, and put them through their paces in the Examination Hall.

This year under the new season ticket arrangement "there is organized cheer-leading instead of organized rooters," according to Mr. Burns, secretary of the S.A.C. A cheer leaders' club of five has been formed.

Mr. Marshall, the President of the new club, said that the gradual enlargement of the University made for less undergraduate enthusiasm. He could not explain the enthusiasm in the greater American colleges. He claims as well that the present arrangement of two student sections, one for men and one for women, whereas formerly there was only one between the two, will make for more vociferous rooting.

Mr. Marshall denied emphatically that the papers were justified in their comments on the game. The local (Continued on page 4)

GERMAN CLUB HEARS DR. TIGGES LAST NIGHT

Gives Lecture on the Rhine
Illustrated by Lantern Slides—Music

The German Club held a very successful session last night at Wymwood. The main feature of the evening was an excellent lecture on the Rhine, illustrated with lantern slides. Dr. Tigges accompanied his pictures with explanations in his native language, and received a hearty vote of thanks from a large audience.

A one-act play was read by six of the students. Professor Fairley kindly assisted in the staging of the comedy.

The musical side of the programme was ably supplied by Mr. Angus Ross, a pupil of Ernest Seitz.

A large enrolment of new members points to another good year for the German Study Club, of which there will be another meeting in the near future.

REACHING OUR READERS

"Why of course I read your editorials, once a year at least," said a Medical student to us the other day. A little praise goes a long way as the saying goes and we were flattered to find that a student after five years of Medicine was kind enough to read one editorial a year. In fact we were uplifted to the point of making it our ambition to see to it that every student in Medicine, Engineering, Dentistry and Forestry should read one editorial before graduation.

This resolution means that we are challenging stiff competition. For unfortunately we have neither the years nor the experience to reproduce the robust and highly technical humour characteristic of Epistaxis nor the colour of the folk songs and other literary flowerings of School nor the peculiar products of the Dental Muse which are paraded boldly and without shame no less than twice a year. If we could write one or two editorials that would please the citizens of these diverse but highly developed states of society, we should feel more proud than we did when we were made the object of some commendable attempts at satire made in the annual "Bob" by the fledgling wits of Victoria College.

We mention the students in the technical faculties for a particular reason. They pay the same amount towards the upkeep of "The Varsity" as do the undergraduates in Arts and they are inclined to feel cheated if their newspaper has nothing to offer them in the way of reading at noon hour but a great deal of news about the Arts colleges, the men and women of which do really very little else except hold meetings of useless societies, if we are to believe the hardy ones at the south end of the campus. Because the time tables outside the Faculty of Arts are full-time affairs, naturally the staff of the paper must be drawn from the latter faculty and hence it seems to have a greater Arts bias than necessary.

This year we shall endeavour to make a beginning at covering thoroughly all the events in the practical faculties. We should appreciate it if the students of these faculties would help us either by criticisms and suggestions or by literary contributions. Thus far they have done their part in only one department: many of the funniest letters to us this year, always excepting those from the class of 1930 at one of the larger Arts colleges, have come to us from S.P.S.

Oscar, a friend of high wit and deep intellectuality, wires in the following from the fastness of U.C.:

To Dear, Esq.

My Dear Sir:

Your Apollo poem began in my mind a suspicion which, I regret to confess, your subsequent course has but served to strengthen, that our national Feline has fallen far since the spacious days of N.A.B., who was too naughty even for Epistaxis. Whether it be the enervating breath of the sectarian institution to the north of Queen's Park, which has wilted a tradition builded in the more virile air of the Atheist College, I know not; in any case, we of U.C. are not the men to taunt our weaker brethren with our superior naughtiness. So it is with hesitation that I submit for your perusal a story born in the fervent atmosphere of a young ladies' academy in the chivalrous days of the late Victoria of glorious memory. It would seem that a piquant damsel garbed in the picturesque costume of that almost mythical time was attempting to board an elevated railway train in Chicago, by the wrong door. The conductor, a low fellow, shouted to her rudely, "Not that way, miss!" "But," protested our fair Jo-casta proudly, "have I not a perfect right?" "Yes, lady," was the honeyed reply, "and a peachy left." Cast your mind back, sir, for thirty years, and attempt to fathom just what the conductor meant.

I remain, my dear sir,
Yours sincerely,
Oscar.

We note that Morley Callaghan, contributor to such papers as transition, Caravan, and latterly, Scribner's, has been asserting himself on the question of class, claiming that our own is bound to American. It is a pity that there are not more people in this village with Mr. Callaghan's acidity and perception; for we feel that he will generally be considered a poor young fellow; being as he is a voice crying in the wilderness.

Personally one suspects that if Morley Callaghan keeps on like this he will be giving an imitation of the Strange Fugitive himself. Where, oh, where is Frederic Davidson and Du vieux vin dans les bouteilles neuves?

A Rather Intelligent Letter

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:
I see in the last issue of your paper that you are accused of being partial. Congratulations! All real editors are very partial, so it looks as if we had a real editor this year. The editorial columns are the only means a paper has of expressing an opinion, and a paper that has no opinion is worthless.

Personally I should like to see this paper so very partial that some enterprising person would start an opposition sheet and by competition make "The Varsity" a fairly good newspaper; it could be done.

I suppose "Another 370 Vic." thinks that as his college has received so much publicity lately, through just-its fights and freshman trials, that the whole University is anxious to hear more of the wonderful college, and anything from "Another 370 Vic." would be greeted with applause. Of course I suppose the gentleman must be excused, as he is from "Victoria." I am very glad to hear that Victoria boasts the motto "The Truth will make you Free"; the college I belong to doesn't need that motto; we're free anyway.

Now, having insulted the editor, "Another 370 Vic." and Victoria itself, I really think I shall stop before anybody else gets mad. I hope they'll all reply to me, as I do love getting letters.

Quartus.

A Very Intelligent Letter

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:
Your correspondent "Another 370 Vic." while stating two or three acknowledged truths, fails to make any point because both his accusations levelled against the Editor are quite groundless. The first is, by inference, that the Editor "flayed" the original "370 Vic." The Editor did nothing of the sort: he merely administered a gentle rebuke to one who, judging from his letter, a masterpiece of uncomprehendingly asetic conservatism, is one of those unfortunates born with the world's cares on their shoulders, who toddle through life wagging a scolding finger and clucking "Tut! tut! You exaggerate!" How even this person managed to miss the exciting accounts of similar to-do's in "The Varsity" of former years we are at a loss to understand.

The great difference—and it is as the difference between twilight and early dawn—between "The Varsity's" accounts of little frascos about the campus and those of certain downtown journals is that "The Varsity's" accounts are written in a boyish spirit of "What fun this is! Let's make the most of it; it's all between friends," and with the realization that actually the occurrences are neither here nor there in real weight. The usual newspaper accounts, however they may maintain an apparently impersonal style, usually contain or suggest the inference that the affair is but a sign of the times at the University—"just another proof, my brethren, that our great institution of learning is fast degenerating." The former account is pleasantly exciting, but in good spirit; the latter is sensational and insinuating.

As to 370 Secundo's allegation that Victoria frays receive more than their share of attention—nonsense! Any affair of the sort that comes to their attention is pounced on quite naturally by the zealous "Varsity" reporters and turned in as—what it is—legitimate University news. This gentleman's second paragraph might well have been omitted, as it has always been an Editor's prerogative, constantly taken advantage of, to remark on individuals who through fame or ambition are pushed or push themselves into the limelight.

Yours,
Paul A. Gardner.

No English Snobbery

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:
To-day's issue of "The Varsity" (October 15) reveals the existence of an unfortunate inferiority complex

With the Theatres

THE EMPIRE: PICKWICK

This show is well worth going to see, but at the same time we would hesitate to call it a good play. It is a "made" play, a number of choice bits of "Pickwick" jumbled together into a sort of continued story, preserving the delightful Dickens characters and dialogue, but more a succession of good scenes than a drama.

Dickens is gone the way of Meerschum pipes—no longer to be enjoyed publicly (we never do ourselves, either Dickens or the pipes), but those who cherish a secret love for Pickwick will immensely enjoy seeing the jolly old characters come to life in the jolly old English scenes. These latter, by the way, are very good and imply some engineering genius, for in one a genuine horse is brought on, loaned, we suppose, by the zoo.

Mr. Edmund Abbey gives us another fine bit of acting as Mr. Pickwick, well supported by Bufuz, Mr. A. J. Rostance, whose trial scene was a treat. Mr. Cramp as Jingle, and Miss Doyle as Mrs. Bardell are also worthy of mention, while Mr. Symington as Sam Weller redeemed himself well after a rather weak start. The whole cast did rather better than usual. It was very large, but well directed and grouped. We should mention, too, a boys' choir which sang Christmas carols between scenes.

Seeing these character parts played in true Dickens style and in their funny clothes makes us understand why Dickens' illustrations look like they do. The people must actually have looked like that.

which ought to have perished long ago. It is implied first that the Englishman regards working one's way through college as "degrading." Mr. Editor, this is most deplorable rot. True, there are snobs in England, but there are idiots anywhere, even in Toronto. The repeated complaint of snobbery is made with small, but very small foundation. It is due to an ill-concealed feeling of inferiority, to ignorance or to wilful misinterpretation of the most innocent words.

At a student conference in Schiers, Switzerland, last year, the "work-student" and his difficulties were very fully discussed. A misguided English youth ventured to criticize without sufficient knowledge. Immediately men from Bangor, Wales, London, Leeds and other British universities denounced warmly the snobbery they felt to exist. A delegate from Canada then spoke at some length on the difficulties, ideals and feelings of the work-student and he did not whine either. The speech, as were all speeches, was translated into French and German, and the roar of applause from the thirty-one nations there represented was an eloquent token of the universal esteem in which the "work-student" is held.

I could cite more incidents to show the admiration with which such men are regarded not only by the English student, but by the professors and the English people as a whole. Our complaints are mainly fancied. We feed our imaginations with morbid self-pitying thoughts of being misunderstood or not being appreciated.

To-day's issue affords another example. Last week some visiting English girls were apparently interviewed by "The Varsity" and asked the usual inanities questions. Because the answers were displeasing, the editorial denounces the "insolence" of people who

ESTABLISHED 45 YEARS

SENIOR INTERCOLLEGIATE TRACK MEET AT MCGILL ON FRIDAY

L. G.

There have been sorry displays in rooting at the Stadium in lean years of football enthusiasm, but that display put on Saturday last at the McGill game has all others sent into a cocked hat. And the blame lies solely with the Rooters' Club. The blame lies nowhere else. The students after the unexpected Blue and White win at Kingston were in a mood that lent itself to wild cheers and great enthusiasm. To have a team that can fight from behind and come through after all have declared them as unlikely contenders instills the spirit to "shout and fight" into a college crowd more than an all-star team that is granted the title, is able to do. The Rooters' Club has no comeback on that score, for the Blue supporters turned out in their heavy thousands to cheer on the football teams, not to see immaculately dressed leaders, and seven of them mind you, show all and sundry how well they can wear white duds.

The leadership of Marshall and his followers was not one that would incite or invite rooting. To stand up and look at the crowd with clever grins and expect them to cheer with zest is folly. It was the job of Marshall as chief cheer leader and president of the rooters' organization to give the students the opportunity of encouraging the team.

If as Marshall told a "Varsity" reporter the students did not go to the game to cheer and see half-time displays, why did he and two friends of his lower themselves so far as to take a trip to Cornell University to see how the really "raw raw" American colleges do it.

Jack Marshall, as President of the Club, Scott Stockwell and Edward Hartmann took a very nice trip to Cornell to get a few ideas on "how to do it" last season. The trip was merely a "joy ride" if Saturday's rooting was the results of their efforts to learn. Would the Rooting Club leaders be kind enough to tell this column the names of the American universities that have successful cheering without practice? How in the name of "joy rides" can Marshall expect a herd of freshmen to give the locomotive and other intricate yells without practice? On Saturday the frosh were at sea, and with the indifferent leadership and slipshod methods of Marshall 2T9 it was no wonder that the encouragement the team got was nil.

Then there is the case of the half-time display. It has been a tradition in University life to present a spectacle or whatever you wish to call it at the half-time rest period. The fact that nothing was done is the fault wholly of the Rooting Club. The executive of that club cannot say that the students would not take part, for there was nothing in the plans of Marshall that provided for such a display.

Perhaps Cornell could not present anything elevating enough for Marshall to adopt. In the report last year of the "joy ride" taken it was mentioned that many new ideas were gathered that would assist in Toronto's presentations of those farces. If Cornell could offer nothing, why did not the club watch Sammy Manson of Hamilton Tigers last year in his superlative effort in putting on a display at half-time in the Balm Beach-Tiger game? Perhaps the Rooters' Club president was too busy enjoying himself at Cornell?

And where was the C.O.T.C. band? It is fine enough for the Argos to hire an outside band, but why should a University organization use a band of non-students. It certainly cannot be a question of uniforms or instruments, for they were present last year and do not disappear over the summer vacation.

VARSITY TRACK TEAM GOES TO MONTREAL

Blue Team Should Defeat Queen's and McGill with Ease

MANY CHANGES IN TEAM

On Friday next the Varsity track team journeys to Montreal to compete against Queen's and McGill in the Annual Intercollegiate Track and Field Meet. It has almost been a matter of tradition in the past few years that Varsity should romp home the winner by a good number of points since she has numbered among her track stars in the past some of Canada's finest. This year there is a noticeable change in the team, only one or two of Varsity's old stand-bys being left. But with the passing of the old has come a wealth of new material; freshmen, appearing to spring up from nowhere to win their faculty colours with ease. Then, too, the team has been strengthened by the sudden decision of "Mo" Mitchell, holder of the intercollegiate half mile record, to turn out with the team, this being his final year at Varsity. "Wally" Graham, S.P.S., who is now further pursuing studies in the Faculty of Medicine, is unable to turn out with the team this year owing to ill-health.

In the sprints Varsity will be well represented by "Bill" Finlayson, who won the individual championship last Friday at the Interfaculty Meet, Sommerville, and a freshman, Connolly, who is showing very good form. Connolly is also slated to run the quarter mile, along with Jermyn and Mitchell, who won that event last Friday without extending himself. Mitchell will also run the half mile, along with King and Jermyn. King should put up a good race in this event, his time on Friday comparing very favourably with the Intercollegiate record.

In the one mile run Varsity will be represented on Friday by Vila, Williams and Lee. Vila, a freshman, who easily led the boys home in good time at the Interfaculty, promises to put up a good fight against the milers from Queen's and McGill. Gilbert and Lee are picked by Coach Martin for the three mile run. "Hag" Gilbert, who gained recognition by his fast performance in the distance events in the Indoor Interfaculty Meet last winter, has developed good form and should run a game race.

Mason, Marshall and Sommerville are the men on whom Varsity relies for the hurdles. Mason and Marshall are entered in both the low and high hurdles. All of these men showed good style in their events, and should provide keen competition on Friday.

Davenport and Dennis have been practicing faithfully for the pole vault and should do well in this event. Dennis is also entered with Vaughn and Marshall in the high jump, which he won last Friday.

In the running broad jump, Hymen, a promising freshman, Vaughn and Finlayson are Varsity's hopefuls. McTaggart and Peaker, who both broke the interfaculty record for the javelin throw last week, do well in this event, and McTaggart is out to break the Intercollegiate record, having come within six feet of it. Peaker, Finlayson and Barner are the entries in the shot put.

The men are training faithfully each day under the direction of Coaches Martin, Halbus and Dr. Campbell, and by Friday should be in excellent condition to fight for the track laurels for the Blue and White.

Intercollegiates Have Respite Before Grind for Queen's Game

With two weeks in which to prepare for the Queen's game on the 27th the Intercollegiates took a welcome lay-off yesterday evening. The boys have had a strenuous month of hard work and have a tough session ahead before the Tricolour come to town. The Blue have played two games without any serious injuries, and the squad are in the pink of condition. Stiff scrimmages will be the order from now on, and Coach Blackwell will have his men working at top speed. The coming two weeks will probably mean the winning or losing of the flag.

"Jimmie" Douglas' Orphans also took a holiday. They have played two games away from home, suffering losses in both. With a game at the Stadium here Saturday, when Sarnia will be their guests, the winning column should get an entry.

Pharmacy Bow to St. Michael's

Last evening on St. Mike's shifting sands the double blue boys took the measure of Pharmacy by a score of 18-0 in a Mulock Cup fixture. The Irish netted their counters on three touches, two kicks to the dead-line and a convert.

Crave Carillon Campus Carnival 370, Ties, Tablets, Terpsichore

(By Edith V. Martin)

Do you remember "370" suggested a carillon campus carnival? 370's idea was to do the thing up in a real style with the bells for a "twenty-three piece orchestra." It sounds most intriguing, doesn't it? Can't you see us all making merry on a balmy October night to the tune of a good old Scottish reel. There's nothing quite like the quadrille: "Ladies to the right, gentlemen to the left." The Carnival would begin with a grand masked parade featuring Cleopatra and Anthony and the rest of the intelligentsia of history. In the stately precincts of the University towers the frolic of the year would commence. Instead of arranging to meet your friends in the Music Room or at the Tablet, you would say rather: "We'll see you under the fourth elm past the cannon." Someone might write in and suggest suitable selections for the bells to play on this auspicious occasion. We would like something "awfully" nice for the "Moonlights." We wouldn't have to retire to the quadrangle to get cooled off, for all the dances would be moonlight. There would be no restriction on how we might choose to array ourselves providing we didn't offend any member of the faculty by wearing yellow ties. Yes, 370, your idea is simply scrumptious! Let's get the searchlights polished up!

Varsity Rugby Team Defeat Toronto British

Blue Squad Plays Well To Win
Very Close Game by 6-3
on Saturday

The chances of the Varsity British rugby team took a decided rise after their struggle with the Toronto "British" on Saturday afternoon last. The game itself was very close, and the Varsity team did well indeed to pull out on the long end of the score. The first half was scoreless, but the Varsity team seemed to hold a slight edge of the play. The Blue three-quarters were running and passing the ball in nice fashion, but something always seemed to stop them from scoring. The Varsity forwards were playing well, especially in the line-outs, where they had a decided superiority. In the scrums the British were the better, and fed their halves in this manner to the disgust of Varsity.

The second half saw Varsity score two tries for a total of six points, while the best the British could do was a drop kick for three points.

SATTERLY REBUKED IN SCATHING LETTER

came by night because he could not wait until morning. Not cowardice but impatience was the reason of coming in the dark. This reason may seem fanciful; but it is very typical of the keen inquiring student. He is apt to rush at conclusions—to make a law out of a hypothesis or a theory and declare it to be a first danger.

This impatience is the new danger of education. Students, in following the gleam, are apt to conclude there is only the one star. When they find the key which fits one or two locks they think this key will fit every lock. When they see one facet of the truth they sometimes think they have seen the whole orb of truth. I say it with all respect and reverence, but to me this is a fundamental error on the part of those who call themselves evolutionists. They speak and write as if their very wonderful theory explains the whole universe. They have fallen into the danger of impatience. They forget that 'Now we know in part.' They forget that 'these are parts of his ways.' How true it is—sometimes half truths are the worst forms of error.

"Now, sir, if these words can justify your reporter in saying 'He (Dr. Satterly) averred that the doctrine of evolution was an impatient theory and a danger to education' then I must confess I know very little about the use of Anglo-Saxon words.

"As to Prof. Satterly's quoted remarks that he 'would prefer the word of a biologist to the word of a clergyman in the matter of evolution,' I would just say so long as the biologist sticks to his last, uses his own great tools of experiment and observation and deals exclusively with facts, I am prepared to sit humbly at his feet and learn; but when he leaves his last—when he leaves the realm of fact and launches out into the realms of inference, speculation, theory and such like, in other words, when he begins to philosophize, then he must be prepared to allow others—some of whom, though not biologists, are perhaps better philosophers than he—to express their opinions and propound their theories. I welcome the great contribution which the theory of evolution has made, but I again state—so far, it has not accounted for the whole universe.

"The other quoted remark of Prof. Satterly, 'But the preacher who believes in a purely stratified and fundamental doctrine is driving his crowds away,' would be rather amusing if it were not so inconsistent. The learned professor wants to preclude clergymen from the realm of biology, but he seems perfectly willing for the physicist to enter the realm of the ecclesiastic, and not only to express an opinion, but also to sit in judgment, which, to my mind, is both unkind and unscriptural.

"I may say in closing: my motive in preaching these annual sermons to students is inspired by a sincere desire to help the student, and so far as I am concerned there is nothing more to be said."

get better seats, than down-town. There is no novelty this year in the separation of men from women students who use the combination ticket. This has always been the case with rooters' tickets, as men rooters are naturally inclined to become somewhat boisterous when cheering," he declared.

"In spite of the statement of Mr. Burns," it was pointed out to "The Varsity," "that the advertisements announcing the special tickets definitely state that 'no other student ticket will be sold,' whereas such tickets were sold for the last game."

With respect to the grouping of season ticket holders in one section, as the system of separating the men's and women's rooting sections in previous years. But most students seem of the opinion that this is no advantage, since there is now no real rooting at the games.

morning dailies deplore the lack of a student band; of organized singing and cheering; of novel effects obtained with colored song sheets; of the half-time burlesque.

As for the band, "It just wasn't there," said Mr. Gordon Burns, Secretary of the S.A.C., when questioned by "The Varsity." "The students showed no interest in it." As to the burlesque, Mr. Marshall wondered "what the students went to the football games for anyhow." And as for the yells, they're all in a red and blue programme got out by a Mr. G. D. Thomson. "Who wants to try to look at a book and a football game at the same time?" asked "Wally" Graham, "and the colour all came off them on to your hands anyway."

General opinion is that there is plenty of latent enthusiasm, but it should be organized—and the Rooters' Club is declared the best and only way. "This new season ticket idea is to get the crowds to hockey—not to get out the rooters to the rugby games. Let us have a return of the good old Rooters' Club," begged one senior man.

What do they say? Let them say."

FIRST YEAR MEN AT ST. MIKE'S FINED A DOLLAR

Impromptu Students' Court is Held at Concert Put On By Frosh

NOT CRADLE SNATCHERS

No Light Can Yet Be Shed on Disposal of Fines
Thus Collected

On Monday night at St. Michael's College an impromptu students' court was held at the annual freshmen concert put on for the seniors. At this court the whole first year was fined one dollar each, and other charges still remain to be laid before the students' court. On Monday evening "The Varsity" reporter present was prevented from reporting the event by those in charge, but last night the following details were collected from eye-witnesses to the event.

The court was held presided over by Mr. O'Donohue, to consider various charges against the members of the freshman year. The prosecution was Mr. J. Mahon and the court was supported by the blue clad club of Officer O'Shea.

Amid an excited silence the assembled students watched these three come to the stage at the front of the room where but lately had been sung the "Freshie Chorus" to hearty applause.

Mr. Donohue came to the front of the platform and in swelling legal phrases acquainted the open mouthed first year with their crimes collectively and individually. They ranged from refusing to wear a pale blue ribbon as a tie, to cradle snatching, which offence was dropped early in his hearing.

In the smoke filled club rooms the feeling ran high and interruptions were frequent during the entire proceedings.

Mr. Ed. Rush rose to protest against thus taking the case unprepared and demanded time. Mr. Donohue replied that either the charges must then and there be dealt with or the matter must come before the students' court. He protested his own distaste for the position in which he found himself.

Mr. Ed. Rush and Mr. Daly volunteered to defend the frosh in the trial, which then opened. The charge of having "maliciously and stubbornly" refused to wear the prescribed tie was first heard. Rusty Moran declared that the frosh had decided upon the ties and that at one time or another about twenty-five of the class had worn them but the rest had refused. Mr. Rush argued that the freshmen had refused under extenuating circumstances. Their rooms had been entered and they had been otherwise subjected to indignity.

Refinements Suggested in

The necessity of bringing the standards of the short wave-length receivers up to the regulations imposed at 1929 Washington Radio Conference was discussed at the meeting of the Radio Club yesterday.

Mr. Sheddon spoke on the higher efficiency demanded in tuning and selectivity due to the narrowing of the amateur band of wave-lengths by the Conference and suggested possible refinements in tuning condensers and other apparatus used in the receiver.

BACK TO NATURE URGE INSPIRES ARTS FROSH

Playful Seniors Use Freshmen as Errand Boys Dressed in Quaint Uniform

Yesterday afternoon "The Varsity" investigated rumours that naked freshmen were seen nightly running about the U.C. Residences.

On being assured that their names would not be used, several of the U.C. men admitted freely that it was their custom to send naked freshmen on errands between the houses. The freshmen, it seems, are permitted the use of small cardboard boxes to maintain their respectability, and are further clothed by the artistic efforts, in shoe polish and indelible ink, of the house to which they are sent.

When "The Varsity" asked what objections the freshmen had to this treatment, the reply was: "Oh, yes, one of them was crying when he came in last night. But it was his own fault. He was on telephone duty and let the phone ring four times before he answered it."

DEFINITE PLANS FOR RESIDENCE

U.C. Women Rejoice Over the Prospect of New Building

TO CONSIST OF TWO UNITS

It will be of great interest to the women of U.C. to know that definite plans regarding the new Queen's Hall Residence are under way. On good authority, "The Varsity" was informed that instructions had been received from headquarters to begin plans for the building which is to take the place of 4, 7 and 9 Queen's Park. These old residences will be long pass from our midst. It is believed the site of the new building, an edifice to be built in accordance with the dignified Georgian tradition, will occupy the property from 8345 St. George St. at the junction with Hoskin Avenue and right in line with the present union. It will accommodate one hundred and fifty girls, a number equivalent to that at present residing in Queen's Hall. All U.C. women cannot yet be provided for in the new residence, that is, the women of Hutton and Argyle Houses. However, it is hoped that in the future there will be a common fold for all.

The residences will at first consist of two units (later, perhaps, three), run in conjunction with the Union, each with a dining room to accommodate fifty girls. Each unit will supply breakfast and dinner, while all U.C. women, resident and non-resident, will meet in common at the Union lunch hour, thus stimulating the general university atmosphere, yet retaining for resident women the privilege of intimacy with members of their own house and a thorough acquaintance with their respective dorms—two important needs which are not being overlooked.

The present difficulty of noon-hour line-ups will be solved by the introduction of extra facilities. It will be interesting to know that under the new plan, the use of the dramatics room above the dining-room may facilitate matters, by having movable tables installed, to be used during lunch hour only.

In this respect, the new residence will accomplish for U.C. women, at least, what Hart House does for the men of the University—i.e., develop a common spirit. But it will not feature Hart House facilities. The building will possess only resident quarters, plus accommodation for clubs, such as the Union possesses now in a (Continued on page 4)

PROFESSORS DISCUSS MORLEY CALLAGHAN'S NEWMAN CLUBS SPEECH

View of Pan-American Culture

INTELLECTUAL WILD OATS

Contact with Great Britain a Valuable Safeguard to Our Country

"There does not appear to be sufficient recognition of the fact that most elements of American culture come from Europe originally," said Professor N. A. MacKenzie, commenting upon Morley Callaghan's speech at Newman Club. The remarks with which he took issue were as follows:

"I'd like to see a Pan-American culture at the University. It's foolish to be grasping a dead hand. Our culture is bound to be American, so why resist it? Receive it with open arms and add something of our own and then call it Canadian."

Members of the faculty interviewed by "The Varsity" were, on the whole, disinclined to discuss the matter. It seemed to be a general opinion that Mr. Callaghan merely made the statement in order to set his audience thinking.

Professor N. A. MacKenzie said that it was very difficult to argue with a man at a distance. He felt that perhaps the report of his statement did not carry just the meaning which he had intended to convey. Prof. MacKenzie took exception to the expression "Pan-American culture." By Pan-American, Prof. MacKenzie understands a culture including Latin America, whereas Mr. Callaghan probably only means an English speaking American culture.

Mentioning Mr. Callaghan's reference to the incorporation of old-world ideas into our life as exemplified by the Soldiers' Tower, Professor MacKenzie declared that because a thing comes from Europe or elsewhere, there is no reason why we should not copy it if it is desirable or beautiful.

Asked if he thought Canadian culture were more akin to American than English, Prof. MacKenzie said that, with qualifications, he believed that to be true, taking Canada as a whole. "Canada and Canadians are more like the United States and Americans than they are like England and the English."

He explained, however, that our contact with Great Britain is one of the chief safeguards against the more undesirable elements of so-called "American culture."

Professor Gilbert Jackson declined to comment upon the statement farther than to say that "A man must sow his intellectual wild oats sometime."

FROSH SOPH BANQUET HELD AT HART HOUSE IS A LIVELY AFFAIR

Sir Robert Falconer Speaks on Glory of Tradition in a University

ELECTION RESULTS

Professor MacAndrew Urges Acquaintance with the Girls

A spirit of conviviality, a refreshing disregard among the rank and file of the principles of Emily Post, and a corresponding feeling of enjoyment, pervaded the University College Soph-Frosh Banquet held in Hart House last evening. It was preceded by a scuffle in the corridor, having to do with ties, but when the banquet was over, neckwear and its distinctions had been discarded forever. The food was good, the toast-list short and interesting, and all went like a wedding. Music helped make it a merry evening.

The toast to the King was proposed by Ed. Henry, toastmaster and President of the U.C. Literary and Athletic Society. With the appearance of the demi tasse the same gentleman welcomed the frosh. Then Mr. Arch. Wood, the sophomore President, arose to toast the college. He told a funny story referring to School and Meds as the University cloak and wash rooms, and urged the freshmen to get into some activity.

This toast was responded to by Prof. M. W. Wallace, newly elected Principal of University College. He represented himself as like the frosh, not feeling quite at home as yet. He advised the freshmen to obtain an idea of the college's past history, and gave a very enjoyable resumé of its life-story.

Next, James McKay, the freshman representative, was heard from when he proposed a toast to the University. In a ringing declaration, Mr. McKay referred to the untiring efforts of the men who had made U.C. what it is and congratulated the first year on its good looks.

The ever popular president of the University, Sir Robert Falconer, responded to the toast. After congratulating Mr. McKay on his effort, Sir Robert assured the gathering of his satisfaction at being present. He charged the freshmen that they carefully preserve the remnants of their ties, to recall memories in after life. This habit of retrospect he found one of his greatest pleasures. "Tradition," said Sir Robert, "is a wonderful thing." It constituted the chief glory of Oxford and Cambridge, and for a young country like Canada our one hundred and one years of existence was something of which to be proud. A University student found comradeship all over the world, a privilege which not many enjoyed. He counselled the freshmen to find themselves by entering small divisions, but not to neglect to commingle with their fellows.

Prof. Cochrane, as Dean of Residence, introduced himself to the freshmen. He corroborated the foregoing advice on the formation of friendship. (Continued on page 4)

JOY IS UNCONFINED BUT JAIL IS REWARD

Cornell Students Confined for Lack of Restraint in City Streets

Special to "The Varsity"

Ithaca, N.Y., Oct. 16.—Four Cornell students spent part of the evening in the city jail. The quartet will appear before City Judge Daniel Crowley on the charge of disorderly conduct in the city court this morning. Cornell students have a sort of a feud with theatres here. If they do not like a show, they break it up.

It is alleged that the arrests were made as a result of the "whoops" staged by the Strand theatre. A crowd was turned away from the Strand and then proceeded down State Street taking the "No parking" signs from the side of the street. Police arrested two of the men when they started to roll an auto with two people in it along the street.

It is stated that later the mob formed in front of the police station and started a demonstration. The police arrested the two alleged ringleaders and then succeeded in dispersing the crowd.

The four were released on $400 bail about midnight.

KNOX UNDERGRADS' SOCIETY FORMED

Professor Bryden Reads
Speech from Throne Outlining Work

COMMITTEES REPORT

"By means of this parliament the students are enabled to do much to benefit their college," said Professor Bryden, addressing the first meeting of the Knox College Undergraduates' Association last evening. Prof. Bryden, as governor-general of the Parliament, read the speech from the throne, outlining the work of the government for the coming term. The K.C.U.A. hopes to make much progress in student activities this year. Of interest to debaters is the fact that a subject for debate is to be introduced once a month, to be conducted after the manner of the Hart House debates. The big social event of the year is to be a reception for all the Presbyterian students in University College, thus enabling the Presbyterians at U.C. to meet those attending the parent college of their church. Athletic teams are to be fully outfitted, and in order to ensure the maximum of support at interfaculty games, a cheer leader is to be appointed.

The reports of the various committees, namely, the House Committee, the Programme and Worship Committee, the Athletic Committee, and the Initiation Committee, were read and approved. Comment was made on the fact that initiation expenses were considerably lower this year, despite the larger number of freshmen.

Mr. L. Fowler was unanimously elected Speaker of the House for the year. Mr. C. G. Boyd was appointed Sergeant-at-arms, and Mr. Arthur Jackson as House Doctor.

FRENCH UNIVERSITIES FORBID HAZING

French universities and military colleges have bidden farewell to hazing, following an edict sent out by M. Herriot, minister of public instruction, and M. Painleve, minister of war.

The edict forbids "brimades" or practical jokes and hazing, and specifies that freshmen must be "cordially welcomed and treated fairly and kindly."

MEXICAN REVOLUTION AIMS AT BETTERMENT OF EDUCATIONAL LAW

Italian-Spanish Club Hears Mexican Consul Speak on Revolution

The initial meeting of the Italian and Spanish Club was held last evening at Wynilwood. The president, Mr. Dawson, called upon Professor Goggio and Professor Cano, who addressed the members in Spanish.

The Mexican Consul, Senor Fernandez, then proceeded to give an account of the existing conditions in Mexico. The political affairs prior to 1910 were unsatisfactory. A privileged group of men had control of everything and therefore the Mexicans had no opportunity to partake of the wealth of the country. "In any country where the distribution of wealth is not evenly divided, revolution arises," the speaker declared. "Education, the food of the soul, the very food you are getting, was not given to the people." These two points, namely, the uneven distribution of wealth and the lack of educational facilities, explain the troubles in Mexico.

Outsiders criticize because the revolution is accompanied by so much bloodshed, but revolution must be made with bullets, not with flowers. We are very proud of our revolution because it shows we are not born slaves, and we have been fighting for the betterment of the lower classes because we believe that the lower classes are the real backbone of a country.

The revolutionist government has been attending to the two needs of the people. It has been allotting land to the peones and establishing a system of education. Mexicans needed education, but how could it be given when the people were starving? The revolutionists are building up the country on a sound and solid basis. The dictators claim to build up a government, but they never succeed because their motive is personal ambition. At the time of the dictator there were no rural schools in Mexico. Now, under the revolutionist government, 4,000 rural schools have been established. This shows that the Mexicans are not fighting because they love it or because they are temperamental.

Quite a revolution has taken place in art. The Mexicans have always been artistic and now an open-air school of art has been established in the capital. Some very fine work was produced there last year by young boys of eleven and twelve years of (Continued on page 4)

The 79th anniversary of the founding of St. Joseph's Order in Toronto was celebrated by the community. The professors and students made it a gala occasion to become better acquainted with each other. In the dance that followed, resident and non-resident juniors and seniors mingled in a happy crowd.

THE ROOTING BUSINESS

On the front page of yesterday's issue we published a letter, written by an undergraduate, which we thought expressed the views of a great many other undergraduates in demanding the reason for the poor showing made by the rooters at last Saturday's game. On page three of the same issue one of our sporting editors in a signed editorial laid the blame for this poor showing squarely on the shoulders of the President of the Rooters' Club.

If the President of the Rooters' Club feels that he and his associates have been dealt with unfairly in this article, it is incumbent upon him to say so. If he and his friends are willing to accept this criticism in silence, we are justified in assuming that the Queen's game, or perhaps even this Saturday's game against Sarnia, will be accompanied by some improvement in the rooting, or else that the gentlemen in white ducks have decided to withdraw from their positions.

Either there must be student rooting or there must not be student rooting. Every one will agree with the truth of this proposition. Some people are opposed to rooting on principle and we can well understand the reasons for their stand. But as far as we are aware, the great majority of students have never been opposed to rooting on philosophical or esthetic grounds.

Rooting is a student tradition. But what is more important from an official point of view, rooting has been encouraged by the Students' Administrative Council and the Athletic Association, by means of the special season tickets which have been issued this year. Only one of these tickets might be bought by each student and by it the student was entitled to a seat in the rooters' section. The sexes were segregated in these sections and arrangements were made at a late hour for the sale of tickets to those that wished to "fuss." When asked the reason for this, the Secretary Treasurer of the Students' Administrative Council replied: "This has always been the case with rooters' tickets as men rooters are apt to become somewhat boisterous when cheering."

Somewhat boisterous! Softly, softly! If any one were inclined to shout boisterously on Saturday (and something more than merely boisterous support was surely needed) his incipient enthusiasm was quenched with awe by the sight of the Dilettanti in Ducks parading about the landscape, our new Group of Seven, who like the late lamented General von Moltke knew how to keep silent in seven languages.

If we have progressed to such a state that more refined methods than the "somewhat boisterous" ones of tradition are required, then we have a humble suggestion to make. This is that at our next game the Rooters' section be placed under the gentle tutelage of a group of mannequins from Eaton's or Simpson's. Furthermore if the slender purse of the Students' Administrative Council or the Athletic Association can afford it, let them parade in the imported gowns of Poiret and Lanvin. Then would the girls after a glimpse at these dainty creations have something to talk about when we go to the house to dance after the game and everything would be perfectly dilly.

Art, Music and Drama

HART HOUSE THEATRE

The programme for this year at Hart House is certainly short and not altogether conveniently arranged for the undergraduate, as there is nothing in the autumn and the last production is in exam. time. However, the plays are well selected and, such as it is, it promotes well.

The first production, Masterlock "The Bluebird" is one of those things which everyone knows about and which is seldom seen well done.—a favourite of Sunday schools. It is a fairy story with a moral, but, in spite of that, it is beautifully written and offers a splendid opportunity for pretty stage effect. It is probably one of the best fantasies there are and can be made delightful.

"Juno and the Paycock" by Sean O'Casey is also well known. It caused much discussion in England about a year or so ago and was produced recently in New York with considerable success. It has been thoroughly reviewed by really good critics, so we won't attempt to discuss its literary merit. Enough to say it is one of those rather dreadful working-class tragedies, with, however, a good streak of comedy running through it, and attempts to portray the character and life of Dublin Irish labourers. There is a copy in the Hart House Library.

We are extremely glad that we may have the opportunity of seeing "Anthony and Cleopatra." It is, we consider, Shakespeare's most colourful. (Continued on page 4)

CHAMPUS CAT

Meeting of October 16.—Mr. Apfel-mus in the chair. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and corrected by Mr. Sizlefaz, who claimed that the minutes of the meeting previous to the meeting of which the minutes were being read should have contained a comma after the word 'minute', otherwise it would have referred to something altogether apart from the reference to which it really did refer. Upon being queried Mr. Sizlefaz refused to say what he meant by it, claiming that he stood upon his constitutional rights in refusing to speak. Upon putting the matter to the vote the result was 10-1 against Mr. Sizlefaz. Moved and seconded that the minutes be adopted—Messrs Hooyespeak and Bunkeysprech. Carried 10-1.

Mr. Sizlefaz then asked the chair if the meeting were open. The chair said it was time to shut it up if it were. Mr. Sizlefaz then declared that there was a member of the press in the room. Upon investigation a reporter was found hiding behind an ash tray. The intruder was thrown out on the motion of Mr. Bunkeysprech. Mr. Sizlefaz said the ejection was unconstitutional. Upon being put to a vote the matter was defeated, 10-1.

The business of the day was then taken up. Proposed to send a delegate to the first turning of sod for the new bunkhouse at McMaster. Mr. Sizlefaz asked if finances permitted the necessary appropriation of seven cents for the delegate's expenses. The matter of an illuminated address was discussed and a mimeographed copy of address 1347 was produced with the necessary insertions tastefully illuminated by a lightning bug harnessed to the document with red tape. The matter of expenses was then put to a vote and carried 10-1, Mr. Sizlefaz dissenting. A motion to adjourn was then in order, but this was objected to on the grounds that at no time had there been a quorum. Mr. Hooyespeak argued that at no time, therefore, had there been a meeting, so how could they adjourn? A vote on the non-existence of the meeting was taken and carried 10-1, Mr. Sizlefaz dissenting. That the meeting adjourn—Bunkeysprech, Sizlefaz. Carried. Cheers and applause.

And He Signed This, Too

Editor, "The Varsity."

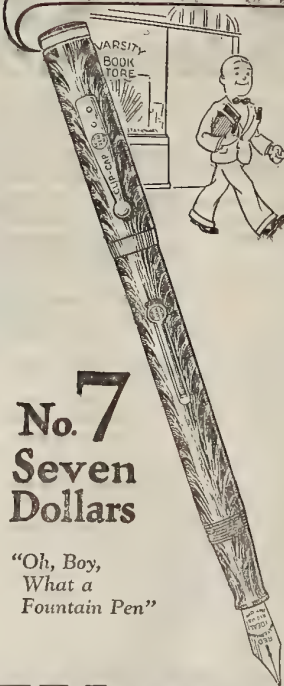

Dear Sir:

Fortunately (I do not say for whom) I am a pacifist. Not a coward, mind!—a pacifist. There is a fine distinction between the two terms. And so I did not choose to see with what force my clenched right hand could come into contact with the jaw of the husky six-foot sophomore who was rash enough to call me a slacker because I am not wearing an Arts tie.

Now what I should like you to tell me is whether I am a slacker, or whether I have the right to wear about my neck a more peaceful, if not so artistic a tie as the first year men are compelled by custom to wear. You see, I am in second year Arts, having taken my senior matriculation in a collegiate. Hence, I have come to the U. of T. as a fresh-soph (or a sophomore, as you will). Tell me, I pray, am I a glorious soph, or an infamous frosh? Or stay! can it be that I am really a combination of the two. And if I am a combination, which element, pray, is predominant? And now to sign myself—I am a "lowly freshe." I write "Humbly Yours,"—if a lordly sophomore. I shall design to pen these words with pardonable pride: "Condescendingly, I am."

My Lady Replies

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

Demosthenes appeals to other colleges to back the statement that debating is not going out of fashion. Loretto College inter-year debating has never lacked enthusiastic support since its inauguration in 1919 or 1920, and indeed is making a step forward in organization this year.

The Literary Society, under the auspices of which the debates are carried out, is considering the suggestion that it have three open house debates on questions bearing on the literature, history, and religious studies that are on the curriculum. The movement is looked upon as a big improvement in the organization—and new vitality will be felt in an already flourishing college activity. Is it a sign of relief—this "tendency towards feminism?" My goodness, it looks like it—what greater proof that masculine perfection in public speaking is being threatened.

Let me only add my wish to that of Demosthenes, that U.C.'s debating will be renewed next autumn.

Yours very sincerely,

Cicero.

Dear Sir:

Allow me through the medium of your paper to call attention to a state of affairs which assuredly should not exist.

Why is it, Mr. Editor, that one can go in the Public Reference Library and find comparative quiet, while at our own library one will find five times the noise and half the people? The library on College St. is open to everybody. Our library is reserved for those receiving a higher education; are not ordinary good manners included under that heading? WILKES WINS WYCLIFFE TRACK; MORRISEY AND JONES NEXT

The Queen's-McGill game at Montreal this Saturday may place the three college teams on an even footing once more. A Queen's victory would mean that Varsity, McGill and the Tricolour would be tied with one win and one loss apiece. If the Red win, it means that the others will have a very difficult time in heading them off from the championship flag.

At yesterday evening's practice a new combination was tried on the Blue half-line. Bell and Baillie were working on the end runs and both may team up on Saturday for the Orphans against Sarnia. These two should be good for some long gains and be a big aid in chalking up a win for Jimmy Douglas's squad.

A win for the Orphans against Sarnia might go a long way into working up a little enthusiasm among the students. Although the O.R.F.U. rarely plays to a capacity crowd, the sale of season tickets and the fact that Argos vs. Ottawa is also on the same bill ought to nearly fill the big stadium.

Football enthusiasts will have a good chance to compare the class of football played in the O.R.F.U. and the Interprovincial by taking in Saturday's double-header. The Argo-Ottawa clash is called for 1.30 and the Orphan-Sarnia mix-up should commence at 3.30.

Wycliffe College held their annual track and field athletic meet at the Varsity Stadium yesterday afternoon. The weather conditions were entirely unsatisfactory, a cold drizzle prevailing. It handicapped the athletes considerably, slowed their times and shortened the distance of their jumps.

Agriculturalists Hope to Trim Their Hosts in Rugby Game

SAINTS FAVOURED TO WIN

The Ontario Agricultural College rugby club are the guests of St. Mike's to-day. The agriculturalists attack the Saints under the able coaching of Carl Voss, former star half-back of Queen's. The visitors are quite confident of their ability to administer a trimming to their hosts. Nevertheless the Saints are favoured to win as a result of their walk-over victory with Osgoode Hall when the score ended 38 to 1. The O.A.C. bunch are not relying on an earned reputation of hard hitting plungers, but expect to upset the dogs with the machine-like actions of a perfectly coached team.

NEBRASKA ABOLISHES STUDENT MANAGEMENT

Special to "The Varsity"
Lincoln, Neb.—A recent action of the athletic board of the University of Nebraska has abolished the system of student management of athletics. Positions of management which were earned for the present season will be allowed but will be discontinued hereafter.

The reason for the action of the athletic board is that better responsibility and closer supervision of equipment will be possible if the managers are hired directly by the athletic department. The system of student management is used almost universally in eastern schools but is not very widely used in the west.

VARISITY TEAM IS PROMISING

Intercollegiate Tennis Trophy Should Stay with Varsity for Another Year

TWO NEWCOMERS ON TEAM

This afternoon at 1.30 the tennis team of the University of Toronto leaves for Kingston to take part in the Intercollegiate championships which are to be held the last three days of this week at Queen's.

The team which is representing Varsity this year is composed of two men who have been on it for the last three years, Walter Martin and Don Gunn, and in addition two newcomers in the persons of Art Balfour and Bill Noyes.

Last year Varsity won the championship for the first time in seven years. Up till that time the cup rested at McGill mainly through the prowess of Dr. Jack Wright and Willard Crocker.

Walter Martin is the No. 1 man on the Varsity team, and he is already being favoured by many to win the title. Martin was the tenth ranking player in Canada last year, and on this year's play he should be much higher. His play all season has been of very high calibre and in all the tournaments in which he has played he has shown up very well. At the Ontario championship he defeated Gilbert Nunn in the round before the semi-finals. Martin will play with Gunn in the doubles, and this team is going to take a lot of beating regardless of who is there.

Don Gunn, the second man on the team, is ranked No. 6 in Ontario. His tournament record this year is also very impressive, having scored a very notable victory over Willard Crocker and having close games with Gilbert Nunn and Dr. Art Ham. Gunn is sure to have an excellent chance to win the title.

Art Balfour has captured the third place on the team and his play has been sensational. With Walter Martin he won the Western Canada doubles title and he has been improving steadily since coming last.

Bill Noyes is the fourth member of the squad and he is another who should score many valuable points for Varsity. Paired with Balfour in the doubles they should make a strong team and one that will make any pair work to win.

McGill's chief threat is Charlie Leslie, who is back studying law, while Brian

ACTION OF VICTORIA STUDENTS JUSTIFIED BY LETTER RECEIVED

Distinctive Item of Dress Authorized by Caput and S.A.C.

SKULL CAP OR TIE
Badge is Also Allowed But This Privilege Not Used

When interviewed by "The Varsity" concerning any action of Victoria College following the ejection of certain first year students from a lecture because they were wearing yellow ties, Mr. R. L. Fredenburg, President of the Victoria College Students' Parliament, said yesterday that the matter was in the hands of the President of Victoria College.

He produced what he said he thought was ample justification for the enforced wearing of ties by freshmen, in the form of a letter written to the Students' Parliament of Victoria College, dated September 27, 1926.

The letter called the attention of the President of the Parliament to "a resolution adopted by the Joint Committee of the Caput and the Students' Administrative Council at a meeting held April 26th, 1926, at which applications from the colleges and faculties were permitted to require members of the freshman-year to wear special items of dress."

The resolution reads as follows:—"That a distinctive item of dress will be permitted to designate the members of the incoming freshman year, if such is desired. Any such distinctive item of dress must take the form of either a tie or skull cap, but not both. In the event of any faculty or college student body deciding upon a tie as the distinctive item of dress, such tie must be of standard shape and size as commonly worn. It shall not have painted on it any special design or name but shall be such a colour or colours as may be decided by the governing student organization of any college or faculty. A small badge not exceeding two inches on the largest dimension upon which may be inscribed the name and home address of the member wearing it shall be permitted if desired."

Swimming Club Makes Plunge

Since the adoption of the international rules last spring by the Intercollegiate team, the Swimming Club has made the plunge in the Interfaculty series. In the first year, all players are at the same end of the tank, the beginners' end, and any special development will be easily noted. So this year particularly new men will have a chance to come up to the big teams. There are three of them now, the Intercollegiate and the newly formed City League teams, which means that there are many more positions to be filled.

The Interfaculty series will be starting in a week or so now, so the team should be out practising individually. Regular practice hours will be assigned soon and Interfaculty managers will be responsible for their men turning out.

MED. FRESHETTES ARE INITIATED

Heavy Hands Are Laid Upon Unfortunate Delinquents Before Visitors

SPECIAL PENALTIES IMPOSED

On Tuesday evening the Med freshies were very strenuously initiated into the faculty. Special penalties were dealt out to delinquents, but every member of the class had a rough time at the hands of the girls of the second year. The Undergrad Association and a few guests, including Dr. Gladys Boyd, Honorary President, enjoyed the suffering of the unfortunate first year, and in addition two clever skits—Alphabetic Tragedy, acted by the first year, and an original melodrama of the far North by the sophomores.

KNOX DEFEAT TRINITY

The Knox College soccer team met and defeated Trinity yesterday afternoon in their first game, the score being 3 to 2. The field being heavy and the ball wet, the game was naturally slow, so that no team showed up at its best. Trinity showed far better combination in their attacks than Knox, the play of the latter being noticeably weak in the first half.

Trinity led the play in the first half, the score at half time being 2 to 1 in favour of Trinity. However, Knox took the play to the Trinity end and kept it there for the final period, registering four of the many shots tried. Skelton and "Doug" Davidson netted two apiece and Macdonald one for Knox.

The players were as follows:
Trinity: Goal, Findlater; full backs, Chapple, Hadley; half backs, Sinfeld, Douglas, Ryan; forwards, Wong, MacPherson, Gunn, Hudson, Phillips; spare, Carpenter.
Knox: Goal, Irving; full backs, H. Davidson, W. Jack; half backs, Mc-seem to have no regard for those who want to work. A great deal of this is, of course, due to thoughtlessness, but other people should not have to suffer.

But destructive criticism is useless; let me make a few suggestions. The Librarian on duty should eject immediately any student making any unnecessary noise whatever. If a few were thrown out in this manner, the rest would soon learn. Students should be made to use the main corridor in going in to the delivery desk and thus not make a corridor out of the reading room. The general rule seems to be, to come in the reading room, hang up hat and coat, go to the desk for a book and then return, making three times that the student clatters across the floor instead of once. Then in this connection would it not be possible to have some other accommodation for coats and hats than the reading room itself?

The library should be a quiet place, not a social centre.

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:
I read a great deal in your paper this morning about a certain Dr. Slattery of the Religion Knowledge Department. I am engaged in writing a book entitled, "What the Well-understood Man Will Wear," or "The Evolution of Evolution from Evolution to Religion." It is with the department of Religion Knowledge of University College that Dr. Slattery is connected? I think he could help me in writing my book.

Ginity Justice Meted Out To Editor Court Spectacle Impresses Monkey

(By L. J. R.)

My pet monkey John Millington Singe and I were walking home the other night after a hard day's labour on the part of one member of the party. The professors in Commerce and Finance certainly work the monkeys hard.

When we were walking past the Back Campus there was a rugby game going on and we had great difficulty in keeping John Millington's attention distracted from the spectacle lest he forget himself and suffer a throw back to the days when he and his fellow apes battled in forest tangles for the Jungle Jug. To keep him looking the other way we alighted at length on the glories of Wycliffe's architecture and seeing a light in the office of "The Varsity" we sang for J. M.'s benefit: The Varsity office is functioning. Affairs are quiet and stable. The reporters are merrily typewriting. And Hugh is under the table.

Just when we had finished this lyric the bells of Ginity College began to ring. John M. wept bitterly as he thought of his misguided past. His eyes gleamed, he dragged us towards the venerable pile and to our horror he cast off his clothes apparently in preparation for an active return to his prehistoric vocation of tree jumping. "Shame on you, John Millington!" we cried, "where is your taste in architecture? Have you forgotten your Ruskin? That is not the jungle. That is Ginity College. It is in imitation of Ginity College, Dublin."

But J. M. was not to be deterred from the goal of his desire. He rushed to enter Ginity, goal of his dreams. "What do you want in there, stupid?" we asked. "No one in there speaks your language but R. T. H. and he is too busy reading Eugene Field." But when he led me in, an astounding scene met our eyes.

A court was in full session. Stern faced judges sat around the wall and listened to witnesses who deposed solemnly after kissing the Life of Bishop Strachan. The evidence concluded, a grim personage on the bench addressed a wretched creature who was cowering in the dock. "Editor of the Varsity, you are called upon for the last time to apologise for your failure to bootlick the College Meeting. Apologise at once or you will be forced to proreod the galleys of the Ginity University Review." The culprit, refusing, was taken out to torture. Hours later the court officers dragged him back, a broken man.

"Editor," said the terrible jurist, "apologise or your paper will never be read again by any one in this College except the Evangelicals." The defendant quivered and a low sob escaped him but he did not flinch.

"Editor," said the Chief Justice (loaned by Victoria for the occasion), "apologise or report to Mr. Hadley for immediate service on the soccer team." There was a wild cry: the victim apologised.

The anti-Hydro-anti-Johnson Hicks, anti-Lloyd pro corporatists celebrated their victory in a special edition of Torontotensis.

As it would be almost impossible to do it with full scenery, it will probably have to be done partly in curtains on the bare stage. This is difficult, as evidenced in "Romeo and Juliet," but we have faith in Hart House.

There is also a Canadian bill, but we have no details. It should be fairly good, as Hart House can usually obtain the best Canadian short plays.

FROSH-SOPH BANQUET HELD AT HART HOUSE

He ended with some complimentary remarks on Hart House. Lastly Prof. MacAndrew, the new Registrar of U.C., made a short address. Though hampered by a cold, he generally promised his willing aid to freshmen and told them not to confine their acquaintance to the sterner sex. He ended with a tribute to his predecessor in the registrar's office.

Mr. Henry then announced the result of first year elections:

Asst. Secretary of the U.C. Literary and Athletic Society—Bill Magee (acclamation).

ST. MIKE'S FROSH FINED ONE DOLLAR BY COURT and Mr. V. Egan all declared that they had worn no ties and that they had never been approached on the subject.

Mr. White, another of the freshmen, said he had worn the tie for a time but it had brought no immunity from personal indignities.

To the former Mr. Mahon remarked (in Latin) that ignorance of the law was no excuse. The entire freshman year were found guilty and fined one dollar. Some members had paid before, and the rest had to come forward and pay on the spot.

Officer O'Shea gave evidence against a disturbance on the college campus, in a voice that more than hinted at Irish birth and parentage. He even produced a wine bottle which could not have been empty more than six months. After some questioning by the learned attorneys this charge fell flat, as did the charge that three members of the class attended the frosh dance without permission from the Council. Mr. Anderson of first year, while giving the conclusive evidence which abolished the charge of so-called cradle snatching, accidentally admitted his attendance without permission. His was one of the few individual convictions.

The proceedings are now regarded in the light of a somewhat expensive joke on the first year. No one could be found who would explain the disposal of the fines collected.

COLLEGE DISCIPLINE AT TRINITY

In Trinity, the ancient home of downtrodden freshmen, as in other colleges on the campus, it is rumoured that the supposedly lowly first year has rebelled. According to a member of the first year at the Anglican College, already six members of 372 have left residence rather than submit to the restrictions imposed on them by their seniors.

The dissatisfaction, however, does not seem to be confined to the freshman year. Several graduates and other senior men when interviewed by "The Varsity," expressed great regret at the failure of the freshmen to fall in with college traditions as they found them. General criticism of those responsible for college discipline was ex-

PROF. WRONG STARTED HISTORICAL CLUB TWENTY-THREE YEARS AGO

Political and Educational Ideas As Well As Historical Subjects Are Discussed

MEMBERSHIP LIMITED

Ex-President Taft Entertained At The One Hundredth Meeting of the Club

This is the second of a series of articles dealing with the history of undergraduate organizations in the University of Toronto.

The University of Toronto Historical Club was founded in 1905 by Prof. G. M. Wrong and has met continuously since then with the exception of the period during the war. The meetings of the club are held eight times a year at private houses, where discussions are held not only on historical but even political and educational subjects having historical backgrounds. Usually two papers are read introducing the subjects from different points of view with a discussion following.

In 1914, at the close of the year's work, the club entertained ex-President Taft of the United States, who delivered the principal address. This was on the occasion of the celebration of the one hundredth meeting of the club. Since then, it has been customary to have as speaker once a year some distinguished man from political or educational circles.

The policy of the club is to limit the membership to twenty-five a year. All vacancies are filled by third and fourth year students elected by the outgoing members. Membership in the club under these conditions is open to students of any faculty.

At the first meeting this year, the subject for discussion will be "The attitude of this club toward the possibility of the election of A. L. Smith as president of the United States."

SUPERCILIOUS SOPHOMORES FROWN UPON FREAK FROSH

Self-satisfaction is Universal Trait of Second Year Student

Special to "The Varsity"
Winnipeg, Man.—"The Manitoban" describes the sophomore: "In every university he is to be seen, and everywhere he is to be known by the supercilious smile of superiority bedewing his countenance, by the little bit of fluff (or is it dirt?) underneath his nose, and by his attitude towards the freshman. He looks upon the freshman as he does upon the worm of the field, crawling upon its belly at the main prize to embrace all mankind in a warm, welcoming smile. The sophomore does not realize that but a few short months ago he himself was just a freak of nature very much like the freshman. Ah! me, how short is the memory of man. O tempora, O mores!"

The sophomore is the sort of person who would walk into class late. By all means must he maintain his "savoir faire," by all means must he display to the freshman his absolute indifference as regards lectures.

The size of the freshman is, of course, very small in the eyes of the sophomore. The sophomore ponders on these things, and wonders why it is that year after year the size of the university student is becoming smaller and smaller. His year is the last to produce any real giants, both intellectual and physical.

Fortunately for the sophomore, he is at the university as such for but a year. He has yet time to be saved. May the peace of Allah go with him on his journey through second year.

Oxford University Women Must Preserve Silence

It is considered a breach of etiquette for Oxford University women to talk on the streets with Oxford men. British newspapers recently have been commenting on the shocking manner in which Oxford students are beginning to disregard this tradition.

SETTLEMENT WORK VIEWED BY MANY Activities Range from Boxing Gloves to Music Lessons

VOLUNTEERS APPRECIATED

Another University activity was much in the limelight yesterday when several score of students visited the University Settlement during the tea hours between four and six. Many entered the roomy House doubtful, if not ignorant, of the type of work carried on, but by the time for departure all were unanimously enthusiastic.

The Happy Hearts and Marigolds, wee girls of five and six, took great pleasure in entertaining several men students at a tea party. The boxing gloves in readiness for the boys' night club proved an attraction, while the numerous pianos in use in different parts of the House gave indication of the much needed cultural work being done in the district.

It is interesting to learn that Conservatory teachers give lessons at the Settlement for the small sum of twenty-five cents. The thousands of children passing through the library monthly exhibited such interest that the department was taken over by the Public Library. The Club System flourishes with twenty-two groups ranging in years from five to seventy-five.

Varied interests are found at all times in the Settlement. Volunteer help from University students is much appreciated. Personal contacts are found most helpful on both sides. The Settlement's main purpose is to be with student help, a real neighbour within the neighbourhood.

WORLD PEACE IS THE GOAL OF CHURCHES

International Alliance Fostered League of Nations

PROMOTES FRIENDSHIP

Before a fair sized gathering in the Hart House Lecture Room, Captain Geary, V.C., yesterday afternoon delivered an address on the International Alliance and its efforts towards world peace.

He traced the history of this organization of the Christian churches of the world from its birth out of the idea that it was the duty of Christians to promote international friendship, to its place in the world to-day. It was formally organized in August, 1914, close to the outbreak of the war. During the war of course, it could do very little, but afterwards it was very largely instrumental in bringing into being the league of nations and it fostered that organization in the days of its infancy. "It is to-day the

CANADA SHOULD NOT BE A SECOND-EDITION OF ENGLISH IDEAS

'American' Referred to North American World, Canadian As Well As Yankee

VIEWS POORLY EXPRESSED

Physical Features of a Country Are Bound to Influence Its Culture

"I am sorry that the article didn't express my views very clearly," stated Morley Callaghan in an interview last night, commenting on the report in "The Varsity" of his address to the Newman Club. "It had nothing to do with patriotism, nor was I defending literature written in the slang of the United States. When I used the word 'American' I referred to the whole North American world, to which the Canadian belongs just as much as the Yankee. I am interested in developing a purely American civilization of our own. I don't agree with those whose idea of Canada is to make it a second-edition of England."

Mr. Callaghan expressed the opinion that the culture of a country was bound to be influenced largely by its physical nature. The ideal was to strive for a natural expression of its life without trying to emulate anyone.

In the England following the Norman conquest it had been fashionable to be French. But the Normans had broken away from this and developed the characteristically Anglo-Saxon culture which had given us the wonderful literature of Elizabethan England.

In Ireland the revival in the last fifty years had produced a literature that was characteristic of the Irish imagination and was certainly not Anglo-Saxon in tradition although written in English.

In the past it had been fashionable for Canadian painters to study in England and then come back and paint Canada in terms of English landscapes, thus giving an entirely wrong impression.

In America life was necessarily on a different basis from this in England. Our words, our interests, our sports were all characteristically American. To illustrate this Mr. Callaghan pointed out that we always spoke of an "elevator," never of a "lift." We played rugby rather than cricket. Why then try to express this in terms of English life?

The University as far as the student body was concerned was, he thought, American. Only in ideals did it strive to be English. Why was the effort made? Why not rather search for an expression of American life? Why not study contemporary American authors and poets rather than English ones?

"The point is," concluded Mr. Callaghan, "to accept this North American world, its way of living, its swing of life, and to try to make the best of it and write in terms of it."

Yellow Journalism to be Discussed at First Hart House Debate

Yellow journalism, often regarded as a mark of the modern press, is due for a thorough discussion at the first of the Hart House debates this year, to be held on Wednesday evening, October 31. The subject under discussion will be: "Resolved that in the opinion of this house the modern press has a demoralizing influence on society."

ANNUAL INITIATIONS STILL IN VOGUE IN MEN'S RESIDENCES

May Not Be So Vigorous But Still as Whole-hearted as in Former Years

NOT CONSIDERED HAZING

Residence Men Not So Rigidly Restricted by Government Ruling

Is hazing that relic of the barbaric ages of University life—still carried on in the University of Toronto? Following the Caput's edict of two years ago, sophomores of the various faculties are said to have been forced to watch uninitiated freshmen flaunt their freshness unrestrained.

In the University men's residences, not the University College residence as erroneously stated in yesterday's "Varsity," the ruling of the governing body is less rigidly observed. There, annual initiations are carried out, perhaps not as vigorously, but quite as whole-heartedly as in former years.

Each of the three men's residences has its own initiation; in addition to that there are informal hazing parties held throughout the first term. Last Monday evening, as reported in yesterday's "Varsity," South House freshmen served as messenger boys to North House and to East House. Lacking uniforms, they travelled in nature's costume. Cardboard boxes constituted the only personal adornments of the two ambassadors to North House, while the two delegates to East House returned attired in coats of paint.

Upper classmen of the residences claim that these duties imposed on first year men cannot be called hazing, as they are accepted voluntarily. Owing to the organization of the students in residence, however, it would be very ill-advised for any "frosh" to refuse to volunteer his services for any allotted tasks. Each residence houses from forty to fifty inmates, who assemble regularly to discuss house affairs, and to deal with any unbecoming conduct. It is considered fitting for freshmen to be humble. To ensure proper behaviour, each house has a standing vigilante committee that keep track of "cocky" newcomers who need taping.

One senior in East House indignantly remarked that the men's residences were quite capable of managing their own affairs. "Our freshmen take their medicine in very good part," he said, "and never yet has there been a protest from any of them."

George McGillivray, president of the Students' Administrative Council, was greatly amused by the escapades of Monday evening. Asked if he would consider the treatment meted to the frosh as "hazing," he replied "I certainly think the Caput would." The S.A.C., he stated, took no action in cases of this kind unless a complaint was made.

debate as representative members of the editorial staffs of the city newspapers have agreed to take part in the discussion. The debate will be opened, in accordance with the practice established last year, by a single undergraduate speaker, who will move the subject. He will be followed by as many speakers from the floor of the house as wish to speak.

NOISE IN LIBRARY IS DUE TO CROWDS

Increased Daily Attendance Will Make New Building Necessary

STUDENTS BACK LIBRARIAN

On being interviewed by "The Varsity," Mr. Wallace, the University Librarian, expressed the opinion that on the whole the library was quiet and that anyone who wished to study could do so without being disturbed too much.

Most of the noise in the library is due to the coming and going of the students. This noise can be lessened, as Mr. Wallace points out, by the students reading the notice on the reading room door and following the instructions printed there. This notice is a request that the students use the hallway to the delivery desk instead of using the reading room as a passageway.

It has been suggested in recent correspondence in "The Varsity" that a cloak room which is separate from the reading room be provided for the students' use. Mr. Wallace points out that unless there was an attendant for such a cloak room there would always be the danger of theft, and that the students did not seem to mind having the cloak room and reading room combined.

Mr. Wallace says the chief problem of the library is not that it is so noisy but that there is overcrowding as the number of students who use the library daily has greatly increased, so that a new building will soon be needed. A number of students interviewed gave their opinions:

N. D. Graham, 370 Arts: "I think that the noise in the library could be eliminated by having a separate cloak room and permanently closing the door of the reading room."

F. W. Burton, 370 U.C.: "The library never impressed me as very silent, but I always took this as an unavoidable evil consequent on the presence of large numbers of active students."

A. H. Squires, 371, U.C.: "The library seems comparatively silent to the number of students that find it necessary to come in at their convenient hours. In order to avoid any noise regular hours would be necessary for both students coming in and going out. D. R. Meredith, 4 U.C.: "I think it rather a beastly shame the way some of the fellows raise such a jolly row. I know I wouldn't think of working here or making a pretence of doing so, but I can obtain the essential reference works in no other place."

Frosh: Considering the number of people using the place, I think that the reading room is comparatively quiet, and had one the desire or impulse to work he could probably succeed despite the average commotion in the room.

Ties not imposed by hard and fast ruling

'FINES' WERE FEES

Sophs needed support of graduate

Characterizing as "a misrepresentation" "The Varsity's" report of the St. Michael's College Frosh Concert and the so-called "impromptu students' court," Mr. V. Egan, President of the First Year at St. Mike's, said yesterday: "There was nothing to it. The whole thing was part of the evening's entertainment." On being questioned regarding the fines alleged to have been imposed, he declared that the word "fine" was merely a humorous appellation for the fee which each freshman was required to pay in order to defray the expense of the evening's refreshments.

Mr. Colin Flanagan, a member of the first year, who claimed that he had been "behind the scenes" on Monday night and had seen "the whole thing," protested that nobody at St. Michael's had thought anything about the matter and that all had been genuinely surprised when confronted with the account in "The Varsity."

Mr. Egan, on being pressed, admitted that a few of the freshmen rather short on a sense of humour might have been slow to appreciate some of the jokes in the affair, but insisted that the best spirit had prevailed throughout. He pointed out, further, that the various names mentioned in the account—referring particularly to that of Mr. Donohue, who presided—were those of graduates of St. Michael's College. "These gentlemen merely came over to help out with the proceedings," he said. "As for the 'trial' itself, it was really nothing more than the old-fashioned 'mock-trial'."

Asked about the alleged statement of Mr. Donohue that "either the charges must then and there be dealt with or the matter must come before the students' court," Mr. Egan smilingly replied that it had been taken as a sly allusion to the much-advertised students' court at Victoria.

As to neckwear, it was stressed by Mr. Egan that, although blue ties were clad by sophs to men of the first year and were worn by some of the latter in residence, there was no hard-and-fast tradition about it as in some of the other colleges. In fact, so confused had been one freshman upon being asked why he wore the tie, that he had defended himself by declaring that it was because he had on a dirty collar.

The other charges brought against the freshmen by the "prosecution" were likewise purely imaginary, according to Mr. Egan. As to the "blue-bulk" of Officer O'Shea, Mr. O'Shea was the father of one of the "boys" who by his presence lent weight to the sportive proceedings.

Occupational Therapy

Hold Initiations

Shrieks that could be heard from Avenue Road to Spadina attended the initiations of the freshmen in Occupational Therapy. The paths of glory lead but to the grave. After walking blindfolded over sticky paper and crusts the freshmen realized this when they were forced to touch the face of monarch long dead. Although numbered two to one, the sophs were able to hold their own. Dancing and refreshments brought the evening to a close.

THE BATTLE OF THE YEARS

At the beginning of this year the freshmen seemed to have taken advantage of the strict regulations governing initiations to defy the enforcement of the traditional customs laid down by the various colleges and faculties. But in reviewing the season's hostilities, we must conclude that the sophomores have obtained at least a tie verdict.

The first year warriors made a strong beginning under the inspiring leadership provided by the class of '32 at Victoria College. While this class undoubtedly contains three of the freshest freshmen that ever trod the campus, it compels our admiration in the way it routed its superiors for a time. The vanguard of the freshest not only excelled the sophomores in jui jitsu but led the foolish-wise ones on wild goose chases through the city and upset the dignity of The Court.

Their example led the freshmen of University College to cast off their red and white cravats. This success however must be attributed less to their own daring than to the difficulty of identifying them owing to their large numbers. After the Honourable A. Wood and his confreres had collected the two and a quarter from the newcomers, they seem to have become seized with a certain lethargy which resulted in laxity of discipline. Such sophomores as still felt the urge to go places and do things to freshmen are reported to have concentrated their energy in cutting off the ties of Victoria freshmen.

But there the flood of freshman freedom seems to have ebbed. Fines were imposed at Victoria. Six freshmen of the first year at Trinity College are said to have left the residence rather than submit to the restrictions imposed by their seniors. As a climax to the steps of retribution, freshmen have been sent out from the University of Toronto Residences to run errands without benefit of clothing. And as usual tapping flourished at good old S.P.S.

And now St. Michael's has punished the first year men who refused to wear the double blue collars and ties by fining each one a dollar. At this college the second year are so inferior numerically to the freshmen that second, third and fourth years must combine to effect discipline. This year the graduates had to be called in and the freshmen were dealt with by alumni now at Osgoode Hall, who were in search of legal experience.

All of which proves that the tradition of the "good old days" will not die out for a while anyway.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Regarding our recent discussion of the Rooters' Club, or the lack of one, we have received a letter signed "Optimist." This letter will be published when the writer of it sends us his name, address and faculty, not necessarily for publication. Its lengthy exposition of affairs at Cornell shows that the writer must have been there at some time or other, and will be indeed worth printing, if our correspondent will send in proof that he is a bona fide undergraduate.

Art, Music and Drama

"Modesty," a translation of Hervey's comedy, was produced by Paul Gardner at the Players' Guild yesterday. It was well acted and directed, but nevertheless that something was lacking that makes a good performance. The fundamental obstacle in the way of such a production is the difference in nationality between the author and the director. The play is distinctly Gaelic in situation and treatment, and was intended for Gaelic audiences; and it is difficult for English actors to catch the lightness, the verve, which characterizes French comedy. Without this touch the play becomes a rather obvious affair suffering in spots from bad translation and dull dialogue; and not even the excellent make-up of Earl Fauman, as Albert, could convince the audience that the play was typically French. James Knyts gave his usual excellent performance as Jaques, the successful suitor, and Jean Dow was fascinating as Henriette, the widow.

The Table Round

H. F. Mullett is the writer of a satirical article on "Be a Reporter" in the September issue of the Canadian Bookman. He opines that the following is not the ideal procedure for a reporter:

"Have I the pleasure of addressing Honourable Mr. Blank? This is Reginald Flatface speaking of the Daily Bawl. There are a few questions I wish to submit to you, Sir, on behalf of my paper."

On which the genial potentate is supposed to send his secretary down with a gilt-edged invitation to pink tea at 4 p.m. . . .

Among the new fiction books at the Hart House library, two of the most popular ones with students are Death Comes for the Archbishop by Villa Cather and The Bridge of San Luis Ray by Thornton Wilder.

If the letter of Quartus in reference to the comparative lack of quietness and study at the University library had come in April or May it might have been more attractive.

One of the questions asked Professor J. McCabe, called "the most learned man of to-day," was "What do you think of Canadian literature?" He said, "I never have heard of it."

Mr. S. I. Krieger, a mathematician from Hamburg, has been offered a quarter of a million for his improved system of logarithms for bulky fractions but he is holding out for a million. We would gladly advance the million if he could set forth an unassailable basis for a one-plus-one-equals-two interpretation of Plato, Shakespeare, Moliere, Wordsworth, Rousseau, etc.

In the Century magazine for September a letter appeared written by a certain W.K. and expressed the following on "bookish" professors:—

"My own experience as an undergraduate had proved to me that the college student reacts to stimulation, whereas cold erudition leaves him unawakened. He would like to like literature, but as it is presented to him by the rather bored and supercilious university professor, a man speaking bookishly of one book with opinions acquired from another, it is as lifeless and without colour as last year's rose leaves. The professor's enthusiasm, gone far ahead into the field of research, can show no interest in the simpler aspects of the subject which must be presented to the majority of his classes. The very simplicity annoys him, and although he presents his facts precisely and correctly, he fails to re-activate and colour them."

Whether this applies to English classes in the University of Toronto or not is problematic, but it certainly should not apply to the teaching of American literature—at least if Morley Callaghan is to be believed.

This column will be devoted to literary notions either in prose or verse. Contributions are invited, including any Student Verse such as was formerly run in a separate column. Send c/o The Table Round.

Honour Science Club Plans
Hike if Weather Favourable

If the gods of sunshine overcome the depressing influence of their gloomy brothers and smile to-day, the Honour Science Club will hold their first hike on record. A special car will await the earnest scientists at the corner of College and McCaul, and promptly at a quarter to five will proceed east and north to Sunnybrook Farm. Since this is an innovation for the club, great interest is being shown by the members of all years, and a large turn-out is expected.

BALLAD

He was a lad of common sense
And salutary knowledge,
Who acted in the present tense
And came down to the college.

Now, college dons are very wise
But college boys are better—
So college frosh must all wear ties
Provided by the latter.

He didn't care for ties at all,
He wouldn't wear one, ever—
He went about the college hall
With insolent endeavour.

He claimed that ties and such were bunk,
All idealistic stuff—
And this disciplinary junk
Was another form of guff.

But they took him and they shook him
And they made him wear his tie—
So he wore it lest they hook him,
Sadly disillusioned guy.

Then they threw him out of classes
For his sanguinary tie—
And the structure of the masses
Would forever pass him by.

But there come a compensation
As we hear the sophomore say—
For this seeming degradation
Cannot help but pass away.

And leave behind the golden mean
Where angels' voices quiver—
And softly flows a golden stream
The elevating river.

This may sound like lefty thinking
And sentimental hokey—

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Billy Bell and Charlie Baillie look like sure starters on the backfield for the Orphans this Saturday. This will be the first game in which this pair have worked together. If the two turn in a real good game there is a chance that they will get an opportunity to face the Tricolours here on the 27th.

In last night's practice Bell showed some real fine work and made some big gains against the Intercollegiates. This boy seems to have a sure pair of mitts and that is one of the primary qualifications for a half. Any lad who can hold on to the ball will be a welcome addition to the Blue backfield, and will help to take a considerable load of worry from the coach's shoulders.

Hallam, who after a shaky start against McGill came back and turned in a nice game, should improve immensely in his next effort. The first home game was an unfortunate time to make any breaks, but a good performance against Queen's will make the fans forget all about past errors.

MEDS WIN SOCCER GAME 2-0 S.P.S. WIN BY DEFAULT

Last night's soccer game, played out on the front campus, places Meds at the head of their league so far. In the first half Whitlock of Meds scored a goal, which hinted that they were the better team. Again in the last half Meds showed their superiority when King added another point, making the final score 2-0.

S.P.S. won last night's game of soccer from Dents by default. There was a full turn out of S.P.S. men in spite of the rain.

Managers Requested to Have Teams on Field Promptly

The Committee of Management asks all managers to have their football teams on the field ready to play at 4.15 so that games may commence at 4.30 sharp. If games are to be completed before dark it is essential that they commence on time.

Managers are also reminded that they must hand game reports in at the Athletic Office within twenty-four hours after the game has been played. A separate report is required for each team. Managers should also have a list of players ready to hand to the head linesman before game time.

The Committee desires to have games played under the best possible conditions and will appreciate any co-operation from managers and teams which will permit referees to call games on time.

Fencing Meeting Called

It has been decided by the Intercollegiate representatives to include the three weapons, foil, epee and sabre, in the Annual Meet which will be held at Queen's this year. For this reason the team will be increased to five men instead of two as in the past. There will be a meeting held in the Fencing Room at 5 o'clock Thursday and all anticipating trying for a place are asked to turn out.

Muddy Field and Uneven Play

SCORE 23-0

Varsity Intermediates defeated Osgoode Hall yesterday afternoon 23-0 in a somewhat slow and unexciting game on the back campus. The field was very muddy and the ball-carriers had a great deal of trouble keeping track of the ball.

Bailey and Jackson for the winners played well considering the nature of the field. Osgoode looked very inexperienced and with more practice they would provide much better opposition.

Varsity got their first touchdown when Legate recovered a loose ball. This was not converted, Jackson kicked to the deadline for Varsity's next point.

Sullivan plunged through for the next touch in the third quarter. A short while later Beckett secured a loose ball and ran for another touch.

Millman and Harkins were forced to rouge in short order and Varsity ended their scoring when Dickson ran 35 yards for another touch. Osgoode held well for the duration of the game.

Intercollegiates and Orphans Work Well Despite Weather

Despite the greasy field and bad weather the two senior squads held a stiff scrimmage practice at the stadium last night.

After the usual signal practice "Les" Blackwell and "Jimmy" Douglas lined up their boys and sent them to it. In spite of the slippery ball and bad footing the backfields made a good showing. Both lines opened up for the ball carriers, with the Orphans tearing through the Intercollegiate for long gains. The new half-line combinations were working in shifts. Bell and Baillie, lining up with the Orphans and also the Firsts, fitted in nicely. Hallam worked out at quarter towards the end of the practice and had the team going at top speed.

ORGANIZATION OF WOMEN'S BADMINTON CLUB AT UNION

Aid University College Women in Becoming Acquainted with Other Years

The suggestion of forming a Women's Badminton Club attracted girls from all years to a meeting at U.C. Women's Union Tuesday noon. The interest shown in starting this new club gave promise of its being a success. Out of many nominations, Audrey Wilson, IV year, was elected president, and Laura Waring, IV year, secretary-treasurer.

The assembly room at the Union is a good spot for the court and has already been used other years by some graduates. Taking into consideration the fact that the room is open for the use of women students at any time, it was felt no specified time should be set aside for use of the court. The fee asked will be merely enough to pay for the "birds," unless the club becomes famous enough to take up a page in "Torontoensis."

As yet the club has no ambitions further than that it give the women at University College a chance to get acquainted with members of the various years. Too few clubs of this sort are open for U.C. women and they should take advantage of any chance of joining up with one. Any new members will be heartily welcomed, and the more the merrier!

Dreary Drizzle Dampens Tennis Tournament

The daily drizzle has somewhat dampened the spirits of the women tennis enthusiasts who have been endeavouring to complete their final games before the first round of the Interfaculty meet.

The tourney has now been postponed until Monday next, but if the weather permits will then get away to a good start.

Last year the championship was won by St. Hilda's College, who are again entering a team of splendid calibre. There is every indication that the Saints will meet with much rivalry as each college is represented by a team of fine material.

O.A.C. PLAYER SERIOUSLY INJURED DURING GAME

The first injury of a serious nature reported so far in University rugby occurred yesterday afternoon in the game between Guelph and St. Michael's College when John Hewer, kicking and running backfield for O.A.C., sustained a fracture just above the ankle. The cracking of the bones, which could be heard across Rosedale field, occurred when Hewer was tackled, and was purely accidental. Hewer was rushed to the General Hospital.

The incident demoralized the play and is said to have played no small part in the final score.

 largest supporter of the league," said the captain.
 "The alliance meets occasionally," went on the captain, "in some large city. Representatives of every Christian church assemble and services are attended at various churches. The strength of the alliance generally impresses itself in this way. Then a general meeting is held in some large hall and international matters frankly discussed. In this way many matters are threshed out which would be impossible in the league."
 "The chief obstacle to the Christian abolition of war is the race passion which arises in a crisis," concluded the captain.

Captain Geary won the Victoria Cross for conspicuous bravery on Hill Sixty in 1915. He held this hill against a counter-attack of the German forces when he was the only surviving officer.

CORRESPONDENCE

The Woman Who Smoked Alone

Editor, "The Varsity."
 Dear Sir:

Recently in your columns articles on the matter of smoking by the co-eds of the University of Toronto have appeared. This matter has been fairly well discussed without my humble opinion. However, an incident occurred in a lecture to-day which rather proves the point of those who claim there is little public smoking done by the Toronto co-eds.

A young lady appeared in a trim suit in Baldwin House and from her pocket protruded a package of British Consuls. The disturbance this caused among the males was ludicrous. A quick stare, a chuckle, a whisper and then a laugh by those in the vicinity caused the young lady to wonder.

This is the first time I have witnessed a co-ed carrying cigarettes in lectures, and the stir it caused certainly proved it was an unusual sight.

Thanking you for your valuable space.
 Respectfully,
 Undergrad.

Norma Phillips Muir Advises
Would-be Writers Against Superfluous Detail

"Don't mention the sweet, silver-haired old lady's mauve gown, beautiful though it may be, unless it was caught on the clubhouse palings thereby proving that grandma was not home at the time the fire was on, and hence could not have started it in order to get the insurance money," said Norma Phillips Muir at Wymliwood last evening. Mrs. Muir was urging the avoidance of superfluous details by would-be writers. It was an excellent address on the "Short Story," at the second meeting of the Victoria Women's Vocational Conference.

She went on to emphasize the importance of the title, the introduction, the plot fabric and the characterization. Consistency was also absolutely necessary. The Englishman should not exclaim "Why bring that up," and the American should not call his father "Old Fruit."

Miss Winifred Barnstead, head of the new library school at O.C.E., spoke of the possibilities in library work. She especially emphasized the imminent opportunities in school libraries which would surely be opened in the near future, and special library work such as that in insurance companies.

Children's library work was the subject of a speech by Miss Lillian Smith, the head of the Boys' and Girls' House on St. George St.—the only thing of its kind in the British Empire. "It takes people with ideas and special abilities to make work in a children's room count," said Miss Smith, "but it is tremendously interesting, children's librarians being proverbially enthusiastic." The speaker told of various branches of the work being done in the children's sections.

Newspaper work was represented by Miss Lucy Doyle of the "Evening Telegram." Miss Doyle said that the opportunity for women on newspapers in Toronto was limited, but felt that

"UTILIZATIONS OF SCIENCE" SUBJECT OF DR. McLENNAN

Canada Keeps Pace With World's Progress in Science

"The University of Toronto, as far as research in Physics is concerned, needs to learn nothing from the universities of Germany," said Prof. McLennan at the opening meeting of the Mathematical and Physical Society yesterday. The members were entertained to tea in the Physics Building, after which they listened to an address by Prof. J. C. McLennan.

Dr. McLennan spoke on the subject of "The Utilizations of Science," stating that Germany, England and United States are making tremendous progress in the economic applications of science. "But Canada also," he went on, "due to the work of the National Research Council, is going to keep pace with the world's progress in science."

During his trip to Germany Prof. McLennan noted that the laboratories of that country have made as great progress since 1910. This was due to the great enthusiasm for research shown in Toronto.

ARCHITECTURE PROVIDES VAST FIELD FOR WOMEN

More Man Inadequate in Designing Perfect Homes for Women

A small portable Victrola, playing snappy dance-music from the running-board of one of a group of cars last Friday morning, announced to the world in general that the Architects were preparing to leave for their first all-day sketching party this fall. These delightful excursions into the country take place as often as possible during the fall. On this particular occasion the Architects were the guests of Mr. Fred Bridgen, President of the Ontario Society of Artists, at his country home north of Toronto. The morning and afternoon were spent among the nearby hills, where more or less authentic reproductions of autumn's loveliest scenes were brought forth with sketch-block and water-colours.

The course in Architecture includes a great deal of study of art and kindred subjects in its curriculum. It remains a mystery why more women have not been attracted to the course. It must certainly be more interesting than Mathematics and Physics in one year of which more women are enrolled than in the whole course in Architecture. It is not a supremely difficult course. It has lately been lengthened to five years, making each year a little easier and more interesting. The practical work in pure design and drawing occupies more than half the time, besides what is taken up with modelling, fresh drawing and water-colour painting. History of France and Italy and of Architecture as a whole, English, French, commerce and finance, architectural planning, and building construction are a few of the other subjects also studied.

There is a vast field for women in studying Architecture, to be able to understand design for their fellow-women, those perfect houses which are the dream of every housewife, and which no mere man has so far ever been able to design for her.

Two Official Views

In answer to criticism of student season tickets and the rooting of last Saturday, "The Varsity" has received the following letters from officials:

Editor, "The Varsity,"

Dear Sir:

In your issue of October 16th there appeared articles, letters and editorials, all of which seemed to have as their key-note, the lack of a certain something in connection with the student rooting at the Varsity-McGill game. In order to answer some of the criticism, which I trust was meant to be constructive, I should appreciate your giving me space for the following.

The Rooters' Club, as it has been known and has existed in the past, was organized to give the freshmen principally, and any other students who wished to attend, a chance to practice the yells, and in return for this interest in the University and in the rooting, all those who attended the practices were given a special rooster's ticket at a reduced rate.

Those in close connection with University affairs and athletics in particular, and who have been in a position to obtain accurate knowledge, have felt for some time that the student body as a whole were not dividing their support proportionately among the various sporting activities. In order, therefore, that each different sport should receive its fair share of enthusiasm and student backing, it was decided this year to adopt an idea which has been in force in other of our larger universities for some time. With this in view the combined students' athletic season ticket was issued at the very reasonable cost of only four dollars. This ticket provided the owner with admission to a central section at all the University athletic events which would take place at either the Stadium or the Arena. This meant that for the price of four dollars the student could attend the Senior Intercollegiate, the O.R.F.U., the Intermediate and Junior rugby games as well as the finals in the Mulock Cup series. Also, the Senior Intermediate and Junior hockey games including the final games in the Jennings Cup series and also the various track events. This students' season ticket was meant to take the place of the former rooster's ticket with this one difference that attendance at a rooster's practice was not required before a ticket could be obtained. In fact, the rooster's practices were done away with for this year in view of the fact that this whole ticket idea was in the experimental stages. To take the place, however, of the rooster's practices, a cheer leader's squad was organized and it was hoped that organized cheer-leading, coupled with the fact that the yells were being printed in the programme, would produce rooting which would be of credit to the team and the University.

Judging from the reports of several to whom the writer has spoken and who heard the rooting from the covered stand side, the cheering and rooting was quite up to last year's standard. In fact, the work of the cheer-leaders was reported as being highly commendable, and we feel that the head cheer-leader is to be congratulated in view of the fact that he was working out a new idea.

There was never the slightest intention from the very beginning on the part of either the Athletic Directorate or the Students' Council to confine the sale to this particular book of season tickets. As stated in all the advertisements and write-ups, this was a students' season ticket and no other student ticket as such would be sold. There is all the difference in the world, however, between a students' ticket and a ticket sold to students. In other words, any of those who did not wish to sit in the students' section were at perfect liberty to purchase regular tickets at the Athletic Office or at the down-town stores for each individual game.

As far as the skit at half-time is concerned, the initiative should originate with the student body. Any college or faculty may make application for the staging of such a skit, subject to the approval of the Students' Administrative Council and the Athletic Association. In view of the fact that this whole ticket idea and students' section is an experiment this year, we feel that under the circumstances the type of criticism was not warranted and that those who took part in the rooting, including the cheer-leaders, should be given nothing but praise for their earnest efforts.

A. Gordon Burns.

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

As there seems to be some misapprehension in regard to the students' season tickets for athletics, may I be allowed to make the following statement.

The ticket issued this year to cover all University athletic events at the Varsity Stadium and Varsity Arena was designed to provide the members of the student body with admission to all games at a reasonable figure and to provide student support for our teams. It was felt that to have all the students seated in adjacent sections would be an advantage over previous years, when the co-eds were separated from the men students, consequently two of the best sections in the concrete stand were set aside for these special students' tickets. Close upon eight hundred and fifty of these tickets have been sold. Last year the number of rooster's tickets sold was less than six hundred for rugby and twenty-seven for hockey.

For students, who did not wish to sit in this section, there was nothing to prevent them from buying the regular tickets, either by subscribing for season tickets or by buying for the individual games, when these tickets went on sale to the general public. It would have been impossible, and moreover, unfair discrimination, to have prevented any student from buying a ticket at the general sale. At the same time it might be pointed out that the tickets on sale for the individual games were far inferior to those provided for the holders of students' season tickets.

I trust this will help to clear up any misunderstanding that has arisen.

In so far as the location of the seats affected the cheering and the work of the cheer leaders, I personally feel the results were a distinct improvement on last year.

Yours very truly,
T. A. Reed,
Secretary, U. of T. A.A.

STUDENTS DON'T USE NEW PRIVILEGES

No Likelihood of University Libraries Being Open on Sunday

EXPERIMENT SUCCESSFUL

That the Public Reference Library is not used at all by students on Sunday, was the statement made by the Librarian there. It was pointed out, however, that students do not use the library very freely except in February and March. So far the Sunday opening has been very successful, although it is as yet only in an experimental stage. The reading room, open book shelves, open shelf of new books and current magazines, are open on Sunday. No lending is done from the desk. This is the custom practised in libraries which are open on Sundays in American cities. Students are welcome at any time to use the reading room while referring to library books but not to study their own notes on text books. It was felt that later in the year the University students would probably take advantage of the open reading room.

Mr. Wallace, Librarian of the University Library, on being questioned by "The Varsity" as to the likelihood of the University Library being open on Sunday, said the question had never been considered. He pointed out that public opinion and the Lord's Day Act would have to be taken into consideration if this were to be considered. It would also mean an addition to the library staff. He doubted whether the students would care to have the library open on Sundays, as under the present system they can borrow books for the entire week-end, whereas in the Public Reference Library no lending at all is done. Thus it is necessary for the reading room to be open to make the books available in any way on Sunday. Some American universities keep their libraries open on Sunday with apparent success but the demand has not yet risen here.

Professor McLaughlin, who had been a member of the Library Board at Victoria for some years, expressed the opinion that there was no demand for the library to be open on Sunday. The students are now privileged to borrow any books they wish for over Sunday, and these supplemented by the libraries in the residences have always filled the needs of the students over the week-end. He thought the fact that the Public Reference Library is open on Sunday very commendable, as it probably meets the needs of many who would otherwise find it impossible to use the library, but the stu-

NO DISTURBANCES CAUSED IN TORONTO BY THEATRE PARTIES

Aftermath of Raid at Queen's Has Sequel in Police Court, Where Students Are Fined

NO TROUBLE HERE

Prominent Bay Street Theatre Refuses to Sell Tickets to Large Groups

Theatre parties in the University of Toronto have been of a very orderly nature during the past few years at least, according to information received by "The Varsity" from various year presidents and past year presidents in Arts, Medicine and Engineering.

The question arose over an incident which occurred this week at Queen's University. An aftermath of a raid of 100 or more Queen's students on the Capitol Theatre, Kingston, had its sequel in police court the following day when three students were fined $5 each after they had pleaded guilty to being disorderly. The students rushed the theatre just as the crowd was lined up to buy tickets, occupied seats without paying admission, and in their mad rush did considerable damage to theatre property. The students will also be called upon to pay for the damage.

G. H. Hutton, President of the fifth year Medical students, when interviewed, stated: "I have not heard of any complaints from any local theatre managers regarding the conduct of students of University of Toronto at theatre parties. In recent years, at least, the general behaviour at such functions seems to have been above criticism and certainly no such episode has occurred as that of the Queen's students."

"Nothing of the nature of the Queen's event has occurred in Toronto, to my knowledge, for some time," said R. A. F. Anderson, President of fourth year U.C. "I understand that a few years ago a U.C. executive was refused tickets in a group by a downtown theatre management, owing to the disorderly conduct of certain S.P.S. students who had previously

THE LETTERS ON PAGE ONE

Our readers will appreciate the careful and detailed statements made by the Financial Secretary of the Athletic Association and the General Secretary Treasurer of the Students' Administrative Council, which we publish on our front page to-day. They will appreciate particularly the facts pointed out by Mr. Reed and Mr. Burns: namely that (as "The Varsity" said in its first issue of the year) the price of the season tickets was remarkably low; secondly, that the students responded to the consideration displayed by the Athletic Association in cooperation with the Students' Council, by buying the tickets in larger numbers than last year.

There are a few things, however, which we would like to make clear lest anyone should misunderstand the policy of "The Varsity" in this matter. The first is the question as to whether students who wished to buy a pair of tickets, instead of a single ticket, were misled by the statement in an official advertisement: "No other student tickets will be sold." This Mr. Burns explains by saying: "There is all the difference in the world, however, between a students' ticket and a ticket sold to students." Being possessed of a "modern mind" we thought such brilliant hairsplitting perished with those bad old philosophers of a certain period of history who, as everyone knows, spent their days and nights puzzling out such problems as, "How many angels can bounce on the end of a needle?", the fit predecessor to the abstruse and useless enquiry on the part of a student newspaper, "How many cheerleaders can joyride with impunity?" We agree with Mr. Reed that it would have been unfair to prevent any student from buying tickets at a general sale but the criticisms in "The Varsity" came from students who did not think they were entitled to buy more than one ticket because of the official advertisement. This did not say that no other students' season tickets would be issued but used the more inclusive phrase, students' tickets.

Mr. Reed's approval of the rooting on Saturday must be respected as he has seen more rooting hereabouts than the rest of us. But he is contradicted by downtown sporting writers who were close to proceedings in the bleachers, closer in fact that the people in the covered stand whom Mr. Burns unearthed to defend the exhibition.

The initiative with regard to half-time skits, according to Mr. Burns, should originate with the student body. That argument convinced, it follows logically that the whole undergraduate body should have been transported to Cornell, Philadelphia and points south last fall, in order that its initiative might have been aroused. Speaking for ourselves, we might say that we always have hankered after a glimpse of the City of Brotherly Love.

Mr. Burns is quite right in stressing the necessity for experiment. But our sporting editor wanted to know what effective novelties had been produced by the cheer leaders as the result of the trip. He has received no answer, although he is as anxious a supporter of any such experiment, as are the cheer leaders or Mr. Burns.

Finally we acknowledge receipt of a letter signed "Optimist." When this was sent in to us anonymously we asked for the name of the writer, not necessarily for publication. All we have to say is that if we were one of a number of people criticised in a certain matter and we had the right on our side, we would say what we had to say without resorting to round-about letters written under pseudonym. Yet even this letter does not make a direct attempt to refute Tuesday's sporting editorial. That editorial asked: What results have been obtained from a trip which was made with the assistance of a grant from the funds of an association to which all male undergraduates belong?

The whole matter will be cleared up if these results are displayed at to-morrow's game, in which case we shall be glad to say: "Better late than never."

VICTORIA ORCHESTRA HAS INAUGURAL MEETING

The inaugural meeting of the Victoria College Orchestra took the form of a tea in Annetley Hall Common Room on Thursday afternoon. For the past few years this club has opened its ranks to include members of other faculties who may be interested in the study of orchestral music and who play either strings or horns which comprise this symphony orchestra.

This organization does not aim to be a financial success, nor does it exist primarily for the presentation of a concert held during the season; but its purpose is to instil in its members a love of and a taste for instrumental music.

As for the Freshmen, that old initiator, Al Fresco, seems to be getting in his stuff at the U of T. Residences. We hesitate to say, from reports, that the Freshmen are getting it in the neck. We do hear that some are eating their meals off the window-sill.

C—C

One of our friends was disappointed at the last meeting of the German Club in that beer and pretzels were omitted. He says that the pretzels make one thirsty and the beer makes one want pretzels. What we personally like about pretzels is the name. Bier mit Pretzeln has kind of an appetizing sound. As a matter of fact, a pretzel is kind of a futuristic soda-cracker with a ducal finish.

Give, may we ask, a sentence using the word "Quota." Aw, quota hell!

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

While I realize that my most serious fault is a tendency to write letters to "The Varsity," certain animadversions in that estimable organ seem to compel an unfortunate relapse on my part.

No doubt your frequent use of the term "Ginty" carries highly humorous implications, but it has occurred to me that it might induce in the minds of the more impressionable of your readers a connection between Trinity College and a certain noxious beverage. Further, and more especially, your calling our famous magazine The Ginty University Review seems calculated to convey a particularly erroneous impression, for there is certainly nothing alcoholic about it.

And speaking personally, I must with due modesty disclaim any knowledge of the language of monkeys (especially monkeys in Commerce and Finance). But perhaps you were only fooling.

Sincerely,

R.T.H.

Letter from an Optimist

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

The "Campus opinion" of the present "looker" club, the latter consisting of from 5 to 7 immaculately dressed (band uniforms) "overworked undergrads" seems to be that the present state of affairs existing in this University is of a deplorable calibre. That our present "Varsity spirit" is in a condition warranting a post-mortem is probably due to laxity of the upper classmen in putting the frosh in their place.

Why does "Cornell" receive such substantial support at their games? Why is the rooting of more avail than in this Varsity?

Because—from the first moment a freshman sets foot on the campus he is taught to respect his superiors—to be on hand at every game—to worship the players like gods—to feel the spirit everywhere, that seemingly according to "Campus opinion" has been obliterated by 5-to-7 "immaculately dressed (band uniforms) overworked undergrads."

If our frosh were all on hand by force we might have a whisper or two in years to come about the solemn brrrrr of the present $400 ticket holders. Again if we had 90,000 spectators at our games, 20,000 of which were conscientious undergrads, there might be one or two feeble cheers heard above the present plastic murmurs that have taken the place of the old delirium of two or three years ago.

"Why not have compulsory rooting for frosh?" was a statement made on

MAN IS FUNDAMENTAL OPPOSITION TO EVIL

Open Forum in Hart House Discuss Supreme Power at Work in Universe

Accepting the postulation that there is a supreme Power at work in the universe, the discussion at the S.C.A. Open Forum in Hart House yesterday afternoon centred around the dual question: "Is this Power personal? Is it friendly?"

Mr. Moore stressed the Christian conception of God as that of a Divine Father. The problem which a member of the group then presented was to reconcile this idea with the obvious evils around us. He objected that Christians, while attributing all good to God, rationalized evil to become the means to the achievement of a divine purpose.

the campus to-day—why not—because $400 seems too steep for a frosh? No! that is no excuse; if he has not $400 when he comes in, what will he have in his second or third year to support our team. Besides, by the time a man reaches his second or third year, he should have instilled into his very soul the properties of his university. The spirit that the "Opinion" raves about as being null and void—is in every one of us if we would be men enough to snap out of our rut of conventionalism and let the complexion go for a few hours in the week—and cheer. How do we expect the cheer leaders to supply all the necessary ejaculations to kick out of our clamped "spirit," a real spirit of fun and fight if we sit and growl and chew away—because—American universities apparently are superior in this respect.

Undergrads, let me tell you that the spirit of Toronto Varsity is stronger now than it ever was. This can readily be seen by reading the past editions of "The Varsity" in which the dissatisfaction has been trying to arouse co-operation on the part of everyone to support in the real manner our team and the interests of the present régime of our University.

Optimist.

ORPHANS PLAY FIRST HOME GAME AT STADIUM TO-MORROW

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The Intercollegiate Track and Field Meet takes place this afternoon at McGill. While the Blue and White have lost several of their outstanding stars, the men from Toronto will doubtless make their usual good showing.

The most notable absentee from the Varsity team of last year is none other than Johnny Fitzpatrick. The former Hamilton Central, Varsity and Olympic star is now sojourning at Marquette University, Milwaukee. At the American National Intercollegiate games in the spring of 1927 Fitzpatrick made a sensational showing, and appears to have been eagerly sought after by more than one American college. In the fall of the same year the "Hamilton Flyer" came to Varsity and starred in the sprints at the Intercollegiate Meet. Fitzpatrick failed to get his year here, and this doubtless helped to influence his decision to make the change. At the Olympic games this summer he made a very creditable showing, and his progress across the border will be watched with great interest by Canadian fans.

To-morrow will be the Orphans' first home game. Two games on foreign fields to start the season was certainly no soft break. This game means a lot to "Jimmy" Douglas' boys. A loss will put them out of the running, but a win would give them another start.

U. of T. British Rugby Team to Play Exhibition Game

The University of Toronto British rugby team are scheduled to play their second exhibition game of the season this Saturday. Their opponents for this occasion will be the British Public Schools team, which is reputed to be one of the strongest and finest coached teams in the city. Varsity is confident that they will keep a clean sheet for the year. They point to the result of last Saturday's game against the British, and add that another week's stiff practice has done a world of good. The squad has been turning out faithfully for the past few weeks. The game is being played this Saturday on the Upper Canada College campus.

KEEN COMPETITION IN INTERCOLLEGIATE TRACK MEET TO-DAY

Jack Vila Varsity's Miller 6 or 7 Seconds Faster Than McGill's Best

EVERY MAN AT HIS BEST

Field Events Will Determine Winner — McTaggart Expected to Win Javelin Throw

(Special to "The Varsity" by a Staff Reporter)

Montreal, October 18. — To-day Varsity's track squad will defend their Intercollegiate title. A week ago it was thought that perhaps the squad would once more have little trouble in again winning the championship. But the results of the McGill Interfaculty Meet considerably upset these hopes, and it is now realized by everyone on the team that the battle is going to be a tough one. Every man is at his best and intends to give all he has.

One of McGill's freshmen, Drew by name, has been doing wonders. He won the hurdles in 1-5 of a second slower than the record. He jumped 3 inches higher than Varsity's best man in the high jump. His distance of 22 feet 3 inches in the broad jump is two and a half feet better than Varsity's man was able to do. He also won the shot put with 36 feet. This is, however, very little farther than was done by Ed. Peaker, a Varsity freshman, and the Intercollegiate meet may tell a different story.

In the running events Varsity seems to have the upper hand in the matter of times. Finlayson and Connolly, Varsity's sprinters, seem to be faster. McGill will have more than they can handle with "Mo" Mitchell and "Gord" Jermyn in the quarter mile and "Mc" Mitchell and Carmen King in the half mile.

Jack Vila, Varsity's miler, did his Interfaculty mile 6 or 7 seconds faster than McGill's best. Vila will be supported by Hal Williams and Fred Lee, who should be right on his heels at the finish.

Hap Gilbert and F. Mitchell will look after the three mile. Much is expected from these two men, who are replacing the old reliable Wally Graham.

As ever the field events will tell the story of who is to be the winner. Fred McTaggart is expected to get five points in the javelin throw. He holds the Intercollegiate record. Finlayson is going to be Varsity's strong man. He will be called on in the 100 yards, shot put and discus—a big day's work for any man.

The following men are representing Varsity: 100 Yards Dash—R. Finlayson and W. Connolly.

VARSITY JUNIORS TO PLAY FIRST GAME WITH O.A.C.

Richardson is the Individual Star, Finds Good Mate in Glen Smith

To-morrow morning on the back campus Varsity Juniors play their first game with O.A.C. The game commences at ten-thirty. Although the Blue and White Juniors have received little publicity this year, it looks as if they have a better chance than any of the other Varsity teams to bring glory to the University.

The Juniors have a well balanced line and a good steady backfield. Richardson of North Toronto is perhaps the individual star of the team, his kicking and running on the half-line being of a high order. Glen Smith, who has been elected captain, makes a good running mate for Richardson. Heintzman at quarter and Farwell at middle are high class performers who will make their presence felt in to-morrow's game. The material is there and with proper coaching ought to result in a winning combination.

Varsity Intermediates to Clash with St. Michael's Saturday

Varsity Intermediates clash with St. Michael's Saturday morning at 10.30 on the back campus in a game which promises to be very interesting and fast. St. Mike's have won both their games and are tied for the leadership of the group with Western, while Varsity have won and lost one game.

Varsity have been playing very good football lately, and St. Mike's have also been travelling at top speed. Jackson and Bailey on the Varsity backfield are playing sensationally, while the whole line is tackling well and providing good interference.

Quinn from Ottawa College is playing well for St. Mike's, while Young, McGahey and Sheehan are also outstanding.

220 Yard Dash—W. Connolly and A. A. Somerville.

440 Yards—R. M. Mitchell and G. Jermyn.

880 Yards—R. M. Mitchell, C. King and G. Jermyn.

McGill Has Withdrawn

It is unfortunate but true that the University of Montreal has withdrawn from Intercollegiate hockey. The move has not as yet been officially taken, but "The Varsity" has learned from reliable sources that the report is true. That means that unless Queen's decides to come back into the Union, the college league will be but a two team organization.

Letters of Lovely Laura Louise

(By D. Kendall)

My room,
Friday, Oct. 18th.

Dear Betty:

I really must apologize for my last letter. I was simply dying with indignation (lobster salad). That's why I was so mixed up. But this week everything has been just wonderful. To begin with I went to the game with Jean's friends, fraternally brother Darcie. Isn't that the most wonderful name. Before the game started he told me that McGill was the week sister, but they looked like the powerful Kat-rina to me. I never saw such a thrilling time. Some of the boys would have been a perfect scream in the stage with a juggling act. And then there were five darlings dressed in white out in front that gyroscooped and evolved trying to arouse the rah, rah boys. They didn't. They got free tickets in too. I was hoarse for days for the noise I made. I yelled and yelled and yelled. Papa said in his letter to me that he could distinguish my voice over the radio. Of course, he was only joking, I think. After the game was all over we, that is Darcie and me, went to the fraternity for the tea dance. That's a kind of dance that they have here that's just like any other dance only it's more refined. It quits at seven and you can have another date for the evening if you hurry. I had a most gorgeous time. Darcie is awfully popular. I saw Jimmy too. It is a small world. Who would ever think of him being among the socially prominent. He isn't a member yet. He's what they call a pledge-pin. That is he doesn't if he doesn't want to, and he doesn't if they don't want him to after three months. I'd like to be a pledge-pin because they give you everything and make you feel at home by taking you to shows free.

I've been taking my work awfully seriously lately. There's no use coming to Varsity if you don't work real hard. I'm working to-night. I was going to a corn roast, but it rained. Oh Jean! the phone just rang and it's Darcie and he is going to a show and I can go to. Isn't that simply wonderful? Shows are so elevating and educational.

I'll have to stop now and run and get dressed. It's the red silk with the silver band for to-night. With love.

Your dearest friend,

Laura Louise.

P.S. I'm going to stay in to-morrow night to work for sure.

Mr. Perrin Compares Physics Department in Toronto to That of Oxford

CANADIANS WORK HARD

Interviewed by "The Varsity" yesterday afternoon, Mr. Perrin, late of Oxford, had some interesting remarks and comparisons to deliver. He cannot be called a post-graduate, as he has a full research job. He is known as a research assistant in the Physics Department.

Asked what he thought of the University system at Toronto, Mr. Perrin replied that he had been here hardly long enough to form an adequate conception. One thing of course he noticed was the smaller number of colleges here, although they were divided much on the same system. He found many points of similarity, but the atmosphere was not the same.

As regards standards, Mr. Perrin was enthusiastic about the equipment in the Physics building. He found it much superior to that at Oxford. "Of course," he remarked, "Oxford is pre-eminent in Chemistry rather than Physics. It was gathered that Physics belonged rather to Cambridge."

"But what of our honour system?" he was asked. "You know it makes Toronto world famous." "I find it extremely difficult to understand," said Mr. Perrin, "but of course I have only been here three weeks. As far as he could judge in that short time, the courses did not seem to be so highly specialized as at the English university."

On the question of whether Canadian students take their work more seriously than their English cousins, Mr. Perrin was inclined to think that they did. At any rate they were harder workers and spend more time in study and laboratory work.

Colleges, universities, and professional schools in the United States spent $341,515,910 during the year ending June 30, 1924.

FORTY FEET IN AIR CARILLONEUR GUIDES BIG BELLS IN ACTION

Mr. Skillicorn Entertains "The Varsity" in Lofty Vantage Point

WIND CLOCK ELECTRICALLY

Chimes Managed by Board of Governors, not Hart House

The Hart House memorial carillon compares well with other carillons in quality of tone, in the opinion of Mr. J. L. Skillicorn, the carillonneur, interviewed by "The Varsity," in his official sanctum in the tower, forty feet above the campus. Mr. Skillicorn explained that the Peace Tower carillon is small in so far as number of bells is concerned, there being 23 bells. This is, Mr. Skillicorn stated, the smallest number of bells it is possible to have composing a carillon, the most usual size being from 43 to 47 bells.

The largest carillon in America is in Riverside Drive Church, New York, in which are 70 bells, the largest bell weighing 20 tons. The largest bell in the Hart House tower weighs almost four tons, and the smallest weighs but 140 pounds; the total weight of the carillon is over 18 tons. It was entirely manufactured in England, the keyboard being designed for 43 bells and sent here in the hope of the manufacturers that the other bells might be added.

Mr. Skillicorn also explained the operation of the tower clock which is of pendulum type and of construction similar to any ordinary clock, except that the clock is wound by electric motor every four hours, and also strikes by the operation of an electric motor.

The carillon is not in any way connected with nor under the management of Hart House, but is managed and controlled by the Board of Governors of the University.

FITZPATRICK, ADAMS RETURN TO HAMILTON

Olympic Sprinters Leave Marquette After Brief Stay in States

MAY REGISTER AT VARSITY

Reports emanating from Hamilton infer that Johnny Fitzpatrick and Ralph Adams of Canadian Olympic fame have returned to the shores of Burlington Bay.

Fitzpatrick, Adams, Jack and Pete Walters, four representatives of Canada at Amsterdam, recently left to attend Marquette University at Milwaukee. Adams was a student of the University of Toronto in 1926-27, but did not return the following year. Fitzpatrick was enrolled here in 1927-28 but had the misfortune to miss his examinations.

Fitzpatrick attracted great attention by his remarkable showing as a member of the Hamilton Central team at the American Interscholastic Track Meet in 1927. The Hamilton sprinter ran a beautiful race to win the hundred in 9.9 against a field of the fastest youngsters of the U.S.

It is understood that both Adams and Fitzpatrick may return to Varsity this term. News of their registration at U. of T. will arouse much interest.

VISITING "PORGY" PLAYER CRAZY ABOUT HART HOUSE

Mr. Bruce Declares the Pool to be the Finest He Knows

"I'm crazy about the whole House," declared Mr. Bruce, one of the coloured players from the cast of "Porgy," after a tour of Hart House in the company of "The Varsity" last Friday afternoon. Mr. Bruce, whose company played last week in the Princess Theatre, was especially pleased with the theatre and the swimming pool.

"Not unlike the Theatre Guild of New York," said he of the former. "The finest I have ever seen. I wish I could dive right in." Thus he expressed his delight with the pool. Throughout the House the woodwork on the ceilings called forth his special admiration.

DATES AND FACTS LEFT OUT OF NEWEST HISTORY BOOK

W. S. Wallace Says Ninety per Cent of Students Hate History

Ninety per cent of the students in the University of Toronto dislike Canadian history. This was the contention of Professor W. S. Wallace, Librarian of the University, at a District Teachers' Convention last Friday. He went on to score the methods by which history had been taught.

That its aims were to acquire a stock of facts or to foster a spirit of patriotism was a mistaken idea. History seemed to built up an intelligent interest in national institutions and the general development of a people. He gave much of the credit for the text book for school students of Canadian history to Premier Ferguson. Prof. Wallace, who is the author, explained that he had omitted dates and constitutional facts as much as possible, and sought to rouse interest in telling the story.

HON. CHARLES MCCREA PRESENTS TABLET TO-DAY

A tablet in memory of the late Dr. W. G. Miller is to be presented to the University by Hon. Charles McCrea this afternoon at 5 o'clock in Room 70, Mining Building. Sir Robert Falconer is to receive the tablet, which has been given by the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy through the Rocky Fellers Association.

SECONDS TO GO, KICK TIES SCORE ORPHANS WIN OUT IN OVERTIME WHEN FAKE PLUNGE BRINGS TOUCH

Blue and White Boys Fight Right to the End, and Pull Out Win From Sarnia by 13-7 Score To Stay in Running

BAILLIE AND BELL STAR FOR VARSITY ON HALF LINE

(By L. G.)

Fighting with the desperation of an animal at bay, tearing, driving and forcing with all the courage of a true team with the love of its Alma Mater at heart, the Blue and White Orphans, downtrodden and forgotten in the glamour of the Intercollegiate, came victoriously and sensationally through to tie the score with Sarnia when only ten precious seconds remained, and then tore on to gain a place in the running by defeating the Imperials 13 to 7 in the overtime.

There have been many sensational finishes to football contests, but there are few to equal that of Saturday's. Only ten seconds to go and in a last effort that seemed doomed to failure, Charlie Baillie, the brilliant captain and half back of the Blue team, was called on to kick a drop from 35 yards out against the wind. His mammoth effort tied the score and sent the Varsity rooters into a hysteria of joy that was only surpassed when the final whistle blew to end one of the most thrilling contests in Canadian football.

The Blues started out with the will to stay in the running or go down battling to the end. With the added confidence of having Baillie and Bell working together on the half line and the largest crowd that has seen the Orphans in action for many years, the Jimmie Douglas coached outfit went to work from the start, and although at the quarter time point the score board stood marked 1 to 0 in the visitors' favour, the Blues seemed to be stronger than the Imperial team.

Tearing into the second period with a spirit the like of which is rarely seen, the lads in blue forced the Tunnel Town boys back until they had them fighting with their backs to the wall. Billy Bell hoofed the oval for 30 yards to Beauchamp, who was downed in sensational style with Cartwright and Wright holding onto his shoe strings. That tied the score and in short order Baillie sent the stands into wild cheers when he booted a drop from the 25 yard line to put the Blue squad up 3 points. The advantage was 3 to 0.

QUEEN'S TIE UP INTERCOLLEGIATE SERIES BY 4-2 WIN OVER MCGILL IN SLOW GAME

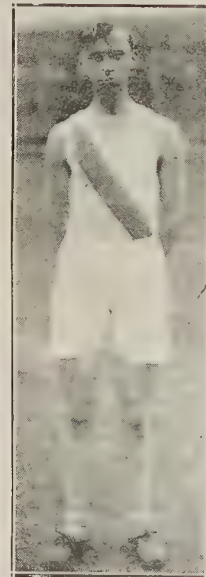

Tri-colour Plays Steady Game, But McGill Made and Took The Breaks

WINNERS COME FROM BEHIND

(By L. S. Shapiro, McGill Daily) Montreal, Que., Oct. 21.—Displaying a brand of football that was as consistent, irresistible and incidentally as interesting as a steam roller, Queen's University squad defeated the McGill twelve in the opening of the local Intercollegiate season at the Percival Molson Stadium on Saturday afternoon.

Over fourteen thousand crowded the stadium to see the Tri-colour overcome an early lead by the Red squad and by virtue of sheer superiority in straight kicking and plunging football moved painfully up the field for four single points to win the game and put all three members of the Intercollegiate Union in a tie for the leadership. The score was 4 to 2.

It was a slow game, in which McGill excelled in making and taking breaks just as they did last week in Ontario, but when it came to the "two (Continued on page 4)

CELEBRATE JUBILEE AT WESTERN VARSITY

Dr. Sherwood Fox Appointed President and Dr. Neville Dean of Arts

VISITING DELEGATES

The appointment of Dr. W. Sherwood Fox as President and of Dr. Kenneth P. R. Neville as Dean of Arts marked the golden jubilee celebrations at the University of Western Ontario, London. Former members of the staff and undergraduates were honoured by the conferring of LL.D. degrees.

Dr. Fox, who has been Dean of Arts since 1919, was formally inaugurated on Friday night as President in the new main building of the University, the latest addition to the 200 acre campus. Dr. Neville has been connected with Western since 1908, and has been Registrar for eleven years.

Delegates representing universities in Canada and the United States were present at the 50th anniversary celebration. Speakers at the morning session were Dr. Ray Palmer Baker of Troy and Dr. Leonard G. Rowntree, head of the Department of Medicine in the Mayo Foundation. The delegates were entertained at luncheon by the Canadian Club.

Dr. Primrose is Now LL.B. of Dalhousie University

Dr. Primrose, head of the Faculty of Medicine here, received last week an honorary LL.B. degree at Dalhousie University, Halifax. The occasion was the celebration by the Dalhousie Medical School of its diamond jubilee. Dr. W. W. Chipman of McGill and Dr. Finlay McMillan of Street Harbour, N.S., were also honoured.

KING GEORGE CHOSEN TO FIGHT ELECTION BY HARVARD CLUB

Taussig Leads in Manifesto Favouring Gov. Alfred E. Smith

Special to "The Varsity"

Cambridge, Mass.—Harvard is taking the Presidential election seriously. One underground organization already has come out flat-footedly against either candidate and in favour of King George V, while forty of the professors have banded together to support the candidature of Governor Smith.

Harvard King George for President Club, an authentic undergraduate political club, organized within the past few days, has brought a startling new factor into the presidential campaign contest among the student body.

The official platform as published in the "Harvard Crimson" follows:

1. We believe Hoover to be an uninteresting tool of that obvious and obsolete bluff, the Republican Party.
2. We believe Smith to be a dangerous radical in the pay of the Pope.
3. We believe George to be the only living man fit to be our President.
4. We guarantee an amalgamation of United States and Canada . . . free spirits for all.
5. We guarantee more left-handed traffic in Harvard circus.
6. We guarantee an exchange of Memorial Hall for the Houses of Parliament and a substitution of the Grenadier Guards for All Yard Cops.
7. We guarantee high hats for Boston Bobbies.
8. We guarantee Casarca for Farmer's Relief.

The forty Harvard professors who issued the manifesto in favour of Alfred Smith for President ran Republican corruption and state that "the best hope for a return to the liberalism of Roosevelt and Wilson lies in the election of Governor Smith." Among the signatures are those of F. W. Taussig, professor of Economics, and Felix Frankfurter, professor of administrative law.

"THE SHEEP FROM THE GOATS . . ."

For many years co-education has been gradually if somewhat reluctantly recognized as an institution, but to all intents and purposes there is to-day no more real co-education than that which our grandmothers experienced. It cannot, of course, be denied that at our great co-educational (so-called) colleges men and women tread the same corridor, attend the same lectures, write the same examinations and graduate with the same degrees. All this "sameness" however is merely superficial. If we delve beneath the surface we will find a separation of the sexes that would please the most ardent man-hater or the most rabid bachelor.

You have only to look about to see what we mean. The most obvious thing, of course, is the private masculine paradise in the centre of our campus, but it is by no means the only example. Our University publications for instance,—this one has two quite separate staffs, and most of the others, though having only one editorial board, have all sorts of Women's Editors, whose duty, doubtless, is to see that the peculiar interests of their sex are not neglected. Our bulletin boards are covered with notices announcing meetings of women's organizations and other societies whose meeting place is given as Hart House, thus precluding the necessity of mentioning that membership is open only to men. There are two distinct fields of athletics too, and men attend women's games with a condescending air of "Let's encourage the poor things," while women are considered quite incapable of any intelligent interest in masculine sports.

The same conditions prevail in the more serious field of scholarship, for the promotion of which our University really exists. It seems to be most commendable for a man to do a good deal of studying and to emerge from the examinations the possessor of various scholarships and medals, but when a woman, though she may have amazing mental endowments, does the same thing, she is regarded by men and women alike as a bookworm,—some one not at all desirable to know.

Notwithstanding the boasted emancipation of women and the magnanimity of the men who accord them that emancipation, there is yet a great difference between the sexes, which can be removed only by a complete change in the attitude of both.

Art, Music and Drama

More Music

The news announcement of forthcoming musical events which appeared in Tuesday's "Varsity" prompts us to comment upon the growing favour with which all music throughout the university is being received. There is now each year a very definite musical season here, a season which includes every form of music (with the one exception perhaps of opera)—piano, violin recitals, chamber music, orchestral and choral productions. In this field the Conservatory choir and orchestra are deserving praise for their enthusiastic attitude towards their work. We understand that the Choir has the Bach Christmas Oratorio under rehearsal and the presentation of this work should be a new high light in our musical history which is already distinguished by some seven annual renditions of the same composer's magnificent St. Matthew Passion.

The Hart House Musicals, to be resumed on October 28 with the concert of the Hart House Quartet, have always been very attractive features of Sunday evenings, and there seems no fear whatever that these concerts will lapse from the high standard of excellence which has characterized them in the past. Friday evening recitals will again prove a source of delight to jaded and over-worked graduates.

Hart House seems to form a fitting centre for this musical life of ours, and we are undoubtedly blessed with such a possession, the male undergraduates particularly so. To them we add that the Sunday Songsters will again be directed by Mr. Campbell McInnes, who will return from New York especially for the purpose of conducting these evenings of song. Some of the Songster evenings are among the most pleasant memories of Hart House to the writer. As the name implies, these evenings are set aside for the "Community singing" of the university, and it is indeed a treat to become acquainted with the literature of song under the guidance of so renowned an authority as Mr. McInnes. No knowledge of music is assumed in those who attend, rather it is desired that they should give expression to that desire innate in man, to sing. With William Byrd, we say, "Since singing is so good a thing, I wish all men would learn to sing." J.J.K.

It has been our unwavering custom to leave all comments on sporting matters to the sapient gentlemen who conduct the opposite page, but this time we rise to postulate that Saturday produced a game in the highest sense of the word. We refer to the Orphans and their over-time. V.S. It warmed our cardiac regions to view the spectacle of Chas. Baillie stepping out. And the rooting had a little more than the customary vigour. Suggestion:

Sweet Bouquet

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

Your astonishingly naive and childish reference to yourself in the editorial of October 16th calls for some reply from the college to which you have alluded in such flattering terms many times during the last few weeks.

No doubt a person in high office is to be excused when he imagines himself to be the subject of all the conversation and thought of his fellow-men. In this case, however, you are quite unjustified in supposing yourself to be the inspiration of the "commendable attempts at satire" made in the Bob on Friday night. The "fledgling wits" of Victoria were bobbing, not you, but another and a better man who holds a post of greater importance than yours.

Were you fortunate enough to attend Victoria, you would know that it is the time-honoured duty of the Bob Committee to bob the students and the staff of their own college, and not a foreign nonentity like the Editor of "The Varsity."

Yours sincerely,

3T1 Victoria

[Editorial Note: We consider ourselves to have been the object of the crudest satire in being represented under our own name by a boy parliamentarian. When the writer of the above letter was a member of "The Varsity" staff an editor remarked of him, "He is a scatter brain and inclined to jump to conclusions." It is bad enough to misread an editorial. It is worse to call the writer "naive." We might have sussed that if it had not been bolstered by "childish." Let us have no more of such Billingsgate.]

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

As a mere man, inadequate in designing homes for women, I have read with a great deal of satisfaction, pride and amusement about the vast architectural field which awaits with bated breath the mastery feminine touch which beyond doubt will make it the one and only perfect art.

Among several other obscure thoughts which flashed across my cornice, was one which I think is really worthy of being printed for the general instruction and betterment of mankind. Has mere man, including Actinurus and Callistratus, Bramante, Michelozzo, Bernini, Michel Angelo, Le Van, Demercier, Lisot, Jones, Wren, Suljeff, etc., ever been able to build perfect homes for women? Furthermore, has mere man, in any capacity whatever, ever been able to satisfy mere woman?

Those of us with a certain amount of that rot "qui s'appelle" professional pride, quite naturally resent any abrupt intrusion of our century old seclusion and elite membership by Titian haired maidens, or as a matter of fact by any other type of female, hair or no hair. For what purpose was the Pass Course, Medical School and Just Kids' Safety Club inaugurated?

Even to my mind, benumbed as it is after four years of pencil pushing for art's sake, it seems an obvious fact that any course is just what one makes it. If a certain column juggling course consists in nothing but playing snappy dance music from the running board of a car, or spending one's mornings and afternoons among the nearby hills, then there, indeed, is a vast field open for women.

I have a feeling that some outraged member of the weaker sex will write some trash about the sound philosophy herein set down, but who cares?

ORPHANS EMERGE VICTORS AFTER THRILLING OVERTIME STRUGGLE

MARTIN BEATS LESLIE TO WIN TENNIS TITLE

Varsity Breaks McGill's String of Victories in Series

FIRST TIME SINCE 1918

(Special to "The Varsity" by a Staff Reporter)

Kington, Oct. 21.—The Intercollegiate tennis championship has returned to Varsity. Walter Martin last Saturday captured the title when he defeated Charlie Leslie of McGill in a three-hour battle 6-4, 6-2, 10-12, 6-3, thus bringing this honour to Toronto for the first time since 1918 and thereby breaking the long string of McGill victories. Saturday's final was one of the best the Intercollegiate tourney has ever experienced, and Martin's victory was over a player who was hitting his best form. Paired with Don Gunn, Martin made a clear sweep of the tourney by also winning the doubles.

In addition to capturing the singles and doubles titles, Varsity's stellar four retained the team championship by annexing a total of 18 points to McGill, their closest competitors. It was a triumph for the Varsity team, as Balfour and Noyes, the third and fourth men, both reached the last eight, and Gunn was eliminated by Leslie in the semi-finals. Balfour and Noyes also got to the semi-finals of the doubles before losing to Lafonde and Valois of Montreal. Varsity's total of 18 points, counting one point for each win in singles and in doubles and two points for the finals, has never been equalled.

The high light of the tourney was undoubtedly the Martin-Leslie final match. This was a real battle from start to finish, and the tennis displayed was of the highest calibre. Leslie was steadiness personified, and against this Martin fitted terrific speed and accuracy.

The whole Varsity team deserve credit for their showing. Don Gunn reached the semi-finals before Leslie defeated him 6-4, 6-3. This was another close match. It was only Leslie's superior steadiness that won for him. (Continued on page 4)

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Well done, cheer leaders, well done. The improvement in leading and cheering was marked. Although there was room for betterment, this column feels that by the time the Queen's game comes around the leaders will have redeemed themselves in the eyes of their fellows.

Now if the C.O.T.C. band will come to life it will look like an old time Varsity affair.

The stirring victory of the Orphans on Saturday at the expense of the Sarnia Imperials was the most colourful game in Canadian football this season. With all hope gone for victory and the fans already on their way out of the stadium, the Blues came through to tie up the count and then in overtime defeated the Tunnel Town lads.

Sceptical Sam, President of the Showme Club, put in his appearance and went away perfectly satisfied that he had his money's worth. Said Sam: "I think it was worth the price. Two games and then in addition 20 minutes of overtime gave me a pretty full afternoon."

After watching Turville gallop away on his end runs that invariably meant big gains, and after watching that same lad hoof the oval for a mere 50 yards that seemed to require no effort, Sceptical Sam broke out with: "I'm starting an agitation right now whereby the University of Toronto will take Osgoode Hall under its wing." At that the slim lad from Western would look good on the Blue half line.

We saw Ralph McIntosh, the Orphans' manager, downtown on Saturday night going from one shop to another trying to get a hat big enough.

Bill Finlayson is certainly the successor of the "Iron Man" himself. He was entered in three events and came through with places in all of them. A first in the 100 yard, a second in the 220 yard, and a first in the discus is certainly plenty for a day's work for one man.

TEN SECONDS TO GO KICK TIES SCORE

tage, however, was not long lived. Sarnia, coming back with blood in their eyes, gradually cut down the advantage, until in the third quarter McPhedran by his magnificent booting tied up the score with three successive singles. One of the hoofs went to the deadline, one was counted when Bell was downed, and the third when Baillie was pulled under. The fourth quarter started with the Blue looking the weaker team, the Sarnia outfit having slightly the better of the play. It was not long in progress when McPhedran from 15 yards out sent the leather twirling over the bar for another 3 points. The Sarnia twelve began to look stronger, and as the time flew on the Orphans seemed to be lost. They gained life with a will and by some real football had the ball on the Imperials' 20 yard mark. Ruddell, who had been playing a whale of a game at quarter, found an opening and galloped through the line for 15 yards to place the ball on the visitors' 5 yard line. The teams were now fighting for inches with every down a battle royal. Baillie made 2 yards on the first down. On the next down Bell almost lost the ball. Then on the last down an onside was attempted and the Varsity man was pulled down on the 1 yard line and the ball given to the Imperials.
A tough break like that when a few feet would have meant leadership did not stop the Blue squad, and while the game seemed lost and the crowd began to wend its way out of the stadium, a matter of only a few seconds before the final whistle, Ruddell called on Baillie to kick, and in a last effort Charlie booted the ball over the bar from the 35 yard mark to tie the score and send the roosters into wild cries of joy. Immediately after, the final whistle tooted.

In the overtime period the Imperials seemed again the stronger until the Blues buckled down to another of their mighty assaults. Baillie went around the end on an extension for 30 yards. With but 10 yards to go Ruddell pulled a fake plunge and scurried over the line for the only try of the game and the points that spelled victory. Sarnia came back with the fight of a cornered tiger and tried everything in the book and at times were on the point of tying up the count, but the superb defensive playing of the entire Blue team held them off the score board.

Teams:

Juniors Win Over O.A.C.

Varsity Juniors came within one game of winning their group when they defeated O.A.C. 18 to 5 last Saturday.

Richardson was the outstanding star for Varsity, and Glen Smith, the other backfielder, pulled off some neat runs. It was chiefly in the backfield that Varsity was superior. Crocker, Smith and Britnell were also good.

The teams:
Varsity: Flying wings, Bennett, Smith; halves, Richardson, G. Smith; quarter, Britnell; snap, Campbell; insides, Stringer, Sanders; middles, Farwell, Wilson; outsides, Crocker, Gibb; subs, Robinson, Heintzman, Kerr, MacDonald.

O.A.C.: Flying wing, Hall; halves, Keith, Worten, Townsend; quarter, Wood; snap, Arbutnot; insides, Shearer, Dixon; middles, Butler, Ford; outsides, Becker, Nacey; subs, Fair, Watt.

Hockey Tour for Seniors

The Intercollegiate hockey team will again make a trip across the line, playing exhibition games with American colleges. The complete itinerary is as follows:

Dec. 29—Varsity at Dartmouth. Game to be played in the Boston Madison Square Gardens.

Jan. 3—Varsity at Harvard. Game to be played at same place as above.

Dec. 31—Varsity at Harvard. Game to be played at the New York Madison Square Gardens.

Jan. 5—Varsity at Yale. Game to be played at the New York Madison Square Gardens.

There is the possibility of one more college taking part against Varsity, but there has been nothing definite on that as yet.

MCGILL MASS POINTS TO WIN TRACK MEET

Finlayson Best of Blue Team with Two Firsts and Second

MITCHELL AND DAVENPORT

(Special to "The Varsity" by a Staff Reporter)

Montreal, Oct. 19.—McGill turned the tables on Varsity with a vengeance on Friday. From the bang of the gun of the first event until the tape had been broken in the last, the Red and White piled up points that left them at the end with a total of 70 as against Varsity's 41 and Queen's 7.

McGill started off with a rush in the first event by breaking the 120 yards high hurdle record by 2.5 of a second. Drew, the versatile Med freshman, who recently graduated from Amherst, accomplished this feat. He made himself the individual champion for the day by also winning the shot put and placing in the high jump and broad jump.

Bill Finlayson, however, was very close behind him, winning two firsts and one second. He nosed Fraser of McGill out of the 100 yards, easily won the discus throw, and came back to place second to Hands of McGill in the 220 yard dash.

The quarter mile was the "breath-taker" of the day. "Mo" Mitchell, who had previously been defeated in his best distance, the half mile, showed he still had something up his sleeve by running the brainiest and gamest race of his long career as a runner.

The freshmen on the team did exceptionally well. Jack Vile in the mile was a scant two yards behind Brown of McGill at the finish, with his team mate, Hal Williams, about five yards behind him. Ed. Peaker placed second to Finlayson in the discus throw. Vaughan took third place in the high jump, and Fred Lee took third place in the three mile run.

Freddie McTaggart had an off day and placed third in the javelin throw.

In the three mile run "Hap" Gilbert had things pretty well his own way.

McGill added another triumph to its series of victories in the Intercollegiate Track and Field contests by winning the relay race in a thrilling battle at the McGill-Queen's game in Montreal on Saturday.

The Varsity team consisted of Connoley, Jermyn, Somerville, Mitchell.

Hail, Hail, The Gang Were all There
So What Cornell Do We Care; Now

(A. H. Arrell)

And now it was the time of the great Indian Racing Games in the Happy Hunting Ground; among the notables present were Chief Red Coals and the Chief of the mighty Basket Makers. The yelling for the competitors was led by five meniskins and the cheers were somewhat as follows: "First Song: 'Thanks for the Buggy Ride.'"

Famous Locomotive Yell: "Three little meniskins standing in a row, Long comes a toot toot train, Wow watch them go."

Second Yell:

"Hail Hail the gang were all there, So what Cornell do we care, So what Cornell do we care now."

Second Song:

"The boys went over the mountain, the boys over the mountain, To see what they could see; But insignificant freshmen, but insignificant freshmen, Were all that they could see."

The Indians being less genteel put on a half time stunt. Chief Red Coals and the Chief of the mighty Basket Makers led the Solemn Asses in Conclave around by the nose,—it seems they were already very accomplished in this art. Then the three meniskins after feeding the Asses Corn (corn is translated in Indian as all things good including Taffy) went to 'ell, but failed to raise a spark of enthusiasm on their return.

Rather an unfortunate incident occurred when one of the Solemn Asses in Council ran riot and being so much in the habit of pushing the 'vested' interests into office, this mutinous Ass with his mighty hoof pushed this 'vested' ass into the Press Office.

Then the games recommenced and the songs and yells were repeated and the games closed midst:—

"You ask my name and I'll tell you the same, I am Optimism and you are full of bullism."

Gunn did not play as well as he usually does, and he was prone to err more frequently than usual.

The real surprises of the Varsity team, however, were Art Balfour and Bill Noyes. Balfour scored two brilliant victories over Lanthier of McGill, and Browne No. 1 for Queen's. He only lost to Brian Doherty in a close three set struggle. Noyes played very well to beat Valois of Montreal in the first round. Valois is ranked No. 9 in Quebec. He then defeated Meighen of R.M.C. and then defaulted to Gunn in the last eight. In the doubles these boys reached the semi finals and just missed the finals.

not have been perfect in that capacity, they certainly did their part in trying to rouse that "Varsity spirit" of which several of your correspondents deplore the lack. Can it be entirely their fault that the rooting was not all it might have been? As for being immaculately dressed; would the writers prefer them to appear in overalls, bathing suits or flying costumes?—something of the sort being necessary to make them sufficiently conspicuous. Perhaps a few red and white, green or yellow patches carefully secured here and there on the white clothes would deduct from the objectionable immaculations. If several individuals in the men's student section whom I heard razing the cheer leaders had used their breath to better purpose in supporting their team, the results might have been better all around. Let's give the much-abused fellows a square deal.

A Co-ed Who Not Only Defends
Smoking But Lives in Knox!

Oct. 18, 1928.

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir: Yesterday a letter appeared in your columns regarding a young lady carrying cigarettes. I must say I do not think such a letter was necessary. Surely the stares and remarks of the rude "males," as your correspondent calls them, were embarrassing enough for the young lady without another "male" writing about the matter.

"When your correspondent or his 'male' friends take their cigarettes into class in their pockets is it remarkable? No, it is not. When they offer their lady friend one at a dance (if they do) is it remarkable? No, it is not. Then why can she not offer herself a cigarette in public during the day without being laughed at?

Thanking you for your valuable space,

Respectfully,

bucks and a kick" brand of football the Queen's players over-shadowed the Red team by a wide margin. The Tricolour was opening holes yards wide for Monahan to cross through for yards, while Warren and Carter steadily outkicked Bill Lovering in an aerial battle during the final period.

A bad snap by Nagel gave the McGill squad a break shortly after the start of the game, and the Red team cashed in to the extent of one point. McGill kept up the pressure, and five minutes later Gilmour was rouged for McGill's second point. Shortly after the start of the second quarter Queen's staged a series of end runs and bucks that brought them to the McGill 20 yard line.

RHODES SCHOLARS CHOSEN BECAUSE OF MANLY QUALITIES

Career of Founder Illustrates Intellectual Interests Expected in Candidates

LEADERSHIP ESSENTIAL

"Manhood, Truth, Courage, Sympathy, Kindliness, Fellowship" Desirable

The basis of selection of Rhodes scholars, applications for which scholarships are now in order, is explained by the following statement from the Rhodes Trust:

1. "Mr. Rhodes defined clearly in his will the general type of scholar he desired. He was to be a man in the full sense of the word and not merely a book-worm. Mr. Rhodes formulated what he meant by a man by directing that his scholars ought to have four groups of qualities, the first two of which he considered the most important.

(i) "Literary and scholastic ability and attainments.

(ii) "Qualities of manhood, truth, courage, devotion to duty, sympathy for and protection of the weak, kindliness, unselfishness and fellowship.

(iii) "Exhibition during school days of moral force of character and of instincts to lead and to take an interest in his school-mates.

(iv) "Fondness for and success in many outdoor sports such as cricket, football and the like.

2. "According to the Oxford system the scholar is expected, in large measure, to educate himself. His success in his final (honours) examinations will depend not merely upon the amount of knowledge he has acquired but upon his ability to think constructively and critically for himself about the subjects he has studied, and to understand their relation to the other major aspects of human life and thought. It is important, therefore, (Continued on page 4)

OCCUPATIONAL THERAPISTS WANT REAL REST ROOM

This Growing Faculty Claims It Has Been Misunderstood and Abused

The Occupational Therapists, gaining in members, once more are coming into the notice of the campus as a rising young faculty. "We've been terribly misunderstood," complained one, "and have been classed as a cross between Social Service and Meds."

As a whole the class desires the lack of a common room, "some place chintz-covered and sunny" where co-eds can sink into armchairs and discuss beauty secrets after their city rambles. For as well as travelling from one extreme of the campus to the other they must attend classes at the Occupational Therapy workshop, U.T.S. and the Art College.

On enquiring at the Union whether this room would ever exist, "The Varsity" was told that eventually, perhaps on still further increase of the course, a new building would be erected.

It is supposed that the practical work necessitating the use of such widely spread buildings will be done entirely under its roof.

The Therapists feel abused, too, since they are not permitted the use of the Union nor to join some of the University societies. The Union has all it can do to accommodate its own students, amounting to six hundred; and even on its expansion will not break its rule of allowing no outside faculty to dine there.

MEMORIAL UNVEILED TO DR. W. G. MILLER

Hon. Chas. McCrear Praises

PRESIDENT ACCEPTS TABLET

An event of unusual interest to geology students took place yesterday afternoon in the Mining Building, when Sir Robert Falconer, President of the University, unveiled a memorial tablet to Dr. Willet Green Miller, a member of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, 1898-1925, and Provincial Geologist for Ontario, 1902-1925.

Mr. S. C. Perry, the President of the Rocky Fellers Club, presided, and explained that the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy unveiled a monument at Cobalt a short time ago, following this with a series of tablets presented to the Universities of Canada from coast to coast, of which this was one.

The Hon. Charles McCrear, in his appreciation of the life and achievements of Dr. Miller, traced his career from his attendance at the University of Toronto to his appointment as head of the Geological Department of the Provincial Government. His name now became outstanding in connection with Cobalt, and England recognized his important services and high reputation in the mining world by appointing him a member of the Imperial Resources Committee.

"The one thing that stood out in his character was his aversion to private gain—he had a fine public spirit," said Mr. McCrear in his final appreciation.

Sir Robert Falconer accepted the tablet on behalf of the Governors of the University. "It will be a great gratification to have a memorial to a man who had such a hand in developing the north country," said Sir Robert. "The Governors will accept the memorial, not only as a token of work well done, but also as an inspiration to those who were to follow in his footsteps."

Dr. Gibson, the Deputy Minister of Mines, and Dr. A. P. Coleman, Professor Emeritus of Geology, were also present, as well as many of the members of the faculty.

The tablet reads in part: "His (Dr. Miller's) work on the Pre-Cambrian is a monument of inspiration to all students of geology."

Vic. in Closely Fought Game
Loss to Jr. Meds by 1-0

The second of yesterday's water polo games was a strenuous struggle between Victoria and Junior Meds, the latter being fortunate to emerge on the right side of a 1 to 0 score. The result was uncertain until the last second of play, when Jackson garnered the lone goal of the game.

Years

With Dean Mitchell as the speaker of the day, the Engineering Society held its initial meeting in the Mining Building yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The "Toikey Orchestra" played "Sweet Sue" and "Angela Mia" as a prelude to the session. R. B. Rochester welcomed the members and then called on the Dean for his lecture on "New Engineering in England and France."

The Dean, who spent three months of last summer in England and France, spoke on transportation by land, water and air and on Hydro-Electric power. He was emphatic in stating that engineering in these departments was far ahead of that of this continent in many respects. "We took our inspirations thirty years ago from England and we still do it now rather than from U.S.A.," he stated.

He stated that English railways are faster and more comfortable than ours and that the crowds are handled more efficiently than they are here owing to the compartment system. He then praised the dry-docks of France and England, at the same time showing many camera slides of world-famous docks. Speaking of aviation, the Dean described the airdrome at Croydon in England and the exhibition at the Grand Palais, Champs Elysees, Paris. He foretold the coming of aeroplanes into our daily life in twenty years time.

In conclusion Dean Mitchell with the aid of slides made a rapid survey of the Hydro Electric plants of England and France and of great bridges of both countries. A vote of thanks was then moved on behalf of the Society for the speech.

BUSY REPORTER GETS MANY PERT OPINIONS

Some Students Think 'Varsity' Seeks To Be Sensational

SOME THINK NOT

It was only with considerable difficulty that "The Varsity" reporter extracted opinions concerning the possible yellow trend of our daily from the female of the species "student." Quite a number "really never have time to read 'The Varsity'" owing, presumably, to pressure of social and scholastic duties. The following are some opinions:

M. Pirie, I Moderns, U.C.: Not at all yellow. I like the whole paper very much.

E. Sims, II Eng. and Hist. U.C.: Yes. It's far more concerned with trying to be funny than with the real interests of the University.

F. Reed, III Vic.: If this is yellow journalism personally I like the colour. It forms a welcome relief to the drab black and white of ordinary news.

D. Harvey, Arts 370: "The Varsity" is not, and need not be, guilty of yellow journalism, owing to the lack of a rival paper.

MOST MALE LEADERS SAY CO-EDUCATION QUITE GENUINE HERE

Some Students However Lean Toward View of Varsity
Editorial

VIC. STUDENT AGREES

Class Parties and Discussion Groups Cited as Example of Equality

That co-education does not exist at the University of Toronto on the surface only, seems to be the general trend of opinion amongst male undergraduate leaders. There are, however, some who agree with the editorial in yesterday's "Varsity" in which it was maintained that "there is to-day no real co-education."

Opinion was fairly evenly divided amongst University College students interviewed by "The Varsity." Some emphasized the presence of many undergraduate organizations on the campus in which men and women students met and participated on an equal footing. One chap took issue with the statement in the editorial regarding the tremendous number of meetings taking place in Hart House. He wished to call attention to the gatherings which take place in the Women's Union, Wymlywood, etc., and at which men and women are welcome. "What about your mixed class parties, your dances and your club meetings? Are they not evidence that co-education really exists in fact, as well as in name, at this University?" he asked.

A gentleman from Victoria felt somewhat inclined to agree with the opinion in the editorial. He accounted, in part, for this condition by the fact that the spheres of interest of the two sexes are quite often wide apart.

While leaders in S.P.S. could not be approached by telephone, interviews with several Schoolmen disclosed a singular lack of unanimity on the subject. Some maintained that in their own particular faculty there was little evidence of co-education. Others felt that they agreed "in toto" with the editorial.

Little gum drop baby faces peeping forth from fluttery blue and white bonnets will be the essential accessory of the Varsity game goes' ensemble next Saturday. But little did they dream that their concoction would cause a near crisis among the gumdrop and hairpin magnets.

Imagine the excitement, not to say consternation, at the hairpin counter down town! Not every day comes a request for one hundred and fifty packages of that commodity now used exclusively for picking locks and booting shoes.

Higher mathematics were involved in deciding upon the sixty-five pounds of white gum drops, since it was entirely impossible to recruit enough agents to pick out the requisite number (Continued on page 4)

QUORUM NOT PRESENT

Special to "The Varsity"
Montreal, Quebec.—Charges that interest in student affairs at McGill University is dead feature an open letter to McGill undergraduates written by Paul Melanson and published in the McGill Daily. The letter is an outcome of the semi-annual meeting of the students failing to be held last Thursday on account of the lack of a quorum. Although important business had been announced, only twenty-five students turned out.

Mr. Melanson's letter follows:—
Dear Fellow Students,

That interest in student affairs is dead, was the obvious conclusion arrived at when the annual meeting of your society was cancelled yesterday owing to the lack of a quorum being present.

Is it possible that the undergraduates of McGill, who are so fortunate as to possess the most complete degree of autonomy granted to any university body, are so indifferent of their duties and privileges as to ignore completely their Executive Council which attempts to guide and protect the interests of their members?

You are privileged to attend this meeting and voice your opinions. It is your duty to attend and pass comment, be it favourable or otherwise, and at least you should ratify the work done by your executive for the past year.

Your total indifference is a disgrace to you individually and as a society. If this indifference is due to carelessness, it is certainly not commendable. If it is due to deliberate lack of interest, then you should either be under your former prep school regime or take steps to have your affairs dictated to you by a body less in accord with the ideals of the student government given you by men who have labored hard that you should have only the best.

Matters of vital interest to the society were to be presented to you. Matters of finance that directly concern you were to be discussed. All of this you were aware of or should have been were you at all interested.

Our position as a self-governing institution, envious as it is to our sister universities, was certainly not strengthened by the attitude you adopted yesterday.

It is my sincere hope that you, who were delinquent, and you, who comprise about 95% of the society, will find it convenient to fulfill your duty—if you do not consider it a privilege—to attend the annual meeting which we will attempt to hold next week.

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) Paul Melanson.

EVIL INFLUENCE OF MODERN PRESS SUBJECT OF DEBATE

Leading Editorial Writer from Downtown Paper to

L. M. GELBER MOVER

Interesting Origin of Parliamentary Type of Debate
at Hart House

Lionel M. Gelber, 370 University College, will be the undergraduate leader of the first Hart House debate of the year on Wednesday next. He will move the subject, "Resolved that in the opinion of this house the modern press has a demoralizing influence on society." The names of the other principal speakers will be announced to-day. It is understood that one of the best known professors in the city will support the affirmative, while a leading editorial writer of an evening paper is expected to oppose the motion.

These Hart House debates are regarded as striking contrasts to the customary formal style of American debating. In October 1923 a debating team from the Oxford Union Society visited Toronto. On that occasion the witty and entertaining style of the English debaters proved more popular with the audience than did the methods of the Canadian debaters, whose sole object appeared to be the accumulation of points.

This brought to a head the growing discontent against the conventional style of debating in which picked teams, often with a professional coach, argued a laboriously prepared case with the aid of prolix notes, before three judges who were to assign 40 per cent for style and 60 per cent for matter.

The result was the institution of the Hart House type of debate. The first of these debates took place in January 1924, and called forth the following press comment:

"Humour, satire and ridicule mingled with applause, booing and coughing. In striking contrast to the cold formality of the customary debate. . . In brief it might have been taken for a scene in the House of Commons."

After the single speaker "On the paper" has delivered his address, the meeting is thrown open to the house and anyone may express his opinions from the floor.

At the conclusion of the debate a vote is taken by the members passing out the "aye" or the "no" door, according to their convictions. Those who leave before the close of the debate may vote by ballot as they leave.

Any member of Hart House may attend these debates and has an equal chance of speaking from the floor of the House.

U.C. Players' Guild Presents Short Comedy in Auditorium

On Wednesday afternoon at 4.15 in the Auditorium of the Women's Union the Players' Guild of U.C. will present "Spreading the News," a comedy in one act by Lady Gregory. One of the best known of her plays, it satirizes the gossip-loving peasant folk, who build up on the most innocent occurrence possible, a kindly action, in fact, a rumour growing by leaps and bounds, till in a short time one man is accused of infidelity, seduction and murder, and another of impersonation with criminal intent. The play is delightfully humorous; it will be directed by Mr. Raymond Card, and the cast will include Eleanor Barton, Marjorie James, Pat Usher and Hamilton Miller.

THE RHODES

In this issue we publish a statement made by the Rhodes Trust on the basis of which scholars are chosen yearly from this province. The awarding of these scholarships is worth our attention not only because of their financial value by which a student is enabled to spend three years at the University of Oxford and because of the honour which accrues to the university or college within the university to which he belongs but because the men selected are supposed to be of the highest type the universities of the province can produce.

The best men must be chosen according to the will of Cecil Rhodes because these scholarships are intended to propagate the first principle of the testator. Rhodes was an Imperialist and he believed that the world would be bettered if the unity of the British Empire were strengthened as well as its friendship with the German Empire and the United States. In the will, written before 1902, he said, in this connection: "The object is that an understanding between the three great Powers will render war impossible and educational relations will be the strongest tie" (See page ninety-seven, Parkin: Rhodes Scholarships).

Unfortunately affairs after 1902 moved rapidly towards war and one of Rhodes' dreams was shattered. But there still remains the hope of strengthening by means of these scholarships the unity of the British Empire and the friendship of the English speaking nations. The way in which this object is to be accomplished, namely, by picking out the best men and sending them to Oxford, presents an interesting problem.

Who are the best? Since it is not possible for any man to know all the thoughts and actions of any other man's life, there must necessarily be an arbitrary standard of selection. This was determined by Rhodes on four points. These were literary and scholastic ability, qualities of manhood, force of character and leadership and success in out-door sports. It is significant that Rhodes placed more emphasis on the first two, than the last two requirements. This may explain why many outstanding athletes have failed to win these scholarships, contrary to general expectation. When once these requirements have been established, there still remains the difficult task of interpretation. This task Rhodes himself meant to leave to the vote of the students but his executors have considered this unsuitable particularly in large universities and a small committee of professors and officials now makes the selection.

But even when small committees are entrusted with the carrying out of the Will, standards must necessarily differ. They will differ in accordance with the difference in countries and states or provinces. Since a standard result is far from obtainable, different material will be given the Oxford authorities with which to work and the value of the finished product will be hard to estimate. Even if the committees all selected the best all-round men, it might be questioned as to whether the object Rhodes desired would be accomplished. Leaders have not all been all-round types; in addition many of them have failed to show their promise in youth. Rhodes himself proved to be a great leader but his health as a young man forced him to leave England. His very weakness contributed to the discovery of his great sphere of action.

A recent study of Rhodes scholars revealed the fact that very few had reached positions of such prestige that they could affect foreign affairs as materially as Rhodes desired. Another study revealed a certain disparity in the choices made by the various dominions. South Africa was credited with sending men who were more proficient in athletics than in studies. New Zealand and Australia were ranked highest in scholarship; Canada's scholars were in the middle position.

Rhodes dreamed on a large scale and this the last scheme of his life will be fascinating for many years to come as an attempt to bridge great barriers by applying the same formula to so many different sections of a huge area.

POEM BY DR. NABISCO

(To one who has been as an elder brother to me in my struggles with my genius)

Harken, Idalian Muse, and list my song

Of grief and woe about the Ilion wall. Where little men did strut and vaunt their pride

In one brief burst that soon died down to ash

Before the icy wrath of Holy Jove.

Dear Mother Ida, harken as I pray

Ah, fountained Ida, and my grief away

And down throughout the Small Ambrosial air

Send winged messengers of hope and love

And possibly a statue in the quad.

I write of one beloved on that day

When poet dowered poet with mutual verse

Natty verse and frank, free and sonorous.

And yonder little men they fume and puff

But what have they produced?

Widowed their Muse

Or rather sterile in her barrenness.

As futile their clamour

As those small waves that lap on Hellespont.

One thunderbolt from her that walls and yields

And white their bones will bleach beside the sea.

Anyone attempting to interpret the above will be forced to root at the game on Saturday.

As a poet, ranking next to the Oka cheese, is the man who suspects the modern press of stepping out to blight the flower of youth and kick the social order a posteriori. Such goings should be severely dealt with.

We are looking forward to the coming debate; we have knowledge of some who will speak, and their intelligence is of a lofty order; at the same time we expect the general to fill both the upper and the lower bunk.

SHEA'S

Olsen and Johnson, Shea's headlines of this week, have about as good a show as you are likely to see in vaudeville.

It was original and varied, though it sagged a bit now and again. Even old friend P.O.G. might have laughed at some of the jokes, though a couple or so would have wounded him.

The rest of the bill was not quite as good. It opened with a singing and dancing trio with particularly dreadful voices, but who could dance pretty well. They were followed by our old friend Ross Hamilton of Dumbell fame. He still has that manner, those costumes and those eyes.—Remember

Marjorie? After him came another dance act with two "college" boys, one two hundred and fifty and the other seven feet tall. The seven-footer had a neat way of tossing his legs around.

The picture featured Walter Hagen. The particular American college of the setting seemed to be half golf club and all the students seemed to play tournaments for money with Walter Hagen, which was odd, but still we did enjoy seeing the great man hole in

Thanksgiving Holiday

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir: In the Arts Calendar for the season 1928-29 I note that our Thanksgiving vacation falls on the week-end of "November 10-12, Saturday-Monday." In last season's calendar it was to fall on "November 12-14, Saturday to Monday," but was moved ahead by the Government to "November 5-7, Saturday to Monday." Where will it eventually be this season? It might not mean so much to day students, but to those like myself who live out of the city it would be rather nice to know when to plan the Thanksgiving week-end.

Thanking you for the space thus afforded, I am,

Very truly yours,

E. D. Northrup.

[News Note: When the situation referred to in the above title was drawn to his attention, Mr. A. B. Fennell, Assistant Registrar, stated that a mistake had been made in the calendar of last year, but that he was certain that the holiday this year would fall on the week-end November 10-12 as announced. This, he remarked, was the date given by the Canadian Almanac.]

Reply to "Four Arches"

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir: Not playing snappy dance music from the running board of a car, and spending one's mornings and afternoons among the nearby hills is not all there is to do in a certain course in our University, nor was it so stated by a certain news article in Friday's "Varsity," which merely reported a news event and added a few remarks regarding the course in Architecture and Women in Architecture. Those who have so little sense of humour as not to be able to appreciate a humorous reference to the architect's well-known difficulties in satisfying his women clients, and who seize at a straw in order to vent their well-developed powers of sarcasm upon a much-expressed public, seem to have much time and little work, hanging heavy upon their hands. Whatever may be said about the Pass Course and the Just Kids' Safety Club, the Medical School, at least, is as "excluded and elite" in its membership as the School of Science, if not as rankly snobbish.

Sincerely,

"Titan."

VARSITY INTERMEDIATE TRACK TEAM COMPETES AT GUELPH TO-DAY

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Things are looking pretty rosy for a red-hot football finale. With the three college teams tied with a win and a loss for each, interest in Saturday's game should rise to a fever-pitch. It is quite possible that the end of the schedule will find Varsity, Queen's and McGill still on an even status, necessitating play-offs for the championship. In the season of 1926 the end of the series found all three colleges even, and Varsity finally were victorious after two gruelling struggles with McGill and Queen's.

This week will find the Blue team working at top speed. Last week "Les" Blackwell was experimenting with a new line-up, and the next few days will see the final touches put to team-work in preparation for the Queen's game on the 27th.

Bell and Baillie after their good game on Saturday should be permanent additions to the Intercollegiate squad. Bell will likely play against the Tricolour, and Baillie may get a chance to display his wares in the "big" game.

Ruddell at quarter for the Orphans played a mighty fine game. He had the plays working smartly and showed real field generalship. The touch he scored in the overtime capped a good day's work.

Here's a very obvious fact. The tickets for the Queen's game are going like the proverbial hot-cakes. The attendance at the McGill game, when a large crowd was on hand, should be considerably bettered if Old Man Sunshine is on the job.

Senior School and Dents Battle to a 3 all Score

Senior School pulled through in the face of defeat when they tied the score on Dents in a Mulock Cup fixture, the score being 3-3. Dents took three points in the first quarter off Eddie Sinclair's toe. School came through with singles in the third quarter, and two in the last to tie the score.

Teams:
Dents: Flying wing, Brown; halves, Sinclair, Hudson, Branna; quarters, Jolotsky, snap, Kichham; insides, Maselle, Catarino; middles, Merritt, Kuschi; outsides, Shaver, Horowitz; subs, Stafford, Mitchell, Brown.

Sr. School: Flying wing, Carruthers; halves, Clarke, Green, McVean; quarters, Kearns; snap, Curran; insides, Dowds, Robinson; middles, Hardy, McMordy; outsides, Colomba, Rupskey; subs, Strong, Armstrong, Hill.

Any student at Lafayette college who wishes to drive an automobile must register with the dean, who will then write for written permission from the student's parents.

VARSITY SOCCER MEN READY FOR R.M.C.

Coach Halliwell Puts Team Through Hard Work for Opener on Saturday FAVOURITES FOR TITLE

Next Saturday the Varsity Intercollegiate soccer team hooks up with R.M.C. in their first intercollegiate game. They will play on the front campus and the kick-off is scheduled for 10.30 in the morning.

Last year the Blues defeated the Cadets 2-1, but lost to McGill 3-1. As goals count on the round, the cup remained with the Red men. In the first game this year R.M.C. held McGill to a draw 1 all. Varsity with a much strengthened and improved team are now the favourites for the title.

Coach Halliwell has had his men out every day concentrating on good condition and better form. His system of the half line playing together with the forward line on the attack has worked out quite effectively. This is the first year Varsity has had a soccer coach and indications are that they will cop the title.

Halliwell has developed better team work both on the defensive as well as the offensive. Davidson has showed up on the forward line, working well with Jackson and Skelton. King on the half line steadies the newcomers. Hadley and Jack make it hard for the ball to reach Cox in goal.

The line-up for the game will be as follows:

Goal, Cox; backs, Hadley and Jack; half-backs, Goldenburg, Roland and King; forwards, Ward, Jackson, Skelton, Davidson, Downing; subs, McCullough and Whitlaw.

S.P.S. NOSE OUT DENTS IN REGATTA

School Retains Championship in Interfaculty Regatta for Second Time

RACES ARE ALL CLOSE

In spite of the cool breezes, the annual Interfaculty Regatta was held on Saturday afternoon opposite the Varsity Rowing Club. The School oarsmen, ably coxswained by "Squeak" Chalmers, retained the championship for another year by defeating Dents in the finals.

The first heat between Meds and S.P.S. had to be started three times before one of the Engineers could free himself of a huge crab which kept attacking him. Both crews gave all they had coming down the course, but in the last twenty strokes the Schoolmen pulled out in front to win by about a length.

The second heat between U.C. and Dents had its share of "fast" turns also, when both crews broke an oar. They finally got away and Dents took the lead. U.C. fought hard and seemed to be coming up toward the end, but it was too late.

In the final race between Dents and S.P.S. the former had a series of misfortunes which used up all the shells in the starter's gun. Although the Dent crew rowed a good race, the School boat jumped them a length at every start and held the lead to the finish.

The winning crew consisted of Chalmers, cox; Keith, stroke; Wright, 7; Watt, 6; Milne, 5; Lytle, 4; Davidson, 3; Walkour, 2; Boyd, bow.

PLAYERS ADVANCE TO SECOND ROUND

Womens Tennis Tournament Produces Some Fine Matches

DRAW FOR TO-DAY

The first round of the Women's Interfaculty Tennis Tournament was played at the Toronto Tennis Club yesterday. Excellent tennis was shown all the way through and there were some very close matches. St. Hilda's is leading with five players victorious. Victoria College is a close second with four in the running. St. Michael's and O.C.E. both have three very promising contestants, while University College has two and the Medettes have one.

Some of the sets were particularly interesting. Peggy Grout and Mary Winspear, two of St. Hilda's favourites, are playing their usual good tennis. Nora Bateman and M. Lindsay are advancing quite easily. Audrey Purkis, a promising U.C. freshe, went down to defeat in a match with S. Ballard of St. Hilda's. The sole survivors for U.C. at the end of the first round were Clara and Jessie Gray. The lack of courts in the University is felt very keenly, especially by the U.C. girls, who have no place to practise.

The second round will take place this morning, beginning at nine o'clock at the Toronto Tennis Club.

Dot James (Meds) vs S. Ballard (St. Hilda's).

M. Quinn (St. Mike's) vs B. Symons (St. Hilda's).

L. Paterson (St. Mike's) vs C. Gray (U.C.).

E. McCubbin (O.C.E.) vs N. Bateman (Vic.).

M. Lindsay (Vic.) vs P. Grout (St. Hilda's).

I. McDermott (Vic.) vs M. Sedgwick (O.C.E.).

E. McCall (St. Hilda's) vs L. Bates (O.C.E.).

J. Gray (U.C.) vs M. Winspear (St. Hilda's).

stockings, one being black in colour and the other being white, or some other light colour. They shall wear their hats back to front, and no gloves shall be carried visibly by them. Their array will probably vie with that of the Science freshmen.

The bibs which are to be worn outside their coats, have woven through them the inscription "GOOD LUCK MY PET." Thus the spirit of good will towards the freshmen is shown by the sophomores.

No freshette costume would be complete without their envying green emblem, which this year is to be a wide green ribbon tied in a large bow around the ankle of the light stocking.

The freshmen are to show their respect towards the upper classmen, by curtsying when required, as well as standing while in their presence.

These rules were enforced as soon as the freshmen had received their bibs and green ribbon. One rebellious freshman who complained that she had never had practice in curtsying was given lessons and practice right at the time. Another one was posted in the corner of a hall way and was required to sing "James McGill."

During the coming week many sophomores will be seen around the campus carrying small sponges, which will aid in removing some of the "skin deep beauty" exhibited by the freshmen.

These rules laid down by the sophomores must be strictly obeyed, or severe penalties shall be imposed. One

Bunkley Shuter, Esq., Tells Gregory How Corners Come Off At College

(By N.J.D.)

Aurora, October 18.—"At college one has one's corners rubbed off," smiled Mr. Bunkley Shuter, son of our respected coal and wood man, Bullman Shuter, M.P., when interviewed by a staff reporter of the Aurora Borealis. As Mr. Shuter continued: "The first day I got to Varsity I had two corners rubbed off, and at once began to view college from a different angle. The contacts and jostling with one's fellows smooth and polish one's character and one emerges with a greater and a higher perspective of life." Mr. Shuter is an enthusiastic Tuxis boy.

Bunkley chuckled, "One morning I entered school without the customary red tie. I was at once seized by ten jolly sophomores and thrown down the front steps, where I had three corners and four rough spots rubbed off. Of course, it was all in the spirit of play.

"One would be surprised how little incidents like this go to show one the higher ideals of college. For instance, I once omitted to wear the customary red tie, and as a penalty twenty sophomores threw my clothes, and then me, out of a third story window. I barely escaped with my life. Of course, it was all in the spirit of play, but many of my former theories of life were broken up, ethically speaking."

At this point he scribe interjected: "Well, Mr. Shuter, as a Freshman, do you really approve of tie-wearing?"

"Ha, ha, ha," laughed Bunkley, jovially slapping the "Borealis" on the back. "You bet you! Why, do you know that after wearing my ties I really felt one of my fellow students?"

"Where," asked eye correspondent, "did you feel him and why?"

"Huh?"

"You said you felt one of your fellow students."

"You wouldn't understand, Gregory," smiled Bunkley, "you need some of your corners rubbed off. You need ideals. Why, in some buildings there are ideals all over the darn place, any one of which can be petted upon application to the Bursar; however, no applications will be accepted in the afternoon, not on Saturdays and never in the morning."

"Tell me, Bunkley, have you a message for our young readers?"

"Yes, Gregory, tell all the boys I will be glad to welcome them and throw them down the front steps. Good bye, Mr. Black."

THE EMPIRE THEATRE

The New Empire Theatre Company is one of the best stock companies which this neglected city has seen. But in one respect it is woefully lacking.

The choice of plays is something awful! Why must they resurrect that hackneyed, over-done comedy, "Abie's Irish Rose," which we hoped had been buried forever and aye? Surely by this time everyone knows that everything will turn out all right if Jew and Gentile marry. The moral effect of this affair on the people is deplorable, for after six years of it in New York and elsewhere the younger generation have come to believe that the penalty of intermarriage is twins.

Monday evening's performance was far from smooth; particularly the second act suffered from halts. But later on in the week these difficulties will doubtless be overcome. The honours go to Will Fox, who played Isaac Cohen, and to Deirdre Doyle, as Mrs. Cohen of the operations. Other than that there were no outstanding performances, though Marjorie Foster and Robert Leslie were quite satisfactory in the leading roles. It is not the actors with whom we quarrel but the play; however, judging from the box office receipts and the laughter of the crowd, the management will be fully justified in opposing the critic's views.

UPTOWN THEATRE

If the rather disgusting attempts of a fat, rich and comfortably married man to be naughty along with the standard type of "gold-digger" be considered amusing, then the Griffith production at the Uptown Theatre, "The Battle of the Sexes," will doubtless satisfy.

Unfortunately the story—the old, old tale of the elderly swain, who breaks up his home in order to satisfy his lusts, is later blackmailed for his indiscretion and finally repents of his folly—is interrupted time and again by long purple patches revealing a mawkish sentimentality in the home life of the man.

By far the best of the acting is done by Phyllis Haver as the deserted wife. The dumb agony she portrayed in the later scenes was almost convincing. Don Alvarado, "perfumed ice" as the sub title called him, was the most alive of the rest of the cast.

The Uptown vaudeville acts passed off smoothly, and were novel enough to be appreciated. It is a real relief to know that the actors are not seeking to discover the slightest glint of applause in order to appear in an encore number.

G.M.

BASIS FOR CHOICE OF RHODES SCHOLARS

that the student, in addition to the normal literary and scholastic attainments, should have active intellectual interests outside the field in which he proposes to specialize. The career of Mr. Rhodes illustrates the point. Mr. Rhodes, though already a successful business man in Kimberley, thought it worth while to travel backwards and forwards to Oxford from South Africa for a total period of three years between the ages of 20 and 28 in search of education. He did so not because a degree was important to him in after life, but because he wanted to broaden his outlook by delving into the history of the ancient and the modern world and by discussing with tutors and his fellow undergraduates every problem which presents itself to the human mind. It was this intellectual vigour and imagination which enabled him to accomplish what he did in later life and which is necessary in his scholars if they are to reap full advantage of the opportunity which the scholarship gives them. Real intellectual interest and ability is an essential quality of a true Rhodes scholar. Leadership of the high kind which Mr. Rhodes contemplated can never be attained by the man who is merely a mixer or a dilettante.

(i) "The moral qualities Mr. Rhodes required in his scholars seem to require no comment. It is interesting to note, however, the emphasis he laid upon sympathetic and kindly as opposed to the forceful qualities of manhood.

(ii) "Leadership has come to acquire, especially in the United States, a somewhat special meaning which was clearly not in Mr. Rhodes' mind, namely, success in being elected to office in student organizations. This may or may not be evidence of leadership in the true sense of the word. Mr. Rhodes evidently regarded leadership as consisting in moral courage and in a real interest in one's fellow-men quite as much as in the more aggressive qualities. Resistance to student opinion, for instance, may give more evidence of leadership than success in interpreting or expressing it. Leadership is often a capacity to follow a moral or spiritual call. Mr. Rhodes once wrote: 'Work is not enough in itself—one must inspire others to work.'

(iii) "In a private letter Mr. Rhodes makes it clear that he was more concerned that his scholars should be moderately fond of field sports than that they should attain 'success' in athletics, in the sense of winning a university 'letter' or a 'blue.' "At Oxford all but a small minority of undergraduates play games of some kind. What Mr. Rhodes seems to have wanted was that his scholars should play some game sufficiently well to make it an easy road of entry into the social life of his college, that they should be active and healthy in body, and that they should know how to 'play the game' in a sportsmanlike manner. He regarded the colleges as places where friendships as opposed to mere acquaintanceships are made. Between two men both interested in sports it should not be assumed that the better athlete would be the better Rhodes scholar.

3. "Perhaps the key phrase in Mr. Rhodes' will is the statement that he wanted the Rhodes scholars selected for 'moral force of character, and instincts to lead and to take an interest in his school-mates' because he believed that these 'attributes will be likely in after-life to guide him to esteem the performance of public duties as his highest aim.' Mr. Rhodes wanted the type of man who, by reason of his moral courage and his generous love of his fellow-men, would feel impelled to take an active part in bettering the political and social conditions of his time. It was with the object of qualifying such men to undertake such tasks more successfully that he founded the scholarships which bear his name.

4. "The Rhodes Scholarship is a quite exceptional opportunity for those who can take advantage of it. It is the greatest prize of its kind which is to-day open to the English-speaking student. During three years the Rhodes scholar is enabled, for six months in each year, to reside in one of the most ancient and famous seats of learning in the world where he can meet other students from all over the English-speaking world in the intimate conditions of college life, and for the other six months to travel and study in any part of Europe.

5. "But experience shows that there are men of the general type laid down by Mr. Rhodes who do not make successful Rhodes scholars. Some men are so set or so lacking in imagination that they can see little in the scholarship save the degree to which it will lead them at the end of the time. Others are so receptive and so lacking in stability that they become unsettled and have difficulty in making a success of their after-life. It is the task of the Selection Committee to pick that candidate who seems likely to gain most intellectually and morally from the scholarship, to make the best use of what he has learned in after life, and so in Mr. Rhodes' phrase, 'be the best man for the world's fight.'

ASPIRING BUSINESS WOMEN ARE GIVEN SOUND ADVICE

Toronto Women Address Victoria Vocational Conference

NEED SPECIAL TRAINING

Vivacity and That "Go-get 'em" Quality Make for Successful Saleswoman

"Thirty years ago it was considered a misfortune for a girl to have to be self-supporting, and the business woman was unheard of, but to-day the only question that remains is whether the business woman should be as highly remunerated as her co-worker of the sturdier sex," declared Miss McMahon, of the United Typewriter Company. Miss McMahon was one of the speakers on "The Opportunities for Women in Business," at the third meeting of the Victoria Women's Vocational Conference at Wymilwood last evening.

This influx into the business world she attributed to the introduction of the typewriter which to-day does all recording and accounting, and has opened up for women the largest field of work the world has ever known. The college girl could attain great heights, if she was willing to expend the time and energy to become expert along the line of business she intended to follow. She had a splendid basis upon which to supplement some specialized training, but whether in office work or salesmanship, this training was essential. "The fact that a girl is educated does not make her competent, and a girl must be as efficient as a man in order to compete with him—so equip yourself with commercial training before entering the

COLLEGES PLEAD FOR RENEWAL OF ORATORY

Intercollegiate Debaters Must Submit Two Types of Speeches

NEW SYSTEM PLANNED

There seems to be a general feeling in debating circles that the different colleges would do well to show a keener interest in the noble art of oratory. Enthusiasm has lagged so in this direction at University College that at the present time it boasts no debating society. The women of St. Hilda's, on the other hand, are showing a greater amount of enthusiasm this year than last. A programme is being planned, in which open house debates, conducted in true parliamentary style, will take a prominent place. These will be held at St. Hilda's. Victoria is making arrangements for a mixed debate, to be sponsored by the Women's Literary Society and the Students' Parliament. This will be held very shortly. At Loretto, the open house system of debating is being introduced for the first time, with the hope that girls, who might not otherwise have a chance to join in a debate, will take advantage of this opportunity to do so. Here too there is a lively interest being shown in debating.

Particular thought is being given to the intercollegiate debates, which will be run off within a few weeks now. Those trying out for the teams will be required to furnish the judges with both a prepared and a more or less impromptu speech.

G. H. ARMSTRONG DONATES PRIZE TO STUDENT BODY

Graduate of 1898 Deplores Students' Lack of Interest in Canadian History

Among the many donors of scholastic prizes to the student body of the University of Toronto is Mr. G. H. Armstrong, who graduated in 1898 from U.C. with several high degrees. Deploping the lack of interest in Canadian history among the students of to-day, he offered a prize of the value of $100 to be competed for, annually, at the opening of the school session. This prize is known as the G. H. Armstrong Prize in Canadian History and is primarily intended for all undergraduates intending to teach after graduation.

The first examination for this prize was held during the last week of September, 1928, and was based on summer reading. It consisted of two separate papers, the first—a general paper of the history of Canada; the second—a more special paper on the period 1840-1867. The award for 1928 has not yet been made. The number of contestants for this prize was very low.

MATRIC. PLAYS ARE TO BE PRESENTED

Undergraduates to Play at Hart House and Tour Ontario

PLANS ONLY TENTATIVE

To all undergraduates interested in dramatics a proposal of the Secondary School Teachers' Federation is of importance. This proposal, which is now before the Syndics, entails the forming of a company to consist mostly of undergraduates to play Twelfth Night and Henry V, the two plays prescribed for matriculation work this year in various high schools of the city.

Mr. Aikens, director of Hart House Theatre, when interviewed, stated that this plan, although at present purely tentative, is receiving his attention and that it would furnish undergraduates with valuable experience in dramatics. The plays would be given on afternoons and evenings during January and February and at the close of the University the company would tour Ontario towns for two or three weeks. The plays will be given with simplicity. (Continued on page 4)

STUDENTS GIVE ATTENTION TO POLITICAL PROBLEMS

American Politics Are Subject of Undergrad Discussions

The frenzied oratory of pre-election weeks in the United States of America seem to be spreading to undergraduate circles in the University of Toronto. Almost every discussion club and debating society on the campus is giving serious attention to the political problems across the border.

Yesterday afternoon the Parliamentary Club of University College gave its verdict in favour of Hoover. Tomorrow night the Historical Club is studying the relative merits of the two principal candidates for the presidency. The Foreign Affairs Club on the same night will discuss considered of special import because of the different viewpoints of the Democratic and Republican parties. Friday night the Trinity College Literary Institute is debating the subject, "Resolved that this House would welcome the election of Alfred E. Smith to the presidency of the United States."

OXFORD TRADITION STILL MAINTAINED BETWEEN SEXES

English Co-ed a Woman of Brains Not Looks is the General Opinion

SPORT VERY SIGNIFICANT

Undergrads at Canadian and English Universities Keen in Both Work and Sports

Oxford men feel they owe an apology to their male friends if they attend a dance given by a women's college at Oxford, was a statement made by a member of the staff here who had attended Oxford recently. Several members of the faculty were interviewed by "The Varsity" in regard to the comment which appeared in the Thursday's issue which said that Oxford men and women were beginning to do away with the tradition of ignoring each other. Those interviewed said that this tradition had been maintained when they were there. It was pointed out that very little existed to bring men and women together. It was said that it is possible to go through Oxford and completely ignore the women; in fact this is what the majority did. The general opinion seemed to be that the English co-ed was a woman of brains, not looks, and furthermore all women have to wear a sort of floppy mortarboard which makes them look quite formidable to a mere male.

The men there have many more and stricter regulations than the women at Toronto. In many of the colleges at Oxford the gates are locked at nine-thirty in the evening and a fine imposed on those who come in later than this. One man coming in after twelve o'clock is "sent up" and must produce a good excuse or he is very likely to be expelled.

They cannot attend dances except those licensed by the Vice-Chancellor, nor eat and drink in a place which has not been so licensed. The Oxford undergraduates are as a whole younger than those in our universities and have come from public schools where they lived very restricted and secluded lives. Thus at Oxford they are enjoying a comparative freedom. One of those interviewed pointed out that as Oxford was in a small town there is nothing to keep one out late anyway. The main reason for "lateness" was going to London and missing the last train out.

The life is completely bound up in the separated colleges. Each man or woman thinks and lives in terms of their own college only. For the first two years a man must live in residence. After that he may go out, but by this time he is so a part of the college that living out does not separate him from it. This is another reason for the complete separation of men and women, as the women's colleges are entirely separate from the men's.

The women are admitted to the Oxford Union as spectators only and are not admitted to the Dramatic Society. Of course they have their own organizations also. A number of the women are at Oxford on scholarships and as a whole they rank very high in academic standing and carry off a good share of honours. For the past few years the Newdigate Prize for English Verse has been won by women.

Sport plays a larger part there than here, as each of the colleges has one team and often more in every line of sport, and the inter-college matches arouse keen interest. Also there is no slack time in sport in England, as the weather permits all sports to go on during the winter.

CO-EDUCATION AS AN ESTABLISHED FACT IS GENERAL OPINION

Many Opine That Co-education is Impossible Under Present Conditions

FAVOUR MIXED DISCUSSION

Complacent Co-ed Considers Co-education Essential to Male Students

"Oh! they simply couldn't get along without us now." Such was the quite deliberate and serious statement of one complacent co-ed on being asked whether co-education really existed in Canadian universities. This acceptance of co-education as an established fact seemed fairly general among those interviewed by "The Varsity," though several were found who stated that real co-education could never exist so long as there were any stringent residential restrictions.

"I'm never really serious with the other girls, but sometimes I have such wonderful discussions with boys—some boys, that is," replied a U.C. co-ed to the query as to whether serious subjects could be discussed in mixed groups with success.

On the other hand a third year girl from Trinity showed disgust at the query. "There are a lot of amorous lads around," she said, "who think that everything we do ought to be done with them."

"Most of the kids are quite decent about us. Why, lots of them watched our basketball games last year and cheered all the time. I know one boy who said we played almost as good as he could." These words a fair Vicsoph passed across the campus.

"I know one American college where men and women both eat and sleep in the same houses," declared a University College senior. "But they'd get awfully tired of each other."

"I couldn't stand any more of the boys than I see in lectures and at an occasional dance and meeting," was the opinion of one of the few meddles in the University. "I have to be with girls, where I can be natural sometimes." She thought that co-education as it existed in Toronto was all right, and that one had to learn to get on with men sometime.

"I bet there would be an awful kick from the men if they ever changed the system. I don't know what they did before there was co-education." This was the final comment secured from a co-ed and came from the Household Science Building, one of those spots less frequented by men.

MORE PRIZES THIS YEAR IN BROTHERTON CUP RACE

Two Harrier Teams of Winners to Represent University in International Relay

"More depends on the Brotherton Cup race this year than ever before," stated the secretary of the Harrier Club to "The Varsity" yesterday. It was learned that not only were there going to be more prizes awarded but that the first fifteen from the University who finish Saturday's race will be on one of the two teams that will represent the University in sporting events this fall.

Not only will there be the regular U. of T. harrier team consisting of the first five who finish Saturday. There will also be a second team made up of the next five who finish who will represent the University in the special international thirty mile relay race to be held on November 3 before the Exhibition grand stand.

U.C. PARLIAMENT SUPPORTS HOOVER

Republicans Gain Important Victory When Upheld by U.C. Men

BOTH ISSUES CONFUSED

A significant victory for the Hoover forces was registered yesterday afternoon when the U.C. Parliamentary Club upheld the government on the resolution, "Resolved that this house would be glad to see Herbert Hoover elected President of the United States."

In moving the resolution, the prime minister, Mr. Beamish, stressed the general confusion of issues and the general distress of both parties. He then dealt with the outstanding issues of the campaign, finally arriving at the conclusion that Hoover would be the logical choice for the presidency.

Mr. Usher, the first speaker of the opposition, wished to refute many of the statements of the leader of the government, concluding with a strenuous plea for the election of Al. Smith.

Mr. Lewis was inclined to think that the president of the United States should be a university graduate. Hence he claimed the support of the house for the man, to whom he referred as "the only great man the United States produced during the war"—Herbert Hoover.

Mr. Gelber, the leader of the opposition, compared the qualities of the two men. He showed that Al. Smith has had more experience in political life than Hoover. Since the President of the U.S.A. must be a man versed in politics and not in engineering, hence it was wise to choose the politician rather than the engineer—Smith rather than Hoover.

The motion was then thrown open to the House and a varied discussion was engaged in.

Fratellanza Election Results

Results of the Fratellanza elections held recently resulted as follows: F. J. Masiello, V. Dents, President; V. A. Gardi, VI Meds, Vice-President; and F. J. Cosentino, Secretary-Treasurer. Plans are already under way for their annual dinner.

SPECTATORS WILL BE CHEERED BY SKIT AT SATURDAY'S GAME

S.P.S. Sophs Are Preparing Interesting Stunt for Half-time

BETTER ROOTING EXPECTED

Students Disagree on Subject of Voluntary Rooters' Practice

Mr. A. G. Burns, Secretary-Treasurer of the Students' Administrative Council, assured a representative of "The Varsity" yesterday that entertainment for the bored undergraduates would be presented at half-time at the Varsity's game next Saturday. "Some of the sophomores from S.P.S. are putting on a skit which should be interesting," he said. "Of course all details are being kept a close secret. In addition, the C.O.T.C. band may be present. They practiced last night, and will continue to practice all week. If they are ready by Saturday they will be present. If they aren't ready by that time, they won't be able to appear."

"The rooting, too, should be in much better shape," went on Mr. Burns. "The yells are better known, as the rooters have had two games to practice in; the leaders will feel more at home, and in addition, the importance of Saturday's game should encourage them to get rooters to come out. In other years, when it was necessary to attend rooters' practices in order to obtain a roster's ticket, only about six hundred turned out; this year over eight hundred and fifty rooters' tickets have been sold. We should have had to call a voluntary meeting for rooters' practice, and probably not many would have turned out, as we had no inducement to offer to those who did. As

DOG ENJOYS LECTURE PROFESSOR DOES NOT

U.C. Co-eds Recall Dog With Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde Nature

FUTURE UNCERTAIN

A French lecture was recently slightly aroused by an insignificant-looking member of the canine species, who unwittingly made his presence known by a huge, soul-stirring sneeze. The students, having previously perceived a distinct antipathy to lap-dogs on the part of the professor, held their breaths and covered during a brief calm such as that preceding a storm. Then thunderbolts of sarcasm, regarding the presence of dogs in what should be a classic atmosphere, hurled around the room. To all, the little dog slept on in sweet oblivion.

The above case is a sequel to several incidents which occurred two years ago, relating to the introduction of the canine element in lectures. The dog in question was a handsome police dog, unfortunately possessing a peculiar Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde streak in its make-up. Due to a whim on the part of a professor (most unreasonable, of course) Mr. Dog was obliged to spend many a boring hour in the Women's Common Room, while his mistress was attending lectures from which he had been ejected. An atmosphere of uneasiness became apparent as the luckless co-eds never knew whether they would see him tame at

PRODUCTION AND SALE

It is commonplace to note the way in which the university has been drawn from the cloister to the business world and the extent to which it has reflected and expedited the development of industrial civilization. The influence exerted upon it by this development is resulting in a clash between ideas old and new.

The new idea with which we are concerned here is the application to college administration of one of the first principles of factory administration. This is the rule by which the executive of an industry endeavours to maintain a balance between the work of the engineer and that of the sales manager and to the amount of production equivalent to the opportunities for distribution. It may be necessary to curb the engineer in charge of production if his enthusiasm for his work leads him to produce fine products in quantities too large to be disposed of by the sales staff.

Hitherto in the production of college graduates, the part of the engineer has been paramount but the spread of the democratic principle in education and the constant drift from farm to city of men and later, women, in search of professional education have made possible the study of this particular industry from the standpoint of distribution. The emphasizing of this standpoint is the idea which has been gaining ground steadily in academic circles.

The traditional justification of an Arts course has been the cultural one. But now the honour courses in Arts which were begun with the intention of improving scholarship by concentration and specialization have assumed an utilitarian purpose in the popular mind. And the utilitarian aspect of a university is heightened by the glorification of immediate professional education by the admission of technical schools to the status of faculties. The work of these faculties or factories has aroused the discussion as to the control of production. A community may appreciate or resent the influx of a large number of cultured people but it will not feel the economic effects as quickly as it will in the case of either an over-production or under-production of doctors, dentists and engineers.

Should the numbers of doctors, dentists and engineers be controlled through the educational system? There are many who still favour the principle of free entrance and free competition, confident that matters will adjust themselves naturally. But free competition is denounced as wasteful by many who believe that there should be cooperation between individuals, institutions and Government to prevent waste. The objection that professional education cannot be controlled in a state owned university is answered by the argument that it is the duty of a state institution to save the people's money by preventing the waste due to over-production or the poor service resulting from under-production.

The troubles raised for the institution itself by uncontrolled production are clear. If too many enter the first year of a course and as a result too many, in spite of the casualties caused by examinations, are given their degrees, this particular profession will be crowded in a few years. The overcrowding will alarm the members of the profession and they, among others, will dissuade prospective students from entering the course. If there is a heavy drop in registration the amount of money received will decrease and the increased equipment, made necessary by former large classes, will constitute a burden. Therefore there must be an extra grant from common funds, or what is more likely, an increase in fees. This latter method will certainly not permit or at the best, encourage a return to normal.

It is suggested by some that a survey should be made every few years by the authorities and registration be restricted by a sliding scale of the numbers admitted, according to the state of the country and its ability to absorb the graduates. Would the difficulties of its administration hinder the application of the idea?

George Thomson's Pictures

George Thomson, brother of the late Tom Thomson, visited Hart House last spring and was greatly interested in the activities of the House and particularly those of the Sketch Room. This fall he asked whether an exhibition of his work could be arranged. The result is the present exhibit of a considerable number of small sketches done in oils. This will be on view until visitors' day at the end of the month.

It must occasionally be annoying to George Thomson to be always referred to as Tom Thomson's brother—but such seems to be the fate of near relatives of famous people. While I know very little about George, it might be of interest to consider for a moment the two brothers from the standpoint of their work. That a genuine artistic strain ran in the family is eminently manifest from a cursory examination of the exhibit in question, not to mention the fact that almost all of Tom Thomson's work is much sought after at the present time. But while the one brother left civilization and wandered into our hinterland, as it were, and painted nature in a bold, robust fashion that shattered many conventional rules of the brush; the other brother (if the present exhibit may be taken as any criterion) was content to stay at home and paint pictures. Tom the great experimenter might easily have been lost in oblivion, but by following the dictates of a virile soul he unwittingly achieved fame and became an inspiration to other artists.

The pictures under review are mostly scenes around the vicinity of the painters' home at Owen Sound, although some are Connecticut landscapes. All of the pictures purport to be merely sketches and should be judged with that in mind. While the exhibit contains nothing of a startling nature, many of the pictures are quite pleasing. The writer was especially delighted with some of the snow scenes and a few landscapes containing bodies of water. Some of these it is thought would be worthy of larger canvases.

As a compliment to the exhibit and by way of contrast, the Sketch Committee have arranged a series of reproductions in the annex to the Sketch Room from landscapes done mostly by the old masters. Some of these admirably represent the fashion prevailing among landscape artists at different periods, while those by Renoir, Cameron and one by Thomas, of course, strike a modern note.

Just here I would like to acknowledge an error in the review of Mr. Bridgen's pictures. Mr. Bridgen does not work in the opaque method as was stated but in pure water colours.

It was brought to our attention last week that an otherwise brilliant co-ed in three years of university activity had not realized what the enigmatic C-C between some meant. One has only to view those who have already undergone the process, and spend their time preaching, to see what a stupendous booboonery it all is. Editor, "The Varsity."

I trust that you will not think it amiss if I add a few random comments to the rooting-band-skit situation, even though they appear to be rather late; probably in the light of an approaching game that is of great importance, the facts which I shall set forth will not be out of place.

In the first place regarding the C.O.T.C. band; for five years this organization has been connected with this organization, and led the band while on the field at last year's games. With this experience then I am in a position to state that the absence of the band this year is explained by reference to the students who comprised the band; that is to say that the attitude of the members is a reflection of the general attitude that I shall refer to later.

Invariably for the opening game there was a large and enthusiastic crowd of musicians ready and willing to practise and attend the game. If Varsity won this game, this throng suddenly multiplied until in the event of a tie game nearly every undergraduate in the university had become seized with a musical "daemon" that desired nothing so much as to wear a blue and white uniform. What applied to the season also applied to the individual game. If the first half were interesting the entire band remained, providing it was not too cold. If the game was poor or the weather bad, some poor wounded gladiator on the field was just as liable as not to be carried off to the strains of a single piccolo and a big drum, the remainder

ST. HILDA'S FIRST, VIC. SECOND IN WOMEN'S TENNIS TOURNEY

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Pending confirmation from McGill and Queen's of changes proposed last year in Women's Intercollegiate Basketball Rules, the Interfaculty Series will be played according to revised rulings. The Intercollegiate basketball has since its inception tried to encourage general use of the rules published under its own name. Chief opposition to use of these rules centred in three things—the restricted floor space, the limiting of the number of players who might shoot and the unduly severe penalties for minor violations of the rules.

Two years ago a start was made in the right direction when the side centre as well as the two forwards was permitted to shoot. In the opinion of many a retrograde step was taken when at the same time the centres were restricted to two-thirds of the floor in the same way as those playing the other positions.

This system, however, has had only one year's trial and it is rather soon to condemn it entirely. This year a still further step is being taken in the change of penalties for minor fouls from a free shot to a throw in or a free pass from the floor.

Last year Vancouver and South Carolina were sufficiently interested to request the Intercollegiate rules, and this season there have been numerous inquiries which proves that the rules are fast becoming widespread.

The interest displayed by the co-eds in the "Mascot Campaign" for Saturday augurs well for women's Intercollegiate sport. The proceeds will procure new outfits for the basketball team and carry them gaily clad to old McGill.

Evidently tickets for the Saturday game will be as scarce as hen's teeth judging by the anxiety of the co-eds who haunted U.C. early this morning.

After carrying off the tennis championship last year, St. Hilda's are again making a bid for the title with serious opposition from Victoria racket wielders.

Unless the weather man changes his tactics, the tennis tourney will be extended into the ice season.

All baseball enthusiasts regret the fact that St. Hilda's College is not entering a team in the interfaculty series this season.

BASKETBALL TEAMS SHOW KEEN INTEREST

O.C.E. Threaten an All-Star Team, May Attain Liveliness in Interfaculty Series

U.C. SENIORS IN BAD STATE

Interfaculty basketball will have nine teams on the schedule this year, with two teams from U.C. and Victoria. The committee hopes to have the schedule ready by the end of the week.

The draw resulted in Vic. Seniors, Occupational Therapy and Meds in Group I; U.C. Juniors, St. Mike's and O.C.E. in Group II; U.C. Seniors, Vic. Juniors and St. Hilda's in Group III.

Pharmacy Downed Forestry 7-6 in Exciting Rugby Match

Forestry went under to Pharmacy 7-6 last night on the back campus in a real exciting game.

Pharmacy: Flying wing, Frelick; halves, Harrigan, Tanton, Creasy; quarter, Cain; snap, Main; insides, Long, Goldsmith; middles, A. Brown, Keating; outsides, Middleton, Wolfe; subs, King, Lennon, Debit.

Forestry: Flying wing, Start; halves, Rayburn, Simpson, Boulthbee; quarter, Platt; snap, Greelock; insides, Andrews, Miller; middles, McNutt, Christie; outsides, Walkon, McBean; subs, Young, Van Ean, Jackson, Bier.

in Group III.

It is doing the hearts of all basketball enthusiasts good to see the keen interest displayed this year. O.C.E. threaten to have an all-star team with last year's McGill favorite, Kay Rannels, in their midst. Jean Bateman, Grace Kiffer and Frank Service from Vic's team and Kay Scholes from U.C. are all splendid material, enough to put O.C.E. in the limelight. Marion Forward is coaching the Vic. team, which promises to keep pace with their championship team of last year. Dot Ker and Al Muckle are both strong defence players.

U.C. are not saying much about their juniors but are counting on them to go far. The freshies are putting every inch of their energy into it and are being ably coached by Phyl. Griffiths. U.C. seniors are finding considerable difficulty in providing a team, as Betty Macdonald, Phil. Ferguson, Marion Henderson and Edith Peake, all splendid material, are the only enthusiasts.

VARSITY WINS FIRST PLACE IN TRACK AND FIELD MEET

Thompson U. of T. and Second O.A.C. Divide Individual Honours

O.A.C. TAKE SECOND PLACE

First Intercollegiate Track Meet in Which Intermediates Have Competed

Yesterday afternoon the Ontario Agricultural College in Guelph saw the first intermediate intercollegiate track and field meet in which Varsity seconds competed. O.A.C., McMaster and Western University were the other three entries in the meet besides Varsity.

Varsity announced their entry into this intermediate meet by collecting 53 points which placed them first. O.A.C. followed with 48. Western was third with 23 and McMaster fourth with 10 points.

The athletic field used was the sloping front campus, which was not altogether conducive to fast times in the track events, while the slippery footing did not at all aid the jumpers. In spite of these conditions, however, the results were quite satisfactory.

Individual honours for the day were divided between Thompson (U. of T.) and A. Secord (O.A.C.), each having 11 points.

Discus—1. A. Douglas (O.A.C.), 105 ft. 9 3-8 in.; 2. L. H. Newell (Western), 100 ft. 3-4 in.; 3. P. Ballache (U. of T.), 95 ft. 7 1-2 in.

High Hurdles—1. M. Laughlin (U. of T.), 18 3-5 sec.; 2. W. McGowen (McM.); 3. C. E. Robinson (O.A.C.).

Pole Vault—1. N. H. Walker (O.A.C.), 9 ft. 8 in.; 2. A. S. Mitchell (O.A.C.); 3. B. Sprague (U. of T.). (Continued on page 4)

WEATHER PROHIBITS TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Matches Will Be Played To-day at Toronto Tennis Club

ST. HILDA'S IN LEAD

Owing to a dreary drizzle and greasy courts, the women were forced to postpone the second round of their interfaculty Tennis Tournament. Weather permitting, the matches will take place to-day at the Toronto Tennis Club, beginning at nine o'clock. The line-up given in yesterday's "Varsity" will be followed and some snappy matches are promised.

St. Hilda's is leading with five girls still in the running. Peggy Groat, their star player, captured the interfaculty championship last year, and was also on the intercollegiate team. Many fans are looking to her to repeat her fine work this year. Enid McColl and Dot Langley also played on the Interfaculty team last year. Dot was defeated by T. Corcoran of St. Mike's in the first round but Enid is still going strong. Marge Winspear and two freshies, Sally Ballard and B. Symons.

Victoria College boasts the only other intercollegiate player of last year—Norma Bateman. She is in splendid form and very promising. Lois Reynolds is also playing a great game. She defeated Norma in the Vic. tournament.

J. Corcoran of St. Mike's is claimed by many to be their best, while O.C.E. is strongly in favour of Lou Bates. Ruth Higgins, an intercollegiate player of last year, has graduated, much to the sorrow of U.C. However, they are looking to Clara and Jessie Gray to uphold the honour of the Red and White.

With this line-up it is certain that the games are going to be peppy and well worth watching.

FOUR TEAMS ENTER BASEBALL SERIES

Practices Give Promise of Peppy Games for the Play-offs Next Month

EVERYONE ENTHUSIASTIC

The schedule of Women's Interfaculty Baseball appeared in yesterday's "Varsity" accompanied by the announcement that St. Hilda's will not be able to enter a team this year. However, Victoria College, University College, St. Michael's College and College of Education are sending in teams. Last year's ruling has hit the girls' sports rather badly, as it is impossible for a girl to play both basketball and baseball. St. Hilda's this year are using their girls for basketball and have no material left for baseball.

The four teams entered are very optimistic and the practices have been well attended, peppy and give promise of excellent games when the teams play off next month.

Quite a few of last year's players are "swinging a heavy bat" again this year. Ed Blackwell on U.C. team, although unable to play her old position is back in good form. Fran. Dale and Helen McKinley are also playing well and nobly supporting the red and white. A freshie as pitcher is doing good work, while Margaret Robb and Christine Emslie show up well in the field.

Vic. with Molly Garret and Maud Lindsay of last year's team, backed up by Daily Quance and Cris Dobbin, both freshies, hope to keep the cup which as champions they won from U.C. last year.

St. Mike's have on their line-up Gertrude O'Mally, Eilene Way and Mary Fitzpatrick of last year's team as mainstays, while good freshie material is being worked into shape for the games.

Two of Vic's last year players, Kay Ferguson and Frankie Bates, are with O.C.E. this year. So far O.C.E. report only a couple of practices, but there is plenty of good material for a team.

The gun which booms forth the football victories at the Colorado Agricultural College has been painted gold and green.

SPECTATORS WILL BE CHEERED BY SKIT

 to the system of making it necessary to attend rooters' practice in order to obtain a rooster's ticket, we haven't considered it this year, as the only rooster's tickets for sale are the season tickets. Besides, with that system it is necessary for all roosters to attend practice, and it is only the freshmen who really need it; the system is unfair to the upper classmen. Of course, we would be perfectly willing to have voluntary practices if they could be made successful, and if we think they are wanted, we may try them out next year."

When a number of students were approached on the subject, their opinions seemed to be divided. All agreed that the rooting this year has fallen down, but some felt that rooters' practice should be compulsory, while others thought that voluntary practices would succeed. One man, a graduate of the University of British Columbia, was very much in favour of the latter system. "At U.B.C.," he said, "we held 'prep meetings' at noon-hourly practices on the yells. We took our lunches and ate them there, and then yelled our heads off." "The Varsity" was unable to get in touch with Jack Marshall, President of the Rooters' Club, to obtain his views upon the matter.

Monkey Lunches at Hart House Welcomed by Friendly Terculas

John Millington Singe our pet monkey went to lunch with us the other day in Hart House. He was just doing to go up to the Head Table but although we wanted to bring our monkey we thought there were too many up there already so we went down among the postariat and presently the lady caught us. She put us in to fill the last two places at a table amongst a group which had a head start on us.

The unfortunate John Millington has had a fearful struggle dragging himself upward from the depths and in the reversion to type which marks the beginning of such a meal he was quite outclassed by his companion. We yelled for blood worms and paper and having accumulated a goodly pile thereof decided to drink our soup but J.M. was ogling quite helplessly, looking from left to right in bewilderment. He called for brown bread and just as the plate of pans reached him, a dusky Med to his right pulled off the last two pieces of brown. He pleaded for raisin bread and when the studied delicacy was making its journey perigous in his direction, another hungry Tercula pulled off the last two pieces. By this time all the Meds, like Hamlet's father, were gross and full of bread. One even waxed friendly towards J. Millington.

"Didn't I see you in Lab to-day?" he asked. Mr. Singe was indignant. What is worse he was speechless. We tactfully explained that our companion had the misfortune not to attend the faculty in question. "S' too bad," the friendly one replied, "he just looks like one of our fellows. He doesn't seem to be of those shiftless Arts fellows that never do any studying." He glared at us suspiciously. "And what have you got when you get through?" he asked triumphantly. "Pass the pickles," we returned sharply, thus scoring a point for the cultural end of things.

But the cultural end of things was apparently being well looked after. To the horror of his brethren, a Med who had taken the English courses too seriously he was delivering a monologue on the dramatic technique of G. B. Shaw. One by one the brethren left, giving the enraptured one up for lost until finally only the monkey and we were left. The Cultured Med suggested a symposium on poetry. We agreed readily but J.M. was very reluctant as he had not yet caught up with his meal. In spite of his grovelling we decided to write a poem in collaboration. It was splendid—as far as it went. We meant it to be the wild stern stuff out of which Canadian literature is wrought.

Cultured Med: O hear the nasty northwind mutter!

We: The frightened birdies are a-flutter.

J. M. Singe (in transl.): I think it's time to pass the butter.

The Cultured Med went upstairs to read Guy de Maupassant and John Millington started in on a large pickle. "You are not such a dumb monkey," we said to John Millington, "all the Rileys in the world can't keep you down in the scale."

game. And perhaps there are others like me. This idea of organized yelling has been tried and now it has fallen down for several years. Why not draw proper inferences instead of bawling out a few people who at any rate had gizzard enough to stand out in front of a tongue-tied mob whose chief fault was that they wanted to enjoy the game in peace. Perhaps we may explain everything by saying that just because the eagle shrieks more than the beaver, it does not follow that the beaver should make a pilgrimage to some Cornish school of shrieking and hope to imitate the inmates of that renowned school.

The general attitude that I referred to is that the undergraduate is not interested in the things that once used to look big. Literary societies have to collect fees by compulsion, and both of the members that attend each meeting have to have hats. Another example is the Victoria College Orchestra. Here any member of Varsity may be trained to the extent of several hours a week under one of the finest musicians in Toronto in the performance of the finest of orchestral music. And yet the numbers availing themselves of this are very few. Student interest is taking new directions year by year, and this being the case, it is absolutely foolish for your paper or any other medium to savagely attack four or five representatives of an age that is past. You might just as well ask where were the hoop skirts as to ask where are the rooters! I know this letter is too long but I feel better now.

Yours,

Douglas J. Wilson.

[Editorial Note: Doubtless Mr. Wilson will feel better still when he reads the article carried on our front page to-day in which the authorities promise a better showing on Saturday, all of which is contrary to his statements as to organized rooting. Since he wrote this after a week's reflection it is unfortunate that he did not read our editorials in which we were careful to say that some people were opposed to organized rooting and reasonably so, but if we were going to investigate and change the system of rooting it should be done well. In this connection he contents himself with vague remarks about "Corneglish." While we have closed discussion on this subject we are leaving out letters echoing our stand and printing the above and the following letter which express original views. Both Mr. Wilson and "Sarcasm" may have noted that after Saturday's game our "uninformed sporting editor" gave "credit where it is deserved" from the depths of his ignorance and his easy chair. Apparently if the band is now practising, it is not yet considered "a superfluity."]

Rebukes Rooters

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:
 May a mere co-ed speak on the matter of the rooting at the recent game? I have been at both of the Varsity games, and have come to the decision that a great deal of the trouble is with the poor sports of men who have bought season tickets in the students' section. Several times the cheerleaders asked for yells, and they were conspicuous by their absence because the men were too busy passing remarks about a hat or a girl. At the game on Saturday they even ridiculed a clergyman because his hat was not as theirs. There were many girls sitting near me who were as disgusted as I was, and may say so in the near future if this silly talk and discussion about rooting is not silenced.

The cheerleaders are certainly not at fault when the men refuse to cheer when they are requested to do so. The "Smoke" yell was one of these to which I refer.

Why isn't credit given where it is deserved, and blame placed likewise where it is needed?

field of office work," was Miss McMahon's advice to all aspiring young business women.

Miss Steakley, a member of the R.C. Smith advertising agency, explained the function of the advertising agency. It was employed by various companies to create a market for their goods. "There is no limit to the possibilities for a girl in writing copy, because the advertisers are always anxious for new ideas with sales appeal," she stated.

The scope for women in the sphere of investments was the subject of a speech by Miss Helen Sparring, who for a number of years has been with the McLeod, Young and Weir Investment Office. Although women's departments were new in Canada they were the coming thing and were opening up another large field. Miss Sparring advocated a stenographic position as a means of getting into the business world.

Miss Doris Jackson, head of the employment office in Eaton's, spoke of the many desirable positions open to college graduates in large stores. She also emphasized the necessity of definite training before a college girl is capable of filling a worth-while position.

SECOND MEETING OF MEN'S COUNCIL HELD YESTERDAY

Committee Formed in Effort to Strengthen University Band

McGILLIVRAY PRESIDED

J. D. Wright Becomes New President of Students'
Court

The need of bandmen for the University band was emphasized at the second meeting of this year's Men's Students' Administrative Council which was held in Hart House yesterday. An attempt will be made to strengthen the organization by a committee which was chosen.

One hundred and twenty-two students were given assistance in finding rooms at the beginning of the session, according to a report submitted by the convener, Alan Ferry of Emmanuel College.

As well as the National Federation of Canadian Students' debating team, which is coming here in January, seven universities wish to debate with Toronto according to a report submitted from the Debates Committee. These include the Universities of Pittsburgh, Colorado, Michigan, Princeton and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Approval of a tag day to be held by the University Settlement was voted by Council. This was stated to be in aid of furnishings for the Settlement.

Appreciation was expressed of the treatment tendered A. G. Burns, Secretary-Treasurer of Council, who took a business trip to Montreal last weekend and while there was the guest of the University of Montreal at the picturesque ceremony of burning the berets, or freshmen caps.

Jack D. Wright, president of the Engineering Society, was elected President of the Students' Court, succeeding R. B. Rochester. George McGillivray, the president of Council, was chairman of the meeting, which ended its discussion by tabling Mr. Ferry's motion to amend the constitution.

STUDENT PARADE LIKELY AFTER SATURDAY'S GAME

Permit and Line of Route Must Be Obtained from Police

"The chances of having a students' parade on Saturday are fair," said Mr. A. Gordon Burns, Secretary of the Students' Administrative Council, when questioned by "The Varsity" last night. "It may be held if the students feel like it."

Mr. Burns explained further that the parade route is a matter for the police to decide, and that it is against the law to hold it on the principal streets, such as Yonge and Bloor. A police permit must also be obtained. This has not yet been done, although Mr. Burns has been requested by Jack Marshall, President of the Rooters' Club, to do so. The police generally prefer not to have more than one parade, and it might be preferable to have it at the final game. No definite information about the parade, however, could be obtained. The obtaining of a permit for next Saturday is merely providing for a possible contingency. "In the last analysis," said Mr. Burns, "it is up to Jack Marshall."

Hart House Debate

Important figures on two of the down town papers will oppose the motion denouncing the modern press as tending to demoralize society, at the first Hart House debate next Wednesday evening.

Mr. John Scott, managing director of the Mail and Empire, and Mr. G. Clark, a leading editorial writer of the Daily Star, will be sitting on the side of the "noes" along with other representatives of the press.

BISHOP STRINGER AT HART HOUSE

Lectures on Life and Methods of Civilization in Yukon

TOWNS QUITE CIVILIZED

"The first house that I ever owned was built in twenty minutes by two Eskimos and was made of snow," said Bishop Stringer, speaking in the lecture room at Hart House yesterday afternoon. Bishop Stringer went on to say that on another occasion because they burned two lamps instead of one in their snow house he and an Indian guide had the discomfort of feeling the roof fall on them as they sat inside.

Despite popular opinion that the Yukon was ever in the grip of a continuous winter, the speaker explained that for five or six months of the year the weather is quite warm and it is just as easy to grow flowers and vegetables there in that season as it is in Ontario. But, on the other hand, the Bishop pointed out, in winter it is frequently between 60° and 70° below zero, indeed the people living in that region much prefer a temperature of 20° below zero for comfortable traveling.

Although the outposts seem as out of touch with civilization as ever, Bishop Stringer said, the main towns are quite civilized and are in constant touch with all points of the globe.

In describing the climatic conditions and the existence of arable land, the bishop said that at civilization pushed farther north, the land seemed to be come adopted for purposes of cultivation, that what seemed nothing but barren rocky ground years ago was now yielding crops.

In closing, Bishop Stringer spoke of the great challenge to young men issued by the Yukon, a challenge to assist in the bringing into the light of Christianity the heathen Eskimaux and Indians of the far north.

INTERFACULTY RUGBYISTS EXCHANGE BLOWS

Altercation Between Med
Arts Men Halted by Spectators

For the first time in the history of interfaculty rugby an altercation between two opposing players followed on the final cheer.

As the players were walking off the field, Bob Knott, sub on the Med team, walked up to Allan, U.C. half, and, without provocation, punched him in the face. Allan put up his fists, and a few fierce blows were exchanged, but the crowd intervened and prevented more serious trouble. The teams had just given each other a cheer, and the fight came as a surprise to everybody, but it is said that the difference arose over a loose ball, not over any dirty play.

In spite of the intervention of the crowd, however, Knott refused to shake hands, although Allan was willing to do so.

BUICK TOURING RAFFLED OFF IN SECRET LOTTERY

Took Place in U.C. Yesterday
Amid the Utmost Secrecy

UNIQUE SELLING METHOD

Tickets Ranged from Cent to Dollar, Determined by Draw

A large scale lottery took place in U.C. yesterday when a 1921 Buick touring car was disposed of to the lucky holder of a ticket who paid something less than one dollar for it. The utmost secrecy prevailed about the whole affair, and it was not until late last night that "The Varsity" could find out any definite facts about what went on.

From some of those who bought tickets it was learned that the promoter of the lottery was Mr. Johnson, second year, Commerce and Finance, University College. Mr. Johnson could not be traced last night, so no details of the transaction could be secured from him. So far the name of the winner of the car does not seem to have been divulged.

The method of selling the raffle tickets was rather unique, the value of the tickets ranging from one cent to $1.00, this being marked upon them. Buyers of tickets took a draw from "the bag," the bag being the pocket of one of the promoters, and paid according to the value of the ticket drawn. One undergraduate, it was remarked, drew a slip marked 1c first, and encouraged by his success drew again, but this time paid 98 cents.

There were 100 slips of a total value of $50, and in alloting the prize, the stubs were put in a box and thirteen drawn out, the 13th number drawn winning the prize.

Those who bought tickets declared that there seemed to be no difficulty in disposing of them. Most of the purchasers were evidently rather afraid of the legality of the transaction and kept quite silent about what they were doing. Of the first twenty-five U.C. men interviewed by "The Varsity" yesterday only one had even heard of the lottery.

Midnight Water Shower Causes Hunt in Knox

Midnight last night found the Knox College residence men running upstairs and downstairs in pyjamas, bathrobes and various stages of undress, looking for the source of a quantity of water dumped from near the roof of the East House to the quadrangle doorway.

As "The Varsity" went to press, they had not yet discovered the guilty one. When he is caught, a student court will not be necessary as the Knox men seem quite ready to hound out summary justice.

SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT

Fifty single tickets, which will admit men only for the Sunday Evening Concert to be held in the Great Hall on Sunday next, 28th October, will be issued at the Hall Porter's desk at 1 p.m. to-day.

EDITORIAL "GLANCED OVER"

Former Rhodes Scholar Denies That Task Is So Hard

An almost complete dearth of ideas on the subject of the Rhodes Scholarships became strikingly evident to the representative of "The Varsity" who attempted to elicit opinions in the corridors of Hart House and U.C. "The only people who can be interested in it at all," maintained one fourth-year man, "are the fellows who not only stand well up in the scholastic rating but also have displayed active interest in outdoor sports."

Regarding the news story and the editorial in Monday's issue, few could state that they had done more than glance at them. No one appeared to have thought of the matter of Rhodes Scholarships as having any possible direct personal application to him.

Mr. McKay of the Department of Classics, U.C., himself a Rhodes scholar and but recently returned from Oxford, when asked by "The Varsity" to comment upon such an attitude on the part of the body of students, replied that to him the thing was inexplicable. "Is it that the so-called 'average student' considers a Rhodes Scholarship as not worth his effort or is he merely humble as regards his own abilities?" asked Mr. McKay.

Upon being assured that the latter was certainly the case, Mr. McKay rejoined that he had known personally Rhodes scholars who, not dreaming that they could possibly be eligible for such a prize, would never have entered for it in the first place had they not been urged by some friendly councillor. Outstanding ability in all the requisites was not essential, nor even a phenomenal brilliance in any one of them; and, although there were but two Rhodes Scholarships per year for Ontario, no intelligent student who had an interest in the life about him need consider the prize as immeasurably above him.

SPECIAL PRACTICE AT LONG BRANCH FOR RIFLE MATCH

Eight Best Scores on Day's Shoot Form Team—Gold Medal to High Man

There will be a special practice this afternoon on the Long Branch Rifle Ranges for the Intercollegiate rifle match. The only practices allowed on Friday are the Extra Series cards at twenty-five cents.

Novices as well as seasoned marksmen are urged to come out on Friday as the team is not made up beforehand but is composed of the eight best scores on that day's shoot. The Association Gold Medal goes to the high man, and each of the other seven receive silver ones. The next ten highest win money prizes totalling twenty dollars.

The five best in each faculty make up the faculty teams, the best of which wins the De Lury Shield and bronze medals. Ten dollars will be divided at each range amongst the highest Extra Series scores and the best "egg" is presented with the O.R.A. silver medal.

HOW ENGINEERS MAY GET RICH

Business Statistician Gives Long

NUMEROUS WAYS

Special to "The Varsity"

Boston, Mass.—Fifty ways for an engineering student to make a million! Yes, Roger W. Babson, noted business statistician, outlined fifty methods in a speech he gave recently before the students of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Here they are in brief.

1. Showing business men how to increase their profits by the use of statistics.
2. Discovering new sources of power—on the sun, the tides, and the heat of the earth.
3. Inventing a helicopter which can be universally used by aeroplanes.
4. Rebuilding our cities in accordance with the needs of the automobile.
5. Harnessing the new electrical short waves.
6. Manufacturing synthetic foods, metals and woods.
7. Providing cooling systems as well as heating systems for stores, hotels and apartment houses.
8. Developing true mass production by the elimination of such processes as weaving.
9. Consolidating the gasoline filling stations of your city in one company, interconnecting them with a pipe line to eliminate tank trucks and then keep the price so low that further competition will be impossible.
10. Aiding parents to bequeath character, energy and experience to their children as well as stocks, bonds and mortgages.
11. Developing a new system of municipal time with clocks and watches to run by radio.
12. Manufacturing books which talk and which are illustrated by moving pictures.
13. Eliminating the necessity of shipping coal by reducing the cost of transmitting electricity. Then it will be practical to develop all electricity at the mines.
14. Manufacturing and leasing noiseless street cars.
15. Discovering a cheap method to build subways in our smaller cities, which can be laid in the form of precast pipe.
16. Inventing a machine to automatically translate languages.
17. Constructing automatic garages, only by which the present parking problem will be solved.

Dean Howe Says Requirements at Forestry Raised for Such Reasons

DEAN MITCHELL DISAGREES

Thinks University of Toronto
Should Not Discriminate
in Matter

Does the law of supply and demand control the number of doctors, dentists and engineers who practise their professions?

In some universities the number of applications accepted is limited to a definite quota, regardless of academic qualifications. Should this system of selection be adopted in the University of Toronto?

Interviewed on this subject, Dean Howe of the Faculty of Forestry expressed himself as favouring keen discrimination in the class of students, allowed to study each profession.

"Of course," he stated, "this policy of selection is enforced, directly and indirectly, as the Faculty of Forestry has grown, its entrance requirements have been raised. This year none of our first year men are carrying conditions in any entrance subjects. Had we admitted men deficient in one subject as we have done in former years, we would have more men than we could conveniently accommodate in that class, and, of greater importance, more than we would be able to place in 1932."

"We do not confine our selective system to limiting the registration. The weeding-out of those unsuited for forestry is done very thoroughly during the first two years. We have had no occasion to 'star' a senior during the last four years."

"The study of forestry," he continued, "is a comparatively new science, and the demand for qualified forestry men is growing. We have always been able to find positions for every graduate. Therefore we do not have complaints that our field is overcrowded such as one often hears of the professions of medicine and dentistry."

Doctor Rouse, secretary of the Faculty of Dentistry, did not wish to ex-

DEBATE DELEGATES TO HOLD MEETING

Colleges and Faculties Lax in Submitting Names for Committees

PROGRESS HINDERED

"I have been requested by the Council to call a meeting of the five delegated committee men of the Literary and Debating Committees," stated Mr. A. H. Ferry after a meeting of the Students' Administrative Council yesterday afternoon, when questioned by "The Varsity" regarding the intercollegiate debating union. It is in the constitution of the Union that each faculty and each college shall submit a member for the committees before March to take office the following September. Thus far there have only been five names submitted. The work has been at a standstill.

Mr. Ferry further remarked: "Last year our debating teams competed at Michigan, Harvard and Yale, and these colleges having had a good time with our men, have sent us request for debates here, and it is absolutely necessary that we entertain them. We must also make arrangements for a debate with Western," he concluded.

THE FOURTH ESTATE AND THE TENTH MUSE

Every Thursday we hope to run a column, "The Table Round," which will be open to undergraduate contributions in both poetry and prose. If this column is successful in attracting such contributions we shall be glad to publish, later on in the year, the literary type of issue, which according to one school of opinion in this University, should be the primary product of a student journal.

In past years the contributions, both to columns and literary issues, have not been particularly distinguished for either quantity or quality. Indeed a great proportion of the matter in special issues has been done by staff writers. And the outstanding feature about the contributions from outside the staff has been the preponderance of poetry. We have received none of the graceful sort of prose sketches that appear in the pages of our contemporary from the University of Montreal, Le Quartier Latin. But there is no reason, in our opinion, why we should reject the efforts of undergraduates, simply because they necessarily reveal inexperience and imperfection. A poorly written thing, if done by an undergraduate, is more acceptable to us than the finished work of a graduate or a professor. To attempt to present other than undergraduate work in such a newspaper is to misrepresent the level of student literary ability.

Perhaps you may think that we have associated too closely the idea of the preponderance of poetry and the low quality of contribution. But we feel that the poetry more than anything else is obviously second-hand and lacking in genuine feeling. Always excepting the one or two gifted poets that have graced our masthead, one may say that the writers have been labouring in their efforts to express themselves through the little understood medium of poetic form. Even when the lines scanned mechanically, the poems gave us the notion that it would have been better if their idea had been expressed in simple prose.

Unconscious humour is the main characteristic of the verses printed in our daily newspapers. When the man in the street is seized with a desire to express his thoughts and emotions over contemporary events, complications rapidly ensue. Catch phrases from the more popular works of the Romantic poets and irrelevant moralizing, grasped at by the amateur lyricist as he staggers down the home stretch, somewhat winded, are combined in a very rickety framework of over-rich rhyme. The title, "The Fourth Estate and the Tenth Muse" is intended to give some idea of the newspaper as the field of a new folklore.

The serio-comic aspects of occasional verse are well illustrated in the following clipping from the correspondence column of a large American newspaper. This was written by "A Veteran" after he observed the people erecting flag poles on the main street of his city:

I see the patriotic souls
In the sidewalks have been drilling holes
In which will be placed poles
For them to fly Old Glory.

Breathes there a man with soul so ossified
Who never to himself hath cried:
"Old Glory is my joy and pride,
And I'll desert it never?"
Who never that impulse obeyed
To cheer the flag while on parade.
While forty-nine musicians played
"The Stars and Stripes Forever?"

If such there be go mark him well,
For him no minstrel raptures swell—
A man who never felt the spell
Of patriotic fervor.
For any man who'd double-cross
The handiwork of Betsy Ross
Is nothing but a total loss
To any close observer.

There is a peculiar ripeness about this effusion which is common to the many of the sort that are given space only in newspapers. But undergraduates should produce a loftier sort of poetry because they depend more on books and less on occasional happenings. Although they cannot yet be expected to write original stuff, they

Art, Music and Drama

Last week the U.C. Players' Guild saw a performance of a Gaelic play in translation. This week Mr. Raymond Card produced a Gaelic comedy, "Spreading the News," by Lady Gregory. The same difficulty of overcoming the difference in nationality between the author and the audience was met, and the lack of response of the latter was due chiefly to this. Considering the short notice on which the play was produced, it was remarkably good.

The play itself is a delightful example of Irish comedy at its best, being both humorous of plot and of dialogue. It concerns the bad fortunes of one, Bartley Fallon, who is a victim of an entire village of Mrs. Grundys.

The casting of this production was excellent and the setting was unusually good. Tom Cutt, Pat Ussher, Paul Gardner, Eleanor Barton and Dorothy McMichael gave outstanding performances. The cast was as follows:

Mrs. Tarpey Marjorie James
Bartley Fallon Pat Ussher
Mrs. Fallon Eleanor Barton
Jack Smith Paul Gardner
Shawn Early Tom Cutt
Tim Casey Clare Tracy
James Ryan John Cowin
Mrs. Tullay Dorothy McMichael
Policeman F. W. Burton
Magistrate Hamilton Miller

have a large opportunity to translate into verse from the Greek, Latin, Hebrew, German, Italian, French and Spanish. The professors in these courses might use "The Varsity" as a laboratory in this connection. And while we are on the subject of professors, may we respectfully point out to those in the department of English that they will be performing a service to "The Varsity" and to society in general, if they would encourage contributions instead of spending their time in the business of exposing to unsuspecting freshmen classes, the grammatical and syntactical blunders in our columns.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Mrs. Joseph Henderson's gift which has been accepted by the Board of Governors provides for a matriculation scholarship in English and History. This branch of study is not specially recognized under the Edward Blake scholarships and there has been a desire for such scholarships expressed by many teachers in Ontario high schools. The Henderson scholarship is worth at least eighty dollars a year and is tenable in University College.

Vers Libre, which is probably best rendered in English by the words "unrhymed cadence," is becoming increasingly popular with present-day poets. Its greatest advantage is that it admits an elasticity of expression not possible in strict metrical systems of versification. We think Vers Libre is by far the healthiest sprig of modern poetry's newest shoots and, hereby, solicit attempts at it for this column.

Only two days more and we have with us "Irish" Monahan, "Ike" Sutton, "Red" Gilmour and company. Queen's, per usual, will bring a "badly crippled" team. In past years whenever the Tricolour were suffering from boils, sprained ankles or barber's itch they put a team on the field that made things mighty difficult for the Blue. It appears, however, that the Tricolour captain, "Bubs" Britton, will be out of the game, and this will not do the Red, Yellow and Blue any considerable good. One thing is certain, and that is that the Blue and White are going into a tough game in spite of any advance reports from Kingston.

A victory for Varsity Saturday will practically put the old pennant on ice. A loss, however, will leave it to McGill to wallop Queen's right in Kingston and for Varsity to do the same to the Red in Montreal. Then we'd have a triple tie with prospect of a juicy play-off.

According to the "experts" Queen's tactics against McGill was "two bucks and a kick." Against Varsity the "two bucks" idea may not be so hot. In the aerial game, however, Queen's will likely have an edge on the Blue. Carter hoots them far and high and any gains made in this way will have to be offset by snappy extensions and gains from catches on the part of the Varsity backfield. How the lines will match up is a problem difficult to solve, but neither team is likely to have any great advantage here. In the tackling end of the game the Blue showed a distinct superiority over Queen's in the Kingston game and held McGill to few gains at the Stadium here. After all is said, perhaps the "breaks" will decide it. And that means "breaks" in more than one sense.

Saturday will be the first Varsity-Queen's game here in some years in which "Red" Batstone has not worn the Tricolour; to help make up for this another redhead in the person of Red Gilmour will likely shine on the Queen's half-line.

As viewed from the stands yesterday the field on Saturday should be delightfully soft.

Lehigh Frosh Hold Pyjama Parade in Rain and Wind

Special to "The Varsity"
Bethlehem, Pa.—Rain, wind and plenty of soporifics lent zest to the pajama parade of the Lehigh Frosh on

BASKETBALL TEAM EXPECTS TO RETAIN ITS CHAMPIONSHIP

Same Team That Won College Title Last Year Out Again

"MO" MITCHELL CAPTAIN

Intermediates and Juniors Also Show Great Promise

The prospects of a repetition of last year's intercollegiate basketball championship are exceedingly bright. Only one regular member of the team is missing, Carl Faber, who recently left for South America. Three valuable subs are lost to this year's squad. Putnam has left the University, while Wood and Burns failed to get their year. However, with the large turnout of 65 to date, the places of these men will be ably filled.

"Mo" Mitchell, star forward of last year's team and Varsity track and hawker star, has been elected captain. With a point winner of the calibre and experience of Mitchell at the helm, the Blue and White team is ensured of an excellent leader. Wilf Newman and Gord Johnston are both back and will again thrill basketball enthusiasts with their brilliant passing and shooting. The defence of the champions is intact with Currie, Hurwitz and Sakler on hand. Many splendid new prospects have turned out for the practices. Such famous basketball centres as Kitchener, Windsor, London and Hamilton and several American cities are represented.

The biggest find of the year is Murray of the Windsor Grads, Canadian basketball champions. Murray is registered at O.C.E. and has signified his intention of turning out for Varsity. His presence on the squad ought to give it added strength and still further ensure a recurrence of last year's success.

The outlook for the Intermediate and Junior teams is also promising. Manager Thomas is having a busy time getting the squad properly classified. As yet, the work-outs have been of a light character. When the rugby season commences a recurrence of last year's success.

SHIFTED LINE-UP FOR QUEEN'S GAME

Intercollegiates End Heavy Work-outs to Polish Plays

BELL AND BAILLIE GOOD

The Intercollegiate team held another heavy practice yesterday. The greater part of the stiff grind in preparation for the Queen's game has now been completed and to-day and tomorrow will probably be used in a final polishing up of the plays.

Yesterday's workout was featured by the good work of Bell and Baillie in running back punts. This pair tore through the Orphan tacklers for long gains and frequently made them look bad. Bell made some neat running catches, and if his showing in practice is any indication of what he will do Saturday the Tricolour tacklers are in for a busy afternoon.

USPRECH'S LONG RUN FEATURES U.C. WIN

Arts Take Advantage of Play Behind Med Line to Tie Score

Junior U.C. defeated Junior Meds yesterday in an Interfaculty rugby match 11 to 7. Meds opened the scoring due to a brilliant run by McLeod which resulted in a touch. Then U.C. evened the score by falling on a fumbled ball behind the Meds line. Murby kicked two points in the second half to complete Meds scoring.

Near the end of the game U.C. came to life and led by Usprech, who reeled off a sensational 100 yard run for a touch as well as another 40 yards which almost resulted the same way. Freifeld, who played a nice game on the U.C. backfield, kicked the final point of the game.

McLeod, Graham and Murby were best for Meds, while Usprech, Freifeld, Reid and Murray were the pick of U.C.

Junior Meds: Flying wing, Williams; halves, Graham, Foex, Murby; quarter, McLeod; snap, Nicol; insides, Vaughan, Thompson; middles, Scott, Massig; outsides, Marquis, McCallum; Little; outsides, Walker, Mulcahy; subs, Murray, Kohen, Schuch, Rosenberg, Jacks.

Junior U.C.: Flying wing, Eastwood; halves, Usprech, Allan, Freifeld; quarter, Reid; snap, Keith; insides, Finningley, Watt; middles, Dawson, Little; outsides, Walker, Mulcahy; subs, Murray, Kohen, Schuch, Rosenberg, Jacks.

Weakened Victoria Loses to Trinity in One-sided Game

Displaying little of their 1927 form, Victoria lost to Trinity 18 to 1 in a listless one-sided game. Seagram and Summerhayes stood out for the winners, while Vaughn and Hager were best for Vic.

Trinity: Flying wing, Clough; halves, Nichol, Stone, Seagram; quarter, Summerhayes; snap, Martin; insides, Yates, Armstrong; middles, Sanders, Hovey; outsides, Kerr, Perdue; subs, Edwards, H. Martin, O'Flynn.

Victoria: Flying wing, Addison; halves, Vaughn, Starr, Hart; quarter, Hager; insides, Witzel, Birge; middles, Lindsay, Neild; outsides, Heal, Fletcher; subs, Leask, Garton, Foley, Marshall, Menzley, Armstrong, Brant, Lawson.

Evans Scores Only Goal When Wycliffe Beats U.C.

Wycliffe soccer squad conquered U.C. yesterday by the margin of one goal, the only goal of the match, scored by Evans early in the second half. The game was slow and uninteresting, the only feature being the all-round improvement of the Wycliffe team. The half-backs supported the forwards well, Crawshaw being very prominent in the second half. Gibbs, English and Evans were best for Wycliffe. Jack played a fine defensive game for U.C.

thinks the co-ed season ticket holders are there to look pretty and to let the men do all the rooting.

Several times the cheer-leaders called for yells when the play was in front of the rooters' section and the men showed a spark of intelligence (which the cheer-leaders seemed to lack) in keeping quiet, thereby giving the players a chance to hear their signals. As for the "Smoke" yell, a large number of the rooters did not know it, and the weak attempt the cheer-leader made to explain it deserved the response he got. Furthermore, "Sarcasm" seems to forget that the co-eds were supposed to join in that yell.

Can't we, Mr. Editor, attempt to revive the good old days of "Get that Christie" and "Pass him up" without some co-ed with her modern pink-tea ideas trying to damper our ardour? I strongly advise "Sarcasm" and her kind not to attend Saturday's game if they wish to avoid the "disgusting" spectacle of a few mangled Christies and the owners thereof being passed tumultuously up and down.

Finally, we would appreciate it if "Sarcasm" would sit down and keep her eyes on the game.

Yours,

A Loyal Rooters.

[Editorial Comment: We are closing the discussion on rooting as we noted yesterday, but we have printed this as it is in direct contradiction to "Sarcasm's" letter. No further answers will be of sufficient interest to print at this late date.]

Electric Buttons Cause Downfall Mr. Singe Will Have a Binge

(By Greta Reid)

We are—we admit it where thousands wouldn't—95.6% pure, yet we have a vice. It could hardly be called a 4.4 vice, so we suppose there must be others, but we're not boasting about them. Just to keep your imagination from working over-time, we'll tell you; it's a passion, a mania or qu'avez-vous for pressing electric buttons. An electric button holds for us the same fascination that an opium pipe has for an inhaler of dreams, a yellow tie for a Vic. soph. or a pun for Dec—we simply succumb!

One of our first recollections of childhood involves our first yielding to temptation. One day when on an errand, for our teacher—conclusive proof of our purity—we saw an electric button in the hall of the school. An irresistible impulse to investigate seized us; we fell like 2 tons of bricks. Suddenly the whole school resounded with the terrifying clang of the fire alarm. For one delicious moment we contemplated rushing off and starting a fire to cover up our delinquency, but we were caught in the surging stream of pupils and teachers, who, not having been previously warned of the imminent drill, thought it was an honest-to-gosh fire and emptied the building in record time. Being naturally of a shy and retiring disposition and, furthermore, unrespected, we did not press our rightful claim as champion evacuator of the school. Philosophically we decided that they needed the practice anyway.

Another time, in a moment of weakness—we all have them—we rang the Union dinner bell seven seconds too early and, believe it or not, ten were bruised and battered in the rush.

One of the big disappointments of our life is the electric button just inside the main door of U.C. Repeated pressing has brought no results. Of course it may be a burglar alarm or a watchman's signal, so perhaps our efforts have not been in vain. In compensation, however, we have the wonderful row of buttons in the Library elevator. Almost any afternoon will find us riding the elevators whose idiosyncracies we have solved and mastered. Demonstration upon request.

Closely allied with this vice of ours is a secret ambition. We crave to press every electric button in S.P.S. Surely this home of mechanical and electrical genius would be a veritable paradise for people with our affliction. Some day we fear our womanly curiosity is going to overcome our maidenly modesty, and on that day we are going to accept the invitation of Mr. Singe to go on a binge, disguise ourselves as an engineer and satisfy our suppressed desire.

And weary earth in mellow haze
Seems anxious to retreat;
When Winter's biting frosts return,
And blizzards moan and wail,
When fierce the logs on hearthside burn,

And roaring winds assail;
The world seems fair throughout the year

When throbs the heart with love,
And all in vain the Hydra rear
Their monstrous heads above;

For charmed is he whose eye reveals
The blaze of love profound,
Within whose heart there ever peals
That mystic magic sound;

For he who loves, the gods defend,
And earth's dread cares and pains
His fortress'd soul they cannot rend
While Love, immortal, reigns.

I'm in first year Household Science and come from Caledonia. You know where that is, of course. But people are so funny here, they're not at all like they are at home.

To-day I was walking across the campus when I heard someone say "Hay!" and when I looked around I saw two men looking at me through a funny sort of telescope on legs. It made me feel terribly conspicuous. But I thought it was ruder still to shout at me. At home we don't even speak unless we're introduced. Then someone else shouted "Hay!" right in front of me, and there were four more men peering at me through the same apparatus. Dear Cat, should the campus allow its girls to be insulted like this?

And another thing. I don't know where they keep you, but maybe it's in Hart House. Do they feed you

FORESTERS' CLUB NOW BEGINNING ITS 20th SEASON

Camp Fire With Exhibition of Woods Lore Once Held in Queen's Park

67 STUDENTS IN FACULTY

Speakers Since War Have Been Men Prominent in Pulp and Paper Industry

This is the third of a series of special articles on the history of clubs written by a special correspondent for
"The Varsity."

The Forester's Club of the Faculty of Forestry, whose opening meeting took place last evening, is beginning its twentieth season since the founding of the club in 1909. It was founded for the purpose of discussing forestry problems and furthering interest in the work of undergraduates in the faculty, as well as bringing the students together socially. The first president was Mr. Dwight, now Professor
Dwight of that faculty.

In the early days of the society the students took an active part in the entertainment at the meetings. Those were the days when the headquarters for the Faculty were situated in Queen's Park. At these meetings it was customary for the men to report on their summer's work, and once a year on what was known as Stock night a camp fire was built in the open on that site and the men gave demonstrations of paddling, packing, and woods lore, but of recent years, since the building of the new Forestry building, the Stock night has taken the form of a skit put on by the men with a dance as the climax. Also since the war the speakers have been men prominent in the pulp and paper industry.

There are 67 students in the Faculty of Forestry of which all belong to the Society. Meetings are held regularly, usually in Hart House, although the opening meeting of the Society is always held in the Forestry building. Dean Howe giving the opening address.

NEW COMBINATIONS PROMISE SNAPPY BACKFIELD PLAY

Red Yellow and Blue Will Meet with Strong Opposition in Blue and Whites

QUEEN'S WILL HAVE TO STEP

Front Line Has Done Neat Tackling and Stood Up Well on the Defence

Everything is set for the Tricolour invasion of the Blue stadium. Two long weeks of hard grind has Les Blackwell's boys right on their toes and waiting for "God Save the King" and the kick-off whistle.

Following the McGill game, Coach Blackwell devoted the greater part of a week to finding the best working combination to send against Queen's, and this week he has welded his selections into a smooth-working machine.

If Varsity's new backfield arrangement live up to expectations the line needs only to play their usual game to give the Tricolour a terrific battle.
The front works have held up well on the defence and have turned in some neat tackling. Keith at snap,
Morgan at inside and Gooderham,
Dunn, Baker and Smith on the ends have played a whale of a game. Captain Murray Snyder at quarter has a tough assignment in handling a comparatively young squad without much experience in playing together. Murray played well against Queen's in Kingston and will keep the Red, Yellow and Blue on their toes all the time.
Bill Darling, who will play at secondary defence, will do the punting and bear a share of the plunging. Traynor and Sinclair, who may get the flying wing assignment, are good tacklers. The Regina red-head hits the line hard and Sinclair is no slouch as a ball carrier.

The manner in which Bell and Bail-ie, the new backfield pair, stand up under fire will have a great effect on the score. If they hold on to the ball and can work the ends for gains,
Varsity should chalk up a win.

PREMIER FERGUSON AGAIN MAKES PLANS TO TAKE FIRST YEAR FROM UNIVERSITY

Special to "The Varsity"

Morrisburg, Ont., Oct. 25.—"Too many bright lights and being removed too far from mother and father at an early age—these are the reasons why about 40 per cent of the young men who attend the University of Toronto fail," declared Premier Howard Ferguson at a banquet tendered himself and Mrs. Ferguson by the Liberal-Conservative Association here.

He reiterated his intention to alter the educational system so as to have the high schools take over the first year university course. "By an act of parliament these will soon be all changed and the first year university course will be taught in large centres where high school facilities are obtainable."

It will be remembered that this proposal was first mooted by the Premier in 1925 and that it has been mentioned by him several times since then.
In the President's report for 1925-6 Principal Maurice Hutton denied the suggestion that the work of the first year be transferred to the high schools.

At the same time, he felt that the students entering the university were not mature enough.

All the Arts colleges concurred in voicing emphatic protest against the suggestion.

POSSIBILITIES FOR GRADUATES ABROAD

Need of Specific Training in Social Service Stressed at Conference

ABNORMAL MADE HAPPY

The need for specific training in any field of social service work into which one hopes to enter was stressed at the final meeting of the Vocational Conference held at Wymilwood last night.
Miss Thomas spoke on the possibilities for work in the church. She pointed out the choice of working either in home or foreign fields and said there were more opportunities abroad at present for the university woman. This, however, will not be the case when the churches realize the need for the educational woman in the work here in Canada. Miss Thomas said the essentials for church work were an ability to work with people, a sense of religious values to share with others, and initiative. She said there was nowhere where there was so much opportunity for original creative work as in the church.

Miss Hamilton of the Social Service Department of the University of Toronto particularly dealt with Social Service in industrial work. She said there was a field which is as yet unopened, that of formulating the helpful ideas of the community to cure existing evils.

The Public Health Nursing Department was represented by Miss Russell. She traced the development of this work especially since the war. She stated that Public Health Nursing is applied physiology and showed that an interest in nursing is absolutely necessary for this work.

Miss Wright explained Occupational Therapy by saying that it is treatment by work. The purpose of this is to make the lives of those who are in any way abnormal more normal and happy.

Students Blockaded
in Budapest

Special to "The Varsity"

Budapest, Hungary, Oct. 25.—Police have surrounded 400 students in a building of the Debreczin university, where they took refuge during the anti-Semitic rioting which has been in progress for days. Police intend to starve the students out unless they surrender.

The students fled into the building to escape a charge of mounted police during the rioting. Under a traditional ruling, university ground is almost autonomous and police may not enter the buildings, consequently they formed a cordon around the building and ordered the students to come out one by one so they could be identified.

The students refused. Police thereupon instituted a blockade and would not allow food to be taken into the building.

STUDENTS' INTEREST ANYTHING BUT DEAD

Inquiries of Reporter Throw
Light on Thriving Sports and Rejuvenated Societies

MASCOTS FOR SATURDAY

Is student interest at Varsity wholly dead? The question is being hotly discussed everywhere this week. Outwardly there is little sign of flagging interest. The Students' Handbook, among songs, yells and such signs of enthusiasm, gives a list of clubs and societies catering to every taste and interest. The college and faculty clubs, "The Varsity" found on investigation to be in a fairly flourishing condition. Dramatics are everywhere popular, so also are the literary societies. Victoria evidently finds that music hath charms, as neither the college orchestra nor the Choral Union lack support. The French Society of University College has an increased membership, and the new club at Victoria promises well. The absence of a women's debating society at University College has occasioned much comment, but at St. Hilda's and Victoria interest is keen. The try-outs for intercollegiate debates are expected to bring to light new material. "The Varsity" was informed.

Reports from the larger societies open to members of all colleges were encouraging. The German Club has an increased membership, the Women's Polity Club reports a regular attendance, and S.C.M. groups have started off with a swing. Hart House debates grow more popular every year. Miss Ziegler at the Settlement was enthusiastic over the students' support.

A greater show of interest in rugby is expected to become evident on Saturday, as measures have been taken to improve rooting. Track and field events have been better attended this year, and the new ticket arrangement ought to give support for hockey. Attendances at basketball games are poor.

That the women are standing by their sporting sisters is evident. Mascots made by women are to be on sale on Saturday, the proceeds to provide new outfits for the basketball team, and finance its trip to McGill.

Hart House Debate

R. E. Knowles, well known special and feature writer for the Daily Star, will be the leading speaker for the "noes" in the Hart House debate next Wednesday evening on the subject,
"That in the opinion of this House the modern press has a demoralizing influence on society."

The debate will begin at 8 p.m., with Prof. N. A. MacKenzie acting as speaker. Except for the first speaker, who has ten minutes, all others who catch the speaker's eye may speak for five minutes.

(Special to "The Varsity" by R. W.

Queen's Journal.)

Kingston, Ont., Oct. 25.—Queen's fine win over McGill last week-end insures a general migration to Toronto for to-morrow's titanic struggle.
Needless to say the procession has started long ere this in all forms of vehicles, conveyances and what not, and will probably not end until sometime to-morrow. Never before has there been such enthusiasm. That Queen's spirit has been revived needs no more convincing proof than this past election week. Now that this problem has been settled for a year at least all exuberant youth will turn its head towards Ontario's capital, where will be staged probably the tell-tale struggle of the present college series.

Queen's have struck their stride at last. Nothing is surer than that the scrimmages this week have been characterized by crushing, relentless attacks and a stubborn impenetrable defence. Confidence after a victory over the Red seems the paramount inspiration. Not before this year has there been so much pep and dash to the Tricolour's play. Plunges are hitting harder. End runs are getting away faster. Altogether it has been a different team up at the Stadium these past few days.

The Junior squad has borne the brunt of this new lease on life, but have stood up well and battled back-gamely. They have gained much valuable experience which will stand them in good stead for the coming play-off battles. "Bubs" Britton's injuries are worse than at first thought and the "Cap" will likely see much of the game from the side line. That pedal extremity of one, "Irish" Monahan, is coming along nicely and he is expected to star. Don Abbott suffered a painfully torn muscle in Tuesday's workout, while Eddie Handford's foot is still very swollen and painful. It is hoped that these injuries will yield to treatment and that both will be available for real duty to-morrow. Carter, Munro, Warren and Durham will likely look after the back-field duty.

"MERE BOOKWORMS" TERM APPLIED TO RHODES SCHOLARS

Hitching One's Wagon to a Star is the Opinion of
One Student

NOT FOR AVERAGE ABILITY

Rhodes Wanted to Give Special Training for Imperial Affairs

Students outside of Arts are almost invariably of the opinion that the Rhodes Scholarships are not obtainable by average students. They consider that the qualifications for the scholarships are entirely too comprehensive for the average student.

A student in fourth year Meds expressed the opinion that one who was capable of obtaining first class honours in his course with fair participation in social and athletic activities can certainly compete with one who is recognized as above the average, yet with not so many various interests.
This was a rather unusual opinion and disagrees with those of many other students. "It is hitching one's wagon to a star"; "I can't imagine an average student as a Rhodes scholar"; and "It's too much work for the average student," are typical of the statements of students in S.P.S. and Meds, interviewed by a representative of "The Varsity" yesterday.

This point of view is not surprising, for it would seem from an examination of Mr. Rhodes' will that he did not intend the scholarships for students of only average ability. He wished capable young men to have special training which would equip them for leadership in international and imperial affairs. And yet, these interviews have shown that undergraduates think that if a student is average, he cannot rise above that position. They think that when a student finds he is only average, he gives up all hope of becoming anything better. In a previous interview Mr.
MacKay, a former Rhodes scholar, contends, on the other hand, that the average student may have dormant abilities which can only be awakened by competition for scholarships.

Some points of view are based on an examination of the character of former Rhodes scholars and those who take those points of view believe that Rhodes scholars have always been "mere bookworms" with "lots of pull."

real dueling should result. Kilgour's plunging has been a feature this week, so "Big Jim" can expect plenty of work to-morrow.

AMERICANS ELECT THEIR PRESIDENT

"Smith or Hoover?" is the question which seems to be troubling the debating societies of our university. We might suggest that the learned of these societies might better give their attention to some pressing Canadian problems, immigration for instance, instead of contenting themselves with parroting the editorials of the New York Times and the New York Herald Tribune. But after all this is a very parochial point of view and it is the mark of an educated cosmopolitan to be able to speak generally on the American presidency and Canadian immigration rather than to possess any sort of detailed knowledge about either subject. Indeed we must admit that affairs in the States affect us closely: observers are concerned with the Republican intention to raise the tariff on Canadian farm produce and with the likelihood of the Democratic attitude on the St. Lawrence waterway being influenced by the New York bias of its candidate.

But it is not for these reasons that everyone in the city is interested in the campaign. This is due to the tremendous influence exerted by the American papers, magazines and radio stations. Our own worthy citizens may feign disgust at the ballyhoo of the political circus, but they are dutifully watching the various moves made by the publicity committees reported faithfully in our papers. Hoover is upheld by Colonel C. A. Lindbergh (the only human being who ever flew the Atlantic, sir) and after deep cogitation, Mr. G. H. Ruth (known to the cultured as "The Sultan of Swat") has dipped the Jovian scales in favour of Alfred, the people's choice. And even though they may jeer outwardly our people have been attracted to a greater extent by the onslaught on watermelons of Leland Stanford's eminent alumnus and the prodigality with which his opponent distributes brown derbies, than by our more prosaic publicity stunt of having our statesmen and diplomats created Little Chief Whatyou-maycallit by Big Chief Tipmee of the Ogosh Indians (Tribal funds running low: initiates needed).

In view of the serious interest taken in the election by our university debating and discussion clubs the following editorial from The Utah Chronicle is interesting as a reflection of the American student attitude:

THE GREAT POLITICAL SCENE

To those who regard the American political scene with a reaction other than amusement, the formation of Smith and Hoover clubs on the campus will seem a goodly thing.

But all men in their hearts must know that politics is a farce, was ever a farce and ever shall be. The writhing and squirming must accompany the attempts to rationalize one's parochial or personal interest into a legal issue is bound to induce mirth in the observant.

The present campaign seems especially to teem with the trivial rationalizations of the zealots and the demagogues. Seldom have the personifiers of political movements been subjected to such mean and impertinent accusations. Hoover once had a drink. Smith kissed the Pope's hand. Such seems the extent of logic among the leaders of our country.

The commoners and the voters have no knowledge, and never can have any knowledge of such issues as tariff and farm relief. They are matters of such complication, that technicians find a life-time of study almost inadequate to permit of grasping them. The voters cannot know, and it is quite debatable whether the demagogues themselves know much about such subjects.

Since no one man is big enough to grapple with issues, and to present them before the public in their perspective, the campaign becomes a matter of innuendo and aspersion. Democracy carps at Tea Pot Dome; and Republicanism cavils at Tammany Tiger. Texas Guinan is arrested. The divine afflatus settles upon the ascetic shoulders of Rev. John Roach Straton, who works the fundamentalists into a frenzy. Religion, and personal matters of the most insignificant sort become the issues. A man's taste in collars throws the feminine vote to the Democrats.

If our campus voters can tell the difference between the Republican and the Democratic parties, then we exert them to do their duty to their country, to vote, and to enlist as many other intelligent voters as they can.

But we should like to know how they decide on what party to support. Surely they will not cast their ballots without complete knowledge of the facts at hand, or without complete understanding of the issues that follow them.

How indeed can one decide between a jackass and a white elephant?

TO-MORROW'S CROWD WILL BE EXCEPTIONALLY LARGE

That the wildest enthusiasm over the Queen's-Varsity tilt at Varsity Stadium this Saturday is rampant everywhere in the air, is evidenced by the fact that all tickets for the game have been sold. Many of those who had hitherto not purchased a student's seat-son ticket, quickly did so this week after having seen that some were left for sale. Although three fixtures, the interfaculty track meet, the McGill-Varsity game and the Argo-Ottawa, Sarnia-Orphan double-header had already been run off, nevertheless very many of these season tickets have been sold in the last two or three days.

Friday Afternoon Recital

The Music Committee has arranged for the usual series of Friday Afternoon Recitals to begin to-day. These Recitals are held at 5 p.m. in the Music Room of Hart House and are for members of Hart House only. This year the Committee is fortunate in having a long list of prominent musicians who are prepared to offer their services. The members are under a great debt of gratitude to the artists who come to Hart House week by week without any remuneration and give these recitals which are now a well-known feature in the musical life of the House.

Members are informed that they will find the programmes for these Recitals in "The Varsity" on the Thursday preceding the concert. The first Recital will be given by Mr. Reginald Godden, pianist, who is a pupil of Mr. Ernest Seitz. The programme is as follows:

Gavotte D'albert
Pastorale and Capriccio, Scarlatti-Tausig

II

Sonata, B flat major Schytte

Minstrels Debussy

Rhapsody in F sharp minor Dohnanyi

Intermezzo and Toccata from Suite, York Bowen

The other day N.A.B., who has conducted this column during the last two years without the aid of puns or other allegedly low forms of wit, came into the office in a very threatening manner and left a long autobiographical poem addressed to us in the style of "Dost thou look back on what hath been" in return for some cracks we took at him last Monday in the "Praise Poem by Dr. Nabisco." Certain of our defamers, who, for the purpose of this exposition shall be nameless, will be delighted to read the following excerpts:

"He feels, in a post graduate dream,
Deep pangs to see a witty young-ster

A perfect puerile puling punster
Prance in a pallid spotlight gleam.

And yet, dear Dee, when once the sod,
Confines our wits, and N.A.B.

Is just as dead as little Dee There'll be no statues in the Quad."

C-C

Well! What is one to do about a bard who is willing to take his Muse out in the street and wallop it with an old shoe like that? There will be mutiny in Elysium when N.A.B. gets there, we suspect, for these excursions down from Parnassus among the Philistines. V.S.

C-C

Now, for a little real Eddie Guest-ness we adduce the following from dear old D.K.:

There was a young lady from Skeen
Whose musical sense was not keen,
They thought it was odd
She couldn't tell God
Save the wassail from pop goes the Queen!

Hart House Quartet

The programme given last night by the Hart House String Quartet was a repetition of that played in Convocation Hall in the afternoon—that is to say it included the César Franck Quartet in D Major and the Schubert For-ellen Quintet. Two more sharply contrasted works could hardly have been chosen; the programme was really a masterpiece of musical balance.

The first number was characterized by a solemn grandeur and religious fervour which may have been rather profound for a pleasure-seeking audience. It required a genuine contribution from the listeners as well as the musicians and those who dismissed the evil spirits of "analytical criticism" and yielded themselves to the emotional sway of this magnificent music were amply rewarded. It seemed that even the "elfish" scherzo was coloured by the sombre grey tones of the opening movements and the heavenly larghetto.

For sheer melodic charm, of course the Schubert Quintet was a gem. Audience and players smiled together as (Continued on page 4)

VARSITY FAVOURED TO WIN THE FOOTBALL BATTLE ON SATURDAY

SPEAKING OF SPORT

All advance "dope" indicates that the Varsity-Queen's game at the Stadium to-morrow will be by far and away the most colorful fixture that the Bloor Street grounds have witnessed this season. Everything points to it. The two squads are evenly matched, and all three Intercollegiate teams are on an even footing in the win and loss column. The invasion of Queen's rosters promises to be the largest in years, and the pep and vocal efforts of the Kingstonites are always well above the average. The demand for tickets in Toronto has been very heavy and a jammed stadium will witness the struggle.

A half-time feature is on the cards and should equal the standard of past years. A group of worthies from the red brick building near the Meds' stronghold is undertaking the noble task of carrying on one of the best Varsity traditions.

The quantity and quality of the rooting at last Saturday's games were a distinct improvement over the week before. To-morrow will likely see the Blue and White efforts nearly raise the roof from the grandstand or at least shatter the windows in the press-box.

Have you heard one of the latest Varsity song hits? "He ain't done right by Cor Nell." The "Three Musketeers" might sing it by request during half-time.

The Kingston Whig-Standard advocates a re-arrangement of Intercollegiate finances. At present the home team takes the gate, of which the visitors receive nothing. Queen's, located in a small city where the attendance is much smaller than in Toronto or Montreal, favour a plan of "split" gate receipts. Under this plan all Intercollegiate games would be pooled and then divided equally among the contributors.

U. of T. British Rugby Team Will Play McGill Saturday

The University of Toronto British rugby team will play the first of the two game series against McGill on Saturday. Although little is known of this pastime in Toronto, it has been gaining considerable ground until now large crowds turn out to witness the fixtures between the city teams. The game between the Red and the Blue has been called for 1.30 on the back campus, and it will not conflict with the game at the stadium. The Varsity team this year measures up to the squads which have represented Toronto in the past years. Rogers and Gadsdon are two stars acquired from the Maritimes, and much is expected of these men. McGill won the cup last year, and have not suffered much either from graduation or failures. Varsity, on the other hand, is reputed to be far superior to last year's team.

Coach Seecombe and Captain Reg. Roome have given out the line-up for the first game. Gale will lead the forwards, and will be in the front route with Franklin. Nash will be playing back, and will be supported by Heslop and Bell.

ST. HILDA'S LEAD IN WOMEN'S TENNIS

Fourth Round of Tourney Leaves Four St. Hilda's One O.C.E. Still In VICTORIA DEFEATED

The play-offs in the University of Toronto Women's Tennis Tournament are now well under way. As there were 18 players in the second round, a bye had to be played. Fourteen players were allowed to enter the third round and four players worked their way into it. The latter were:

Jessie Gray defeated Marjorie Winspear, 6-3, 10-12, 7-5.
E. McCall defeated L. Bates, 6-0, 6-2.
The Misses Gray and Winspear played a remarkable game, their playing being distinguished by slashing drives as well as being steady and consistent. The third round, played October 24, featured the following players:
Norma Bateman defeated Eleanor McCubbin, 6-1, 8-6.
Sally Ballard defeated D. James, 6-1, 6-2.
P. Grout defeated M. Lindsay, 6-4, 6-0.
L. Patterson defeated C. Gray, 6-3, 6-2.
L. Reynolds defeated T. Corcoran, 6-4, 6-4.
B. Symons defeated M. Quinn, 6-1, 6-4.
M. Sedgewick defeated I. McDermott, 6-2, 6-2.
E. McCall defeated J. Gray.

The fourth round was played October 25th as follows:
N. Bateman, 6-3, 5-7, 6-4.
P. Grout (St. Hilda's) defeated L. Patterson, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.
B. Symons (St. Hilda's) defeated L. Reynolds, 4-6, 6-0, 6-2.
M. Sedgewick-E. McCall: To be played off.

HARRIER RACE WILL BE HELD SATURDAY

Positions on Intercollegiate and Relay Teams to be Assigned on Results

MORE MEDALS AWARDED

At 10 o'clock on Saturday morning the University Harrier Club is holding the annual race for the Brotherhood Cup. The course is the regular one, starting and finishing at Upper Canada College. It is the same as has been used for the past two years but for a slight change in the finish. As U.C.C. are playing St. Andrew's College at 10.30, the harriers will not be able to finish on the cinder track around the football field.

Changing room and showers have been obtained in the old gym at U.C.C. and light refreshments will be served to the competitors after the race at the Tuck Shop. All corners will be marked; the markers are asked to report to Dr. "Wally" Graham at Hart House at 9 o'clock and will be taken from there to their positions on the course.

There will be several vacancies for new men on the Intercollegiate team of five men which is going to Kingston on November 3rd. For the next ten men there will be positions on a relay team which the International Silver Company's Trophy in the 30 miles relay race at the C.N.E. stadium on the same day. There is also a likelihood that this year more medals will be awarded than in the past.

Intermediate Rugby

All Intermediate Intercollegiate rugby players are requested to appear in uniform on the back campus at 5 o'clock to-night. The picture of this season's team will be taken and those selected for the game to be played at Guelph on Saturday. Passes for the Western-St. Mike's game on Saturday morning at Oakwood will also be given out.

VARSITY INCLUDED IN POLO LEAGUE

Two Teams to be Selected From Interfaculty Players

FIRST GAME IN NOVEMBER

The schedule of games in the newly formed City Water Polo League is to be drawn up at the beginning of next week. The first game will probably be played off during the first part of November. The teams entered in this league are as follows: Central Y.M.C.A., Broadview Y.M.C.A., West End Y.M.C.A., Central High School of Commerce, first and second University teams, and there is some rumour of a Varsity Grad team also entering the league. The two University teams will be selected from the Interfaculty players in a short time, so it would be advisable for all these players to be on hand for all their games and also practices. As water polo this year is being played under International rules, every Interfaculty player should come out to the practices and acquaint himself with the new plays and rules which are being adopted this year. There is a chance for every player of any ability to make a place on the two city teams, and from these teams the Intercollegiate players will be picked to meet McGill in January. Only three of last year's Intercollegiate players are at Varsity this year.

INTERCOLLEGIATE SOCCER SQUAD PLAYS R.M.C. SAT.

Varsity Under Coach Halliwell is Prepared to Take the Cadets' Measure

The Intercollegiate soccer squad will play R.M.C. here Saturday morning at 10.30 on the front campus. Yesterday's practice was the last before the game, and the team is prepared to take the Cadets' measure.

The team this year is composed of some veterans and a number of newcomers. King, Jack, Jackson and Davidson are playing their usual good game. The backs are a hard crew to get by, while the forward line play a combination that will net goals.

Varsity plays two games in the Intercollegiate series, with R.M.C. and McGill. The latter two teams played a week ago, the game ending in a draw 1 all. The Blues under the experienced coaching of Coach Halliwell have been working hard this year and appear favourites for the title. The student body in the past has been sadly lacking at these games. The admission is free, and with a fighting team, students should turn out to support their senior team.

The Popular and Lovely Laura Louise Has Grave Setback in Heart Affairs

(D. Kendall)

The Valley of Despondency,
October 26th.

Dear Betty:

I feel simply terrible. I never suffered so much in all my life. I will never dare to lift my head again, or to even show my face anywhere. I cried bucketfuls. If you weren't my most intimate friend, I wouldn't tell even you. Its like this, Dattie told me that he had abig surprise for me and that he wanted me to like it very much, but he wouldn't tell me what it was. I was so keyed up and enthusiastic I thought of all sorts of things and even hoped that it might be something that I could say 'Yes' to. So when he was coming with the big surprise, I dressed in my very prettiest clothes, the new ones I got last week, and I spent hours and hours getting my complexion on right. The door bell rang and I went down. My heart was just busting.

There was Dattie, I mean Mr. Harrison, with a woman. A terrible looking one, who didn't look any older than thirty, and the powder and paint . . . it was ghastly. And he said, 'Laura Louise, I want you to meet my fiancée, Miss Thingamabob. I never liked her in my life. It was too horrible to tell. Of course I didn't show my true feelings. I always could act. So I congratulated them and said I was so surprised, which I certainly was. We talked for about half an hour, and I was under the most horrible stress the whole time. I told her that she was simply too sweet for words—the big, fat cradle snatcher, and said that she reminded me of a dear aunt of mine that had been in India, as a Missionary for over fifteen years. At last they went, and I saw out of the window that Dattie was taking her across the street to the car and I thought that it looked like a tug-boat, taking a liner into port. Then I went and cried and cried till it was time to go to the show.

The rest of the week, I've been drowning my sorrow. On Tuesday, I was dancing with Hal, on Wednesday I went with Chuck, and last night I went to a party with a new boy I met on Tuesday. Of course I felt simply terrible, and shaken up, but I didn't want to spoil their good time, so I acted, as if I hadn't a care in the world.

Heartbrokenly,

Your dearest friend,

Laura Louise.

P.S. Of course I didn't really care about Mr. Harrison. It was only a passing gesture. L.L.

We don't believe that a pun is, if it really is anything. That is, if one holds that only being is, and not being is not. At this juncture we may consider that the Absolute is pear-shaped. And we like to think about F.P.A.'s crack about so many people being prone to carp, you know, lying face downwards to a deep sea fish. Which goes to show that even such fussy columnists as F.P.A., B.I.T. and R.H.L. (who is not the gent who occasionally signs off in the A.M.&D., but a satirical gent who works the Linotype in the Chicago Tribune) sometimes revert to puns. Any one who objects to puns will be reported to the Hall Committee and as punishment forced to sit for three weeks at the Head Table in Hart House and heave head balls at medical students discussing labs over the bean soup. Now, we did our damndest to keep away from puns in that last sentence and yet we believe that two may be detected. But so many have been taking us aside lately and telling us very confidentially that if we were you, Dee, we'd lay off these here puns for a while as there are those, of course, who for the purposes of this discussion shall be nameless, who do not appreciate them. As a final blast we may say that if people would quit pussyng around and instead come out and write a nice letter to us why we would have a feeling of expansive warmth instead of the present sour attitude.

the composer enjoyed his fun with the "Trout" making it now a miniature concerto, now a toy symphony, and later a charming theme for a violin sonata. Under the persuasive touch of Norah Drewett the piano lost its percussive qualities and in delicate nuances lent only a beauty of overtone to the sustained tone of the strings.

In the realm of inexpressible beauty, the critic is dumb. In the Franck we lost ourselves in an eternity of harmonic sound, seemingly endless and ever flowing. Under the spell of Schubert we basked in the sunny warmth of Springtime, oblivious to care. Both numbers were musical feasts; perhaps the Provek quartet is a trifle difficult to comprehend at first hearing, but there is not the slightest doubt of its deep emotional qualities.

True appreciation of a work of art is always commensurate with the contribution the auditor gives it. J.J.K.

U.C. ALUMNI ASSURED WOMEN'S RESIDENCES CONSTRUCTION SOON

Principal Wallace Announces Probable Locations of New Houses

ST. GEORGE AND HOSKIN

No Definite Statement Made Regarding New Housing for Men

Construction of women's residences for University College co-eds is to commence in the near future, announced Principal M. W. Wallace at an Alumni dinner on Friday night. The buildings will probably be located on St. George St. and Hoskin Ave. He had no definite statement to make with regard to additional residence accommodation for men.

"What is the use of training men to use leisure when they are not going to have any?" inquired Professor B. K. Sandwell, the main speaker of the evening. He advocated a return to the Grand Tour for university graduates, and maintained that they would broaden their outlook and avoid localized prejudices in a tour of the world, after the manner of the 18th century student. He urged that this be made a post-graduate course for picked representatives of Canadian universities. In Canada it was more difficult than in any other part of the world to get opinions on international subjects. "The existence of a body of young men who know Europe would be a valuable acquisition to this country," he asserted. Professor Sandwell also made a plea for the preservation of study of the classics. The days when one spent a quiet evening discussing the works of Thucydides or Anatole France have gone, he declared.

The decision to devote $1,000 of surplus funds to scholarships open to undergraduates in University College was commended by Principal Wallace during the evening. He announced that a distinguished European scholar would be invited annually to give a series of lectures in connection with the Alexander Foundation. Monsieur Louis Camazian of the Sorbonne will deliver the first of the series next February.

McGILL DEFEATS VARSITY OPENING RUGGER FIXTURE

McGill defeated Varsity 14-5 in the opening game of the Intercollegiate rugger series Saturday. McGill was first to score. Varsity soon retaliated by a touch by Burton, which was converted by Goldenberg, giving Varsity the lead, 5-3.

The second half was all McGill. Glenn, the star player for the Blue and White, was carried off. Chalmers and Rice each scored a touch. Rice converting his own try. Hands got over on a 50 yard run. McGill was more aggressive and attempted more daring plays.

Varsity: Full back, Kelly; three-quarters, Rogers, Goldenberg, Stewart, Godson; halves, Roome, Lee, Archbold; forwards, Gale, Franklin, Burton, Armstrong, Nash, Glenn, Bell; spare, Heslop.

McGill: Full back, Nelson; three-quarters, Hands, Hart, Chalmers, Rice, halves, Langstroth, Gibson, Starkey; forwards, Kincaid (captain), Norris, De Chazal, Henece, Luke, MacMillan; spare, Skinner.

Referee: A. Moore.

HOT WATER POURED FREELY UPON ROOTERS' DOMES

Tricolour Supporters Led By Ancient Lizzie Down Avenue

Queen's rooters ran into some hot water outside the University Residences on Hoskin Ave. after Saturday's game. Some agrieved Varsity rooster, annoyed at the demonstration of the Tricolour rooters, seized the tam from the head of a Queen's freshman and took refuge from the angered mob in East House.

The Kingston crowd went wild and milled around the residence seeking means to avenge their loss. Meanwhile a number of Toronto men within are said to have barred the doors and poured hot water upon the crowd beneath their windows, using large metal wastepaper baskets for the purpose.

Still later the Queen's rooters, numbering several hundreds, paraded down University Ave. led by a very ancient Ford car. In spite of the weather, the Kingston crowd seemed to have no difficulty in celebrating their victory.

Toronto Rhodes Scholar Wins Valuable Award at Oxford

It is reported from Oxford, England, that Mr. Scott Meredith Reid, B.A., a former student of Trinity College, in the University of Toronto, who was appointed a Rhodes Scholar for Ontario in 1926, has been awarded the George Webb Medley Junior Scholarship in Economics, of the value of one hundred pounds, open to competition among students of the University of Oxford.

Mr. Reid graduated in 1927 with the highest honours in the First Class in the Department of Political Science. He is the son of the Reverend A. J. Reid, Rector of St. Chad's Church, Toronto, and was well known throughout the University of Toronto, having taken a leading part in various activities, especially debates in Hart House.

NO COMPLAINTS YET OF TORONTONENSIS NEW BIOGRAPHY RULE

Mr. M. T. De Pencier Describes Intricacies of New System

FINANCIAL SAVING

Thirty-five Words Allotted Each Student for Description of Undergrad Career

"I have heard no complaint voiced in any quarter whatever," stated M. T. De Pencier, editor of Torontonsis, to "The Varsity," when questioned concerning students' attitude towards the year book. Mr. De Pencier said that, although there was considerable dissatisfaction among some sections two years ago, owing to the change in the style of the biographies, he had heard of no such sentiment this year.

Last year a number of the students, notably those in Commerce and Finance, although putting in their pictures, refused to make any comment with them, as a protest against the new system. Under this new system, a student is limited to about thirty-five words, in which he may describe his purely undergraduate activities and nothing else. Under the old system, personal comment and quotations, usually of a humorous character, were allowed. This year as far as could be learned there will be no boycott whatever, on account of the new system. Several men, when interviewed, had no complaint to make.

In explaining the new system, Mr. De Pencier said that it had been made necessary on account of the cost. The old system had been alright except for this. Under the old system, there had been eight biographies to the page, whereas the new system allowed eleven, thus affecting a very considerable financial saving.

J. Finkleman Delivers Fine Paper Stressing Effect of Industrial Revolution

"Some Economic Aspects of Jewish Life," was the subject of a paper delivered by Mr. Jacob Finkleman before the first discussion group of the season, held under the auspices of the University of Toronto Menorah Society, last evening.

Mr. Finkleman discussed the economic phases of the Jews throughout the ages. He dealt at length with the changes undergone by the Jewish people as a result of the Industrial Revolution, tracing minutely the increase in the number of skilled trades to which the Jew applied himself. The speaker finally concluded by drawing the attention of his hearers to the present movement of the Jewish people in Palestine—the "back to the soil" movement.

MORE IMMIGRATION BIG CANADIAN TASK AVERS GERMAN PROF.

Commerce Club Hears Address on Canada's Immigration Problems

HARVESTER PLAN SUCCESS

Large Percentage of Western Canada Population is of Nordic Stock

"It seems you have got to get more immigrants, if only to pay your huge national debts," said Professor Hamilton of the University of Berlin, speaking to the Commerce Club on the subject of immigration at a meeting in the Music Room on Friday.

Prof. Hamilton, who has travelled far and wide, is returning from a tour of Western Canada.

Speaking of immigrants, the professor stated that if all immigrants were retained in this country the population would soon be double what it now is, but unfortunately there was a tendency for immigrants to go to the United States. He condemned the policy of religious settlement. "Not only do they not intermarry, but such settlements freeze out others," he stated.

Kitchener was a sort of clearing house for German settlers, he said. Prof. Hamilton went on to say that a much larger percentage of Western Canada population was of Nordic stock than the census showed, since many Germans came from Poland or Austria and are classed as Eastern Europeans officially.

The British miner-harvesters movement was successful, Prof. Hamilton declared; he had had the opportunity of talking with many of them during his tour.

MEDICAL PROFESSION IS NOT OVERCROWDED

Doctors Cannot Be Supplied Faster Than Country Can Absorb Them

SAYS DR. PRIMROSE

There is no danger of our country becoming over-supplied with medical men, according to information received by "The Varsity."

Dean Primrose of the Faculty of Medicine, when interviewed on the question of regulating the numbers entering medicine, stated: "It doesn't seem that we can supply doctors more quickly than the country can absorb them. Of course we try to restrict the numbers entering into the Faculty of Medicine but for a different reason. It is because we find that we can get better results with a small class than with a larger one."

It was learned from Dr. Routley, Secretary of the Ontario Medical Association, that the demand for doctors greatly exceeded the supply. At present there are many vacancies throughout Ontario. In a certain community in Bruce Peninsula the women's institute had offered a bonus of $1,800 a year to any doctor who would settle there. Another town in Lanark County had offered a free office to any doctor who would come in. There were many other similar openings coming in to the office almost continually. It was the wish of the Association that registration in medicine be not restricted.

BERLIN PROFESSOR PRAISES UNIVERSITY

Prof. Hamilton Says Toronto is Intellectual Centre of Canada

CANADA LAND OF PROMISE

"The University of Toronto is the most British university with the exception of Oxford or Cambridge," declared Prof. Hamilton of the University of Berlin in an interview with "The Varsity" on Friday.

"It is very well known in Germany. In fact it is spoken of as the intellectual and cultural centre of Canada; just as McGill is noted for its Faculty of Medicine, the University of Toronto is noted for the breadth of its culture."

Asked if English were well known in Germany, Prof. Hamilton stated that almost every educated German speaks English fluently, the study of it being compulsory in German schools. There were also a few English and Canadian students in German universities, who, he stated, helped towards a broader understanding of English.

"Canada is regarded as a land of promise by Germany," said Prof. Hamilton. "Indeed a sort of halo of romance surrounds Canada. Germany has a friendly feeling towards Canada, much more so than towards United States."

WILL ERECT NEW FLAG POLE NO DEFINITE DATE GIVEN

When asked by "The Varsity" when the new flag pole is to be erected, Colonel Le Pan replied that it was just a matter of time. He said that they are now installing the concrete foundation and that the pole itself would be erected when this was finished. He did not, however, give any definite date. The superintendent said that there were other things more pressing, such as the score-board, and that the flag-pole job would have to wait its turn.

Queen's Display Best Running Attack Seen Here in Long Time

BELL PLAYS WELL

Durham Makes Sensational 35 Yard Around Varsity End for Touchdown

(By L. C. D.)

	I	II	III	IV
QUEEN'S	0	1	11	4	16
Varsity	4	0	0	0	4

Fighting in vain to hold a three point lead, earned in the first half, Varsity was forced to bow before a superior Queen's team at the Stadium here on Saturday. Going into the second half with the Blue ahead by 4-1, the Tricolour uncorked one of the best running attacks seen here in some time and registered fifteen points to defeat Varsity by a score of 16-4.

Although the Blue squad turned in a good game in the first quarter and held the Tricolour to a single marker in the second stanza, in the last half it was just too much Queen's. It must be admitted that the Tricolour's first touch was greatly helped along by a blocked kick, but all of the Queen's points scored after this break were due to extensions that brought back memories of the Evans to Batstone to Leadley days.

Billy Bell was one of the best men Varsity had on the field. He was steady on the catches and grabbed several while on the dead run. Darling made big gains on plunges and did most of the kicking. His 35 yard run put the ball in position for Snyder's field goal, and, in addition, "Bill" did a lot of work on the defensive. Bailie was a trifle unsteady and both he and Bell were generally smothered by the Tricolour tacklers. Keith at snap played up to form, while White also turned in a good effort.

For Queen's Carter and Durham were outstanding, with Warren and Sutton just about as good. Carter made every catch and kicked well. He combined nicely with Warren on the catches and was a hard man to bring down. Durham pulled off several long runs, including a 35 yard sprint around the Varsity end which resulted in a touchdown.

In the first quarter Varsity looked as if they were going to trample on Queen's. After about a minute of play the snap out on a Tricolour third down went to the wrong man and Varsity secured on Queen's 30 yard line. The Blue got their first point on Snyder's attempted drop, which went for a rouge. Then Varsity ripped up the Queen's centre and followed Darling's long run on a plunge through the line.

CADETS SMOTHERED BADLY BY MCGILL SENIORS

"Special to 'The Varsity' from the 'McGill Daily'

Montreal, Oct. 28.—The cadets of R.M.C. proved game but unimpressive opposition for the McGill Senior football squad in an exhibition game at the Stadium here Saturday when the soldiers went down to a twenty to one defeat. Relieved frequently by practically the whole Intermediate squad, the Red team kept up a rushing attack, their backfield skirting around the end for frequent gains.

The McGill backfield, Lovering, Doherty and Tremain, gave a sparkling display, followed close behind in points of brilliance by the subs, Smyth and Krizewiser. Massie, the Cadet plunger inside wing, was a class of the R.M.C. aggregation, while Captain Nichol played a brilliant game on the half line.

OUR ANNUAL REQUEST

Principal Wallace of University College promises new women's residences for that college, there are rumours of residence extensions at Victoria, Trinity speaks of registration restrictions due to lack of residence accommodation, and the women in Occupational Therapy complain that they have no Common Room.

As a topic of conversation this one of Women's Residences seems to be most popular, but we wonder if it will prove quite so popular when its delightful imaginings become complicated with realities in the shape of plans and estimates, and we hope that architects and contractors will not discourage the building enthusiasts of our colleges. As a matter of fact, we are almost sure that Principals and Deans of Women will not be daunted and that they will get what they want, for usually problems relating to individual colleges are quickly and efficiently solved. It is the larger problems of the University which are left to that favourite, ineffective cure-all, Time.

It is one of these long unsolved "University problems"—that of the Women's Building, that we now wish to refer. For years there have been discussions, speeches, resolutions, small finance campaigns and brief outbursts of enthusiasm which have flamed for a time and then flickered out under the breath of opposing interests in the colleges. No one is in doubt about the place of a Women's Building in our University, and the need for it is an ever increasing one. The women in the larger Arts colleges have struggled along for many years without a central meeting place, and probably they could continue to do so, but the women in the scientific faculties and in the small new departments in which the registration is almost entirely feminine have no means of experiencing University life outside the lecture room. As well as these parlour ladies there are also the many who deplore the lack of interfaculty activity, and most important, the promoters of women athletics. These last named are ready at any moment to quote statistics on the floor space of the gymnasium at the Lillian Massey Building, or on the size of its swimming-tank, or on the number of women who take physical training; and they become eloquent on the impossibility of the whole situation.

There is, the authorities would have us believe, no money for the solution of this problem. But it seems to us that a good deal of money is being used for other causes not so urgent as this one. Why, for instance, can money be procured from the Provincial Government for the building of a University College Women's Residence? We have always understood that ours was a State University and it would seem that any funds the Government can spare should be devoted to the improvement of the University as a whole, not to that of one college.

Can it be that the powers-that-be do not want a central meeting place for the women of the University? Are they afraid that such a building would interfere with faculty life? Has not Hart House, for the men, justified its existence so as to make its parallel desirable for the women?

NOTED RABBI TO ADDRESS S.C.M. AT WYMLWOOD

Rabbi Isserman, noted Jewish thinker of Toronto, has consented to speak to interested students at Wymilwood Tuesday evening on "Judaism and Christianity." When the Rabbi expresses an opinion, people sit up and listen. He is one man who has brought Judaism to a modern understanding and made it intelligible to the Gentile world. He is a staunch promoter of education, and has done much to reconcile two outstanding religions.

In harmony with the proposed plan of S.C.M. projects for the year, a series of Open Forums have been planned. Outstanding men in various walks of life are expected as speakers, a radical allied with the labour movement, an authority on international affairs, and a recognized modern religious thinker.

CANADIANS SUCCESSFUL IN OLD ENGLAND

Special to "The Varsity"
Montreal, Que.—Word received by cable here from England reveals that Bernard Alexander and Melvin Kenoy, comprising the debating team representing Canadian universities on a tour of the British Isles, were successful in their first two debates and lost the third. They defeated teams representing the London School of Economics and Exeter University, but were defeated by the team of Bristol University.

After a few more debates in the south of England they will go to Wales and then to Scotland. They wind up their tour with a debate against Cambridge.

The Memorial tower at the University of Missouri has recently been opened for use.

Art, Music and Drama

Friday Afternoon Recital

Mr. Godden's recital on Friday evening was a departure from the ordinary in programmes—pleasing if not altogether satisfying. The pianist seems to find his forte in numbers like the Dohnanyi Rhapsody; the curious sforzando tonalities of Bowen's Toccata caught the fancy of the audience, and the Rachmaninoff number, given as an encore, again revealed Mr. Godden's particular style. The simplicity of design of the first group was its attractive feature, but we found difficulty in discovering the true import of the Schytte Sonata, in whose ramifications, design and sense seemed deeply obscured. We did enjoy the Debussy much more, and our failure to catch the spirit of the sonata which was the central number of the programme, perhaps accounts for that unsatisfied feeling we have already mentioned. The fault may lie in ourselves; certainly the audience warmly expressed their approval of the programme. J.J.K.

Sunday Evening Concert

It does seem most appropriate that the initial Hart House Sunday evening concert should be given by the Hart House String Quartet; the audience who heard them last night was radiantly well satisfied. The first number was the rather short "prize" quartet of Pargeter based upon French Canadian folk themes.

That with the Forelle quartet of Schubert made a delightful programme strangely contrasting in mood with their programme of Thursday evening.

Pargeter in his rollicking Allegro has caught all the jollity of the French "fiddle" music; one immediately visualizes peasant gatherings in colourful costume enjoying an hilarious evening in the folk dance to the music of jovial fiddlers. But he never loses sight of a deeper purpose which finds voice in the lovely slow movement.

We can say little about the Schubert. Once again we found ourselves chasing about after those deliciously elusive melodies of the quartet as though we strove with child-like enthusiasm to catch sunbeams—and the melodies are so warm and pure-like sunbeams. We receive with unqualified delight the deep sentiment of Schubert, a sentiment which never becomes cloying.

We could not presume to comment on the rendition given by the Quartet. We feel that they are now almost without peer among chamber music organizations. It is particularly pleasing that they are making a regular practice this year of presenting assisting artists. The work of Mr. Rose, contrabass, and more especially of Norah Drevett at the piano, was most commendable. With such assistance the quartet becomes a most flexible group for the presentation of interesting works, which might otherwise be neglected with great loss to music lovers. J.J.K.

Well, I'll tell ya, George, I went up and said "I'll take bid at sixty-six points"—"Holy Doodle—lookit that monkey run—haaa haas!" Hold 'em Queen's! Monahan is the name! Oh, you steamfitter! . . .

Yea, George, lay off that Kolokonda stuff—the are ain't—Boooool Forward! Forward! Get that guy—get him—ya egg—Hoonel said you could play football? That's what I wanta know!

Well, if that ain't that Curly Graham! You know, George, he's the guy that led these Toronto guys cheering—ain't it a son of a gun the way that echo comes back from the stand! HEY! Get that—ONSIDE! ONSIDE! BOOOOO!

What's eating these Toronto fellas? That Daly—no, Baillie—can catch, but they nail him—GET THAT BOZO!

Say, George, listen the way the band music comes back! Like two playing at once. No—I like my music filtered better!

Monahan! Hey, Irish, hit that line!

Monahan is the name! Say, these here cheerleaders—ain't there been some stink about them. Aw, yes, "The Varsity"—well, aw—WHAT YOU DOING—START—don't look at it—pick it up!

QUEEN'S OUTPLAYS VARSITY IN SECOND HALF AND WIN 16 TO 4

ST. MIKE'S ARE FIRST IN WESTERN SECTION INVADERS REPELLED

Irish Score Two Touches When Western Backfield Proves Unsteady

SCORE IS 12-9

Londoners Fail to Tie Up Game in Last Quarter

At the Oakwood Stadium Saturday morning St. Michael's won the Western section of the Intermediate Intercollegiate by defeating Western 12-9. The "Irish" won the game on their merits, the Western backfield being very unsteady, giving St. Mike's two touches on fumbles.

For St. Mike's, Young, McLahey, Quinn and Burns played good football. Valerie, Kennedy and Brown were Western's best.

St. Mike's opened the scoring early in the first quarter. Horton fumbled a punt and St. Mike's recovered. Sheehan plunged over for a touch. Western scored a rouge and the quarter ended with St. Mike's leading 5-1. In the second quarter St. Mike's added two singles on kicks by Young, making the score 7-1 at half-time.

St. Mike's scored a touch at the beginning of the second half, when Western fumbled near their own goal line, and the Irish obtained the ball. Sammons plunged over for the 5 points

Western Varsity Joins Senior Rugby Union

Western University of London, Ontario, will be included with Varsity, Queen's and McGill in a four-team group making up the Senior Intercollegiate Rugby Union. The recommendation was passed on by the rugby union to the Intercollegiate Association and will without much doubt be accepted by the latter body.

bringing the score to 12-1. Western now took a brace, and Jewell kicked two singles, making the score 12-3 for St. Mike's. On a St. Mike's fumble Western secured and Kress went over for a touch, which P. Hauch converted. St. Mike's 12, Western 9.

In spite of Western's strenuous efforts to tie up the game in the last quarter, St. Michael's held them to no score and put the damper on Western's championship hopes, winning 12-9.

St. Mike's: Flying wing, Treho; halves, Burns, Quinn, Young; quarter, McTahy; snap, Flahiff; insides, Haffey, Hyde; middles, Sammons, Sheehan; outsides, Morgan, Whitelaw; subs, Hussey, Fleck, Martin, Cameron, Culligan, McGraw, Bobbins.

Western: Flying wing, M. Valerie; halves, Kennedy, Horton, P. Hauch; quarter, Little; snap, Diamond; insides, Stull, Morintain; middles, Kress, C. Hauch; outsides, McLachlan, Jewell; subs, Ward, Brown, Martin, S. Valerie, Thompson, McGinnis.

In a straw vote conducted in the University of Colorado, an overwhelming majority was in favour of revising the prohibition act.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Varsity in defeat were far from being disgraced. The score of 16 to 4 might indicate a sound drubbing, but that was not the case. The Tricolour was by a long way the better team, but they only showed that in the latter part of the second quarter and in the second half. The Blue did not fall down in the second half, but the Queen's team played superb football, and they had to in order to defeat the boys in blue.

It was the better filled generalship and smoother end runs that made the difference.

Varsity held its own on the line, but when it came to getting the extensions away for gains the Varsity team was woefully weak, while the Carson squad counted two touches as the result of well executed end runs that Varsity found impossible to break up.

It was no fault of Bill Darling that his kick was blocked. He had just completed a gruelling plunge when, before he had an opportunity to set himself, he was called on to kick. Jimmie Kilgour broke through, blocked the kick and fell on the oval himself. From there Carter went around the end in an extension for a touch. That was the break in the game. From then on the Blue was not in the hunt.

There was no letting up by the Les Blackwell boys until the final whistle. They showed fight even in that third quarter when it looked like the start of a runaway contest.

The tremendous crowd that packed every available inch of the Stadium had all the frills presented that goes with a college game. The cheering and the leading were the best exhibited this year, while the half-time skit put on by the second year men of School was outstanding.

"I came 700 miles to lead you in an old-time Varsity yell," shouted "Curly" Graham to the crowd when he was hauled down before them at the game. And how they did yell behind the one-time cheer leader.

Another evidence of the fleeting fame in sport circles was presented at the Queen's-Varsity game Saturday. George Young and his fiancé, Jewel Cheatwood, came out into the open stands just under the press box after the game had started. Not twenty-five people noticed the Catalina and three-mile Wrigley champion. Less than two months earlier the huge audience gathered at the Canadian National Exhibition cheered him until the break-water shook.

The recommendation Saturday at the Rugby Union meeting to admit Western University to the Intercollegiate Union will round out a fine group. Outside of the merits of the recommendation as regards Western's strength, it is almost a necessity to have a four time group. It means a decent schedule and no "play one week and lay off one week season."

The defeat of Varsity Juniors by the McMaster twelve came as a distinct surprise to many followers of the pastime. The Blue Juniors have dominated the situation for many years, and although from the viewpoint of this column the defeat is regretted, it will add new life to the smaller universities, and is a good thing for junior football generally.

O.A.C. AGAIN CAPTURES BROTHERTON CUP

Banks, Malkin and Griffiths of O.A.C. Come First; Lee of U.C. Next

Saturday morning at Upper Canada College, Ontario Agricultural College again captured the Brotherton Cup. Their supremacy was quite unchallenged, for their team of seven took the first three places and all finished in the first eleven. Trinity came in second. Meds were third, and U.C. fourth.

Banks of O.A.C. with two of his team mates early took the lead and won in the excellent time of 30 min. 40 sec. The course was, however, a few yards shorter than usual, as spectators at a rugby game covered the cinder track and the finish was down the drive to the main gates.

Over ninety men started, but a large number did not finish, due to the cold. Fortunately there were no casualties.

The first twenty-five men to finish were: 1, Banks, O.A.C.; 2, Malkin, O.A.C.; 3, Griffiths, O.A.C.; 4, Lee, U.C.; 5, Smith, S.P.S.; 6, Dempsey, O.A.C.; 7, Garnett, O.A.C.; 8, McLennan, Meds; 9, Ross, O.A.C.; 10, Walters, Trin.; 11, Stacey, O.A.C.; 12, Subourne, Trin.; 13, MacDonald, Trin.; 14, Mitchell, Meds; 15, L. Wilson, Trin.; 16, Davies, U.C.; 17, Vila, U.C.; 18, Baker, Trin.; 19, Baldwin, Trin.; 20, D. Wilson, Meds; 21, Young, Meds; 22, McPherson, Trin.; 23, Woodcock, Trin.; 24, T. VARSIY JUNIORS DEFEATED AT HANDS OF McMASTER

McMaster defeated Varsity Juniors 11 to 4 last Saturday, and thereby remained in the fight for the group title. It was quite a shock to Varsity's supporters, but the Baptists outplayed the Blue and White in all departments.

Richardson kicked a placement and a single for Varsity's points. Westbrook and B. Whidden scored touches for McMaster and Cunningham kicked the single point.

Varsity: Flying wing, Thompson; halves, G. Smith, Richardson, Bennett; quarter, Heintzman; snap, Campbell; insides, Stringer, Saunders; middles, Farwell, Wilson; outsides, Crocker, Marritt; subs, Britnell, Smith, Connor, Perkins, Robinson.

McMaster: Flying wing, Barton; halves, Leamen, Stewart, Thomas; quarter, Westbrook; snap, Lowden; insides, Ivens, Haerlein; middles, Zavitz, B. Whidden; outsides, Reynolds, Barber; subs, Cunningham, McGowan, Iverson, H. Whidden, Stainton, Sanderson, Abbot.

to consist of Lee, Smith, Walters, Seaborn, and probably Hap, Gilbert, who was not running Saturday, to rest a sprained ankle.

The same afternoon in Toronto a ten man team is to represent the University in the 30 mile relay race for the International Silver Cup trophy. It will probably consist of McLennan, Meds; Crozier, Mitchell, Meds; McDonald, Trin.; L. Wilson, Trin.; Davies, U.C.; U.C.; Baker, Trin.; Baldwin, Trin.; D. Wilson, Meds; though there may be some changes in this list.

VARSIY SOCCERITES WIN FROM KINGSTON CADETS

Varsity defeated R.M.C. 3-2 here on Saturday in their first Intercollegiate soccer fixture. The score does not really indicate the nature of play. Varsity displayed marked superiority over the Cadets, play being carried largely into the latter's territory. Shots rained all about the Red and White net, but they were badly misplaced. The Blue backfield prevented the invaders from scoring many a time, as the Cadet shots were deadly.

Right from the kick-off Varsity started off with a rush and in a short time Davidson scored for the Blues. But the Cadets got a break when a Varsity man tallied for them. Half time found the score 1 all. The home team continued their strong offensive, and Skelton scored the second goal. But the invaders retaliated, Kime kicking the ball into the net. With only a few minutes to go, Davidson pulled the game out of fire with a pretty shot.

Davidson, Shelton and Jackson on the forward line played well, and King and Goldenburg formed a strong defence. For the visitors McTavish in goal was good, and Kime played well. R.M.C.: Goal, McTavish; backs, Bessonet, Hemmel; halves, Harrison, Ross, Griffiths; forwards, Phillips, Groves, Best, Kime, Gamble; sub, McIntosh.

Varsity: Goal, Cox; backs, Hadley, Jack; halves, Goldenburg, Rowland, King; forwards, Ward, Jackson, Skelton, Davidson, Downing; subs, McCullough.

Cooley Leads Varsity Rifleman in Intercollegiate Match at Long Branch

HAYHURST SECOND

W. H. Cooley led Varsity marksmen with a score of 100 in the intercollegiate match held at Long Branch on Friday. Hayhurst came second with 98 and also won the O.R.A. silver medal for Extra Series (142 out of 150). School recovered the De Lury Shield from Dents with a total of 449; Trinity 428, Dents 397, Meds 381.

The Association gold medal goes to Cooley, 100; silver medals to Hayhurst (T.), 98; Jacobi (G.W.), 91; Milliken (E.), 89; Smith (M.), 89; Reid (J.), 88; Weir (V.), 88; Sherwood.

Money prizes, in order, go to MacNab, Hendrick, Mitchell, Cutler, Bowden, Legget, Keith, Gunn, Sobush, Taylor, Jacobsen.

The Hayhurst Silver Rifle for the high trophy was won by E. Milliken. Eighteen prizes for Extra Series at 20 yards—Hayhurst, 25, $3.00; Shields, 24, $2.50; Lucas, 24, $2.00.

Fourteen prizes for Extra Series at 60 yards—Cooley, 24, $3.00; Weir, 24, $2.50; Hayhurst, 24, $2.00.

Nine prizes at 600 yards—Jacobi, 24, $3.00; Sherwood, 24, $2.00; Cooley, 23, $1.50.

The De Lury Shield with bronze medals go to—W. H. Cooley, 100; G. W. Jacobi, 91; J. Reid, 88; A. C. MacNab, 85; M. Kendrick, 83. Smith, Weir, Sherwood, Mitchell and Bowden of Trinity were second with 428.

A difficult "fish tail" win took a heavy toll of points from all but the leaders, but everyone enjoyed the brisk fall weather and are preparing for winter parties in Hart House.

The money prizes will be distributed on Wednesday from 12.30 to 2 p.m. on the Hart House Range.

GUARDING THE PEACE

"Britain, France and United States, with Canada to aid and crystallize entente, may assure peace to whole world," ran a headline in a morning paper yesterday in connection with a speech given on his return to Canada by the Prime Minister. A few days ago the other morning daily discovered another sure guarantee of peace in the developments in International Nickel.

Peace is in the headlines. It has kept its place as front page stuff for ten years since war ceased to monopolize it. But we do not seem to be able to get more from our daily press than such optimistic headlines. Schemes many and various are mooted, discussed and approved and finally receive their benediction amid the splashing of headlines. Then some time later another conference is called; another treaty is necessary; while the former treaty was all very well in its way, it has been worn to nothing by the ravages of months, or of weeks or even of days. It is not for us to complain because our statesmen are slow in solving a question that has never yet been solved. But the slowness and complexity with which things move are sufficient proof of the immediate stumbling blocks in the way even of a satisfactory temporary agreement between all the nations.

There is yet no cause for rejoicing. Yet most of us here rejoiced over the Anti-War Pact suggested by the American State Secretary Kellogg which representatives of the leading European nations recently signed. There was very little adverse criticism of this new panacea in our press; but the enthusiasm with which many writers viewed it did not seem to be inspired by the letter so much as the spirit of the agreement. As one professor in this university remarked: "It's a gesture but a hopeful gesture."

"A hopeful gesture" probably meant that the treaty was hopeful insofar as it presaged active participation in European affairs on the part of the United States. The extent to which the latter are willing to participate is the crux of the whole diplomatic situation.

American student opinion on this point should therefore interest us. The following leading editorial from "The Minnesota Daily," published in one of the leading state universities of the Middle West, is an expression of a vigorous, if one sided opinion:

RETURN OF THE NATIVE

"Senator Kellogg has returned to his native soil. Like the conquering hero he comes back from foreign soil, his brow wreathed with the laurels of triumph. With the ink scarcely dry on the Peace Pact of Paris, he returns, like the ghost of the prophet, to receive honour in his own country. Where are those who once ridiculed our Secretary of State? Where are those who professed to find only inefficiency in his administration of foreign affairs? They are gone. Like jackals that slink away before the roar of the lion, they have fled before this august figure, majestically holding aloft that marvel of human ingenuity, the Peace Pact of Paris.

"The world sighs with relief. The curse of bloody war is no more. Never again will the four horsemen ride the skies. The nations of the world have signed the Pact of Peace. Senator Kellogg, the world thanks you!

"To be sure, the portfolios of War still exist; armies are still maintained; England has sent the largest guns to the world to fortify Singapore. Spies still prey on secrets of state, and the battle cruisers still maneuver on the high seas.

"However, these things are mere trifles, barnacles on the ship of Peace. Senator Kellogg has changed the mental structure of the whole world. Nations that once waited only an opportunity to leap at each other's throats now bill and coo like turtle doves. Nationalism has disappeared. Slav, Latin, Anglo Saxon and Turk walk hand in hand down the cool passage way of sweet harmony. Again, Senator Kellogg, the world thanks you. What matters the memory of "a scrap of paper?" Utopia has arrived. Men have attained perfection, and Senator Kellogg is the Messiah of a new world."

Rather a good one from the Cornell University daily's column, The Berry Patch, is appended: Hoover and Smith, in order to save their parties much worry and bother, agreed to shoot it out in a dark room. Hoover magnanimously shot up the chimney. He killed Smith. Or, if your inclinations so run, Smith shot magnanimously up the chimney and killed Hoover. Is everybody satisfied?

C-C

We at times favour the denatured school of limericks:

There was a young fellow named Smith

Who went out to a party to dance,
And when he got there
It was raining pitchforks.
So he went back home and put on his dressing gown.

C-C

There is also free verse:

At times with my soul
I walk across the campus and
Muse upon the infinite
And the parabola
Wondering if
There are an infinity
Of points in a straight line
How well will I reach
My destination?

C-C

A sudden transition in the best traditions of Gertrude Stein. At times at times other times walking to walk having walked I go gone having both walking gone the campus a field football to go progressed walking a soul spirit walking soul eternity campus field football infinity. So going walking thinking contemplating going infinite walking musing thinking going campus field football will I won't I walking reach arrive campus field football?

We realize that our accomplishments as a tea-drinker have put us on the back page along with Hon. Singe. Well, seriously, how about a nice aesthetic place to drink tea à la dux under University supervision? And who is Pansy Chirside? Phyllis U. says that P.C. thinks that the way parties are run around here is for all eligible girls to put their names on a publicly posted list and the boys take their choice. We do not recollect having drunk tea with anyone like that.

C-C

We anxiously await the day when the new flag-pole is put up. As a swell jape we suggest that someone shabby up and pin a "Varsity" to the top of it. To hear some talk about journalism you might get the idea that a "Varsity" pinned up to the flag-pole would indicate in nautical fashion that the University was quarantined.

C-C

We have on hand some swell puns from kind and keen contributors. Regretfully we suppress them until a later date, for, owing to a change of policy, puns are going to be side-tracked. But don't let it worry anyone, as one of these days we are going to sicken the whole University.

C-C

I want to be a journalist
And with the bad boys stand
Demoralizing people
In a pure and holy land.
This will be sung by the Hart House Quartet Wednesday evening, in the Lecture Room, L. M. Gelber dissenting. The Cat expects a highly cynical evening. A-B-C—

TRY-OUTS FOR WOMEN'S DEBATING TEAM THURSDAY

Feminine Orators to Compete for Places on Intercollegiate Debating Team

Try-outs for the women's intercollegiate debating team will be held at the Women's Union on Thursday afternoon at 4.30. Those trying will be required to give a three-minute talk on either side of one of the following: Resolved that Canada draws its cultural inspiration from the United States rather than the British Isles. Resolved that the adoption of a phonetic system of spelling the words of the English language would be of general advantage. Resolved that the open door policy of immigration is conducive to the most desirable development of a new country. Each speaker will also be required to give a short impromptu speech. The debate will be held the last week in November. Queen's, McGill and Toronto decide by vote which of the above subjects will be debated. This year Varsity's visiting team will go to Queen's and a team from McGill will come to Toronto.

HART HOUSE CHESS CLUB ANNOUNCE PLANS FOR YEAR

The Hart House Chess Club membership already exceeds that of the previous season. R. G. Maitland, president of the Chess Club, told "The Varsity" yesterday. This year the Chess Club is running two tournaments: (a) a closed competition for the half dozen better players, and (b) an open event for all other members. The winners of these tournaments will then match and the winner will play H. Goldhamer, Varsity champion for the past three years. The ultimate winner will be declared University champion for the season of 1928-29. Meetings of the Chess Club are held every second Thursday in the south common room, Hart House, at 8 p.m.

MEDICAL MEN OF QUEBEC DEPLORE CUSTOM OF CO-EDS

Special to "The Varsity"
Montreal, Que. — The use of hip flasks by Canadian co-eds was deplored as one of the social plagues of Canadian life by a gathering of French speaking surgeons at their annual convention at Quebec. The medical men declared that if the new fashion is to prevail, the dignity, virtue and mental state of Canadian young girls is in real peril.

The surgeons passed resolutions which asked the government to prohibit the sale of hip flasks as it already does the sale of dangerous firearms, and that liquor advertisements be suppressed.

Special to "The Varsity"
Rome—"The Vatican looks like a Queen's field house," declared a McGill graduate who was almost overcome recently when on a visit to the residence of Pope Pius XI. He discovered all the guards dressed in the Protestant colours of Queen's University, with brilliant stripes of blue, yellow and maroon. Queen's University is situated in the city of Kingston, Province of Ontario, in the Dominion of Canada.

VARSAITY STUDENTS PLAN TO GO HOME FOR THANKSGIVING

After the first few weeks at Varsity, the thrill of rugby games, and exciting rush of social events, Thanksgiving provides an opportunity for a pleasant visit home before settling down to the Autumn grind.

All the old friends will be back home waiting to hear of the great times you've had at Varsity. There will be turkey, pumpkin pies and all the good things you have enjoyed so much on other Thanksgivings Days.

THE VICTORIA: MARY

We went to the theatre with fear and trembling. Stock Musical Comedy! We had seen it tried in another town and had been forced to leave the theatre hurriedly because of a sharp pain in the neck. But not so the Victoria; in fact we rather enjoyed it.

The leads can sing fairly well though not gloriously—about half-way between vaudeville and concert hall and one shade down from the average good travelling musical company. The chorus was a little harsh but some of the girls bear looking at again, especially the third from the left end. They can't dance, but some of the leads can. "Mary" begins rather lamely, but gets interesting. The plot is simple and unlikely as all musical comedy plots should be; there is some good songs and a few subtle ones for the wide-awakes. Some parts of it are better than others, but it is just the thing for the overworked student. By far the best acting was done by Mr. Eddie Morris, who ranks well as a comedian, while Messrs. Lew Christie and Robert Capron do good character parts. Mr. Gallagher, the tenor lead, has a nice voice.

We welcome this company. It is a long way ahead of the Vaughn Glaser outfit, and is, we think, finding a needed place. It is well worth the once-over now and, when the chorus gets thoroughly worked in, should be quite good.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Old McGill now holds Varsity's football fate in her hands. If the Red and White beat Queen's in Kingston this Saturday, the Blue could force another triple tie by defeating McGill down in Montreal. But it all depends on this week's game. A victory for Queen's and it's all over.

Football enthusiasts who attend Saturday's Varsity-Kitchener game at the Stadium here will keep one eye on the Blue and White's new-fangled score-board. If the Intercollegiate teams live up to this season's record the board will show that another home game is being lost as McGill downs the Tricolour on the latter's field. But that is asking a lot. After their exhibition here against Varsity, Queen's will be heavy favourites over the Montreals.

The Tricolour have the good record of not having their goal-line crossed in three Intercollegiate games. If Queen's can keep up the pace against McGill they will have accomplished an enviable achievement.

Saturday was another mean day for the Blue and White football squads. In addition to the defeat of the Seniors by the Tricolour, the Intermediates lost to O.A.C. But the last straw was added by the Juniors losing to McMaster. The Juniors have crashed through their series for four years without any serious opposition, but it seems that another day has come. The Orphans had a bye.

Jimmy Douglas' Orphans are in a position similar to that of the Intercollegiate outfit. Even if they wallop Kitchener here on Saturday the Pretzel Towners can cop the group by beating Sarnia in the Tunnel Town. If Kitchener loses both games there will be a triple tie.

If the end of the regular schedule finds a tie in the Intercollegiate and in one of the O.R.F.U. groups, we hope the finals will be over early enough to permit the faithful followers of the fall pastime to prepare for Santa Claus.

VARSITY GOLF TEAM RETAINS TROPHY DEFEATING MCGILL

U. of T. Sextette Make Golf History by Winning Series Away from Home

UNEXPECTED VICTORY

Team Holds Ruttan Trophy by Taking All Games of Last Day's Play

The University of Toronto Intercollegiate Golf Team is to be congratulated upon their successful victory and retention of the Ruttan Trophy at the recent matches in Montreal. It has been a habit for Varsity to lose the title to McGill every year when it was played away from home, but this year, by means of their decisive win in the foursomes played on Saturday, they managed to retain the championship which had been won by them the previous year on the Rose dale golf course. Four members of the team have participated in both matches, R. Wilkinson, J. R. Mooney, J. Sihler, G. Edwards, and five of the present team will be available for next year, Mooney being lost through graduation.

At the end of the first day's play the score stood: McGill 3, U. of T. 3. Wilkinson, Sihler and Anderson having won by very slim margins, while Mooney, Boeck and Edwards were defeated in a more clear cut manner by the McGill men. The aspect of the situation did not look very hopeful for the Toronto team due to the wider margins of McGill's wins and the close nature of their losses. However, on Saturday with the weather continuing bitterly cold—so cold that the ice in the boxes was almost an inch thick and had to be broken to wash the balls, and so cold that most of the players were forced to wear three sweaters and two pairs of hose. The Varsity team responded nobly to the cry for two of the three remaining points. One match between Boeck and Sihler was Hatfield and Martin was virtually conceded to McGill, while it was hoped that Wilkinson and Edwards would continue their steady playing and that Mooney paired with Anderson would return to the form showed in the University tournament. Boeck and Sihler saw-sawed with their opponents and finally succeeded in obtaining the verdict, for which much credit must be given to the steady playing of Sihler and Boeck. Mooney and Anderson obtained the honours for having a best ball of 69 between them, while Anderson had the best gross of the day with an approximate 74. This playing meant that Mooney and Anderson were never headed by their opponents, Webster and Fitzrandolph.

One notable event in this match was the playing of five consecutive holes in 3, 3, 2, 3, 3, which was four under par, and to cap the climax, Edwards and Wilkinson in an exceedingly well played match, in which they always held the whip hand, were successful in defeating Allen and Scott-Moncreith of Cambridge. These three victories enabled this team to return the cup and to make golf history by their win in Montreal.

JUNIOR MEDS DEFEATED TRINITY IN WATER POLO

Jr. Meds emerged victorious over Trinity in a scheduled water polo game Monday night 2-0. The Meds team forced the play, and had it not been for Findlater in Trinity goal the score would have been much higher. In the second half successive goals by Middlebro and Bennett clinched the game.

Jr. Meds: Middlebro, Jackson, Bennett, Sutherland, Allan, Peacock, Brennan, Irving and Stevens (capt.). Trinity: Findlater, McDonald, Damon, Balfour, Hunt, Beatty, McNutt, F. Chapple and R. Chapple.

ST. HILDA'S AGAIN WIN WOMEN'S TENNIS

Carry Off Both Interfaculty and Individual Championships in Tournament

FINAL GAME TO-DAY

St. Hilda's women's tennis team has again won the Interfaculty championship for 1928, and by no close margin, though they were offered stiff opposition in the earlier rounds. For four years out of the last five this college has triumphantly carried off the cup. University College captured the trophy from them in 1926, but it now looks as if the Saints were in another victorious stretch. In addition to bearing away Interfaculty honours, the Blue and Gray will proudly boast the individual women's champion of the University.

The semi-finals were hotly contested between four St. Hildians on Saturday at the Toronto Tennis Club. In a hard fought game the brilliant freshee, B. Symons, managed to defeat her opponent, Sally Ballard, 7-5, 8-6. In the match between Enid McGill and Peggy Grout, the latter emerged victorious, 6-4, 6-1, but only after carrying many games to deuce.

It is hoped that the finals will be played to-day, since the bitterness of the weather and B. Symons' sore throat prevented their taking place yesterday. Aside from the fact that they are the finals, to-day's game would prove most exciting in any case, since Peggy Grout was the University champion last year and has an equal chance of gaining the same honour, and B. Symons is one of the most brilliant players ever on the St. Hilda's team. To-day Peggy's steady excellence will strive for supremacy with B's dashing, smashing game, and those who are fortunate enough to attend it will see what should undoubtedly prove the best fight of the season.

VARSITY BASKETBALL SQUAD SHAPING UP

Many Aspirants Weeded Out Practices Become Intensive and Squads Reduced

MANY VETERANS RETURN

The large squad of aspirants to places on Varsity Intercollegiate, Intermediate and Junior basketball teams has considerably diminished as a result of the ruthless elimination of those "not quite good enough to make the grade." Coach McCutcheon is responsible for the disagreeable task of "weeding," but now that the Senior and Intermediate squads have been reduced to forty, the practices have become more intensive. Dribbling and criss-cross passing are in order.

Four or five applications for manager of the Junior team have been received and the successful applicant will be announced by the Athletic Director in about a week and then the Junior team will take a distinct form. At present they are practising with the Seniors.

More and more this look like a Varsity year in basketball. The Intercollegiate team won the championship last year. Carl Faber is the only one regular who is missing from that squad, and O'Leary and Murray, who also starred with Windsor Grads, Canadian champions, ought to assist in filling the gap. The Intermediates were just ousted out by O.A.C. in the finals and the Elbaseths eliminated the Juniors in the return game at Central "Y." There is some talk of entering the Juniors in a city league. This will provide much needed competition which was lacking previously. In former years the Juniors only got a bye.

Four Indiana university students were arrested and expelled from school recently for being leaders in an attempt to storm the doors of the Indiana theatre.

DOORS TO MOVIE FAME OPENED TO GOLIB MAGAZINE READERS

Lifetime Opportunity Won by Esme Willmott, Who Soon Goes to Hollywood Guaranteed Part in a Universal Feature

Toronto, October. — Blonde and petite, the adorably winsome Esme Willmott of Toronto so captivated the hearts of Golib magazine readers that she triumphed in this magazine's recent Movie Opportunity Contest and will soon be on her way, accompanied by her mother, to fame and fortune in this glamorous and most highly paid of professions.

Through winning this contest over the original several thousand entrants, little Esme, who is only twelve years old, goes to California with all traveling and hotel expenses paid for both herself and mother by Golib magazine and with a salary of one hundred dollars a week for herself and fifty dollars a week for her mother.

Upon her arrival at Universal City she is guaranteed a part in a feature film to be made by the Universal Film Company, producers of The Hunchback of Notre Dame, The Phantom of the Opera, Uncle Tom's Cabin and many others of the greatest film spectacles. Mr. Clair Hogue, the general manager of the Canadian Universal Film Company, is now in touch with Universal City arranging that as soon as this company's casting directors require a character of the type represented by Esme, she and her mother will leave for their great adventure in the land of palms, movie stars and sunshine.

This blue-eyed, pink cheeked, sturdily built little lass is already something of a trouper as she has appeared professionally upon the stage in the capacity of a dancer in a number of theatres in Toronto and other Ontario cities.

Perhaps due to the initiative of Golib magazine this remarkable youngster will in a few months belong to that famous galaxy of Canadian movie stars who have already achieved world-wide fame, notably, Mary Pickford, Norma Shearer, Pauline Garon and Marie Prevost.

Noted Aurora Savant Praises College As Cultural Influence For Students

(By N.J.D.)

Aurora, Oct. 30.—"College broadens one," declared Mr. Bunkley Shuter to a staff representative of the Aurora Borealis here today. "College makes a gentleman out of one," continued Mr. Shuter, spitting expertly out of the window on to Main Street where a Salvation Army rally was being held. "Yes, Mr. Bunkley," resumed Bunkley, "there is not a fragment of doubt that college makes one cultured. You'd be surprised how cultured I feel after one month of college. Ain't it funny? Take Hart House. They have a Quartet there. They play from time to time."

"Who?" asked your reporter, "comprises the Quartet?"
"Nobody. It's self-supporting."
"I mean, who plays?"
"O, I see. Why, Winterburn, McCutcheon, Martin and Barton."
"Do you like Chamber Music?"
"Sure! O, yes, who plays which? I dunno. I heard something about Martin playing the duce with P.T. Classes. . . . What other culture is there? Well, there's the Hart House Library. That's a fine place to get culture. Did you ever read "Three Hostages" by Don Buchanan? Do I like the Bridge of San Luis Rey? Well, I don't never visit the Card Room. . . ."

"Mr. Shuter," said the Borealis, "what about the Rhodes Scholarship. Are you definitely aiming for that?"
"What do I want with a scholarship like that. I don't know a darn thing about engineering. I'm an Arts man. Roads? Well, can you beat it. . . . Oh, I get you. You mean those fellows that goes over to the Old Country. I know. There's a fellow in my year who's just taken up squash. He plays swell, even if he is on crutches. . . . Squash? Well, it's like handball and tennis, and you have to have a special costume for it. What does it consist of? Never mind. . . ."

How do I know this fellow is going to get the Rhodes. . . . He told me so. He calls me Mr. Shootah. . . . No, there's nothing like college to broaden one. . . . You should have gone to college, Gregory, you need broadening. . . . absolutely. . . . how can you tell if a man's broad? . . . I well, there's a touch of je ne sais que la helle about him also some compte de pommes mixed with dolce far niente. What does that last mean? Don't you know any German? It means little or nothing. . . . Gosh, I'm dry, Gregory, I'm going to get tight to-night. . . . Yes, college certainly makes a gentleman out of one. . . ."

Of course, in a country where servants may be obtained for $5 to $10 gold a month, the cost is not great.

The present dispute arose largely over the question of going to the United States. Tsing Hua students resented this change.

MEN IN DORMITORIES SHOULD TAKE WARNING

be built, while additional funds will be supplied by the efforts of the women students and by the Board of Governors if it chooses to make a contribution.

Upon inquiry, "The Varsity" found that as the other three colleges depend upon denominational support so were the women's residences of these colleges first acquired. St. Hilda's was given to the women students of Trinity College by the Anglican Church when the first woman student applied for admission to the college. The residences in connection with St. Michael's College are a community expense though the professorial staff provided the initial residence. Victoria's women residences are largely due to the benevolence of Lady Flavell, Mrs. Woods, Mrs. Massey Treble and other women who have made generous contributions towards the upkeep of the residences.

When it is remembered that twenty years ago University College women had no centre, while both Vic. and St. Hilda's were enjoying the benefits of a common meeting place, the compensation money given by the government is merely what has already been acquired through years of untiring effort by the women of University College.

EMMANUEL STUDENTS HOLD FIRST ANNUAL BANQUET AT BURWASH

Dr. Gunn Issues Challenge to Young Men of Church in After Dinner Speech

PROPOSED NEW BUILDING

Business Meeting Held and Reports of Committees Adopted

"We have brought to you, young men, a nobler and greater church. We have carried the torch. Where will you carry it?" Such was the statement and the challenge of Dr. Gunn, Moderator of the General Council of the United Church of Canada, in the course of his acceptance of honorary membership in the Emmanuel College Students' Society at its first annual meeting and banquet held in Burwash Hall last night.

Dr. Gunn, Chancellor Bowles, and Principal Gandier, it was pointed out, were present in the unofficial capacity of representatives of the three former denominations which now comprise the United Church of Canada, the church of which the new Emmanuel is the theological college as Victoria is the arts college. In replying to the toast to the college, Principal Gandier stressed the historical significance of the occasion, remarking that, although Emmanuel might be regarded as "the baby college of the church," yet she was the heir of venerable traditions.

A gesture toward the proposed million dollar structure to house Emmanuel College within two years was made by the students when their representative presented Principal Gandier with a cheque for two hundred and twenty dollars.

In the business meeting held in Victoria College immediately preceding the banquet, Bruce Gray, President of the Society, and Walter Crow, Vice-President, spoke of the determination to replace the old unwritten distinctions between "arts" and "theology" by a new and closer relation between "church students in arts" and "church students in theology." The report of the Committee on Missions and Worldship emphasized the necessity of definite objectives in raising money among students for missionary purposes. This report also included a presentation of plans for a Retreat. The recommendations from the Executive were offered by the Secretary, Allan Ferry.

LANGUAGE ENRICHED BY GANGSTER EXPRESSIONS

Special to "The Varsity"
Middlebury, Vt.—Speaking at the Bread Loaf conference held here recently, Joseph Auslander, poet and critic, declared that the gangsters and the collegiates have enriched the English language.

"It may be painful to Bill Thompson," he said, "that Chicago and the rest of the country is thus adding to the King's English, but the fact is that they are doing so. Sticking them up, going after the ice, taking a man for a ride, frisking some one—all the picturesque terms making a new and vivid language, one that shows us that words are full-blooded, live and kicking things, and that their meanings migrate from one significance to another. They have no inhibitions, and like women, rejoice in their new freedom. Prohibition has also added new words to our language. What could be a more glorious expression than bootlegger?"

KNOX STUDENTS UPHOLD POLICY OF GOVERNMENT

Resolution is Passed After a Stormy Session and All
Pledge Support

After a lengthy and heated discussion on the speech from the throne the Knox College Undergraduates' Association at its regular meeting last evening showed its approval of the policy outlined by the government for the coming term, by passing a resolution to that effect. The members of the government gave their promise to do their best to make Knox a potent factor in the life of the University. A feature of the meeting was the motion on the budget introduced by the treasurer of the K.C.U.A., Mr. Barclay, who mentioned that since the association fee had been made compulsory this year that a larger sum was in the hands of the treasurer. About six hundred and twenty dollars of the sum collected was allotted to the various committees on the motion of the house. The meeting was largely attended, speaking well for the three house whips appointed by the government to see that all freshmen attended the meetings.

The second meeting of the Trinity College Science Club was held Tuesday evening at the home of Rev. P. M. Lamb, Leaside. A very interesting paper entitled "The Lost Atlantic" was delivered by Mr. de Pencier.

Mr. de Pencier began with a discussion of the early theories which showed the existence of this great continent. (Continued on page 4)

FOREIGN STUDENTS HELPED BY MUTUAL ASSOCIATION

Regular Meetings Held Every Month with Informal Discussion Groups

The International Students' Association was organized to act as the official organ of all foreign students, including students from other British colonies, registered at the University of Toronto, whereby they are given the opportunity to meet and talk with each other and to learn about other countries by personal contact.

The aims of the Association are:

1. To foster better relationships among the foreign students of the University.
2. To study Canada, her people and her institutions, in comparison with other countries.
3. To act as a medium of information regarding the University to foreign students.

The Association held regular monthly meetings at Hart House. The meetings are in the form of informal discussions among the students themselves, the leaders being some prominent speakers invited by the Association. The first meeting will be held on Thursday, Nov. 1st, in the lecture room of Hart House. Rev. Canon Cody will be guest at the first meeting. All students who are interested are cordially invited to attend.

CO-EDUCATION HELPS INTEREST IN STUDY AND SOCIAL EVENTS

Leading Women Students Give Their Opinions on Co-education

MEN MAKE COLLEGE LIVELY

Restraint Necessary to Curb Girls' Exuberance

"That co-education is advantageous to women and benefits them by increasing their interest both in studies and social events," is the opinion held by the half dozen leaders of girls' activities interviewed by "The Varsity" with reference to the headline in yesterday's edition that "co-educational universities seem inferior in development of better women."

Miss Eleanor Barton, president of the University College W.U.A., at first replied rather doubtfully that since she had never been to any other kind of college she really could not say. However, she soon added that though one might possibly learn more with no men around, they certainly did make college more lively. Besides in her opinion, it all depended on the individual; some girls would find a co-educational university detrimental, whereas others would find it beneficial, especially those women who intended to compete with men in the business world after graduation.

When the question as to whether co-education produced better women was put to Miss Viola Harris, president of Loretto College Literary Society, she answered unhesitatingly: "Co-education. It gives women the advantage of seeing the masculine point of view as well as the feminine."

Miss Enid Walker, president of the University College S.C.M., proved a fiery partisan of co-education. "I was simply furious when I read that headline, and I'd love to refute it absolutely. A person who is incapable of developing at a co-ed institution would be immune to development anywhere. The very fact that women attend co-educational colleges in such number shows that they are influenced, perhaps unconsciously, by its benefits, and as far as imposing an unnatural restraint upon them is concerned, this very restraint is necessary to curb their natural exuberance."

The two Victoria women interviewed agreed with their fellow students. Miss Helen De Roche, president of the Annesley Student Government Association, declared in favour of co-education since one can work twice as hard during the day if one is going out at night. In the opinion of Miss Ethel Munro, president of the Vic. W.U.A., "co-education gives women the chance to disprove the intellectual superiority of men. Daily contact with men is part of a woman's education, for otherwise she is like a girl without brothers, who needs the corners taken off."

Miss Jewel Cray, head girl of Queen's Hall, thought that co-education was necessary or otherwise college would be just like boarding-school and too narrow for young people.

During the recent meeting of international freighters at Turin, Italy, a specially constructed motion picture theatre was set on fire and the blaze extinguished by firemen from many countries.

DESIRE FOR THRILL IS CAUSE OF MURDER

Special to "The Varsity"
Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 29.—Two students at Oglethorpe University, George Harsh and James R. Galoghy, have been arrested on a charge of murder. They are also responsible for a series of hold-ups. They confessed that the crimes were committed for a thrill. A pair of blood-stained trousers furnished the clue which led to their arrest.

FEWER CANADIANS HELP THEMSELVES THROUGH COLLEGE

Such is Claim of Mr. K. B.
Conn, Director of Alumni
Bureau of Appointments

OPPORTUNITIES OFFERED

Bureau is at Service of All Students Desiring Work
Both Male and Female

"There are fewer students helping to put themselves through college here in Canada than in the States," stated Mr. K. B. Conn, director of the Alumni Bureau of Appointments, when interviewed by "The Varsity." However, to those who wish part time employment during the academic year or at Christmas or in the summer holidays, the Bureau offers a chance to secure such a position. Applicants are asked to fill out a form on which are listed a dozen or more different types of jobs. It is interesting to note that there is a marked difference between the list for men and that for women. The former offers a more varied choice. Is man's field of activity still wider than women's?

For women applicants there are such jobs as French and Spanish translation, tutoring, store clerking and stenography; for men such jobs as janitors' work, playing in an orchestra, ushering and automobile driving. Applicants are asked to state their preferences, experience and hours when they will be free to do such work, as well as any job which they are capable of doing but which is not included in the list. The Bureau then undertakes to put the applicant in touch with a job if a call comes through for "Help" in the type of work for which he has applied. This is done free of charge. The records show more men applying for part-time work than women.

Last summer the Bureau placed over five hundred students in summer employment.

COSTUME DEPARTMENT ALWAYS KEPT BUSY

Hart House Theatre Supplies
Costumes All Over
Continent

The Hart House Theatre costume department is kept busy all year round even though there are no official plays scheduled for nine months of the year. At present not only do they costume most of the student productions in Hart House and elsewhere, but they also supply many costumes for outside productions.

The costumes used in "Pickwick", played recently at the Empire, were worked out by the local costume room under the direction of Mr. M. Keay. At present they are also working on costumes to be sent as far west as Victoria, B.C., while many costumes are sent to Quebec for the annual folk song festival.

Masquerade and fancy dress balls also make use of many costumes. One of the busiest weeks of the year is that just preceding the Hart House Masquerade, for which hundreds of costumes are sent out.

During the recent meeting of international freighters at Turin, Italy, a specially constructed motion picture theatre was set on fire and the blaze extinguished by firemen from many countries.

URGES OFFICIAL ANALYSIS OF WESTERN RACIAL STOCK

Too Rapid an Influx of Mixed Settlers May Be Dangerous
States Professor Fay

"It would be a valuable thing if an official analysis were to be made at Ottawa of the racial stocks in Western Canada," was the opinion of Prof. Fay, when asked by "The Varsity" to comment on the statements made by Prof. Hamilton in his talk at the Commerce Club last Friday.

In the West, Prof. Fay pointed out, a small proportion of immigrants is no handicap, but a too large number of foreign peoples would expose the children of Canadian parents to influences which would prohibit them building up their own life and education.

Canada is faced with two alternatives, either to slowly build up her population with French and English stock or, by a quicker method, to allow immigration to become so great that it would possibly prove destructive to the Canadian type. "The United States has a definite policy in this respect," Prof. Fay concluded, "while Canada has not. We then, by necessity, get what the United States turns away."

"Tea is never served at the executive meetings of the U.C. Literary and Athletic Society, although refreshments are always served at open meetings of the society; in fact the crowd is always swelled to a great extent during the latter stages of the meetings, as the refreshment and social hour draws nearer," said A. A. Wood, president of 2nd year U.C. and one of the counsellors of U.C. Literary and Athletic Society, interviewed by "The Varsity."

"Unlike the Engineering Society, in our executive meetings where the bulk of the business is done, the practice of serving tea has never been suggested," stated Mr. Wood.

A. H. Reid, member of the Cabinet, Dental Students' Parliament, stated that tea had never been served at executive meetings, since so many members practice in the infirmary that it is almost impossible to get a full attendance at executive meetings and only bare business is discussed.

Dean Howe of the Faculty of Forestry stated that since executive meetings of the Forestry Society are held informally, tea is never served.

H. R. Ziegler, president of the Medical Society, could not be reached by "The Varsity" last evening, but J. S. Hawkins, president of 6th year, said that to the best of his knowledge refreshments were never served at meetings of the Medical Society.

At Grinnell, soon after the first week of school, the freshmen and sophomores have their annual class scrap. It consists of an all night fight, the freshmen chasing the sophomores, and finally a rush of single combats in which the sophomore is usually one against three freshmen.

RABBI F. M. ISSERMAN SPEAKS ON RELATION OF GREAT RELIGIONS

Judaism and Christianity Discussed at Meeting at

NAPOLEON FREED JEWS

Christianity Gained Supremacy in the Roman Empire

"The attitude of Christianity towards the Jews has always been a biased one," said Rabbi Isserman at the S.C.M. open forum at Wymilwood in his historical sketch of the relationships between Judaism and Christianity.

"Christianity is a daughter of Judaism and from the Jewish point of view, Christian societies compromised in order to sell Judaism to the pagan world. In time the break became definite and Christianity and Judaism became rivals for the supremacy in the Roman Empire. Christianity won and much of the Christian literature arose in this period of strife. The historic picture of the Jew written at this time is not accurate. The Pharisee was not the harsh, letter-of-the-law man which the New Testament would make one believe.

Throughout the ages of cruel persecution by Christians, the Jewish people made no protest. The modern period for the Jew came with Napoleon, who struck off the shackles and gave Jews complete civic equality. Judaism to-day has few creeds, few dogmas. There are forces at work (Continued on page 4)

ROSSETTI A GENIUS BORN OUT OF TIME

Excellent Paper by Miss Ross on Life and Works of Famous Poet and Painter

WIFE GREAT INSPIRATION

"It might almost be said of Rossetti that he was born out of his time," was the opinion of Miss Eleanor Ross in a paper given at the U.C. Women's Literary Society last night. Living in the mid-Victorian era Rossetti showed a strong strain of mediaevalism in both the poetry and his paintings. He had that power of a Gothic workman which sees something which does not exist and makes it into a reality. Thus the predominant note of his poetry is symbolism, while the outstanding feature of his paintings is their vivid colouring. If he had a fault it may have been in trying to combine his two talents, when he might have excelled at one or the other separately.

Rossetti's wife was the inspiration of his best known poem, "The Blessed Damsel" and also his model for his painting of the Blessed Damsel. His grief at her death caused him to write many beautiful poems to her, some of which he buried with her in her coffin. Some years later there were brought forth and published.

In temperament Rossetti had the usual eccentricities of genius. He had a passion for animals which found expression in a private menagerie, including two kangaroos, a zebra, guinea-pigs and peacocks.

MINE AND THINE

On Monday of this week there disappeared from the women's cloak room of the Physics Building a fur coat and a fur neckpiece. That this is merely one of a series of thefts, and that it is so regarded by the authorities is revealed in the report which claims that "steps are being taken to stop this consistent petty stealing."

The loss of a fur coat may be regarded as "petty" by police who are often faced by the theft of valuable jewels or by million dollar mail robberies, but we are sure that such a loss is considered a very great one by a student at college.

The fur coat incident, whatever its importance, is not the only one of the kind which has happened recently at the University. We are told that there is a stock saying in certain down-town districts to the effect that an overcoat can always be procured at Hart House. It is doubtless as a consequence of that persistent rumour that coats frequently vanish from the racks outside the Great Hall and that one man reports the loss of a suit from a near-by residence.

These thefts would seem to be perpetrated by persons outside the University, and we regret that the same cannot be said of all student losses. There are, however, some disappearances which cannot possibly be laid to the charge of any down-town vagabonds, and must therefore be accepted as the work of some of our own number. Among these we class the loss of books, and more especially of notes. Every day we hear tales of vanished books, and in March and April are frequently heard stories of the loss of a year's notes. Even if we discount the time-worn idea of "honour," it is unfortunate that there should exist among University students so little consideration for the rights of others.

Such a state of affairs ought not to be allowed to continue. If it does we may be in danger of losing all sense of distinction between "mine" and "thine." We would suggest, in the first place, a little more care of his personal property on the part of the student. If notes and books and coats were not so easily accessible, it is obvious that they could not be so easily removed. But fur coats cannot be worn in laboratories nor can volumes of history be taken to lunch. In the second place, therefore, we would suggest that the University provide an adequate supply of lockers in all buildings. At the present time very few of the buildings on our campus boast lockers, and everywhere the demand is greatly in excess of the supply. It seems to us only reasonable that means for the safeguarding of personal possessions should be furnished.

If we are met here, as elsewhere, by the usual objection—"no money—we might reply that perhaps students would be satisfied with the old flagpole, or with fewer pictures in their class-rooms, or even with a rusty iron fence at the north of the back campus, if only they could go to lectures and labs confident that their belongings were in unassailable security.

FRATERNITY ROBBED FOR THE FIFTH TIME

Thieves Effect Unnoticed Entrance and Get Away Safely

Special to "The Varsity"

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 29.—While members of the Triangle Fraternity, Ohio State University, 63 Thirteenth Avenue, were soundly sleeping on the third floor of their house, thieves early this morning entered the second floor and took approximately $100, a suit, three kodaks, four watches, three slide rules, a brief case, a set of tools, and numerous small articles.

The robbery was discovered this morning at 7 o'clock by Charles W. Allen, Engr-4. Allen found drawers open in the bureau of the rooms on the second floor. Believing at first that it was a prank of some student, he returned upstairs.

The thieves disturbed nothing on the first floor, but instead went direct to the second, where all the valuables of the fraternity members were kept. How they gained entrance is not known. Working noiselessly they picked over the loot, taking only such things as were of value. A brief case taken was emptied of its books. A fraternity pin was taken off the stolen suit and left behind.

The only clue the police have is the possibility of checking up on the watches and other articles that may be disposed of by the thieves.

This is the fifth time that the Triangle Fraternity has been robbed. The most recent robbery was two years ago.

Sketch Classes

The series of sketch classes arranged by the Sketch Committee have now become a recognized feature of Hart House, the first classes having been given four years ago and continued every year since that time. Last winter the members consisted of at least twenty to twenty-five men from all faculties and colleges who were interested in sketch work. It is to be hoped that the men in the older years and those who have just come to the University who are interested in such a hobby will take the opportunity to attend the classes this year.

It has been the policy of the Committee to secure a good artist to conduct the classes, and this year again they have been fortunate enough to secure Mr. Haines for this purpose. It is of interest to note that Mr. Haines, who was formerly President of the Ontario Society of Artists, is now the Director of the Art Gallery of Toronto.

The classes take place on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Sketch Room at Hart House, and the first will be held on 1st November. Most of the work of the classes is done from models. During the second half of February an exhibition of amateur work is held in the Sketch Room and it is expected that some of the work of the members of the sketch classes will be exhibited. All those who are interested should apply at the Warden's Office for further information.

Professor Gilson to Speak on Philosophy of Bacon

Professor Etienne Gilson, of the Department of Mediaeval Philosophy of the Sorbonne, will visit St. Michael's College to deliver the third of his annual series of public lectures sponsored by the Department of Philosophy of that college. His subject this year is "The Philosophy of Roger Bacon."

The lectures will be given on Thursday and Friday of this week at 11 a.m. in the library at 10 Elmley Place.

On Thursday evening Dr. Gilson will read a paper to the Philosophical Club of St. Michael's on "The True Meaning of Mediaeval Realism."

Miss Modernity

The Art Moderne is a term that may be used to refer to that urge within many of us at the present time to break away from tradition and to think and express ourselves in a novel way. The phrase will, doubtless, call up a somewhat different mental image in the mind of each undergraduate. Some of us will think of a conglomeration of geometrical figures plastered with a riot of colour; others will imagine chairs fashioned out of packing boxes, luxurious legless beds "after the modern French manner," interesting and unusual lighting effects; while still others will, perhaps, conjure up visions of a modern young woman—after the heart of John Held Jr.—with very much of a boyish bob, her stockings rolled just above the knee (all deference to the painted leg of recent fashion), and puffing a king's size cigarette through an equally long holder. All of these, I say, are but manifestations of an urge to be different. Yet behind this superficial desire for novelty is a half-dormant consciousness that we can express, that we somehow must express the age in which we are living.

It is not necessary to point out to those at this university that art has been man's medium of expression since time immemorial; nor to emphasize that it is, indeed, art which at once elevates man above the other animals. Then, by the very nature of things, it is not surprising that we should express our age through the medium of art. But lest some erudite reader smile at what he may consider naive audacity on my part in stating that this modern movement is something approaching an urge, might I remind him that art has always been restricted to the few; that although each man possesses something of an artistic nature,—the "something" quantity grades upwards all the way from a relative zero; and in like proportion will be each man's urge.

This movement which we may call modernism is not one that commenced only yesterday, but dates back to the latter part of the nineteenth century when a few bold spirits in Europe, dissatisfied with the ornate frills long dictated by fashion, completely revolted. Violent deeds were perpetrated in the name of art, it is true, as is the case in all revolts. But out of these evolved new ideas which gripped Europe and spread to America; so that, now, we in Canada are obliged to recognize, whether we like to or not, that we too are involved in this movement.

To elaborate upon the part played by modernism in such departments of architecture, music and the drama; furniture and manufactured articles generally, would require many articles of this length. But one of the interesting developments in this connection is to be seen in the adoption of modernism by that commercial giant, Advertising. If, then, we of this university wish truly to be as Professor Hamilton of the University of Berlin stated we were considered—"the intellectual and cultural centre of Canada"—we should, I think, have some intelligent understanding of the various ramifications of modern art. It is with this in mind that I purpose to write subsequent articles for these columns dealing with the various phases of modernism from the standpoint of life both in Canada and abroad.

VICTORIA DEFEATS SENIOR U.C. 7-5

Scarlet and Gold Emerge Victors After a Hard Struggle

VAUGHAN STARS

Victoria College defeated the Sr. U.C. Mulock Cup team yesterday afternoon in a gruelling contest, the score being 7 to 5. For Vic, Vaughan and Addison turned in a very good game, while McGill was outstanding on the U.C. team.

Vaughan opened the scoring in the first quarter by kicking for a rouge. In the second quarter Vic gained 5 points when Wetzer carried the ball across for a touch, leaving the score at half-time 6 to 0 for Vic. In the third quarter Vaughan kicked for another point for the Scarlet and Gold. McGill scored for U.C. in the final quarter by carrying the ball for 25 yards to cross the line for a touch, leaving the final score 7 to 5.

CHEATERS MORE INCLINED TO ACT THAN TO THINK

Special to "The Varsity" Hamilton, N.Y.—Unknown to themselves, thirty cheaters at Colgate University were recently the subjects of a study by Professor H. C. Brownell of that school to determine the mental and emotional traits of college men who cheat at examinations.

The investigation showed that eighty per cent of the group were more emotionally unstable than the campus average, and more than half were below the campus average in intelligence. Professor Brownell classified the majority of his subjects as "good mixers who were more inclined toward activity than thinking."

Special to "The Varsity" Montreal, Que.—McGill University co-eds were given a series of talks on football last week by A. A. Burridge, athletic director of McGill. The talks were arranged by Miss Jessie Herriot, women's physical director, who said she considered the women of the school should understand the game in order to support it enthusiastically.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The sternest kind of preparation is the order of the day in the McGill camp. Their heavy preparation may bear fruit in a victory against the Tricolour in Kingston on Saturday. A victory for the Red team will put the Blue in place with a possible chance of knocking up the group. If the Tricolour squad of football players perform as well against McGill as they did in the second half of the set-to in Toronto last week-end they will decide the College honours before Varsity visits Montreal.

A thing that went quite unnoticed in the College game on Saturday was the great battle put up at the centre position between Johnnie Keith and Nagel. These two lads, both outstanding snap backs, fought each other tooth and nail, and "Johnnie" certainly did not come out at the rotten end of the stick. Young Johnnie kept his titland well against the veteran Nagel, and that same Keith was right in there all the time breaking up play after play. While his showing at the Queen's game was not as spectacular as his work at the McGill-Varsity meet, he kept the cagey Nagel from doing damage, and that in itself is a big man sized job.

The Orphans have still an outside chance to gain the section honours. If the Jimmie Douglas squad defeats the Kitchener-Waterloo twelve and the Sarnia team does the same to the Beer Town boys, there will be a triple tie in the group. That is by no means an impossibility. The Tunnel Town Tommies nearly took the measure of the K squad, while the Blues were not far from doing that same trick.

Saturday at the Stadium will be a big day for the Orphans. With a whole lot to gain and nothing to lose, the Ontario Union team will put up a pretty battle.

The Intercollegiate Harrier Meet, while not an affair that attracts the crowds, has its many devotees, and the contest put forth at the Kingston stamping ground on Saturday next will provide plenty of clever class and smart competition. Varsity has won that meet every year since 1925, but they may be upset this year by the new men in competition from McGill.

McGill has been the cock of the Intercollegiate soccer world for the past four years, but their reign is perilously near an end this season. The Cadets of the Royal Military College tied the McGill squad two weeks ago 1 to 1, while Varsity defeated the Cadets 3 to 2 and were by far the better team. Now if the blue jerseys can hold McGill to a scoreless draw or beat them they will take the trophy to the prize case at Hart House. The winner of the Intercollegiate soccer is decided by the number of goals scored on the round, and Varsity has an advantage there now.

The Varsity Junior squad, while defeated last Saturday by the McMaster team, is not out of the running yet by a long shot. They play the Guelph Aggies to-day at Guelph and a win will put them on an even footing with the Macs, while a defeat will mean elimination, a thing that has not fallen to the lot of the Junior squad for many a moon.

The half-time skit put on by the School hopefuls stole the thunder of the Queen's rosters. They had the preparations laid for exactly the same farce to be presented at the McGill-Queen's game, and now the Tricolour lads are in a tough place trying to think up a new one.

McGILL CHANGES PLAN OF UNIVERSITY YEAR BOOK

Special to "The Varsity" Montreal, Que.—The McGill Annual, for the past thirty-one years produced by the Junior year, and the feature of which has been the individual pictures and biographies of all Juniors which the book contained, will henceforth be a University year book with the pictures and histories of the Juniors replaced by those of the Seniors, as a result of a motion moved and adopted at the annual meeting of the Students' Society held in the Union Ball-room.

The idea of thus changing the character of the Annual has been mooted for some years. This year, T. H. Harris, editor-in-chief of last year's Annual, laid the suggestion before the Students' Council, which brought it before the Society meeting. In speaking to the students, the sponsor of the idea pointed out the advantages of such a change. In the first place, he pointed out, the book would be a more complete record of the activities of those students whose pictures appear. As at present constituted, Juniors have to hand in biographies at the beginning of their Junior year, so that they are able to include the activities of but two years at college, whereas under the new system the biography would represent three years of college activity.

There will not be any open season this year for pleasant shooting, according to the department of game and fisheries.

SQUASH ENTHUSIASTS USE THE HART HOUSE COURTS TO CAPACITY

Prince's Sport Becoming More Popular with Students Annually

TWO TOURNAMENTS HELD Coventry Cup Awarded for Individual Play Every Year

"No part of Hart House is the scene of greater, more continuous activity than the squash courts; the Great Hall has its interludes; the gym floors are often deserted, but there is always someone playing on the squash courts." Such was the statement of Mr. Fennell, chairman of the Squash Committee, in an interview with "The Varsity."

There are two tournaments each year: the Interfaculty Tournament and the Individual Tournament. The Interfaculty Tournament, for which the Douglas Jennings' Cup is presented, begins in December and concludes in February. Each college enters a team, composed of its two highest ranking members on the squash board. Last year the coveted trophy was won by the Faculty of Medicine. The Individual Tournament is started upon the conclusion of the Interfaculty Tournament. D. D. Gunn of Trinity, champion squash player for 1927-1928, was awarded the A. F. Coventry Cup.

In the opinion of Mr. Fennell, squash is steadily becoming more popular. Every year there are more enthusiasts. There are approximately three or four hundred students now using the courts. Almost every half-hour period, from 10 a.m. until 11 p.m., is taken; this means that about one hundred and fifty students use the courts daily. The use of the courts is not confined solely to the undergraduate; many graduates and members of the staff seek recreation there.

"The present notice board for squash is not up-to-date," stated Mr. Fennell. The new challenge board holds about one hundred names. Mr. Fennell said that it was a little early for the squash season and that many now engaged in outdoor sports would during the winter turn their attention to the game.

The students playing squash are well representative of all the faculties. Every faculty, with the exception of the very smallest, such as Forestry, have a goodly number of squash enthusiasts.

VARSITY JUNIORS TO MEET O.A.C. TO-DAY

Game This Afternoon Will Decide Blue and White Squad's Chance for Play-off

LIVELY TUSSELE PROMISED

Varsity Juniors play their final group game this afternoon with O.A.C. at the latter's home grounds. After their surprising and unexpected defeat at the hands of McMaster last week, it is imperative that the Blue and White win this game. A loss will eliminate them, while a win will place them in a tie for first place with McMaster necessitating a play-off.

In the game with McMaster the tackling of the Juniors was not up to the mark, and their plunging didn't prove much of a ground-gainer. The Blue and White were caught napping last Saturday, but this won't happen again.

Realizing that on the issue of today's game depends whether or not they will be given an opportunity to again meet and take their revenge on McMaster, and realizing that a defeat will spell elimination, there is no doubt but that the Varsity warriors will show everything they have. Another factor bound to stimulate the Blue and White fighting spirit is that an earned prestige is at stake—this squad has been successful in holding first position in this group for the past number of years, and will therefore put forth every effort to retain their former record.

Varsity will undoubtedly win this afternoon and, their lesson learned, will make fewer mistakes than they would have otherwise.

Fighting with their backs to the wall and led on by their two good backfielders, Smith and Richardson, it would not be surprising to see the Blue and White pull themselves together and down the strong McMaster team for the group honours.

At the University of Nebraska, ten thousand pieces of mail arrive daily, while only five thousand pieces of mail are mailed out.

NATIVE INTELLIGENCE PLAYS LITTLE PART

In Success or Failure of College Students is Find of Colgate University Test

Special to "The Varsity"
Boston, Mass.—Native intelligence plays very little part in the success or failure of men in college, according to recent tests made by the Colgate University psychological laboratory. After 35,000 hours of investigation, furthermore, the conclusion was reached that it is the introvert who makes the greatest success of college undergraduate life. "The introvert is an easy blusher. He has a clever pen but an awkward tongue. He is extremely conscientious, has a tendency to worry, and likes detail work." So, it is thought by the "Amherst Student," hundreds of the entering class, fresh out of preparatory schools, will rush to a mirror to see if, when properly embarrassed by an obliging room-mate, they are able to blush.

Further probable results among entering freshmen are graphically outlined by the paper. Many men, it writes, will cultivate the stuttering habit as the epitome of awkwardness in speech. Deep lines of worry will deface the noble brows whereon no blemish rested but a day ago. Men will write rows of figures just to add them, will make neat entries in ledgers or pursue whatever other minute work their ingenuity may devise. Any good scholarship will undoubtedly have made its mark in college.

Freshmen, however, need not worry too much over the discoveries made by these laboratory tests, the "Student" hastens to assure; for practical advice to the incoming members of the college has slight connection with these theories. Consistent work, beginning immediately with the first week of study, will preclude the necessity of vocal impediments, and, the writer adds, sullen non-blushers may even challenge psychology by remaining in college the four years.

John Millington Singe Interested In Modest Blushing Biographers

Preparations for graduation are now being made by the Senior Year. We are not so bold as to hazard the statement that they are studying, but at least they are writing their Toronto biographies, with appropriate brevity and blushes, in thirty-five words and a spirit of modesty. And the Canadian Saronyes are now busy flashing the faces that moved a thousand examiners.

And every little boy and gal That escaped the last few Mays alive Has had a picture done that looks—simply terrible

Or one that makes them smile and thrive. The truth and nothing but, is a tough motto for photographers and newspapers: everyone is agreed that it should be told about somebody else.

John Millington Singe is taking a keen interest in the business even though he is only a first year monkey. He insisted on reading our biography form and when he saw how the letter quikeness he rushed off to join all the groups sponsored by Mr. Moore and Mr. Mackenzie so that he will have something to say of himself in three years, besides: "J. M. Singe, A.B. Commerce and Finance (1); Nothing (1); Grappa Lotta Do (2); S.A.C. rep. (3); Hall Committee (3); Historical Club (3); Hockey (3); Rugby (4); House Committee (4); Vice-pres. of year (4)." Well, we started to read out the specimen biographies:

ALBERT JAMES WEBB, Listowell, Ont. Politics and Law; U. of T. Liberal Club; Hart House Debates; North House; honours.

"Not bad for Albert James," he remarked. "You see he's in Politics and Law, and when people are willing to go that far they inevitably end in the Liberal Club and finally they sink to Hart House debates. It's the first downward step that counts. But how did he get honours? It must have been the influence of a good woman." J. Millington growled: he has already developed a fierce sort of misogynism. "Be patient, John Millington," we advised. "Wait till you get in your second year and all things shall be added unto you." We passed on to the next biography.

MARY LOUISE BARKER (A.O.P.), Hamilton, Ontario. Householder Science; Queen's Hall; Interests—music, needlework.

"A coy maiden this, her only interests are music and needlework," we remarked. A gust of sardonic laughter came from John Millington. "You young cynic!" he rebuked him, "how dare you disbelieve Mary Louise Barker from Hamilton? Devotion to needlework is characteristic of Queen's. In fact they hold an exhibition of their work every spring." But then Hartford, Conn.—Two boys who confessed that movies were their inspiration in an attempted hold-up were sentenced to stay away from theatres for six months.

Registration figures at the University of Western Ontario for 1928-29 total 1,060, an increase of 10 per cent over the total registration last year.

we made a horrible discovery. The cynic Singe triumphed. For we found that there is no Alpha Omega Pi society! We hastily changed the subject, our faith blasted in young ladies from Hamilton, interests music and needlework. We came to:

CHARLES ALEXANDER BLACK (Pi Delta Tau), Winnipeg, Man. General course; Varsity staff, Associate Editor IV; U.C. Rugby (1); Hockey (1, 2); O.R.F.U. Seniors (2, 3, 4); Historical Club; Senior Class President.

"Here's a hot potato for you," we said to J.M., "a real big shot. How did he ever get on so many things?"

John Millington did not answer me; he was busy looking up the address of Pi Delta Tau. The monkey certainly is a terrible climber. We could understand Charles Alexander's athletics. People often play both rugby and hockey together. We could understand "General Course" and Pi Delta Tau and Historical Club; those all fitted in. Senior class president naturally followed. But why did he go on "The Varsity" staff and play rugby at the same time? "This must be another original combination of athlete and journalist—" Bearcat Barker, of the four horsed men (16 to 4)," we concluded.

The next biography was that of Edward Moss. Edward came all the way from Vancouver to study Electrical Engineering, so we gave him up and went on to:

JANE BINGHAM, Napanee, Ont. Moderns; Annesley Hall; Music Club (3, 4); Programme Comm; Wymilwood; S.C.M.

"Now I ask you confidently, isn't that a dear little girl from Victoria?" We enthused to the similar, "She's just perfect, up to and including the S.C.M."

J. M. Singe was disgusted. He growled his intimation that he would proceed to write a really accurate biography of Jane. He bit his pencil and began, and by the time he finished, ears must have been burning in the house of Bingham. "We give it to you for what it's worth. The remarks in brackets are those of J.M.S."

Moderns [lucky to get through—took the easiest options]. Annesley Hall [reported to Asga, fined and gated twelve times (1, 2, 3, 4)]. Music Club (3, 4) [Influence! Her father's piano tuner!] S.C.M. [Huh! What about the time she and Bryden held hands on the '29 Hike]. Wymilwood [Bull! Why didn't she tell about the time she went with Dunc. Smith to The Red Mill when she signed her card that she was going to prayer meeting with Glover Howe?]

Another good man has gone Strachey.

REBELLIOUS STUDENTS ARE GIVEN DISMISSAL

Special to "The Varsity"
Lawrence, Kansas, Oct. 29.—Five boys and four girls have been dismissed from Haskell Indian Institute as a result of a series of minor rebellions, it was announced. The girls who were dismissed were the ringleaders among a group of six who climbed out of the dormitory window by a rope made of sheets and left the reservation. The girls were found in Oklahoma.

The boys, ranging in age from 15 to 17 years, were discharged for starting a "war." They persisted in throwing rocks at houses in the neighbourhood and keeping the community awake with their yells, according to the complaints.

ent. Plato described its position and how one could cross the present Atlantic ocean by a series of islands, eventually reaching North America. Evidence has shown that the Azores Islands are the peaks of a mountain range which extended the length of the lost continent. That a high standard of civilization existed at this time is shown by stories of great race courses on the continent, also showing that the horse had been domesticated at an early age.

Civilization of the eastern and western hemispheres has shown remarkable similarities. These civilizations have been traced back to this ancient continent. Conclusive evidence has shown that the British Isles, Sicily and the Sahara desert were previously under water and have since come to the surface.

in the Jewish religion to-day which are similar to modernism in Christianity. Christianity and Judaism have much in common, and yet I do not believe that Christians should become Jews or Jews become Christians. There should not be animosity between them, but each should recognize how fine is the other's spiritual platform. Differences lend variety to life—but there is a great common heritage and causes in which all religious people are invited.

There was rapt attention from a large audience while the Rabbi spoke, and at the conclusion of the forum he ably handled the questions which were asked.

"Jews are opposed to intermarriage with Christians," he explained, "because they are a minority and it would mean in one or two generations the extinction of the race."

DIRECTOR OF WOMEN WILL BE FORCED TO RESORT TO AIR

Takes Daily Triangular Trip in Performing Gymnastic Duties

SPACE NOW INADEQUATE

Mrs. Kirkwood Feels Need of Gymnasium for Girls

"I'll soon have to resort to an airplane in order to run by schedule time," said Miss Coventry, Physical Directress of Women Students, when interviewed by "The Varsity" with regard to the question of a Women's Building. At present, the gymnastic accommodation is so woefully inadequate that Miss Coventry is forced to undertake a daily triangular trip—Lillian Massey, 81 St. George St., and O.C.E.—to conduct her various classes. At the Lillian Massey the gym is in constant use from eight o'clock in the morning till six at night.

In Arts alone there are one hundred and eighty women students enrolled in gymnastic classes. The first year compulsory students are so many in number that they have had to be divided into fourteen groups. In addition to these, there are the students taking the four year diploma course, those in Occupational Therapy taking a two year course, and others from Dentistry and the various Science courses who are taking gym work. Then there are the various girls' basketball teams which occupy the gym every night from five to six. All these various classes meet in the one and only room allotted to gymnastics.

At 81 St. George St. a room which is only capable of accommodating ten at the most, is set aside for corrective exercises only.

Mrs. Kirkwood, Dean of University College women, when approached by "The Varsity" felt with Miss Coventry that the most pressing need of the women students is for a gymnasium. "Adequate accommodation for social activities is incidental to the need for gymnastic accommodation," was Mrs. Kirkwood's statement in this regard. The lack is one which affects the women.

Debate Causes No Sensation But Peculiar Things Are Said

(G. M.-W.)

Faintly reminiscent of the mad-hatter's famous tea-party, last night's debate on the press inclined more to the grotesque than to the sensational. Twenty speakers rambled all around the motion "That in the opinion of this house the modern press has a demoralizing influence on society," but without exception these speakers found it impossible to discover in the subject as stated anything in which they could fasten their teeth.

Lionel Gelber, U.C., began the hammer-like attack on the press. He found nothing good in it. It was run by "greedy plutocrats," it was a "juggernaut," "subtly warping and distorting public opinion," was indeed but "a commodity like onions." He was evidently trying to seem serious.

An introductory speech from the "noes," and then G. M. Wrong, ex-professor of History, rose to be greeted with prolonged cheers. The house was warming up. Mr. Wrong proceeded to teach the house a lesson much as he used to do when a professor in the University. He diluted the newspapers, especially the personal columns. "Often I have been extremely

OPPOSITION LEADER PLANS TO HARASS LIBERAL MEETING

GEORGE BROWN ONLY GRIT
"Lives of Great Canadians" Causes Controversy in House

Hon. W. E. N. Sinclair, Leader of the Opposition in the Provincial House, is to address the University Liberal Club to-night. The announcement of the publication of a new history book for use in Ontario schools, entitled "Lives of Great Canadians," has occasioned considerable controversy in the House. Mr. Sinclair has charged the government with distributing party propaganda through this book, on the ground that it does not mention Sir Wilfrid Laurier or Sir Oliver Mowat. Geo. Brown, it is said, is the only Grit whose name appears on these pages.

Mr. Sinclair succeeded Wellington Hay as Leader of the Opposition some three years ago. A graduate of the University of Toronto, he sits for South Ontario. He is a lawyer by profession, and practices at Oshawa.

It is expected that he will explain the current political situation in the Province to the Liberal Club. Students of current events from the Liberal viewpoint are invited to attend the meeting.

annoyed at certain little incidents in which I have had a part being reported in the press." Local editorial writers now received attention. "For sheer, down-right, gross ignorance give me the utterances on the editorial pages of some of our down-town papers." A moral from the life of Abraham Lincoln and a final consoling remark after all he did not despair of the press, and the professor sat down.

An ex-minister of the gospel followed the ex-professor of History, when Mr. R. E. Knowles arose. Even as the professor had taught, so the preacher preached. He called the speaker "Mr. Moderator," but the house was pleased to agree with his explanation. "I have for many years been a Presbyterian, and a good one—except in doctrine and conduct." Sensationalism was essential alike to press and preacher, insipidity above all things unforgivable. Glowing words in praise of the Bible, a compliment on the intellect of the house, a little joke, and the speaker had concluded. The most prolonged cheering of the evening filled in some few minutes until a speaker appeared from the floor of

COLD TUB PENDING

Two Others Escape as Student
Declines to Soak
Sweater

"Ah, fellows, lemme! Your twisting my shoulder! Ouch your hurting my back!" "Aight as well let him walk." Such cries came from a group of University students returning with their intended victim to the University College residence late last night.

Familiar for years with the students' rough handling of one another, the University constable who was near by took no action while a whimpering youngster was marched into 73 St. George Street between tall broad-shouldered University men in red blazers, to the accompaniment of shouts, "Take him in and tub him!" "Here's the other chap's hat when he comes for it!" "Get the sticks ready." And from one in a white and blue sweater the excited alibi, "I would have got the other, but two of them came at me and I didn't want to handle them with this sweater on!"

However, when the police realized that it was a city lad on Hallowe'en mischief bent, he hesitated not at all, but, disregarding the doorman's "They're just going to frighten him," he marched in his turn through the doors of 73 St. George Street and shortly reappeared with the frightened boy, whom he escorted to safety beyond the limits of the University district.

SOME DEFENDERS SHOULD BE SILENT

Sir Robert Holds 'Dead Values' to be Vulnerable Points in Religion

EDUCATED TO BE TOLERANT

"Many people defend religion as against science who would much better have left it alone," asserted Sir Robert Falconer to a large crowd of men students in Hart House Lecture Room yesterday afternoon. "People are bothered about the supposed conflict between science and religion who ought not to be. Discussion of these things is proper to university students: questions are literally thrust upon them which others know nothing about."

Sir Robert declared that the points which science found vulnerable in the Christian religion were the "dead values," non-essentials to vital religion. There were fundamental convictions of Christianity and the numerous existing varieties were a weakness and a stumbling block. Nevertheless, educated people must be careful in tearing away these dead values lest something essential be torn away inadvertently. Tolerance and patience were requisites of the educated man.

"The assumption of science is that the human mind can acquire knowledge."

WHISPERING MEN ANNOY

Though the majority of women in University of Toronto apparently favour co-education, male opinion is less willing to approve the system of mixed classes. A number of men prominent in University affairs expressed preference for separate educational institutions.

The president of the Medical Society, Ralph Ziegler, is, he says, most gallant in all associations with the fair sex. Nevertheless, he believes they should be educated in women's colleges, not with men. According to Mr. Ziegler, men and women have different purposes in life, and so should receive different training.

Similarly, Bill Darling, ex-Royal Military College football star, now a junior at S.E.S., is of the opinion that both men and women receive a more thorough education in non-co-educational colleges.

UNIQUE MASQUERADE AT IDAHO UNIVERSITY

Special to "The Varsity"
At the University of Idaho, a co-ed prom masquerade ball is held annually. It is patterned on the Eleusinian Mysteries of Ancient Rome for no men are admitted. This year's regulations have been posted.

The ball may be attended by women only. Girls dressed as men take their "dates," hold doors open, carry compacts and combs, fill out programmes, and in general show "how it should be done." Since the first "prom" only one man has sneaked past the doorkeepers, according to the records, accomplishing it by playing in the orchestra.

PURE INFLUENCE OF PRESS UPHELD AT HART HOUSE DEBATE

STUDENTS' DIRECTORIES

Students' directories will be available for students towards the latter part of next week, stated Mr. Fennell of the Registrar's Office, to "The Varsity." This year 6,000 copies, of approximately 175 pages each, are being published. These will be sent to the registrars of the various colleges and to the secretaries of the faculties from which points they can be secured by the students and the members of the faculty.

HART HOUSE SUFFERS MAJORITY OF THEFTS OVERCOATS MISSING

FEMININE VICTIMS INDIGNANT

No Outcry from Women's Union
But General Opinion is for Greater Care

"There has not been the slightest suspicion that students have been responsible for thefts at any time," stated J. D. Smart of Knox College, interviewed by "The Varsity" regarding petty thieving in that college. "A suit belonging to one of the students and left in the common room by a city firm of cleaners disappeared for a time," continued Mr. Smart, "although it was subsequently found, I believe. Also, some time ago a few coats that disappeared were found in downtown second-hand stores, but there has been little or no petty thieving of late."

A prominent member of the house committee at one of the University Residences stated that there had been no cases of thieving brought to his notice in recent years. General opinion amongst undergraduates, as revealed to "The Varsity," is that the depredations are committed by outsiders.

At Hart House the following notice appears at all coat racks: "Several overcoats having been reported missing, members are reminded that there is a cloak room adjoining the shop where coats can be left." On the lost and found bulletin board there are eleven coats reported missing, as well as a multitude of smaller articles. The Warden declined to make any statement other than that the fact remained that coats were missing, although he was quite certain that thieving was done by downtown vagabonds.

Any women questioned as to their opinion of the seriousness of "petty thieving," whether in the high-ways or the by-ways of the University, thought that some fairly drastic measures should be taken to curb any further outbreak of the apparently spreading disease. "I can understand the authorities' attitude in wanting little publicity over the matter," said one of the victims of a recent theft, "but if the other cloak rooms are all to be within as easy reach of the public, students had better know about the danger of leaving their valuables in their proper place. Or is some of the students are 'kleptomaniac-ish' perhaps a little publicity will dampen their ardour."

Nothing more serious than the temporary inconvenience of the disappearance of an odd car ticket or some loose change is reported from the smaller colleges. Miss Barber at the U.C. Women's Union had heard no complaint of missing articles this year.

97-90 is Vote When Newspapers
Found Not Guilty
On Charge

L. M. GELBER LEADS

Professor G. M. Wrong and R. E.
Knowles Leaders For Opposing Sides

Nearly two hundred interested students crowded the Lecture Room of Hart House last night to hear the first debate of the season, and defeated, by a vote of 97 to 90, the motion, "Resolved that in the opinion of this House the modern press has a demoralizing influence on society."

The leading speakers of the evening were Prof. G. M. Wrong for the affirmative, and R. E. Knowles of the Star Weekly for the negative, who spoke third and fourth respectively. Lionel M. Gelber, U.C., moved the question, and was followed by G. O. Murrell-Wright, Trinity, for the noes.

After the first four speeches, many left the house at intervals until at the end barely a hundred remained. Those leaving before the end were permitted to vote by ballot. The remainder passed through division doors and were counted by the tellers at the close of the debate.

Undergraduate speakers from the floor of the house included Messrs. B. D. Beamish, J. C. Clough, A. Arrell, H. C. Dell, K. R. Wilson, W. H. Martin, T. J. Keenan, J. H. Gringorten, L. G. Golden, C. L. M. Douglas, V. Bladen, M. Brown, E. M. Gundy, G. M. Wilton, V. W. Bleakley and H. L. Wolfson.

The tellers were: J. H. Gringorten, W. M. Martin, R. W. Finlayson and T. V. Kennedy. Professor N. A. Mackenzie acted as speaker and D. D. Gunn as clerk of the house.

NOVEL WINS OVER DRAMA LORETTO COLLEGE DEBATE

Literary Debate Ends in Draw Necessitating Decision of Judges

That the novel is a more powerful agent than the drama for arousing emotion, was decided at the first open house debate of Loretto College Society. "The difference between the novel and the drama is as music written and music played," said Miss Agnes O'Dea, speaking in defence of the drama. The play within the play in "Hamlet" was used as an example of the power of the drama. "The novelist was able to portray nature unrestricted by the limits of the stage," contended the winners of the debate.

The speakers on the paper were: For the Novel, Miss Dorothy Smith, Miss Ruth Treacy; for the Drama, Miss Gertrude Wilson and Miss Agnes O'Dea.

When the vote of the house was taken there was a draw and the decision of judges had to be used to decide the issue.

SWIMMING CLUB TO MEET POOR TURN-OUT THIS YEAR

A meeting of the Swimming Club will be held some time next week to arrange a date for the Interfaculty Swimming Meet. With this event only a month away, the turn-out of swimmers hasn't been exactly encouraging. Since the entries this year will consist almost entirely of new men, swimmers should turn out to the practices held weekly in Hart House pool. Practices for the remainder of this week will be held on Friday night at 6 o'clock and Saturday at noon.

A SET OF DANIELS

One hundred and eighty-seven people who had not received invitations to a Hallow 'e'en party assembled in Hart House last night and decided that the modern press does not exert a demoralising influence on society. With the gravity of this decision we are not immediately concerned: in all probability, if the motion condemning the press had been passed by the legislators, the presses would not have been stopped all at once but would have managed a staggering sort of progress for a time at least. We wish to comment here upon the discussion which prompted the vote.

This discussion on the part of the undergraduate participants was characterized by a general vagueness. Those opposing the press were quite unaware, for the most part, of its salient weakness but contented themselves with objections to the accounts of crimes and executions on the front page of newspapers. They did not know what should go on the front page: they only knew that crimes and executions should not.

As one speaker from downtown pointed out, there have been a number of books, beginning with the Bible, which have been frank and detailed in this animadversion upon crime and punishment. In fact if all such were superseded considerable gaps would be left in world literature. Apparently the multitude cannot be trusted to read such accounts in newspapers for they are weak and ignorant, as one speaker pointed out. All this may be true but it implies a distrust of free interpretation as exercised by the uneducated, which is alien to certain liberal religious and political principles supposedly enshrined in tradition.

But to return to the discussion as to the emphasis placed on crimes and executions in the press, we are surprised at the unthinking repetition of the complaints in this regard. All citizens are responsible for executions; the people, according to the school books are the power behind judge, jury and executioner. If the people want the undesirables put away, they should face the details of the process. The yellowist tabloid in newspaperdom could never describe the full horror of the strangling or electrocution which finishes the career of an outcast wretch who still has some claims to being called our fellow man. Yet the worthy citizen should read a full account of such an occurrence with the same interest and attention he would give to a story about a wedding or a festivity. Executions are of as much weight in the maintenance of the state as processions of celebrations. Why should we think it proper to dwell on the one and avoid the other? We must be afraid to know what we are allowing to happen.

On the other side, in defending the press in consistency with his principles of individualism and free competition, a junior professor of economics digressed to attack the position of "The Varsity." He took it upon himself to announce that this page did not give its readers what they wanted and ascribed its inefficiency to its compulsory circulation. He suggested that it would give the news that was wanted if forced to compete for undergraduate support.

It is indeed a pleasure to learn direct from Delphi that we are not supplying the desired news. The learned professor did not specify our particular sins of omission and commission which were no doubt reported to him by the large constituency of readers which he represents. The learned professor evidently did not read our first editorial of the year in which we asked our readers to help us by suggesting how we might cover our province more effectively. Nor did the learned professor effect anything of a constructive nature when he sat on the advisory board of student publications three years ago. The full benefit of his experience was delayed until last night in order to fully demonstrate the cheery nonchalance of the Orbridge school of master-minding.

No one would welcome a policy of free competition instead of a subsidized organ more than the present editor. In order to sell the paper he would then be forced to print all the news as fully as the downtown papers and it would be according to the taste of the colonial undergraduates who buy the other yellow Canadian dailies and not according to the disciplined taste of the staff in economics. The paper would be lively and unofficial. The editor would pursue his studies elsewhere after about three issues.

"The other papers must sell themselves: The Varsity need not," said the learned professor. In this the crowning piece of irony of his speech he forgot that the editors of "The Varsity" must pass examinations.

Art, Music and Drama

The Players' Guild

Mr. Howard Lindsay's play, "The Sentimentalist," was the best Guild production so far in the season, and ranks very highly indeed in original plays produced at the Guild in all time. It was a fantasy about pirates on a desert island, their leader who used to be a duke, a lady of those parts and murderous Spaniards, but it had in it that subtle quality, so precious in short stories and short plays, of making one feel that there was a real philosophy of human character behind it. Certain details, to wit, the clarity of the latter part, were weak, but the plot was turned at the finish with a neatness which reminded one of O. Henry, and we were left with the suggestion of a character altogether unique and fascinating. The detail was lacking but the soul was there.

Mr. Lindsay played the vital role himself and carried his point. Miss Jean Dow also did some good acting.

Unfortunately the stage was too small for the play but, in the scenery, the Guild achieved one of those occasional happy effects which give the impression of space and depth.

CONTRAST—
Soph-Frosh

PATHOS—

As the little, innocent Freshman hobbled weakly to lectures, the large group of Sophomores advanced. Like an avalanche, they swooped down on and hurled him to the ground, almost crushing the very life out of him.

CLASH—

As the insignificant Freshman approached, the group of lordly Sophomores, like infuriated lions, suddenly and fiercely attacked him, but he, with the dexterity of a jui-jitsu artist, threw them off one by one.

HUMOUR—

As the haughty, indifferent Frosh strode down the path, the Sophs idled up to him and, in a matter of fact way, commenced their course in practical "hazing." They had proceeded as far as jumping on a new hat and ripping a ne-plus-ultra topcoat when they were made to realize that the pupil was none other than the latest addition to the History department. JUNIOR S.P.S. DEFEAT JUNIOR U.C. 13 TO 7 IN MULOCK CUP GAME

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Kitchener's classy collection of Pretzel Pushers are in for their toughest battle of the season when they take on the Orphans at the Stadium here Saturday. Coach Jimmy Douglas is priming his boys for this important game and will field one of the snappiest teams that has worn the Blue and White uniform this season. And that goes for both series.

The Blue and White are certainly wishing Old McGill plenty of luck the rest of this week with a double amount on Saturday. If Ken Tremaine is in good form next Saturday, and Queen's are not getting away with the extensions as per last week (which may be the case of Don Young turns in his average game), the Red and White will have a good chance to get down in front.

Despatches from Kingston state that "Bubs" Britton, the Tricolour captain, was out to practice yesterday. The star flying wing was unable to play against Varsity here owing to painful knee injuries which promised to keep him out of the game for the rest of the season. "Unk" Durham, who is filling his position, turned in a mighty fine effort at the Varsity Stadium and played no small part in the Tricolour victory. It will be remembered that Britton, playing the same position in which Durham scintillated, took a big hand in the 17-0 crusher of 1925 when the split-second boys bit the dust.

It will soon be time for the boxing, wrestling and fencing addicts to settle down to heavy work. Every evening finds a number of enthusiastic gentry working out in preparation for a long grind at their favourite pastime.

The water polo season is now in full swing and Bill Winterburn's sanctum sanctorum provides some nifty aquatic battles. The fumble epidemic won't cut any ice here for another month at least.

The formation of a City Water Polo League has been announced. Varsity has entered two teams, Central, Broadway, West End and Central Commerce one each. This should be a big boost for the game in this neck of the woods.

U.C. Badminton Club To Start With Tea

Although there has only been one meeting of the University College Women's Badminton Club, plans are well under way for the winter's fun. A tea which will be held next week will soon be advertised to attract all would-be badminton players. A small fee of fifty cents is going to be charged in order to defray the expenses of "bird" buying. The club intends to buy two dozen "birds," and these, along with the four good rackets and net at the Union, will form a complete equipment. A court is to be marked off in the assembly room, but this expense will be small. Supporters of the club think it will be a great success, as they are expecting between fifty and sixty members.

Boxing

Some say that our boxing is brutal, And perhaps from the ring side it's true: But the man in the ring doesn't feel the blows' sting, He's fighting for joy, not for you. It's the mad age-old lust for battle, That thinks not of trouble or pain, Though the flowing blood cakes and the bruised muscle aches, He will long for the combat again. Youth meets with so much it can't fathom, Great demons that can not be hit, In their longing for foes, who can give and take blows, Men play with the gloves for a bit. T.J.K.

McCallum and Hewett Make Sparkling Runs for Winners

HERMAN SCORES MAJOR

School's Penalties Are Help in Saving Losses from Obliteration

Junior School defeated Junior U.C. yesterday 13 to 7 in an Interfaculty rugby league fixture. On the afternoon's play the Engineers clearly outplayed their opponents and would have won by a larger margin had it not been for countless penalties. U.C. scored their points on a touch and two singles. Herman blocked a kick near the School line and fell on the ball for the major score and Usprech kicked the other two points.

S.P.S. registered two touchdowns on a pair of sparkling runs by McCallum and Hewett. The former scored in the second quarter after a run of 55 yards, while the latter in the last stanza took a punt on his own 40 yard line and reeled off the remaining 70 yards without pausing for breath. The same player kicked the School's other three points on singles.

Jun. S.P.S.: Flying wing, Graham; halves, Hewett, McCallum, Adams; quarter, Jones; snap, Fotheringham; insides, Watkins, Hetzler; middles, Algie, Kirkland; outsides, Davidson, Joyner; subs, Butterill, Chalmers, Williamson, Puddy, Strachan, Rishor, Smith.

Jun. U.C.: Flying wing, Eastwood; halves, Usprech, Herman, Freifeld; quarter, Murray; snap, Keith; insides, Finningley, Watt; middles, Dawson, Sheppard; outsides, McHugh, Walker; subs, Reid, Little, Mulcahy, Heaks, Allan, Schuch.

HARRIERS COMPETE NEXT SATURDAY

Loss of Graham Weakens Team But Three-miler Hap Gilbert is Tower of Strength

THIRTY MILE GRIND

On Saturday next the University of Toronto Harrier team competes in the Intercollegiate Harrier Race to be held in Kingston. The team will in all probability consist of Lee, Smith, Walters, Seaborne and Gilbert.

Varsity has won the harrier race for the last five years in succession, chiefly through the efforts of "Wally" Graham, who holds the Intercollegiate record for the Toronto course. This year Graham is not competing, being unable to do any track work owing to ill-health. The team, although weakened by the loss of Graham, has a good man in the person of "Hap" Gilbert, who easily won the three mile run at the Intercollegiate meet in Montreal.

While the harrier team is representing Varsity at Kingston a team of ten men will represent the Blue and White in a 30 mile international relay race to be held in the Exhibition grounds here. The following men will possibly make up the team: McLennan, Crozier, Mitchell, McDonald, Wilson, Davies, Vile, Baker, Baldwin, Wilson.

DEBATE NO SENSATION BUT STRANGE THINGS SAID

the house. B. D. Beamish compared himself to a "tin whistle after an orchestra" and some members seemed inclined to agree. If all the rest of the house could be persuaded to think as he did, he thought they would vote his way. Advertising was economically defeated.

J. C. Clough had discovered that the advertising in the press was evil and said so. The news on the front page belonged elsewhere.

A. Arell, frequently prompted by a professor from Baldwin House, laid the foundation for honours next May by praising Adam Smith. The house was thinning out now. Two hours of oratory is exhausting at best. Even the press table was sitting back waiting for the end. One of the honourable visiting speakers stared at the water glasses, the other at the "Noes" sign on the window.

Mr. Dell was short and sweet and sat down. Mr. Wilson hated sensationalism. Mr. Martin disliked the heroes of the sport page. They got swelled heads.

T. J. Keenan from the University of British Columbia, found that clean bodies and clean lives were encouraged by the sport page. Next was J. H. Gringorten, who proved that Mr. Hearst thought for twenty million Americans, and caused the Spanish-American War.

Lou Golden saw the affirmative "smiling smugly, afraid of having the mask torn away," lest it see things it did not like to think about. But C. L. M. Douglas could prove that it was not the public but the press that was smug.

The debate had begun to lag, but all present sat up to see Professor Bladen sing a hymn of hate against "The Varsity." There followed the only man who could rise and say he had not intended to speak when he entered the room, when E. M. Gundy acted as publicity agent for an unknown paper.

Cheerful Chinese Canters on Campus
Explains Ensignia and Enters Elite

Far am I from the land of Sweet Cherry Blossoms: For am I from the Rising Sun and the Honoured Threshold of My Ancestors. But in this strange and yet Wonderful Country of my adoption, I am at rest.

It happened thus, I, Ah Sin, was wandering, lonely and depressed, about the most verdant Campus of this venerable University. For many days no one had spoken to me, with the exception of an erring youth, who had mistaken me for the purveyor of his illustrious socks and shirts. Suddenly out of the blue ether, there descended upon me, a most manly and staid-sider being, who was all what you Americans call 'Pep.' Humble as I am always in the presence of my superiors, I could not but feel but more humbled at the extraordinary rapidity of the questionnaire and the facility of the aforesaid youth. In fact only once in the twenty years of my earthly career have I been privileged to hear the like. Namely, when this lowly person was met by your custom's officer on my arrival unto your illustrious country.

"How do yer like Toronto? Can you speak English? Are you married? When and how? Where do you eat and with chop sticks or not? What are you doing and how long are you going to do it?" and so on and so on like the swell of the Ocean on my beloved China.

At first I was perplexed and perhaps a little angry. Then I perceived that my private life had been honoured by an interview with a real reporter. I felt flattered and I wished to myself that those of my paternal dwelling could see the esteem in which I was held by the natives of this newly found home.

I explained all I could to him and offered the formula that my dark rimmed eye spectacles were not a sign of American humour, but were a mark of the learning which I hoped to acquire. So after a lengthy sojourn and the consumption of several delicious confectionaries that are named, 'they which save life,' the reporter made this remarkable proposition to me.

"Mr. Ah Sin," he said, "if you can write like you can talk you should be a member of the illustrious paper, 'The Varsity.' What do you say to write about what you see and compare it with China? You should see lots of things differently to what we do!"

I deliberated. I thought. At length a slow smile dawned over my face and I consented.

To-night I am writing to my lady girl friend, one Little Flower, to tell her that already my humble name is beginning to appear among the stars, enshrine with the immortals in the Press.

Superciliously yours, Ah Sin.

edge and that it is true," said Sir Robert. "But if you are going to trust any faculties, you must trust all. You don't consult every Tom, Dick and Harry in a question of astronomy. Why not go to trained minds in questions of love and duty and the deeper emotions?"

"You can't explain anything by merely describing it. You don't know what a thing is like until you experience it."

"As a matter of fact," insisted Sir Robert, "if you have science at its best and religion at its best, I can't see where the struggle comes in." Quoting an eminent mathematician, he said: "If no philosophical assumptions are made by science, the relation of science to theism is one of neutrality."

Sir Robert declared that lack of conflict between science and religion was no new thing; that it was probably not so acute as when he himself had entered university as an undergraduate. "Gentlemen," he concluded, "your struggle will not be as great as ours was. It will be against the materialism which the common man has come to feel of greatest importance."

HART HOUSE SUFFERS MAJORITY OF THEFTS

"After a scare a year or two ago, the police have kept a strict eye open, and no further trouble has arisen."

The women on the campus seemed to be of the opinion that any paraphernalia had best be more seriously looked after by students and overseers. "But what are you going to do if there are no lockers?" asked one U.C. senior, warmed up to righteous wrath. "If U.C. cloak room has no more lockers, it has no more—and four or five of us suffer the consequences. And coats and books have to go somewhere!"

as a type that might appeal to a "lazy" poet. It has been referred to as "chopped-off" prose by certain writers and this appellation seems quite appropriate.

Yours truly, X.

As X says, there is a considerable group (including even one or two magazine editors who specify "no Free Verse wanted") who do not favour Vers Libre. We do not, however, think that the greatest objection is because it is "chopped-off prose." There are good and bad attempts at Vers Libre. If the latter, it may be prosaic; if the former, it may be unrhymed and impossible to scan but, at least, it must have rhythm and rhyme, with thought as the inner structure, is the foundation of good poetry.

Free Verse may be termed the "lazy" man's refuge because it is not as exacting as other forms, but, when it is a question of giving a brief, vivid, word picture which would lose force under cramped meter and rhyme, the "lazy" poet is to be commended for choosing such an alternative.

men of all the colleges, and for this reason is well worthy of consideration. Five or six years ago when plans were drawn up for a Womens Building, it was arranged that $125,000 should be paid out of the Massey Foundation towards its erection, provided that the remainder necessary for constructing such a building should be forthcoming. As yet, this remainder has not been forthcoming. The building would cost anywhere from $300,000 to $500,000, it is estimated.

Whenever the Board of Governors has been approached with regard to this matter, its feeling has been that there are other more pressing matters requiring attention; a gymnasium must take second place in favour of an academic building.

STUDENT OPINION DIVIDED ON MINGLING OF SEXES

"Co-eds are a social advantage," he admitted, "but R.M.C. has never experienced any difficulty in getting women for social functions. We were not bothered with them at lectures, or in the halls and library. A man can better develop his personality and individuality with members of his own sex."

Jack Wright, President of the Engineering Society, on the other hand, disagreed with his fellow School-man.

"Of course," he said, "I am not qualified to judge co-education in the University, as Science is almost 100 per cent men. But the fair sex is of universal interest to men. Nearly all business houses employ both. Male students enjoy the company of girls at games, dinners, and shows. Why shouldn't they study together? I think it leads to a better understanding, and consequently to better fellowship between the two sexes."

Ross Anderson, President of the senior year in U.C., interviewed regarding mixed colleges, heartily endorsed co-education. He considered the ladies an asset academically and socially.

"The whispering ones get on my nerves when I am concentrating," he volunteered, "but that is not confined to one sex. Probably the majority of women attend college with different aims from those of men. Some of them are looking for a good time, but that is part of an education. Perhaps some are seeking husbands—I would not begrudge any girl a husband, if she gets a good one. Both sexes benefit by mutual association."

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1928

No. 26

EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM TO BE CONVERTED TO SAUSAGE MACHINE

Premier's Plan Impractical
Declares Liberal Leader in Liberal Club Speech

IDEA ORIGINATED AT SEA

College Spirit Aimed At By Proposal But Its Purpose
Would Be Defeated

That Premier Ferguson's scheme for taking the first year Arts away from the University of Toronto and giving it to the collegiate institutes would convert our educational system into a "sausage machine," whereby Mr. Ferguson would be obliged to keep one eye on the sausage machine and the other on the voters of the province, was the assertion of the Hon. W. E. N. Sinclair, K.C., Leader of the Opposition in the Provincial House, speaking at the U. of T. Liberal Club last night.

"I cannot but be impressed that the Minister of Education is absolutely on the wrong track in this regard," declared Mr. Sinclair. "Its only advantage is that it is cheaper to the individual. But who wants a bargain B.A.? It is not in keeping with modern educational principles. If our university graduates are to keep pace with the world of to-day and the world of to-morrow, they must have the very best that can be afforded them in instruction and equipment."

Insisting that Mr. Ferguson would be unable under his proposal to prevent students in and near Toronto from taking advantage of the superior facilities of the University, Mr. Sinclair pointed out that the additional cost to the taxpayers of the province, outside the great university centres, would amount to well over five million dollars a year for equipment and tuition. At the same time the University of Toronto would be operated at its present cost, some fully fifty per cent of the students at present come from Toronto and suburbs.

"I am a Varsity man and I live outside Toronto," said Mr. Sinclair, "and I firmly believe the people of the Province of Ontario have no intention of permitting tinkering with the University of Toronto. Neither have they any desire to be niggardly, because they realize the need for educated men and women, but I feel sure they will not see how any possible advantage can accrue from the scheme."

Mr. Ferguson had recently been on the sea, returning from a trip to England, remarked Mr. Sinclair, and it was here the idea had come to him to introduce a plan by which a spirit might be produced in the educational institutions of Ontario similar to that which had so aroused his admiration in those of England. Mr. Sinclair thought the present proposal was calculated to defeat its very purpose. Furthermore, since Queen's, Western and McMaster did not come under the jurisdiction of the Minister of Education, students desiring the full four years of university life would go to these colleges. Mr. Sinclair thought the Premier was still very much at sea.

In the discussion which followed the Leader's address, the general opinion voiced was that it was unfortunate that one of the two greatest universities in the Dominion should come under the realm of party politics. Mr. Ferguson's talk was cheap, it was thought; he would have to get the consent of the Senate on any question of curriculum.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT DISCUSSED AT QUEEN'S

Senate and Student Leaders Will Confer as Aftermath of Spring Strike

A committee consisting of President Broadbent, Second Vice-President Britton, the chief justice of the Alma Mater Society, and presidents of faculty societies will confer shortly with the Senate of Queen's University on the matter of student government.

The question is an aftermath of the student strike which occurred there last spring. To avoid lack of continuity in student executives, it has been suggested that a permanent salaried secretary be appointed.

EMBROIDERY AMUSED FORSAKEN WIVES

Lace a Transition From Embroidery Claims
Miss Home

USED ON BATH-TUBS

"Lace and embroidery are so much sister arts that it is impossible to consider the one without the other," was the opinion expressed by Miss Ruth Home at her lecture on "Old Lace" at the Royal Ontario Museum yesterday. Embroidery dated from the earliest times, being mentioned in the Bible. The earliest amusement problem was that of the early British wives who were forced to resort to embroidery when their husbands neglected them for fighting. The transition to lace was by way of fringe and cut work, through geometric designs, until what is now known as lace was developed.

The predominant force in the early lace-work was the church, and during their reigns both Henry VIII and Elizabeth were very fond of the ecclesiastical patterns. The latter, indeed, used it for everything, including her night-cap.

The Renaissance introduced the bold, naturalistic patterns, and made pillow-lace popular. The two types of lace—point and pillow—separate at this era into distinct schools, the first characterized by a looping-up, the other by a braiding. Italy and the Netherlands supplied the lace, England and France the fashions. Certain types of lace were fostered in opposition to the foreign importations. During the years preceding the French Revolution, lace was used in excessive quantities, even on the bath-tubs, though the reason for that was not very clear.

VICTORIA STUDENTS STRONGLY SUPPORT HONOUR COURSES

Honour Student Compared to Legless Frog or Frothy
Buttermilk

PASS COURSE TOO SHALLOW

Resourcefulness Developed by Study Without Prodding
Professors

"The honour student is a bumpy and hollow fanatic," was a statement made at the mixed debate held at Victoria College last night when the motion, "Resolved that in the opinion of this house a high standing in an honour course with participation in the activities appertaining to that course is of more real worth than an average standing in the pass course with prominent participation in college activities," was upheld by a vote of 48 to 22.

Mr. Bert Carson moved the question. He then pointed out that after five years of high school where general arts and sciences are taught a person is ready to specialize and since self-expression is the object of a University education the pass course is not deep enough. He showed that the more one specializes the more one must know of other subjects to better pursue his one chosen line and to retain for leadership one must specialize in a definite field.

Miss Marjorie Beer introduced the negative. She likened college to a feast where the honour students were on a special diet and sat at a small table and ate and ate and ate one kind of good and being so busy eating they could not see or hear or do anything else: while the pass student sat at a large table with a variety of foods and good company to help broaden his views and thus he was kept from losing himself in his food. The demand for all-roundness in the world was pointed out and it was shown that the honour student is too busy to enter various college activities which thus makes for deterioration. To support her point she compared the ancient civilizations of Athens and Sparta.

Miss Marie Bicknell in speaking for the affirmative said the pass course was so broad that it was only one inch thick. She showed how in an honour course the subjects all fit in with one another, while in the pass course there is a collection of unrelated subjects which do not make for a complete rounded whole. As for character development the honour course makes for resourcefulness and independence because here one is not continually prodded by the professors as in a pass course.

Mr. Art Reynolds, the fourth speaker, pointed out that the pass course is degraded only by the fact that it is the dumping ground for those who can not keep up in the honour courses and thus are no use to any course. He said the pass course gives a broad choice for vocation in after life and more power for adaptation—the honour students are intolerant, one-sided thinkers. The honour student is able to discuss only one or two subjects, and so in his conversations with those outside his sphere he has to resort to a discussion of the weather. The pass student leaves college with many ideas on as many subjects, whereas the honour student, due to the narrowness of his course, has only one or two ideas on a very few subjects.

The house was then thrown open and a very lively discussion followed, in which the honour student was likened

BACON POSSESSED BLENDED KNOWLEDGE OF DIVERS SUBJECTS

Noted Lecturer Addresses
St. Michael's Students on Bacon

CLOSING LECTURE TO-DAY

Influence of Early Life on Works Noted by Speaker

"Roger Bacon can be described neither as a man knowing all about the sciences and nothing about philosophy, nor as knowing all about philosophy and nothing of the sciences, for he had blended a knowledge of both," said Dr. Etienne Gilson, Professor in Mediaeval History at Sorbonne, Paris, in the course of his first of a series of two lectures to philosophy students, delivered yesterday at 12 Elmley Place, at which about sixty students and members of the faculty of St. Michael's College were present.

Dr. Gilson, who it is understood, is noted for his studies of Mediaeval History, has been delivering a series of lectures at Harvard University, and is visiting St. Michael's College. The speaker traced the life of Roger Bacon from his early years, showing the influences of his early life on his work, including his entry to the Franciscan Order and his friendship with one who later became Pope Pius IV. "Bacon always liked sciences, he said, 'but, on the other hand, he also liked theology.'"

"Bacon was an alchemist, and, as such, believed that the fair thing to do was to conceal from the crowd any given proper interpretation by such," said Dr. Gilson, in explaining the philosophy of Bacon.

"We ought not to cast pearls before swine, as we thereby lessen the majesty of nature by laying bare her mysteries before the common eye," stated the speaker in reading quotations from Bacon, during the course of his lecture.

Dr. Gilson will deliver his closing lecture to-day. He addressed the St. Michael's College Philosophical Society last night.

PERSONAL CONTACT IS MAIN BENEFIT OF CONGRESS

Mathematics Professor Gives
Address on International
Math. Congress

At the second meeting of the Mathematical and Physical Society last night the members listened to an address on the recent International Mathematical Congress held at Bologna, by Professor J. C. Fields of the department of Mathematics.

"Personal contact is the main benefit of such a congress," said Professor Fields. The congresses have been held variously in Heidelberg, Rome, Cambridge, at Brussels, in 1919, an International Research Congress was formed, and as a part of this the International Mathematical Union held its next meeting at Strathway, Scotland. In 1924 the Congress met at Toronto at about the same time as the Toronto meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science. At this point Professor Fields gave an interesting account of how the arrangements were made for the Toronto meeting of the Congress. Professor Fields proceeded to enumerate the famous mathematicians who were present at Bologna, and the main discussions which took place.

Professor Etienne Gilson, who is an expert in mediaeval philosophy and an authority on St. Thomas Aquinas, is to lecture at the University of Toronto for six months each year, beginning in 1929. The remaining portion of the year he will spend at the University of Paris.

The University of Oxford has conferred on Professor Gilson the Honorary Doctorate in Letters. The University of Aberdeen has asked him to deliver the Gifford lectures there in 1929 and 1930. Professor Gilson comes here from Harvard University.

CANADIANS DESTINED TO REMAIN BRITISH

University Will Contribute to Solution of Canada's Problems

I.S.A. HEARS CANON CODY

That the University has an important task in and vital contribution to make towards the solution of Canadian problems, was the keynote of Canon Cody's address to the International Student Association last evening. But these problems themselves could only be understood with respect to their backgrounds, which were four in number, the physical, racial, geographical and political.

Physically Canada was itself divided into five sections each involving problems peculiar only to that section. The Maritime Provinces, with their respective intense provincial pride preventing advisable amalgamation, were cut off from the rest of the Dominion by the Appalachian Range.

Ontario and Quebec, the industrial hives, were south of the vast north-west expanses, the great Pre-Cambrian Shield. When a boy, Canon Cody held the general opinion that this area was simply a barrier; later, about the time he graduated, only 30 years ago when the T. & O. Railway was begun, came the famous series of discoveries of the immense potential wealth of the play belt for farming, the forests for timber and paper, the waters for hydro-electric power, and lastly the immeasurable mineral wealth. Then farther west stretched the Prairie Provinces and British Columbia.

Originally the settlers of Canada were of French origin. Then began the steady influx of English settlers after the American Revolutionary War—a virile stock laying the foundations for a strong British supremacy, so that now we have two sub-nationalities within the nation."

Thus racial psychology must be considered in the problems arising out of this feature. "Immediately adjacent to the United States, we must have an interpretation of ideas to attain our national individuality and stand vigorously for our rights if we are to be respected." Through a gradual political evolution Canada became a Dominion, and had reached the state of autonomy, affixing her signature to the Kellogg Pact. "As Canadians we strive to be as free as possible, with no intention of setting up a republic or as a group of states, becoming an integral part of the United States. We are destined to remain within the British Empire orbit." Canada was a healthy youngster, and in her material progress she should not lose sight of things higher, and become self-centred.

MEDICAL FRESHMEN GIVE SOPHOMORES BANQUET AND DANCE

OLD FEUDS PUT ASIDE

Members of Junior Years Encouraged to Interest in Athletics

Five score Medical frosh were hosts to their sophomores at the annual sophomore banquet and dance, held last night in the spacious halls of the Parkdale Canoe Club. The customary pleasantries associated with the wearing of red ties being a memory of the past, the Medical students of the first two years joined hands and voices and put aside their feuds. Sophs, who a short time before humbled the lowly frosh, now praised their obvious qualities, while freshmen who once scorned their seniors declared they knew no better men! It was H. R. Zeigler, president of the Medical Society, who voiced the sentiment of the gathering by saying that the function would serve to unite the two years in the common bond of membership in what is probably the foremost Medical School on this continent.

"Chuck" Vaughan, president of the first year, in the toastmaster's address welcomed the guests and commented upon the excellent spirit in which the sophs had received the various sorties of the freshmen. He hoped their relations in the future would be even more pleasant than in the past.

"Jimmy" Sinclair, popular Intercollegiate rugbyist and president of the second year, was given a rousing ovation when he rose to reply to the welcoming address. "Jimmy" dwelt upon the excellence of the banquet and the good fellowship it fostered.

"We have three things to be very proud of. We have the best staff in the best faculty in the best Medical School," declared Vice-President Nugent of first year, in proposing the toast to the Faculty.

Professors Bailis and Burton responded appropriately. Mr. Zeigler, the final speaker, urged the students of the junior years to take an active interest, not only in their academic work but also in various other interests, especially athletics. Support of the activities of the Medical Society was one of the first duties of every undergraduate, Mr. Zeigler declared in the course of his brief address.

The dance which followed the banquet was largely attended.

COMPULSORY CHAPEL ETCETERA

Liberal and radical elements among the students of the United States, or among the people thereof for that matter, are not strong in numbers. But the liberals of the colleges have a basis for unity in opposition to two grievances that are fairly common: compulsory military training (R.O.T.C.) and compulsory attendance at chapel. These grievances are heavily borne by the dissenters but they at least make a beginning of a liberal platform that is more than local. The students who think differently from the rest in Canadian universities have only complaints that are sharply sectional in character.

The latest pronouncement on compulsory chapel appears in the current issue of the Atlantic Monthly. It is written by Willard L. Sperry, dean of the theological school at Harvard, and its conclusions are in consonance with that institution's abolition of the regulation.

Doctor Sperry begins his argument with a quotation from The Prelude in which Wordsworth made the Romanticist and individualist protest against the discipline of compulsory chapel. The argument in favour of the latter is of course based on the plea for the need of discipline. In answer to which the writer points out that discipline is the secondary reason for compulsory chapel and the advancement of religion is the primary one. He therefore concludes with Wordsworth that, since forced attendance only makes church odious in the eyes of the coerced, the secondary defeats the primary reason.

There are two ways in which the discussion reminds us of things nearer home. The first is that in two denominational college residences on the campus compulsory chapel is an institution. But there is no protest from the students because they come to these colleges with a strong religious tradition and background acquired in their homes. Because they are glad to attend chapel, the words of Wordsworth cannot be said to apply to them:

Was ever known

The witless shepherd who persists to drive
A flock that thirsts not to a pool disliked?
A weight must surely hang on days begun
And ended with such mockery. Be wise,
Ye Presidents and Deans, and, till the spirit
Of ancient times revive, and youth be trained
At home in pious service, to your bells
Give seasonable rest, for 't is a sound
Hollow as ever vexed the tranquil air;
And your officious doings bring disgrace
On the plain steeples of our English Church,
Whose worship, 'mid remotest village trees,
Suffers for this.

The second thing of which we are reminded is the parallel of the discipline argument with regard to chapel and military training. This in our universities is purely voluntary; in our public and high schools, while strongly encouraged, it is not compulsory; in our preparatory schools, one of which is controlled by the university, compulsion obtains. Whenever one of the Canadian radical group attacks government grants for military training purposes in schools, the proponents of the latter invariably base their defence of the system on the efficient argument of discipline. Whether it is because war is unpopular or not they avoid the first principle involved. But even in those institutions where it is compulsory, the pupils undergo the drill for the most part without complaint. And the direct clash between militarist and pacifist is avoided by the wisely arranged voluntary basis of the university units.

Correspondence

Correspondents are reminded that all letters must be accompanied by signatures, and they are requested to limit them selves to approximately 300 words.

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:
I should like to put before the student body certain aspects of a circular letter addressed to the members of the class of 370 of University College, which, I trust, were not fully realized by the executive which signed it. The letter is an announcement of the activities of the class, and a request for their support in the purchase of 'year cards'. With this letter are enclosed a blank year card which may be made valid simply by the attachment of my signature, and a blank envelope.

The following explanation is given: "If it is impossible for you to support your year and college to the extent of Two Dollars, please put the card in the enclosed envelope and drop it in the lit. office or post it at the nearest box. The money can be paid to any member of the Executive. . . . There are then three alternatives: either to return the card, pay the money, or ignore it, and the last, by the way, I have perfect liberty to do. But if I do so, have I any guarantee that I shall not be black-listed as having

Victoria Dramatics

Capital punishment is the conventional penalty for the reviewer who forgets himself insofar as to neglect referring to a play by Sir James M. Barrie as "whimsical"; consequently we postulate that "The Old Lady Shows her Medals" as presented yesterday afternoon in Hart House Theatre by the Victoria College Dramatic Association was just that, with additions of pathos, humour and hokum. This play was one of Barrie's war-time productions, and features the attainment of the desires of a Scotch charwoman in London to have a hero at the front. By strange coincidence the padre of the district fishes up a brawny kilted and spatted haddie, with hair on his knees, to be the old lady's son. He at first refrigrates, but gradually develops filial propensities and ends up with a real tear-bringing understanding.

THE WROMANCE OF WRIGHTEOUS WRONALD

Ronald Rottingham, the eminent physician and humorist, sat listening to a patient in his consultation room.

"Doctor, I have pains in my back, and when I bend over I—" But the doctor had suddenly burst out laughing.

"You really must pardon me, Mrs. Tootle, but a screamingly funny thought just occurred to me. One moment while I jot it down, so that I may incorporate it into my next humorous volume."

The door slammed dreadfully. Rottingham had lost another patient.

ORPHANS AND INFANTS WILL PLAY IN TWIN BILL TO-MORROW

SPEAKING OF SPORT

To-morrow will be an important day for the Blue and White football squads. The Intercollegiate don't play, but a Queen's victory over McGill will knock the Blue and White out of the running. The Orphans' chances depend on a win over Kitchener and Sarnia trimming the latter the following week. This would create a triple tie. But if Jimmy Douglas' boys lose to-morrow, it's the curtain for them. The Juniors, who are now tied with McMaster for their group, take on the Baptists in a deciding game.

The Juniors-McMaster game will be played as a curtain raiser to the Kitchener-Orphan fixture. The first game is called for one o'clock and the other for two-thirty.

This is the first time in some years that the Juniors have met strenuous opposition in their group. In past years they outclassed their opponents, but this year is a different matter. Whether the Juniors are weaker or the opposition is stronger is a speculative matter. There is a lot to be said on each side.

The Orphan line-up to-morrow will present several welcome additions. Jack Sinclair, who played on the Intercollegiate team the last two years, will likely hold down a backfield berth and do the kicking. Doug. McFadyen of the 1925 and 1926 Intercollegiate outfits may start on the half-line. McFadyen has been out of the game since then, but if he regains anything like his old-time form, should be a considerable worry to the Sarnia tacklers. If Charlie Baillie plays the game he did two weeks ago no overtime should be necessary to decide this battle.

A local station is broadcasting a play-by-play description of the McGill-Queen's rugby game direct from Kingston. Several years ago when Varsity were playing at Queen's, a red-hot radio enthusiast brought along a portable set to the stadium here and thus kept the spectators in constant touch with the doings at Kingston. How about it to-morrow? The Mining men went over big last week, and the Electricals could take a hand this time with a little practical demonstration in their line.

ORPHANS HAVE FINAL PRACTICE YESTERDAY

Sinclair, Baillie, McFadyen
Form Best Blue and White
Backfield of Season

GOOD TEAM TO TAKE FIELD

Jimmy Douglas' Orphans went through their final heavy practice for the Kitchener game by taking on the Intercollegiate outfit in a scrimmage at the Stadium last night. The Orphans are looking better every time out, and indications are that a mighty good team will take the field to-morrow. Although unable to don a uniform yesterday, Jack Sinclair will likely play on Saturday. He along with Charlie Baillie and Doug. McFadyen, an Intercollegiate player of former years, would give the Orphans the best backfield that has worn the Blue and White this season. Carrick and Snider at flying wing round out a nifty rearguard. If Ruddell at quarter can repeat his performance against Sarnia, Varsity should get away for many big gains. This boy showed some good field generalship against the Tunnel Towners and was in no small measure responsible for the victory. The line have played good football in all their games, and to-morrow should be no exception.

VARSITY SOCCER TEAM LEAVES FOR PENN STATE

The Varsity soccer team leaves for Penn State to-day to play a return game there on Saturday. This game is an annual feature. Last year Penn State visited Varsity here and met defeat 3-1. The Blues, stronger than before, will probably repeat the trick. The next Intercollegiate fixture is on November 10, when Varsity takes on McGill. Should they win or tie this game, they will clinch the Intercollegiate title, for which they are strong favourites.

A new political party called Tuscaroras has been organized on the campus at Hays, K. S. T. C., "Student Government, Governed by Students," is its official slogan.

WATER POLO LEAGUE WILL FOSTER GAME

Several Teams Enter League to Make Game Better Known

An innovation being tried this year in an effort to introduce water polo more generally to the swimming enthusiasts of the city. A league has been formed to include teams from the three Y.M.C.A.'s, the Danforth Second swimming club, and two teams from the University. Games commence in about two weeks and continue until the first week in December. The teams will practise Wednesday and Friday from 6-7 and Saturday from 12-1 under the expert direction of Mr. Paul Copeland. All who are interested in this line of sport are asked to be on hand to-night (Friday).

The schedule for games is as follows:

EASTERN GROUP

Nov. 13—Danforth Second at Varsity B.

20—Broadview at Varsity B.

23—Broadview at Danforth Second.

28—Varsity B at Broadview.

Dec. 5—Danforth Second at Broadview.

7—Varsity B at Danforth Second.

WESTERN GROUP

Nov. 13—Central Y at Varsity A.

20—West End L at Central Y.

26—Varsity A at Central Y.

28—Varsity A at West End Y.

Dec. 4—West End Y at Varsity A.

Jan. 2—Central Y at West End.

The winners of the Western Group play off with the winner of the Eastern Group in home and home games to take place sometime in January.

The Harrier Team entrains for Kingston to-day to participate in the Intercollegiate Harrier Race at R.M.C. The following men comprise the team: Gilbert, Wycliffe; Lee, S.P.S.; Smith, U.C.; Walters, Trinity; Seaborne, Trinity.

None of the men on the team have ever competed in an Intercollegiate Harrier before, this being the first time in some years that Varsity has been represented by an altogether inexperienced team. The course to be travelled at Kingston is an exceptionally hard one, it being practically all cross-country running, with very little road work. Queen's and McGill are not known to have very strong teams this year, so it is expected that the keenest competition will come from R.M.C., as the Cadets have the reputation of being always in good shape for this event.

Varsity vs. McMaster and Kitchener vs. Varsity in Double Bill

The play-off between McMaster and Varsity Juniors to decide the honours in the Junior Intercollegiate group is scheduled for to-morrow afternoon at 1 o'clock at the Varsity Stadium. This game will be immediately followed by the Kitchener-Orphan fixture, and with two such attractions in the one afternoon, rugby fans are given the opportunity to see a real display of football. Varsity Juniors tied for first place with McMaster by defeating O.A.C. last Wednesday afternoon by 38 to 0.

This is the first year that the Juniors have encountered any strong opposition in their group, being able in the last few years to easily go through the season without sustaining a loss. "Red" Schaffe's boys disappointed and surprised the fans last Saturday when they took an 11 to 4 defeat from McMaster. After the come-back on Wednesday, when they blanked the Aggies, a strengthened team goes out to-morrow determined to regain last week's loss.

Football teams at the University of Wisconsin are now wearing headgears and hose to match, both being flaming scarlet in colour.

of the difficult role of Mrs. Dowey, and the pantomime at the conclusion was real stuff. Mr. Gordon Nield was responsible for the role of Kenneth Dowey, the materialized son, and fitted the part admirably, apart from a slight disinclination at times to snap out of it. The three charwomen were represented very limelously by Miles, Marion Scott, Norah Armstrong and Marion Partridge. The part of the dominie was taken in a highly polished manner by Mr. Will. Lockhart, who was clerical to the degree n. The play was directed by Mr. A. B. Fennell.

At the conclusion of the performance the President of the club, Mr. W. E. P. DeRoche, commented on the preferability of Hart House Theatre as a meeting place, and also announced that the main production of the year would be "The Private Secretary" by Charles Hawtrey, to be presented on November 30 and December 1.

Letters of Lovely Laura Louise
Betty Receives Mother's Letter

(D. Kendall)

N.B. Inadvertently Laura Louise mixed her letters. Her friend Betty received the weekly home epistle and vice versa.

The Residence,
Friday, Nov. 2nd.

Ma cher mere:

I have been so busy that I haven't had time to write. You see what with sixteen hours lectures a week and the P.T. and other things, one time is simply overflowing. Of course, I am working hard. That is why I came to University. The lectures in economics especially are so interesting and I wouldn't be surprised if I sprang into it.

I went to a show last week. I know that I hadn't ought to have spared the time, but I must have a little relaxation from my work. It is imperative. There were seven girls last year that were absolutely 'gone' when it was time to write the exams. You wouldn't want me to be a nervous wreck on account of overwork, I know.

I am sorry but I haven't had time to go and see Aunt Kate as yet. I know I should, but there's something on every night. I mean what with the heavy amount of lectures that I have got. I met one awfully nice boy here. His name was Darcie Harrison, but I haven't gone out with him for some time for several reasons. I am much too busy. There is a Masquerade in the future. It isn't really a dance, just University people that dress up and get prizes for the best costume that they have got on. You won't mind will you if I go. I think that I can spare the time if I work hard. I see Jimmy once in a while. He is getting important. He's a fraternity man now. He's going around with a new girl. I should tell Betty, but I hate to do it. Betty writes me every week and I write her about my work.

Do you think that you could talk Papa into getting me a new dress. In University circles you have to be so careful what you wear. I had better get it myself, and let Papa pay. As a matter of fact I know the one that I want. I had it sent up on approval and had it on for a while last night when I came home from the Library. Everyone said that I looked simply stunning in it.

I went to Church last Sunday and did as you told me and made myself acquainted with the rector. He said that he hoped to see me again. He hasn't phoned yet. He was awfully young to be a rector. I am going to church again next Sunday for sure. It is eight o'clock now. I have to do some preparatory work for the evening.

Love to all,

Laura Louise.

P.S. The dress cost thirty-five. Break it gently to Papa after supper.

out of the city with him to apply for the deposition of bursar at the University of Mimico. That was a week ago and he had failed to land the job.

Ronald was hungry. Suddenly the delicate aroma of cooked food stimulated his olfactory nerve endings—Beefsteak! His eyes eagerly followed his nose upward to a brightly lighted second story window where a young woman sat eating a hot beef sandwich.

"Please, miss, could I come up and swat flies for a bite to eat?" he asked timidly.

The girl ignored him. Desperate, Ronald tried another scheme. Squatting on his haunches he pointed his nose to the sky and barked loudly. With a kindly smile the girl threw him a piece of hot steak.

But it was not to be. Fate had another disappointment for him. For somehow the meat missed his opened mouth and fell under his collar, down his back and out his pant leg, burning all the way. He reached for it in the mud but a passing dog snatched it away from under his groping fingers. But Ronald had forgotten his hunger when he had seen the beautiful smile that the girl had smiled.

COMPULSORY CHAPEL THING OF THE PAST ON TORONTO CAMPUS

Full Attendance Not Secured at Trinity Chapel Services
Despite Regulations

VOLUNTARY AT VICTORIA

Undergraduates Interviewed
Are Opposed to Compulsion in Military Training

Compulsory chapel, even in Trinity, where it has long been a time honoured regulation, seems to be a thing of the past in the University of Toronto, while compulsory military training is practically unknown, so far as could be discovered by "The Varsity" in interviews with men from the various arts colleges with reference to the editorial in Friday's issue on compulsory chapel in American colleges.

In Trinity College, men in residence are supposed to attend chapel at 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. and on Sundays at 11 a.m. Fifty per cent of the total attendance is required of every student according to the rules, a copy of which is given to each man on entering college. In reality, however, few of the men are said to obey this rule.

At St. Michael's College, every residence student has to attend a service at 7 a.m. This rule seems to be strictly enforced, though a number of students of the college are not in sympathy with it. Several, who are now non-residents, declared that it was one of the reasons why they had left residence.

At Victoria College there is a daily service at 9.50 a.m. taken by the professors. This is purely a voluntary affair, and according to most of those spoken to by "The Varsity" is popular and well attended.

Every day at 12.30 p.m. there is a short service in Hart House Chapel. So far this has not been largely attended, although there are a number who go to it regularly.

Their Sins

DRINKING, PETTING Special to "The Varsity"

U. of Washington, Seattle.—Rough week, drinking, petting and gambling received each in turn its condemnation recently from President M. Lyle Spencer coupled with an appeal for co-operation toward their elimination when he addressed a gathering of nearly 2,000 sorority and fraternity members in Meany hall.

"I have called you together because you are the chief sinners on the campus. Affiliated students are six times as bad as non-fraternity members," the president stated in the preface of his talk.

Taking up the question of rough week first, he declared that he could "take steps to stop rough week if I wanted to, but I don't believe that is the best method. Instead I am bringing the problem to you."

"I believe rough week should be cut out entirely," he said in reply to a question from the audience.

When a student rose and told the president that he thought rough week helped to cut out snobbishness, Doctor Spencer replied that "beating snob-

GHETTO LIFE DEFENDED BECAUSE HOME LIFE PURE

Miss Abramowitz Outlines History of Jewish Restriction

"Although a cramped physical condition was the result of Ghetto life, this effect was external only and there were no serious moral evils, because the purity of Jewish home life counteracted life in the slums," said Miss Rose Abramowitz in her talk on "The Political and Social Emancipation of the Jews," on Saturday afternoon at the Menorah discussion group.

Miss Abramowitz gave an outline of Jewish restriction and persecution through the ages, which resulted only in a more secluded and self-sufficient race. This condition was contrasted with the freedom and privileges in modern social and political life.

In the discussion that followed the question was brought up whether the Jew was making full use of his opportunities. No definite conclusion was arrived at.

Distribution of Year Cards

Third Year

EXECUTIVE NOT DUMB

"I think a class party is an invitation of the devil. We're the only year intelligent enough to protest against them," said Charlotte Dinnick, a junior of University College, referring to Mr. Tracy's objection to Friday party year cards, in "The Varsity" 370 day.

The president of the year thought that the first and second year parties were the best, which fact is making it hard to sell year cards to the class of 370 at University College. He explained his principle of diminishing returns on year parties by saying, "Oh, there are many who come up here just for a social flutter and they only last a year or two."

Referring to Mr. Tracy's letter in Friday's "Varsity" saying that the executive were "trifling with the honour of their fellow students," meaning that students could use the blank year cards enclosed without paying their dues, the president said: "We're not that dumb. All those cards are numbered." (Continued on page 4)

NATIONALISM A PROBLEM SAYS MICKLEOM OF QUEEN'S

S.C.A. Preacher Remarks on Christianity and Nationalism

"Nationalism, the burning problem in the world to-day, finds a solution in the life of Jesus Christ," stated Professor Mickleom of Queen's University in his sermon on "The Relation between Nationalism and Christianity," in Convocation Hall Sunday evening.

The spirit of nationalism is awakening everywhere, and the speaker pointed out, it isn't the imperial nationalism of Mussolini or of "Britannia rules the waves" but that it is the missionary nationalism of Jesus Christ which is the power of freely giving and serving.

Professor Mickleom, comparing the Old with the New Testament, proved that when Christ came he refused to have anything to do with nationalism in the Jewish sense which was one of resentment toward foreign power, and as a result He gave His life for His country and His ideal of nationalism.

WOMEN FEEL IGNORED KEPT FROM DEBATES

Shall Women Be Allowed in Hart House
Parliament

CANNOT REACH AGREEMENT

The question of whether or not women should be allowed to participate in Hart House debates is causing a good deal of feeling on the subject to run high. "The Varsity" found, "Co-education is not worthy of the name unless the women are on an equal footing with the men and have the same opportunities," some co-ed claim.

That the women have proved themselves able exponents of the art of debating and feel that if they are capable of holding their own with the women of other universities, the men of their own ought to realize their existence by admitting them to the war of words in Hart House, was the opinion of a prominent 3rd year B. and M. student who insisted on remaining nameless, and that the equality of the sexes ought to be maintained in this respect.

PUBLICITY NOT NEEDED FOR SCARLET AND GOLD

"Please don't give these Scarlet and Gold dances a big write-up in 'The Varsity,'" was the request of Mr. J. Bright of Victoria College.

The Scarlet and Gold dance held Saturday evening at Wymilwood under the management of the Scarlet and Gold committee composed of "Gold" Cooper, M. Paisley and M. Hager certainly was accorded most enthusiastic patronage.

ENRAGED SPECTATORS DESCEND ON OFFICIAL

Near Fight Averted by Police at Stadium
Saturday

A near fight was only averted after Saturday's game at the stadium when the police intervened to save a Kitchener man who had acted as a touch-line official during the game, from the hands of enraged spectators.

It seems that during the game the official in question had carried on a running controversy with nearby rooters. When the final whistle blew, some hundreds of those who had seen him descended from the stands and made towards the official.

The Kitchener team ran out of their dressing room and surrounded the man who, safely hidden in the midst of the team, continued to address the crowd.

Then nearly then turned their attention to an unknown man in a bowler hat. The intervention of the police saved the situation. With nothing further to do the crowd dispersed.

TRINITY LEGISLATORS CONDEMN COSMETICS

Are Detrimental to Mankind
Literary Institute Decides
By Close Vote

BLAMED FOR DIVORCE EVIL

If the Trinity College Literary Institute had legislative powers, women would no longer be allowed the use of cosmetics. By a vote of 34-27, the Institute on Friday night decided that "in the opinion of the house the use of cosmetics by women is detrimental to mankind."

J. Craig led for the government in upholding the motion. "Inscrutability had for the soul," he stated, "had for the mental health of the world." Behind insincerity lay the influence of cosmetics.

M. T. De Pencier, in opposition, considered cosmetics indispensable. Men without exception demanded that women use them. "Save the surface and you save all," he concluded.

From the floor of the house advice on the subject was plentiful. Most seemed to speak from personal contact with the subject of the discussion. Divorce, the W.C.T.U. and other declared evils of the age were all attributed to its influence. Against this the opposition endeavoured to show the economic necessity of cosmetics.

L. M. Gelber was present at the debate as a visitor from the University College Parliamentary Club. He spoke to assure the members of Trinity College U.C. did exist.

LUCKY NUMBER DANCE FEATURES U.C. AFFAIRS

"On with the dance, let joy be unconfined," seemed to be the motto at Jenkins' Art Galleries last Saturday night when University College held their annual dance. The programme, done in University College colours, spelled out "University College" on the cover in a unique design.

A feature of the evening was, as announced by the committee, "a lucky number dance without numbers." It consisted of one of the committee, during the lapses in the music, ordering first one group of people and then another off the floor till finally only two couples were left. The lucky couple was chosen from these and presented with prizes by the chaperone.

HIGHEST STUDY OF MAN IN MAN SAYS HUTTON

Addresses Wycliffe on Religious and Classical Studies

"The highest study of mankind is man," said ex-principal of U.C. speaking on "Classical Studies in Relation to Clerical Work," at the Wycliffe College Literary Society on Friday night. The only practical science in this world, he continued, is the science which we all need every day and hour such as common decency, modesty, self-control and so forth. Scientific men are to-day improving the materialistic civilization, rather than the spiritual.

In concluding he pointed out that it would be a real advantage to us to pursue classical studies to reduce the danger of emotional religion.

NEWSPAPERS IN BULK AN ENORMOUS WASTE

Prof. W. A. Parks Depreciates Diminishing Forests in Canada

MUST SUPPLEMENT NATURE

That the necessity of economic hoarding of minerals is very great, was opinion of Prof. W. A. Parks in a presidential address to the Royal Canadian Society on Friday evening. He deprecated the use of platinum—a very rare and useful metal—in jewelry and pointed out that the store of metals was not inexhaustible and he considered the depletion of them by this generation an injustice to posterity.

Dr. Parks then mentioned the diminishing of the forests, and considered that newspapers in bulk were an enormous waste.

Speaking of agriculture, Dr. Parks said that agricultural production was controlled by heat, rainfall and soils. The former two were controlled by latitude and the physical structure of the country. Soils are decayed rocks and both chemically and physically are related to rocks.

Soils of eastern Canada are controlled largely by the events of the ice-age, the soils of Manitoba by post-glacial lakes, and those of Alberta (gumbo) by volcanic ashes of an earlier time.

Lady Falconer Tells Women in Answering Toast

The annual Autumn Tea, given by the Women's Undergraduate Association took place on Saturday afternoon in East and West Halls of University College.

Miss Eleanor Barton, the president of the W.U.A., and Mrs. Brett gave kindly words of welcome to the freshies. Lady Falconer, replying to the toast to the University, reminded them that they must live up to their ambitions, and said: "Never worry when you hear talk of the giants of other days; remember our attainment is a higher level all the way across."

Mrs. Kirkwood, replying to the toast to the College, spoke of the sisterhood and binding ties that college life fostered. "Every scholar," she remarked, "must remember that learning is a force as strong as religion, combatting social selfishness and materialism."

Playing on a greasy and treacherous field, the Orphans defeated the Kitchener-Waterloo team 12 to 1. Putting up one of the best fights of the season, the Varsity squad outplayed Kitchener in all departments.

Jack Sinclair, playing well, led the Blue and White in an aerial attack, ably assisted by Baillie, and later relieved by McFadyen, who did some pretty booting in the last quarter. These three men form a backfield that is hard to beat, Sinclair and McFadyen relieving each other on the kicking end, and Baillie handling the ball well on the catches.

The daring passing of Ferguson and Hill for Kitchener was a feature of the game, these lads making valiant attempts to cut down the Orphans' lead. However, an old Balmy Beach player, did some effective tackling and plunging for the visitors.

Ruddell's generalship as quarterback for Varsity was largely responsible for the victory, coupled with the fact that every man in the line was giving his best. Varsity had the edge on the play throughout the game, everything seeming to run smoothly for the Blue team.

In the first quarter Sinclair opened the scoring by kicking over the line to Hill, who chased back and forth with the Varsity tacklers on his heels, until he was downed for a rouge. Sinclair kicked again to Hill, who was unable to run it out. Score at the end of the first quarter: Varsity 2, Kitchener 0.

In the second quarter Sinclair again kicked for a rouge, repeating the performance twice in the latter part of the frame, making the score at half-time: Varsity 5, Kitchener 0. (Continued on page 3)

Special to "The Varsity"
Leeds, England.—The two Canadian university students, M. K. Keeny of the University of Toronto and R. M. Alexander of McGill, Montreal, who are making a debating tour of English universities, had an enlightening experience at Leeds University Friday night. They opposed a motion which deplored the influence of toy soldiers on the young. They were overwhelmingly supported by the vote but confessed it was the noisiest meeting they had ever attended.

The hall was plastered with legends such as "Good old Canada," "Canada is wet," and references to boy and woman emigrants. When the gallery greeted the visitors with "Yankee Doodle" the Canadians felt obliged to point out that such a musical selection, however well-intended, was not

ARTS FOR ARTS' SAKE

"What good is a general Arts course?" and "What good are you going to get out of your honour course?" are questions with which everyone in the Faculty of Arts has been pestered at one time or another. At those times the Arts student is helpless before the comparison, real or implied, of his own lack of energy and purpose and the solidly established position of the student in Medicine, Dentistry or Engineering. Professors may scoff at the ignorance displayed by the advocates of absolute utilitarianism in education but among the thin red line of the old guard there is evidently a weakening of the ranks.

The latest defence of an Arts training appears in the Queen's Quarterly from the pen of Principal Bruce Taylor. It reiterates all the customary arguments proper to this view but makes one concession which is of noteworthy significance.

In discussing his subject, "The Function of a University," the writer begins by affirming that "the main issues are connected, not with the Faculties of Medicine or of Applied Science but with the Faculty of Arts. . . . Education in the real sense is not vocational."

The proceeds to stress the value of the study of Literature, of Philosophy and of History for their own sake:

"Then, apart altogether from the question of mental discipline, there are other subjects which should form part of the course of study for anyone who seeks to hold a degree in 'Humane Arts.' It is strange to recall how seriously English literature has had to struggle for a place in a university curriculum. In the old strictly classical education there was ground for the view that the severe study of another language gave exactitude in the use of one's own. A certain ease in handling the English language is characteristic of men trained in the classic tradition. But in a newer land the discipline in English must come more directly; nor can it be taken for granted, as in an older civilization, that the student comes from an atmosphere of books and from a home where an interest in public life is hereditary. The whole splendid field of English letters apart from special books studied in school is still untrodden by many a freshman. To introduce him to the great heritage of English letters, to awaken his curiosity, to send him rambling among the library shelves is indeed a missionary work."

He defends the study of Philosophy:

"Philosophy gets nowhere" is the common jibe of the unwitting who consider thinkers to be merely people of pugnacity, who argue for argument's sake on subjects, futile and vexatious. Many a student, having taken Philosophy and gained a bare pass mark on this subject, lets any further consideration of it go. The real question is whether Philosophy has 'taken' him, whether for the rest of his days he will be a more humble man, realizing that in a world of scientific and material progress the old fundamental questions of God and destiny, of right and duty, of pleasure and pain remain exactly where they were, not to be solved by any, least of all by the hippodrome or by the idle, and though insoluble, to be grappled with by all able minds."

He defends the study of History:

"But, if the history of thought is important, equally so is the history of things as they have come to be. We have all of us dealt with dates and outlines and lists, and we may as the result have some conception of history as stratification, one living layer on a number of dead ones. And, if we have had occasion to study the Cambridge Modern History, we have noticed that anything that sets out to be the reporter of the mere fact can be amazingly dull in the telling of a great story. The study of history is more than the acquisition of facts. There must come out of it some sense of the continuity of things and of ideas as giving life to facts. The sequence of events becomes history only when it passes from narrative into interpretation. The interpretation may be wrong, but it serves the purpose if it gives the student a thread on which isolated facts may be strung, or a distrust that, challenging the interpretation, induces him to make a stronger theory for himself. James Bryce lived a long and honourable life, but the greatest thing he did was his historical literary effort. For most students the Middle Ages were dark indeed but Bryce's 'Holy Roman Empire' was a revelation and a clue. It is a curiously limited mind which says that history is bunk. At all events it is the record of the way in which our liberties have been won and the university graduate should have some sense of what he owes to the yesterday."

Again, he makes a down-right assertion of the individualistic theory of education:

"The truth is that education and system have little in common. System applied to the individual isolates him from his kind, applied to the mass it slows down the pace and leaves no room for the exceptional child. Education is a result of many things that will come within no time-table. It is the outcome of a whole world of irrelevancies. It is books, and accuracy, and patience, and failure, but it is as well blue sky and white water, the wrestling in the back lot, wasted time, emell, friendship, passion, egotism, sickness, waiting. It is experience more than knowledge. No Board of Education or University Faculty can make its curriculum. It will always remain something haphazard, nor will universities have any monopoly of it. But it need be neither pretentious nor materialistic."

Thus far Principal Taylor follows the thought of his group in orthodox fashion. But he breaks with them in what might be called the immediate battle ground of the partisans of the cultural and the vocational points of view. He makes what many will think a fatal admission:

Art, Music and Drama

Friday Afternoon Recital

Mr. Randolph Crowe was the artist at the Friday recital. Mr. Crowe is possessed of a remarkably fine baritone voice—a powerful voice quite adequate for the programme he gave in the Music Room. Perhaps we might question his choice of songs, however, and in particular we feel that the "Hansel and Gretel" song, translated from the opera stage and divested of all the atmosphere which costume and action lend to operatic songs, was hardly suited to the intimacy of an evening recital. The "Song of the Vagabonds" too has its qualities and we like it—in its place. Granted that an audience responds to the vigorous swing of the Friml popular air, we remain assured that the same audience would acknowledge quite as sincerely any tribute Mr. Crowe might pay their taste, if he were to select songs of deeper musical significance, more worthy of the attention of the hearers, and more deserving of the artists' voice and interpretation. J.J.K.

After Saturday's Ballspiel we cannot help but interpret the general feeling that McGill, after all, is not such an abysmal wash-out as an university.

In other words, Varsity will have another crack at the Blow-throth takers from Queen's.

And three good ones for the Orfuns.

How about this small one from Cornell:

PATERNITY

I sent my son to college,
With a pat upon the back,
I spent five thousand dollars,
And got a quarterback.

"Even though it may look like moving the foundations of an Arts training, it is likely that the compulsory Latin prescription will soon vanish from the Arts Course. Those who wish to study the classics will have every opportunity of doing so, and those who by training are not fitted to use such instruction will choose something else. Such a change would not be a letting down of barriers, but an acknowledgment that conditions in this land do not favour the laying of emphasis on the classical tradition. The practical disappearance of Greek in England has shown that a generation ago undue emphasis was laid on Greek as a part of a liberal education. The world of education is not falling in ruins since that change has come about. There are other subjects which will give a training as vigorous as Latin Grammar, subjects which a student can undertake without having, so to speak, his hands tied. There is all the difference in the world between the mental attitude induced by a barrier and an avenue."

Opposition to this was expressed in a newspaper interview by Emeritus Principal Hutton of University College who still staunchly upholds the cardinal importance of the classics. But Principal Taylor's statement is one in consonance with present day events. As he says, the arguments in favour of the teaching of Latin are as valid as ever. But just as Greek, once the foundation stone of English studies, has slipped from its high place, so he expects Latin to become an option and not a necessity. An interesting sidelight on his comparison of classical studies in England is provided by a recent newspaper interview with one of the visiting British parliamentarians. This gentleman commented on the passing from the Imperial House of the custom of Greek quotation. Further support for Principal Taylor's prediction comes in the abolition of compulsory Latin for admission into our own Faculty of Applied Science. This was effected at the request of the Dominion Department of Labour which administers the technical Education grants made by the dominion to the provinces.

This tendency is undoubtedly accurately described by Principal Taylor. But many who argue with the rest of his remarks will regret his failure to protect against the decline in the study of Latin. They regard it as the thin edge of the wedge. And it will certainly remove the logical background of all study of Literature, Philosophy and History.

Dear Sir:

I read with a great deal of amusement and concern the letter published in the Friday, Nov. 2, issue of your publication dealing with the system of selling the year cards of class of 370 of University College. I was amused at the anxiety of the writer lest he should be black listed, a horrible fate, for attending the parties without paying, and I was deeply concerned over the fact or rather statement that "they were trifling with the (Continued on page 4)"

ORPHANS DECISIVELY OUTPLAY KITCHENER TO KEEP IN RUNNING

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The Orphans on Saturday put up one of their finest displays of the season in defeating the Kitchener-Waterloo outfit. They were the better team in every department with the plunging, tackling and booting the best yet shown by the Jimmie Douglas squad.

Jack Sinclair certainly can boot the oval. He punted five counters in the first half, and his knowledge of when to return them and when to run them back is as good as that of any man playing Intercollegiate to-day.

Doug, McFadden came back with a bang. He showed some clever catching on the backfield, while his booting was quite up to the mark, counting two in the last quarter.

"Soapy" Soannes almost had one for the "little red book" on Saturday. He hid behind the rotund Ross Craig unobserved by either team and in a fine position for a long pass or an inside kick that might have swung the game towards the K's, but the rooters gave the show away. He almost performed the same way a little later in the quarter, but again was frustrated. The fellow that says rooters are of no use to the team was shown "hiss" that day.

The Varsity rooters must never forget that they are at a University that has at least a reputation for sportsmanship. The "Smart Aleck" who tripped that touch line official and flung him into the mud and then disappeared when opposition was shown, certainly does not come up to the standards set by the Blue warriors on the field.

The Intercollegiate race is certainly upsetting the "pickers." The defeat of the Tricolour by the Reds was surprising, to say the least, but it gives Varsity a chance that they may make use of nobly.

If the Blackwell hopefuls improve for their third game as much as they improved for their second over their first attempt McGill will find itself all knotted up in a triple tie.

TWENTY-FIVE PARTIES CELEBRATE HALLOWE'EN

Hallowe'en at the University Settlement was celebrated by twenty-five parties. From the tiniest children up every club held an evening of merry-making. Even the mothers' clubs masqueraded for a night. Perhaps the wildest party was on Hallowe'en itself when several volunteer students put over a hundred Settlement boys through many novel forms of initiation, while the Night Hawks, the older boys' club, wound up the festivities with a dance.

The costuming at the parties was a most attractive feature, many appearing in their own national dress. The participation of the students added much to the enjoyment of the fun.

Vacancies in Teams

The University of Toronto Women's Interfaculty Swimming Meet usually takes place in February or March, and while training does not begin in earnest till after Christmas, the women interested are already on their toes. The number promises to be a goodly one. To judge by some of the performers who have been turning out at the Lillian Massey swimming pool, there should be no dearth of excellent material.

The year 1927-28 was an auspicious one for the mermaids of University College. Swimming was the one sport in which the women of U.C. carried off the palm. Miss Margaret MacDonald of U.C. won the championship, having the most points, while Miss Iolene Taylor, also of U.C., carried off the diving honours. This was most creditable for U.C. considering the splendid representations from St. Hilda's, Victoria and O.C.E.

U.C. has lost two brilliantly dependable figures in Miss Amy Essery and Miss Kay Scholes, who have both graduated. Miss Scholes distinguished herself in ornamental diving. Miss MacDonald and Miss Taylor are back this year and promise to uphold U.C. in better form than ever.

PENN STATE COLLEGE BEAT VARSITY FOOTERS

Penn State College defeated the Varsity soccer team at Penn State, Pennsylvania, on Saturday afternoon by a score of 5 to 3. The Varsity men were weakened by the loss of King, star half-back, who was unable to make the trip.

The teams were forced to play on a very heavy field during a drizzling rain, making it hard going for the fast forwards. "Doug" Davidson, playing left inside forward, turned in a good game for Varsity, scoring two of the goals. Skeleton at centre forward put in the other shot.

VARSITY SHOW EARLY FORM

The Varsity British rugby team lost to McGill at the Molson Stadium, Montreal, on Saturday 3-0, and so failed to regain the Intercollegiate title. Heavy rain had rendered the pitch a sea of mud, and handling of the greasy ball was well nigh impossible. The game consequently resolved itself into a battle between the opposing forwards.

Varsity opened strongly with vigorous forward rushes, dribbling the ball right to the McGill line, and were unlucky not to score in the first few minutes, their opponents being compelled to make a safety touch. The Blue and White continued to press, but Hands, McGill three-quarter, kicking a loose ball ahead and following up, scored a try for McGill, which was unconverted.

McGill: Full back, Nelson; backs, Hands, Hart, Chalmers, Rice; half backs, Kincaid, Gibson, Langstroth; forwards, Norris, de Chazal, Heeney, Barr, Skinner, Lake, McMillan. Varsity: Full back, Gale; backs, Stuart, Marshall, Lee, Goldenburg; halves, Armstrong, Rogers, Roome (capt.); forwards, Nash, Archibald, Bell, Schelch, Hills, Godsoe, Burton; spare, Franklin.

S.P.S. showed decided superiority over Dents when they defeated them 9 to 0 in their scheduled Mulock Cup game.

McVean, of School, kicked two rouges in the second and one in the third and one in the fourth quarter. Offsides, fumbles and a weak line enabled the S.P.S. squad to get into position for the single points. Sinclair, the kicking half of Dents, was given terrible protection, whereas the School line was airtight.

In the third quarter School bucked Dents against their own line. Sinclair attempted to kick his team out of the hole, but it was blocked.

TREMAINE MCGILL STAR

Clever Game in Spite of Slippery Field and Wet Ball

(Bobby Clark, Sports Editor of the Queen's Journal)

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 4.—McGill defeated Queen's here yesterday on a muddy gridiron that was more appropriate for the bed of a river than a playing field. By their victory the Red men gained a stranglehold on the title. Unless the home team jinx persists, McGill will win their first rugby title since 1919.

The Montrealeers were not vastly superior, but they played a strong consistent game behind Tremaine's good kicking. The R.M.C. star booted well despite the mud and had the edge over his Tricolour rivals. McGill showed more strength than they have exhibited to date, and if they continue to improve, Varsity will have a real job downing the Red men next Saturday.

McGill earned a rouge in the first quarter and added a touchdown in the second. This major score was the result of an onside kick, over which there was doubt of player recovering being onside. It was allowed and made the score 6 to 0. They added another single before first period ended, while all Queen's could get was one point on Carter's kick, for a rouge. Each team added a point in the half. Queen's tried end run after end run, then onside kicks, but could not break through the stubborn McGill defence. Several times the Tricolour came close to a touchdown but just fell short. Tremaine was the McGill star, but his support was excellent. Brown at quarter proved a capable field general. For Queen's, Armour Munro, "Blurp" Stewart and Durham showed to most advantage, though Eddie Handford was a stone wall on defence.

Queen's: Flying wing, Durham; halves, Carter, Munro, Warren; quarter, Sutton; snap, Nagel; insides, Handford, Basserman; middles, Monahan, Kilgour; outsides, Agnew, Wright; subs, Stuart, Caldwell, Gilmore, Gorman.

McGill: Flying wing, Lovering; halves, Tremaine, Dougherty, Smyth; quarter, Brown; snap, Swabey; insides, Littlefield, C. Church; middles, McTeer, H. Church; outsides, Urquhart, Young; full backs, Granger, Swabey, Chard, Lapin. Officials: Referee, Joe O'Brien; umpire, Capt. Panet; head linesman, E. Dixon.

Jolofsky; snap, Kickham; insides, Merritt, Masiello; middles, Kasch, Mitchell; outsides, Shaver, Mutchmore; subs, Catarino, Beesley, Horwitz, Watson.

Sen. School: Flying wing, Caruthers; halves, Clark, Armstrong; McVean; quarter, Kearns; snap,

BLUE JUNIOR TEAM WIN GROUP TITLE

Wet Field Causes Slow Game as Varsity Win by
3-1 Score

KICKING WINS GAME

In the group play-off last Saturday Varsity Juniors emerged victorious after an evenly contested struggle by the score of 3 to 1. Owing to the terrible condition of the field individual brilliance was out of the question, and neither team was able to do itself justice.

The Blue and White opened the scoring in the initial period, getting in position to score through a fumble by the Baptists' rearguard. Robinson booted the ball over for one point. In the second stanza Thomas put McMaster on even terms when he kicked a single over the Blue line. In the third period both Richardson and Robinson kicked for a point, which completed the scoring for the game.

Leamen, McLean and B. Whidden were the losers' best, while Robinson, Bennett and Crocker excelled for the victorious Juniors.

McMaster: Flying wing, Barton; halves, Thomas, Leamen, Stewart; quarter, Westbrook; snap, Lowden; insides, Haeberlin, Ivens; middles, B. Whidden, Zavitz; outsides, Reynolds, H. Whidden; subs, Stainton, Abbott, McLean, Sanderson, Ivson, McGowan.

Varsity: Flying wing, Bennett; halves, G. Smith, Robinson, D. Smith; quarter, Heintzman; snap, Campbell; insides, Jackson, Stringer; middles, Wilson, Farwell; outsides, Crocker, Gibb; subs, Richardson, Perkins, Britnell, Thompson, Connor, Saunders.

Cree: insides, Wolstoff, Robinson; middles, McMorly, Jones; outsides, Colombo, McCarthy; subs, MacDonald, Carter, Switzer, Hill, Howe, Gladman, Strong.

Blue Harriers Third in Intercollegiate Meet

The Intercollegiate Harrier Race at R.M.C. Saturday was won by Royal Military College, three of their runners being the first to finish. McGill were second, Varsity third and Queen's fourth. Greenwood, who finished the five and a half miles of the course in 31 minutes 6 2-5 seconds, was only four seconds ahead of his team-mate, Groves, and the latter only beat out Stuart by three and one-fifth seconds. The winners of the harrier race are determined by the teams making the lowest number of marks, first place counting one point, second place two points, etc. R.M.C. had 17 points, McGill 30, Varsity 44 and Queen's 45.

AERIAL ATTACK BRINGS VICTORY TO ORPHANS

At the beginning of the third quarter a new ball was brought out. Hill of Kitchener refused to kick off with it and the old one was restored. Kitchener opened up the playing by doing some sensational passing. Ferguson took the ball from Hill to run 30 yards before being downed. Kitchener scored in this quarter when Ferguson kicked to the deadline for a point. Score at the end of the third quarter: Varsity 5, Kitchener 1.

In the fourth quarter Sailer went over for a touch, and McFadyen kicked to Ferguson and then to Hill for the two final points, making the final score: Varsity 12, Kitchener 1.

Varsity: Flying wing, Carriack; halves, Baillie, Sinclair, Snider; quarterback, Ruddell; snap, McCullough; insides, Galloway, J. Wood; middles, M. Scott, Adams; outsides, Wright, Cartwright; subs, D. Wood, Stringer, McFadyen, Johnson, Kernohan, Knowles, Hatton.

Kitchener: Flying wing, Gaskin; halves, Ferguson, Kinsman, Hill; quarterback, Woodcroft; snap, Brethaupt; insides, Russell, McDermost; middles, Hendry, Wolfe; outsides, Springstead, Moore; subs, Schneider, Peters, Moore, Soannes, Kuntz, Lauvray, Sengbusch, Vanstone, Davidson, F. Scagrane, Norman.

FRATERNITY MEMBERS WORST ON CAMPUS

bikeness out of a freshman cannot come in a week."

Turning to the question of drinking, the president enumerated four possible methods to employ in eliminating the use of liquor from fraternities and sororities, which included spying, personal raids, tipping federal officials and appealing directly to the student body for co-operation.

"The chosen this latter way—coming man to man appealing to you to join with me for right conduct on the Washington campus."

After asking for less gambling in organized houses, Doctor Spencer expressed himself as opposed to promiscuous petting.

"We as older people know the consequences that come from playing with fire."

"I want you as groups to go back to your houses and take up these things and ask your president or secretary to write me a letter telling me what response I may expect from your groups," he concluded.

Several students arose after the speech at the invitation of the president to defend round week, and one from came out in favour of petting. President Spencer asked him to come down to his office to be convinced that he was wrong.

Chief Bullshooters Bellyache Pow Wow in Moose Mansion

(A. H. Arrell)

Now according to the moon and the stars the bullshooting season was at hand—it being the fraternity rushing season. So a mighty Pow Wow of bullshooters was held in Moose Mansion. Great were the bull shooters and great was the bull each shoot. There was among them the Chief of the South Sayers. Those high minded gentlemen living in the past, and believing the present should only be recorded in Sunday school leaflets and who relate the doings of the Great Chiefs from the past to the Present. His closest competitor was Chief of the Darkened Star. That Birch Bark scroll which little chief Purple Robe said was getting all yellow with age. Chief of the Darkened Star it seems was a hunter and a good one too except that his eye was dim and his hand twitched. He spoke to Government as follows:

You'll think it funny,
But my father made the money;
I live in Rosedale,
When papers are put up for sale,
I buy the Star,
Although it's quite bizarre;
And when I go to bed at night,
Although it makes me quite a sight,
My head is folded in the same,
That I may read, My Name, My Name.

There was also the Chief of Baldwins who loved not the way the scribes reported the Great Indian War Dance which his frosh put on in all their war paint.

But we deeply regreted the absence of some of our friends. You remember how last year the Chief of Financial Stake visited us and chased around a RED squirrel which had made the Indian sign of insolence at him which is made, by the way, with the nose and the thumb. It then ran up the Chief of Moose Mansion's pant leg, who when the Chief of the Financial Stake tried to recover it extolled to him the benefits of freedom of speech.

Then also we missed Grigory called Chief Pork and Beans not for the reason you think, but because for generations his ancestors had much Pork and Beans. You'll remember how last year coincident with the introduction of firewater into the Happy Hunting Ground Chief Pork and Beans got kicked out by the Janitor and he believed it was the President under the impression that because he had been treated most appropriately and because only the President is able to treat a man most appropriately therefore it must have been the President.

I woke up to hear Paddy talking about Firewater getting kicked out, the Old Mill and some Red Headed girl from Vanc, but I couldn't get it straight.

and as each two dollars comes in we mark it down on the list, and that list is at the door to check with each year card presented." The president thought that the circular letter was the best way of getting the money from the men. "This is the first objection I have heard to the system."

"The Varsity," however, found several violent objectors.

Lionel M. Gelber has not paid his two dollars nor is he going to do so. "I am now paying dues to one, two, three, four other organizations that I am interested in, and as I do not want to attend the year parties, I do not see any reason for paying the dues."

W. R. Howard did not think the "conscientious objectors" had any real cause for complaint either as to the dues or the method of collection. "In the States they are selling goods that way. If you don't want what is sent, you send it back. I think the system all right; there's the number on each card to keep track of those that haven't paid."

One in Thousand Reaches Powers of His Personality

Monsignor Morton, who is a graduate in Science of the University of London, England, and a noted astronomer, in addressing the students of St. Joseph's College on Sunday afternoon stated that "only one person in a thousand develops the highest powers of his personality." Personality is most powerfully influenced by heredity and environment. The influence of heredity on personality is not moral, said the speaker—that is, although tendencies are inherited, they can always be combated and conquered by the will.

honour of their fellow students." May I say that I feel sure that the executive of 370 would not think of trifling with anyone's honour, least of all the honour of a student in the third year at University College.

I take particular exception to one passage: "With this letter are enclosed a blank year card, which may be made valid simply by the attachment of my signature, and a blank envelope." In reading a copy of the letter which was sent to the members of class 370 U.C. I can find no passage which would give rise to the above statement, namely that a blank year card could be made valid by the attachment of the writer's signature. No other signatures, sir, but those of the five members of the above executive, can validate one of the 370 year cards, and that, may I add, is only attached upon receipt of two dollars.

The worthy writer, sir, it appears, is unable to see wherein he is supporting his "year and college." Is it possible that he expects that the class

MOTHER KNOWS BEST—UPTOWN

Outside all Toronto and its best girls were lined up four deep to Bloor Street and around the corner. Inside our readers were calling Toronto, Toikes and even Uni's. At last it was the hour of midnight. Jack Arthur stopped playing and the show began with community singing.

The movietone started presently. It is very clear and smooth for everything but high sopranos and stage whispers. George Bernard Shaw came out, as it were, and spoke to us about himself, and his face in that rambling but delightful way in which only Shaw could talk about himself. We enjoyed this immensely.

The feature, "What Every Mother Should Know," or, pardon us, "Mother Knows Best," was not as good as some we have seen, though this was neither the fault of the movietone, or, we think, of the acting, but of the play itself. It is taken from an Edna Ferber novel and began very promisingly, but it got continuously more and more melodramatic, and a few seventy horse power stage whispers at the end were a little too much. Louise Dresser, Marge Bellamy and Barry Norton did some good acting but even they could not altogether hold the audience in the final climax.

The movietone played music most of the time, and only a few subtitles were spoken, but we think that they added to the picture. At any rate the music, particularly the singing, is infinitely better than one can usually hear at an ordinary show. We almost felt, too, that we had seen G. B. Shaw in person.

COMPULSORY CHAPEL THING OF THE PAST

Except for the fact that all first and second year students must take either Physical Training or join the C.O.T.C., there is nothing approaching compulsory military training in the University. Nor do most of the students interviewed consider that there should be. "Compulsory P.T. is bad enough. It would be a lot worse if we had to dress up for each class," declared one U.C. undergrad.

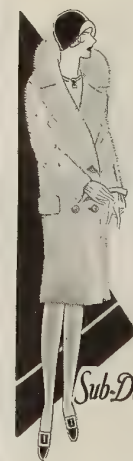

of 370 will expire immediately upon graduation? I feel that members of the year should, after graduating, carry on in the traditional manner of other years of University College. I would enjoy attending a reunion, and I believe that many others of my classmates would also. But how may these gatherings be held unless there are funds in the treasury? So, after all, we, the executive of 370, are something more than the executive of a dance club in spite of any reports to the contrary. In addition we are not compelling anyone to buy a year card; it is entirely a voluntary matter.

In conclusion if the writer chooses to ignore the letter, which, by the way, he is "at perfect liberty to do," may I suggest that he label it R.I.P. and surround it with a black frame.

Yours faithfully,

E. G. Arnold,
Treasurer, 370, U.C.
P.S.—If there are any others who think that they may make their year cards valid by attaching their signatures and so attend the parties without paying, I have only four words: "Try and do it."

Saw yesterday a pledge driving a hack up St. Geo. St. We hope he gets a big spiritual uplift out of it. The old, old doctrine, before you make a brother out of a prospect, first make a monkey out of him.

Heard a man yesterday saying that Canadian football is at the stage occupied by American football forty years ago; that Canadians know no tactics and that, playing under Canadian rules, an American team could Cat bounce and bewilder a Canadian team in one minute with trick plays; also that Canadian ball is neither flesh nor fowl, being neither American nor English. Apart from the discount necessarily caused by nationality, we suspect some truth. The screams that invariably follow any suggested adoption from U.S. rules sounds a little too much like jingoism and not rationalism.

SAYS SALE OF YEAR CARDS 'NOT A MATTER FOR PUBLICATION'

Treasurer of U.C. 370 Women's Executive Declines to Give Sale Figures

'ALRIGHT FOR LOWER YEARS'

General Opinion Seems To Be That Other Interests Prevent Attendance at All Parties

"Don't ask me how many year cards we've sold" protested the treasurer of 370 Women's Executive. "It's not a matter for publication." When asked why the class tickets were not being bought, the general opinion of 370 co-eds seemed to be that they would probably go to one or two class parties, but they didn't see the necessity for buying class tickets when they could go to whatever parties they wanted to go to without them.

"Of course I like class parties," said Jean McBurney, 370. "I think they're a lot of fun. But I can quite understand why people don't want to buy class tickets in third and fourth years. They have so many other interests that they aren't likely to want to go to all the year parties."

Frances Dale, Vice-Pres. 370, said: "For lack of a better, I think people should support the present system of class parties, if only for the sake of the class spirit. The men have sold a lot of year cards through their new system this year, now it's up to the girls to turn out."

Miss J. D., 370: "Too many other interesting parties to go to. And as far as meeting your year goes, you never meet them at class parties anyway."

Several 4th year co-eds: "Class tickets are alright in first and second years, but for third and fourth, they're the bunk."

CO-EDS COMPLAIN LACK OF LOCKERS

Insufficient Accommodation for Feminine Apparel is Charge

MEN BETTER PROVIDED FOR

"We have lockers for everything but what a thief really wants!" exclaimed one co-ed when interviewed by "The Varsity" yesterday on the question of lockers. She went on: "What burglar in his right senses would carry away test tubes and bunsen burners, when in a dark and un-protected cloak room down the hall there are dozens of valuable coats?" In none of the Science buildings are there lockers provided for anything but apparatus, and because the women students must leave their coats outside when attending labs it is said to be there that lockers are needed most.

The Arts students also, however, were up in arms about the question of locker space to ensure the safety of their belongings. "What I can't see is why we have to build up, sometimes twelve girls to a locker, in U.C. upstairs, while the men have simply oodles of space downstairs that they never seem to use." On investigating the matter "The Varsity" found that there were only one hundred and fifty lockers in the upstairs cloak room to hold the belongings of between five and six hundred girls, an average of approximately one to four. U.C. DOOR AND H.R.H. HAVE COMMON APPEAL FOR PHOTOGRAPHER

Varsity Environs Abound in Material for Etchers and Painters

ON MATHEMATICAL WORK

Etching by Owen Staples Used on Front of New Book

Barring the Prince of Wales, the doorway of University College has probably had its picture taken oftener than anything in the British Empire. Nor are Hart House and the Memorial Tower completely lacking in interest to photographers, etchers and artists everywhere. On the trail of something that would enlighten student opinion concerning the artistic merits of their surroundings, "The Varsity" reporter sniffed around a bit in the rain on Saturday morning. The first important discovery was that Mrs. Cochrane, wife of the Dean of University College, does very clever little etchings of unique spots around the campus. Mrs. Cochrane was kind enough to spare a few minutes from the Saturday morning duties of a professor's wife to show some of her etchings, although protesting that her work was strictly amateur, and really not worth mentioning in "The Varsity." She has one dry-plate etching of the doorway of Simcoe Hall, in which a judicious use of light and shade and the softening effect of summer foliage show what can be done with a spot usually connected in students' minds with the prosaic business of paying fees.

Mr. Hamilton, of the Press, who is considered an authority on pictures taken around the University, testified to the popularity of the main entrance to University College by pointing out an etching of it by Owen Staples on the front of a new two-volume work on Mathematics.

SPECIAL STUDENT RATES ARRANGED FOR MCGILL GAME

C.N.R. May Run Special Coach on Friday to Montreal

Special student rates to the Varsity-McGill game next Saturday have been arranged, and railway tickets at $17.45 return are on sale at the Athletic Office, along with tickets to the game. Students who desire to go on the Friday noon train will travel as regular passengers. If a sufficient number apply for transportation on the 11 p.m. train Friday the C.N.R. will put on a colonist car, affording the students sleeping accommodation. It is to be hoped that a number of students will take advantage of the cheaper rates to travel to Montreal to support the Blue and White team.

O.C.E. held a record breaking class party Saturday night. Ghostly pumpkins moving and groaning, leap year numbers with the girls cutting in, a kiddy car race won by Eleanor McCubbin and a University dance won by the representative of Columbia University were features of the evening. This is the second party of the year, and O.C.E. is off to a good start to show that it is not hard to sell year cards.

GRADUATE NOVELIST TO ADDRESS C.A.A. CONVOCAATION HALL

Arthur Stringer, B. K. Sandwell and Other Prominent Writers Will Speak

ON VARSITY STAFF

Canadian Authors' Association Sponsors Unusual Event

Arthur Stringer, a graduate of the University of Toronto and a former member of "The Varsity" staff, is to be one of the speakers at a public meeting to-night in Convocation Hall. Other speakers at the meeting, which has been arranged by the Toronto Branch of the Canadian Authors' Association, are Dr. Charles G. D. Roberts, L. M. Montgomery and B. K. Sandwell.

Nearly every student has read the animal stories, poetry and historical work of Dr. Roberts, who is one of Canada's most distinguished men of letters, and is now national President of the Canadian Authors' Association. Arthur Stringer is renowned both as poet and novelist. In his youth he was a student at London Collegiate Institute, though of late years he has spent much of his time in the United States to be near his largest market. L. M. Montgomery is known to every girl in Canada, as well as thousands abroad, through her "Anne of Green Gables" and other stories. Mr. Sandwell is widely known for his brilliant satire and humour.

The event is an unusual feature and has been widely announced. The chair will be occupied by John M. Elsom, president of the Toronto Branch of the Canadian Authors, and R. A. Prime, president of the Canadian Literature Club, will introduce three of the speakers.

"SLOPING" A VICE UNKNOWN TO TORONTO UNDERGRADS

Registrars Unable to Recall Case of Class Collectively Cutting Classes

"Sloping" the technical term used when students, as a body, stay away from lectures, is practically unknown in Arts colleges in the University of Toronto, "The Varsity" learned today. The registrars of the four colleges concurred in the statement that no case of "sloping" had been brought to their notice.

"There has been no case here of any class collectively cutting a lecture in my experience," was the statement of Mr. W. J. McAndrews, registrar of University College, when interviewed by "The Varsity" regarding the new arrangement at Queen's. At Queen's the pass standard for the class is raised one per cent at the final exams for each case of a class collectively "skipping" a lecture. "Students are unusually courteous as a rule in this matter. They usually mention it if they miss a class. The attendance has always been very good and this year it is quite up to the standard," he further remarked.

Fr. B. J. Sullivan, registrar of St. Michael's, knew of no case of collective cutting at St. Michael's.

Mr. S. H. Jones, registrar of Trinity College, said that in his time there had been no case of this either. "I once had a class of three that were all absent at once," he said reminiscently, "but I suppose they were all sick." At Victoria Mr. C. F. Auger stated that in his experience this unanimous cutting had never occurred.

A Correction

W.I.D.U. apologise for the mistake which occurred in the announcement of the debaters chosen for the Intercollegiate debate. The names of the substitutes should have been S. Gelber, I U.C., and A. Bicknell, III Vic.

PROGRESS DEPENDS ON THE TRAINED MAN

Canada Must Have Technical Men for Proper Expansion Says Col. Smythe

QUALITY COUNTS

"The present industrial growth affects you directly, for as industry expands it leans more and more on technically trained men." Such was the opinion of Colonel Smythe in addressing the Engineering Society in the Mining building yesterday afternoon on the Technical Service Council of Canada.

Canada, the speaker declared, has outgrown that period of business depression which followed the Great War, and is away to a future of almost unlimited possibilities. Her central position between Europe and Asia stands high in her favour, as also does her northern climate in that it produces the vitality and aggressiveness of the Nordic race.

The Colonel quoted from Roger Babson, statistician of international repute, to the effect that Canada now offers greater opportunities for ultimate success in business than does the United States, and used statistics to show that there are now employed in Canada almost one-quarter more men than in 1921.

Canada holds the opportunities, but Canada needs technically trained men to develop them, and it is the primary object of the Technical Service Council to see that Canada gets these men.

The status of the Technical Service Council may be seen in the fact that its advisory committee includes the names of men of the standing of Sir John Aird, Sir Edward Kemp and the Rev. Dr. Cody.

The aims of the Council, as set forth by Colonel Smythe, are fourfold:

- (1) "To retain in Canada young men."

WASHINGTON WAYS NOT DUPLICATED AT U. OF TORONTO

No Evidence of Bad Conduct in Fraternity Men Shown Here

FRATERS OF ANOTHER TYPE

President of U. of Washington Makes Frank Charge at Combined Meeting

Conditions at the University of Toronto are apparently not as serious as at the University of Washington with regard to the conduct of fraternity members. At the University of Washington recently the president publicly called attention to the reprehensible conduct of members of university fraternities who, he claimed, were the worst offenders against discipline. Toronto undergraduates are of the opinion that such is not the case at Varsity.

Non-fraternity people, interviewed by "The Varsity," had not heard of any bad reports concerning "frat" adherents.

Among fraternity members there was a unanimous denial of the existence at this university of conditions comparable to those across the line.

One "frater" elaborated with the statement that Varsity fraternities contained a different type of member than the American college fraternities.

A third year Vic. student interviewed was inclined to think that Toronto fraternity members, while not being totally immune from the vices of the world, were not the worst infractors of discipline. He felt that membership in a fraternity had the effect of increasing the respect for order.

President M. Lyle Spencer of the U. of Washington recently addressed a combined gathering of fraternity and sorority members. In the course of his address he condemned drinking, petting and gambling and associated vices, stating that fraternity members were the worst offenders in this respect.

The Child Jesus of Prague

The following is a translation by N. A. Benson, M.A., of the famous poem by Paul Claudel, distinguished French diplomat and man of letters, who will be honoured by the University of Toronto to-morrow. It is reprinted from the Canadian Student.

Snow falls, the great world's dead in deep December's gloom, But there's sweet warmth within the quiet little room. The fire-place filled with coals whose glow is red and bright Shades the dark ceiling with a wavy slumberous light.

Above the water boils with dull and bubbly sigh.

Above the little beds, there on the ledge up high Beneath His dome of glass, His head beneath the crown, One hand holding a globe, the other stretching down To shield His little ones who trust in that dear hand, Most gentle in His swathing robe so solemn and so grand, Magnificent in His great yellow hat of stone The Holy Child of Prague rules from His royal throne.

He stands alone before the hearth that lights His face As in the chancel's depth the hidden Host finds place; Till dawn the Christ-Child keeps His brothers in His grace.

Unheard as gentle breath, sighing and softly gone, Eternal life pervades the room, and seems as one.

With all the innocence of simple things laid here.

No evil comes to us whenever He is near.

Now we may sleep; Jesus, our Brother, guarding true, For He is all our own, and all these good things too:

Our wooden horse, our sheep, our dear and lovely doll, The three are sleeping there, the corner holds them all

And we may sleep, for all our pretty things are there. The shades are drawn . . . Yonder, afar, no one knows where, Out in the snowy night a phantom hour goes.

The child in his warm bed is happy, for he knows He sleeps, and One who loves him watches o'er his sleep.

Vaguely he murmurs, stirs, his little hands half creep, He tries to wake again, and softly falls asleep.

ACTIVITIES AND AWARDS

Intercollegiate activity is just now the occasion of much interest and comment. Sporting fans rejoice that Toronto is once more in the rugby series, we read of prospective visitors from the Universities of Pittsburg and Marquette, and the women of this University have selected a team to debate against Queen's and McGill.

At the first reading it will probably appear to most people that the first of these is of the greatest importance, for at this time the "Hail the Conquering Hero Comes" attitude is adopted only for those big men in Blue who specialize in what is known as plunging, or for the lithe, swift-footed beings who compose the Varsity Track Team. In the winter enthusiasm oftentimes breaks forth for the lads and lassies who pursue small discs of rubber over glistening sheets of ice, or for those others who look their best in bathing suits and who, as a result, win Swimming Championships. For these, as for all others who can distinguish themselves in any form of sport, are the keep of the University. For them the honour of upholding the name of the good old Alma Mater. For them the Rhodes Scholarships (if one can believe one of our ardent sporting enthusiasts) and for them the distinction of winning and wearing our most coveted award,—the Senior "T."

We are finding no fault with the system. It seems to us most fitting that people who have so ably represented our University in the athletic field should be singled out for distinction and that they should hold a high place in the regard of their fellows. But it has occurred to us that there are those who are more truly representative of a University than are its rugby players and runners. If a University is most famous for its possession of a Dominion Championship, or for the fact that a possible member of the Olympic Team is in attendance, then, it seems to us that it is largely defeating its purpose. And yet by reading accounts of well-known students and of undergraduate activities, one would think that the only way to bring honour and fame to oneself and one's college was to play football.

There are those who represent the more cultural side of life for which a University really stands. Among them are winners of scholarships, people who are prominent in literary and dramatic activity, and debaters. All of these go about their work quietly and inconspicuously, expecting and receiving very little recognition from anyone and finding no reward but the pleasant sense of giving expression to a basic interest. The first of these classes we shall ignore for the present, for no matter how interesting and important their work, it usually affects only their own college, and shall pass at once to the subject of debaters.

These are the students who are considered fitted to speak for their University against representatives of another great educational institution. They are selected usually by competent judges,—members of the staff it may be,—and to be chosen for the position, they must be possessed of a considerable fund of knowledge and the ability to put it into words, as well as the art of speaking unhesitatingly and convincingly. They, surely, represent our University more characteristically, if less popularly, than some of our more husky celebrities.

In a well known Eastern college, we are informed, there is a system of points, with which outstanding students in all fields of activity are credited, and in the final year, the college letter is awarded to the students having the greatest number of points,—regardless of whether their prowess has been in athletics or in some other branch. We should like to see some such system go into effect here. We are not demanding that the athletic "T" (which is copyrighted) be awarded to all outstanding students, but we are anxious that they be made the recipients of some tangible evidence of the part they have played in the advancement of the cultural life of the University of Toronto.

CHAMPUS CAT

We occasionally wonder where the limerick originated. It has a rather Irish sound, from the name of it. Edward Lear, of course, wrote a book full of stuff such as there was a young lady of and there was an old man of, but we suspect that it comes close to folk lore as it is used for such a variety of subjects, many of them rather alarming. At any rate, we advertised for "limericks of a high order."

Dear Cat:

We beg to submit the following: A gentleman walking up Yonge Was stonage on the tip of his tongue. Said he: "Those confounded Bees ought to be drowned, I'd thankfully see them all honge."

But when he had walked up to Bloor Said he, "This I cannot endoe: For I'm stonage on the nose." So the poor bee he squoze And flung the remains down the soor. Confidentially submitted,

C—C

Dear Dee: You seem to be receiving limerick from all sides. How do these appeal to you:

There's a dencher know chappy named Cholmondeley Whose appearance could scarce be called comolondeley, In the zoo he was spied And at once lodged inside A baboon cage. This reads rather rolmondeley.)

And again: There was a young student from Trinity

Who raised xyz to infinity, This horrible brute Then found the square root And afterwards took to divinity.

What's worse: There once was a pious young priest Who lived 'most entirely on yeast, For he said, "It is plain We shall all rise again And I want to get started, at least."

My repertoire is inexhaustible; possibly your desire for this type of humour is not. Can you stand this? The wages of gin is breath!

We see by yesterday's that a Wick-toria co-ed, in the Third Year, speaking in reference to debates, says: "If we had a chance to share in the broadening influences of the debates, our inferior intellects might benefit." How ideally optimistic the lady is! The idea being, of course, that sitting at debates broadens one. We recommend standing under a descending pile-driver as the quickest way to get broadened.

We wonder if to-day friend Hoover will beat as he sweeps as he cleans. Or does he prefer positive agitation? You know, a funny thing is that it will not be officially known who the new president will be until the College of Electors votes, as to-day the people only vote for a block of electors who are pledged to plump for Hoover or Smith as the case may be. These Electors later indicate their choice and officially make the president. We can imagine the suspense of the rival candidates until the decision is actually known. The citizens, of course, will know to-morrow night.

Correspondence

Miss Dinnick Danies

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

Fired with righteous indignation, I refute the statement anent class parties which appeared under my name in the issue of "The Varsity" of November 5th.

I never expressed such a belief, and my opinions in no way coincide with those printed. I thoroughly agree with the views of Mr. Arnold as set forth in his admirable letter.

I am sure that the mistake is not due to "The Varsity" but to some reporter whose own invention having failed him had recourse to that of the devil.

I would appreciate the publication of this letter and the rectification of my position.

Yours truly,

Charlotte Dinnick.

With the Theatres

THE EMPIRE—THE OUTSIDER

"The Outsider" is a good play. We realized after about ten lines that we had seen it before, but it stood the test: it caught us again. There are weak points of course. The first act is not at all on a par with the rest of it, and the various great surgeons in the dramatic personae are not made very great men, but the dramatist can put life into the scenes, and he knows some of the truths of human character: that to the cripple, pity is the sharpest knife, that creative force, passion and pride are born out of loneliness, and that love is humility.

The play is about a genius who by a great invention and sheer force of will tried to enter the fraternity of Harley Street surgeons. Unfortunately the playwright does not know any great surgeons, for he gives the medical profession a pie-headed intolerance which but very few of its members deserve, but he utterly understands the black bitterness of heart of an outsider who tries to break down bars and fails. The doctors are right, of course, but he is the great man. Mr. Frank Camp and Miss Marjorie Foster played extremely well, and Mr. Edmund Abbey carried his usual style, though some of the other parts were too big for their players. The company managed well the frequent changes from lightness to intensity.

VICTORIA—MARY

If you have a sweet tooth, this musical comedy is your meat. It is essentially to the sweet, for the sweet and by the sweet. But even if you are old and cynical and have no use for such lyrics as "A Grand Old Name is Mary," you may yet find this pleasing. Though the plot, simple in conception, is none too carefully planned, the lyrics fill in the weak spots sufficiently well to prevent its becoming hackneyed. "Love Nest" and "When the Vampire Exits Laughing" stand out among the lyrics. There were many fine individual performances, including that of Renee Hamilton as Mary; but the acting as a whole did not cling together. The greatest asset of this production is the apparent good cheer of all the company from the leading lady to the least of the very pretty chorus girls.

VARSITY JUNIORS & ST. MIKE'S INVADE FOREIGN FIELDS TOMORROW

JUNIORS TO CARRY BATTLE TO QUEEN'S

Expect a Stiff Fight with Tricolour Sturdy Juniors

TO DECIDE CHAMPIONSHIP

Varsity Juniors, victors after a hard-fought struggle for group supremacy, next engage Queen's Juniors to-morrow afternoon at Kingston for the Junior Intercollegiate rugby championship. This will be the first of home and home games, Queen's playing the return game here next Saturday.

This Queen's team is going to furnish mighty stiff opposition for Coach Chaffee's boys, and it will be a real achievement if the Blue and White emerge victorious to-morrow at Kingston. The Tricolour Juniors are reputed to have a brilliant backfield combination in Day and Acheson, who have been their chief scoring threat. It ought to be an interesting tussle when the two rearguards lock grips for the Blue and White backfield, composed of Smith, Richardson and Robinson, has been largely responsible for the Juniors' victories due to its scoring ability. Both teams have steady lines with no outstanding line plungers in the collection. Queen's Juniors, owing to their very decisive victory over Loyola College, will probably be installed as favourites, but the Varsity Junior team has had a harder schedule than Queen's, and this fact may be a great asset to them in their fight for the championship.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

This is a most important week for the Intercollegiate football team. McGill's opportune victory over the Tricolour at Kingston put the Blue and White back in the running. If Varsity can gum up the works for the Red in Montreal this Saturday, all three teams will be tied for the leadership.

When Varsity take the field at Montreal they will have the support not only of their own followers but of practically every real football enthusiast in the East, minus of course the McGillites. In the first place Queen's will be invoking the ancient deity Home-field Jinx to descend upon the Melson Stadium and put the Tricolour back in the race. Then comes the attitude resulting from McGill's refusal in past years to participate in the C.R.F.U. play-offs, and thus from the point of view of the outside fan a Varsity or Queen's Intercollegiate championship is much more desirable than a McGill one.

Special student rates have been secured for those wishing to attend the Varsity-McGill game. If a sufficient number apply a special Varsity car will be put on the 11 p.m. train Friday.

A triple tie in the Intercollegiate will boost football interest among the student bodies to a great height. When, following the triple tie of 1926, Varsity defeated McGill at Montreal and walloped Queen's here, there was a tremendous amount of interest in both games. If another three-ple tie occurs, it will provide a fitting climax to this season's Intercollegiate fixtures.

ST. MIKE'S INVADE LOYOLA IN FIRST OF HOME SERIES

Winners of Eastern Group Considered Strong Opponents

St. Mike's, winners of the Western Intermediate Rugby League, will meet Loyola, champions of the eastern section, Wednesday. It promises to be a battle royal. Both teams are powerful squads and both have emerged from a grueling series of games.

Loyola exhibited a varied offensive when they turned back Royal Military College for the Eastern title to the tune of 32 to 17. They possess a punter extraordinary in Savard, who is protected by an impregnable line.

The famous "Shag" Shaughnessy is honorary coach of the Loyola team and probably takes an active interest in the eastern champions since his son is a middle winger.

St. Mike's will again rely on the smooth execution of their plays and the shiftness of the halves. The Irish have been well drilled for their Eastern invasion, and though they do not underestimate their opponents, they are confident of winning the first game of the home and home series.

TRINITY MAINTAINS HEAD OF MULOCK CUP GROUP

Show Superiority to Senior U.C. in Hard Fought But One-sided Game

Trinity swamped Sr. U.C. 23-0 and won the championship of their group last night on the back campus. Trinity gained an early advantage in the first quarter when Stone and Phipps each scored a touch. In the second quarter the play was fairly close, but Trinity again took the lead when Martin and Stone both earned singles. The third period showed U.C. fighting hard but Trinity showed their superiority when Jeffrey scored a touch which was converted by Stone. In the last period Clough earned five points for Trinity, making the final score 23-0. Outstanding for Trinity were Stone and Martin, while Reid and Ward played a beautiful game for U.C., but unfortunately Reid had his ankle seriously hurt, and Ward had a finger broken.

Trinity: Flying wings, Clough. Nicol; halves, Stone, H. Martin; quarter, Summerhayes; snap, S. Martin; insides, Gates, O'Flynn; middles, Hovey, Phipps; outsides, Purdue, Kerr; subs, Edwards, Sanders, Welch, Farwell, Jeffrey, Abraham, Lownsborough.

U.C.: Flying wing, McGibbon; halves, Martin, Macpherson, Omand; quarter, Reid; snap, Smart; insides, Litner, McKay; middles, Henry, Day; outsides, Mueller, Ward; subs, Gibb, Morrow.

WESTERN MAY ENTER BASKETBALL GROUP

Junior Squad Not Giving Satisfactory Showing as Yet

SENIOR SQUAD INTACT

Prospects for the Junior basketball team have not been as satisfactory as they might be," said Coach McCutcheon, who is rounding the cage-men in to shape. "Several prospects who were out early have apparently dropped out, and I know that there are other good prospects at the University who have a chance to make one of the three teams, who have not attended any practices as yet."

Last year's senior squad, consisting of "Mo" Mitchell, who is captain this season, Johnson, Newman, Currie, Sakler and Herwitz, are all available this year. The latest find is George O'Leary, of West End Y and Windsor Grade fame, who along with his former team-mate from Windsor, Johnnie Murray, should pair up well with the Senior team.

Among the other new men of whom much is expected are Ray Beaton of Walkerville, Dave Castler, who played three years with the University of Manitoba, Ed. Devitt of Kitchener, and Brady of Syracuse. Competition should be strong among these men for places on the Intermediate team.

The Junior practice hours have been changed to Tuesdays and Thursdays at 5 o'clock, in order to give them a chance for individual coaching. A rumour has been circulated that the University of Western Ontario is to re-enter the Intermediate Intercollegiate Series, from which they withdrew two years ago. This will be a welcome addition as it will raise the Intermediate to a five team league.

The practices have been going well so far; the men are just beginning to get down to strenuous work. The squad will be cut sometime during the latter part of the week.

Knox defeated Forestry in a Mulock Cup game 6-1 yesterday. The spectacle consisted chiefly of a series of drops. The forward pass was tried out often effectively. Knox started with a rush and chalked up a point when Barclay kicked for a rouge. In the second quarter an attempted outside kick Simpson's boot went for a lone counter, and the half ended one all. Helped by a few muffs Dewar galloped over the Foresters' line for a touch and ended the day's

Aunt Mary's Answers Ease Life's Load
For Many a Seeker-After-the-Truth

(Greta Reid)

Dear Aunt Mary,—

I am 5 feet 2 inches tall, weigh 160 pounds and have red hair. I have received a bid to the masquerade and would like to go as a Spanish dancing girl. Do you think I would look nice?

Yours in doubt, Tiny.
 Ans.: No, my dear, I don't think you're quite the type. I know there is an intriguing aroma about things Spanish; but, then again, there is a fascinating atmosphere about the Greek that I think would be more in your line. Why not go as Helen of Troy—the face that lunched a thousand chops, if you know what I mean.

Dear Aunt Mary,—

Why are they putting up that horrid new flag-pole? The old one was much more attractive and looked perfectly strong enough.

Yours, Aesthesia.

Ans.: The flag wore out.

Dear Aunt Mary,—

We are two fourth year School men and would like to locate two good enough women for the next Scarlet and Gold dance. Can you help us out?

Trusting to your good judgment, we are,

Yours hopefully, Science.
 Ans.: Phone Queen's Hall. In the remote possibility of failure, take a Bay car to Prospect Cemetery. You might be able to dig up a couple there. You could put an ad in "The Varsity." If all else fails, try the Salvation Army; they'll save you a couple.

Dear Aunt Mary,—

I have been asked to go on a blind date. Do you approve of them?

Sincerely, Victoria.

Ans.: If you can't get any others, I would say the blinder the better.

Dear Aunt Mary,—

I have been engaged to a boy for twelve years, but have not yet married because of my youth. Don't you think thirty is the proper age for a woman?

Yours sincerely, Alumnæ.

Ans.: You are quite right. If a woman isn't proper by that time she never will be.

SENIORS FACE HARD WEEK OF GRUELLING DRILL

Team That Met Defeat at Hands of Queen's Undergone Changes

This is do-or-die week for Les Blackwell's boys. With prospects of a victory in Montreal looking real bright the team buckled down in earnest to a stiff drill at the Stadium yesterday.

The team that faced the Tricolour here a week ago has undergone some reorganization. Last night Hallam worked at quarter with Harrison, Traynor, Snyder and Davey completing the rearguard. This combination showed more snap and pep than has been evident for some time. On the line Keith, Jerry Wood, White, Bean, Little, Dunn and Smith held down the positions.

With two teams working in signal practice Jimmy Sinclair collided with Traynor and received a nasty cut on the nose, forcing him to take a rest. Lining up his men Blackwell then sent them through a hard scrimmage in which the first team showed to advantage in gains through the line.

The new shift seems to be the best yet evolved. Hallam appears to have the necessary pep and ability to speed up the plays and this should mean a lot to the Blue.

SENIORS FAVOURED
FOR MASQUE TICKETS

Most Faculties Consider Man Who Has Not Formerly Attended

ALLOTMENT METHODS VARY

Fourth year men in most faculties are almost sure of getting a ticket for the Hart House Masquerade dance this year if they want one. The upper years will have a better chance to obtain tickets than the lower years.

At U.C., which has been allotted the greatest number of tickets, 90, 45, 25, 10 have been given the fourth, third, second and first years respectively. Students wishing to obtain a ticket were asked to sign a list with a number opposite each name. These numbers were then mixed up and there were picked as many of these numbers of each year as there had been tickets assigned to that year.

"There were 105 seniors who signed," said Mr. E. M. Henry, President of the U.C. Lit., who explained the system to "The Varsity," "so that they were pretty sure of getting one if they cared to do so."

In the faculty of Medicine the final year is also favoured, the sixth year students being allotted one ticket to two men, with the percentage decreasing so that the freshmen get only two tickets. The different years will decide for themselves the method of distribution, but it is usually done by lot.

"We have not yet definitely decided," said Mr. J. D. Wright, President of the Engineering Society, when asked what method would be followed at S.P.S., "but every fourth year man who has not yet been to the Masquerade will be absolutely sure of getting one this year." The assignment of each year decreases sharply, the first year getting only about five. We always line up for our tickets. There is no draw."

At Victoria every senior has the opportunity of buying a ticket. The remainder goes to the third, second and first years in a ratio of 10-3-1. The number allotted will be about 25 to the third, 7 to the second and 2 to the first year.

At Trinity, too, any fourth year man who has not had a ticket to the Masquerade in former years will be able to get one this year. The freshmen may have one ticket, while the second and third years will distribute the remainder by lot. Definite arrangements will not, however, be made until after the college meeting to-day.

HERBERT HOOVER IS ELECTED PRESIDENT OF UNITED STATES

SENATE HONOURS SIR A. CHAMBERLAIN THIS AFTERNOON

Aims to Realize Father's Vision of Empire

PROMINENT AT LOCARNO

"A Great Son of a Great
Father is Sir Joseph Austen Chamberlain"

To-day the University of Toronto confers the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws on Sir Joseph Austen Chamberlain, who recently resigned as Minister for Foreign Affairs in the Baldwin administration.

Sir Joseph Austen Chamberlain is said to be a hero-worshipper and the hero who has so influenced and guided his life is his father, Joseph Chamberlain, it will be remembered, was one of the leading statesmen of his day, in no less degree Austen Chamberlain has figured in the politics of Great Britain. His dominant aim has been the conversion of his father's vision of Empire, into reality.

Austen Chamberlain was born in Birmingham, England, in 1853. He was educated at Rugby and Trinity College, Cambridge. To complete his education his father sent him to France. Perhaps this accounts for that country. Many times he has been even accused of pro-French tendencies. His maiden speech in Parliament drew from Mr. Gladstone the famous compliment, uttered in his father's presence, that it was one which must have been "dear and refreshing to a father's heart." This was the first evidence of the success which was to be his in political life. Postmaster General, Chancellor of the Exchequer, Secretary of Foreign Affairs, are some of the offices he has held. CAMPUS OPINION FAVORS RECOGNITION FOR ALL

But One Undergraduate Thinks Literary Work Unworthy of Such

"Literary activities as carried on in our university are not worthy of reward," was the strongly expressed opinion of a representative undergraduate in literary circles when interviewed by "The Varsity" with regard to the giving of a tangible award to students distinguishing themselves in an intellectual way. "There's no training system or style to the debating in our colleges," she went on to say. "If the literary endeavours were worthy of acknowledgment, a reward would certainly be in order and forthcoming; but they're not. What undergraduates are interested in are activities which are truly characteristic of their interests. It's stupid to try to keep alive something which is now merely traditional."

On the other hand, the consensus of opinion seemed to be strongly in favour of the idea of rewarding accomplishment of a cultural nature in as obvious a way as athletic achievement. "It would help to put all the activities in our University on the same footing; 'there is a strong tendency to overvalue athletic prowess'; 'cultural accomplishment is surely worthy of as much recognition as athletic activity' were some of the remarks elicited by "The Varsity's" enquiries.

RECEPTION IN KNOX FOR PRESBYTERIANS

University College Students Guests at Entertainment in College

WELCOMED BY DR. EAKIN

The first annual Knox College reception for Presbyterian students in University College took place last evening, when nearly 300 undergraduates were welcomed by Dr. Thomas Eakin, the Principal to the College.

After an opportunity had been given to the guests to meet Dr. and Mrs. Eakin and the members of the faculty, a musical programme was held in the chapel. Miss Joy Fawcett, the guest artist of the evening, sang several soprano solos and, accompanied by Ron McEachern at the chapel organ, played a few piano solos as well. Master Bernard Silvertown played a group of violin solos, and a group of solos was sung by W. A. Young, the college tenor.

At the conclusion of the musical programme, the guests inspected the common rooms and residences. The musical programme was then continued in the dining hall. Miss Young gave a recitation and Mr. W. A. Young obliged with a few more songs. A number of two-piano duets contributed by Ron. McEachern and Ernest Adie filled out the programme. The evening ended with refreshments, a hearty "Toronto," a "Uni-Uni," even a "Meds" and a "School" yell, and finally "Auld Lang Syne."

Overcoat Thief Nabbed He Came Back For More

One of the thieves that have been active around Hart House lately is said to have been apprehended yesterday afternoon, when a marauder was arrested in Hart House in the act of removing a coat from the racks. The man is reported to have escaped from Hart House, removed a coat from the stand, and then to have left with one of the University police dressed in plain clothes who had been watching the coats on pursuit. The policeman followed the man to the hand stand in Queen's Park, where the coat was hidden.

The alleged thief then returned to Hart House. The policeman followed with the coat in his hand and arrived in time to see the man removing another coat. Prompt arrest followed. It is anticipated that recent petty thieving is checked at last.

Fraternalities Do Not Teach
Drinking or Gambling
Says Prof. Burton

"The majority of failures in the Arts courses occur among students who are living at home. This was discovered in a recent investigation of the records of students throughout the whole university," said Professor Hodgins of Trinity College, when requested yesterday by "The Varsity" to give his opinion of the effect of the fraternities on academic activities. "So the fraternities can hardly be held responsible. In my opinion the fraternities can often get work out of a man when the faculty can't."

Other professors, when interviewed, seemed to feel that the recent criticism of fraternities by President Spencer of the University of Washington did not apply at the University of Toronto. "The fraternities," said Professor Burton of the Department of Physics, "are not the dens of filth and vice that they are pictured. They are practically nothing but social clubs, where the student spends his private life, and where a man can make friendships that last a lifetime. Such vices as smoking, drinking and gambling depend on the individual himself, and the fraternities have nothing to do with it. I have been a fraternity member for a long time, and I don't smoke or drink. These rumours you hear that some fraternities have the notes of all the laboratory experiments written up, and that the men just copy the notes and hand them in as their own is pure bunkum. I know who started that story, and he doesn't know any more about it than I do. I don't say that some fraternity men don't copy others' notes, but I have been around fraternities a good many years, and I've never seen them doing it." Professor Burton would not divulge the name of the person who had started the rumour.

"DUTCH DATES" CLUB FOR HARASSED MALES IN MINNEAPOLIS

Minnesota Students Believe That the Woman Should Pay

SOME AUTHORITIES AGREE

"Project Entirely Up to the Couple Concerned" Thinks
Dean of Women

Special to "The Varsity"
Minneapolis, Minn.—Men in Toronto who insist on the girls footing the bill are justified by the action of the males in Minnesota.

Definite organization toward the development and propagation of an idea that has long been fostered by isolated groups of the student body at Minnesota was completed recently with the formation of the "Dutch Dates" club. The success that the suggestion of dividing the expenses of entertainment was met in colleges in various parts of the country caused the members of the newly formed group in deciding to band together.

Claiming that women have usurped the majority of positions held by men, running the gamut from social activities to the industrial world, the organization declare, they should at least have a share in some of the unfortunate parts of companionship.

Every man in the group is a member of a fraternity active in university affairs and progress. "The club is keeping its membership roll secret until it has heard the consensus of opinion so that members may hear the unbiased feeling."

Sororities have as yet no members in the group, but they are to be invited to join. Letters will be sent to sorority members the latter part of the week, according to the chairman.

E. E. Nicholson, dean of student affairs, admits that the idea is a good one, but he believes that it will not meet immediate favour with both men and women, because of long established custom in having the male provide the wherewithal.

The matter is entirely up to the individuals, in the opinion of Anne Dudley Bliz, dean of women. "The project is commendable," she declared, (Continued on page 4)

NEW YORK LOST, SOLID SOUTH BROKEN SMITH FALLS BEFORE HOOVER COHORTS

Not even his native New York remained true to Alfred E. Smith, as a result of a Republican landslide which characterized the American presidential elections yesterday. Herbert Hoover is to-day President-Elect of the United States, because he not only retained traditionally republican states but won over New York, and even broke into the South, supposedly solid for Smith.

Early returns indicated Democratic success in N.Y., but this was overcome later in the evening, and by midnight the state was conceded to Hoover along with most of the rest of the country, including the farm-bloc states which the Democrats had firmly hoped to capture.

At a late hour this morning indications were that Hoover would carry 406 out of the 541 ballots in the electoral college. Smith is sure of 88 votes and may carry 34 more. Returns from Nevada were too scanty to make any predictions.

Florida and Virginia, Democratic strongholds from the south, have definitely

Two New Party Leaders
Will Be Elected
Soon

STUDENT INTEREST KEEN

Interest is being evinced by the men of Victoria College in the proposed new constitution which is to be presented for the approval of the members of the Victoria College Students' Parliament at its first opening meeting to-night. It is understood that the constitution has been drafted by the present executive with the end in view of introducing a more responsible element into the relations between the Executive and the men of the College. While retaining the officers duly elected last spring, this document makes provision for two new officers, viz., Leader of the Government and Leader of the Opposition.

The Leader of the Government is to be chosen by popular election, while the Opposition Leader is appointed by the President in Council. In the event of the proposed constitution being ratified by those present this evening, nominations will be received immediately for the office of Leader of the Government and that office will be filled by election forthwith.

PROFESSOR DALE DENIES GREEK ON THE DECLINE

Figures Show Greek and Latin Popular Both in England and Canada

When questioned about Monday's editorial on the disappearance of the classics, Professor Dale expressed surprise that England should have been accused of having dropped back in the study of Greek. He stated that it was an established fact that more Greek was being studied in England to-day than ever before. When Professor Conway was in Toronto last year at a banquet in his honour, Emeritus Principal Hutton spoke of the decline of Greek and Professor Conway hastened to declare that such was an entirely erroneous impression, and quoted figures to prove it. In the same way, Professor Dale stated, Latin is coming to be studied even more than ever, and he considered it a very remote possibility that it should be relegated to an optional subject in the University of Toronto where classics have already played such a leading part.

PAUL CLAUDEL A GREAT DIPLOMAT SCHOLAR AND POET

Has Had a Distinguished Career as Consul in French Service

NOW AT WASHINGTON

Plays and Poems Marked by a Feeling Towards Mysticism

This afternoon in Convocation Hall the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters will be conferred upon His Excellency Paul Claudel, a member of the Institut Français, French Ambassador to the United States, and one whose fame is widespread as a poet, dramatist and diplomat.

His Excellency was born at Villeneuve-Sur-Fin in 1868; he was educated at the Lycée Louis-le-Grand and entered the consular service at the age of twenty-four. His first appointment as Consul at Fou-Tehon was followed by the First-Secretaryship at Peking, where he gained a valuable acquaintance with Chinese life and thought. Three years later he was appointed Consul at Prague, and following that Consul-General at Frankfurt, and, two years later, at Hamburg. Then in 1916 he received the honour of appointment as Minister at Rio de Janeiro, and, three years later, at Copenhagen, after which he was Ambassador at Tokio for five years. Then, as the highest honour to this brilliant career, he was last year appointed as Ambassador of France to the United States.

No less illustrious is his name in the realms of literature, for as early as 1900 he was recognized by the discriminating few as a writer of the first rank. Since then his fame has risen steadily. He was one of the earliest contributors to the Nouvelle Revue Française, and he has published over twenty-five volumes. His works, and most especially his plays, are Catholic in inspiration and are marked by a feeling towards mysticism. Among the most popular of his works there is found "L'Otage," "Cette Heure qui est entre le printemps et l'été," "Art poétique," "La jeune fille Violaine," "Poèmes de guerre," "L'ours et la lune" and "Feuilles de Saints." He has also translated into French "Eumenides" and "Agamemnon" of Aeschylus.

HUGE TURNOUT HEARS CANADIAN AUTHORS

Hundreds were turned away from Convocation Hall at the open meeting of the Canadian Authors' Association, at which Dr. Charles G. D. Roberts, Arthur Stringer, Mrs. Macdonald (L. M. Montgomery), and B. K. Sandwell addressed an appreciative audience.

Dr. Roberts, the first speaker, and national president of the association, expressed his appreciation of the large crowd and read quotations from his own poems.

Mrs. Macdonald, more familiarly known as L. M. Montgomery, told a vivid experience of her childhood, "The Wreck of the Old Marco Polo."

Arthur Stringer, introduced as "a poet lured from his first love by the lure of fiction" spoke on "the tribulations of being a poet" and also read extracts from his own poetry.

B. K. Sandwell, the last speaker, made a plea for a greater appreciation of Canadian verse and prose.

LIKE FATHER . . .

"As father is accustomed to vote, so vote his son and daughter in college," is the conclusion of the New Student in discussing the straw votes taken in American colleges during the election campaign which ended yesterday. The comment follows: "How the students would vote this year was one of the puzzles of a many-sided campaign. With one major candidate a college product and the other an alumnus of the sidewalks of New York there was some speculation as to whether college men and women would be swayed by loyalty to higher education. But there is not the slightest indication that this was the deciding motive anywhere, despite the fact that the recipient of twenty-eight honorary degrees emerged victorious. The student East and the student West gave their votes to Mr. Hoover, while ten states in the South gave their votes to Mr. Smith. The determining factor seems to have been the prejudices and beliefs acquired at home and never dislodged by education."

The principle of this summary could well be applied to the students of Canadian universities. It could be applied to English students also, although we hear more frequently of desertions of their political class on the part of the young men there. And what we hear, it may be remarked in passing, says more of the conversion to the Labour party of the sons of Tory leaders than of the reaction of the sons of Labour leaders through the proselytizing over the tea cups. Except in cases of economic misery students throughout the world are showing no particular inclination to revolutionize the thought of their parents.

It is a misconception to think that the modern university is conducive to dissent. It is to make the mistake on the one hand of the intellectual radical and on the other hand of those know-nothings that go about in fear of the cataclysm soon to overtake society as the result of the plotting of "them there book learnin' fellers" at college. The very composition of the universities on this continent at least forbids the development of any large proportion of radicals. People find the ideas of their parents untenable for two reasons: Either they have thought very little or they have thought very much. Some become rebellious after a hasty consideration of things. But their number will never be large because it is more pleasant to think little and agree with others than it is to think little and be nasty and disagreeable.

There remains then the group that disagree with their parents because they have thought much. There are two reasons why this group will not be large, for some time to come, at least. In the first place most of us have felt no need to think much. Some of us have done some work on our particular subject but none of us have tried to do any particular work on current politics. The stimulation for practical thought on current politics is lacking, first because professors who are interested in practical politics generally become partisan and hence cannot remain in a state institution, and second, because so many of our most learned professors communicate their dislike of current politicians in general and of current journalists and all the other machinery.

Then there are those students that have studied a great deal and because they have achieved a scholarly appreciation or something approximating the same, are well content to follow the political divisions of their parents in the confidence that the political institutions of our day are founded on an admirable historical development. They find things in history disturbing to their political convictions, that is, the political convictions of their parents, but they also find enough to bolster their position.

The strange thing about this orthodoxy in politics on the part of students is that a vast number of them pride themselves on their advanced beliefs in religion. But perhaps a vote on religious questions would disclose the fact that they follow ancestral beliefs here also and that the number of student modernists is a delusion effected by noise.

Art, Music and Drama

Dr. Moore's Recital

The second organ recital of the season was held yesterday at 5 p.m. in Convocation Hall, when Dr. Moore, as usual, delighted those present with his delightful playing. It was an hour of sweet, clear refrain, swelling cadences and inspiring volumes of tone. C. W. Dieckmann's "A Song of Sunshine" was worthy of its name, especially melodious and delightful. Dignity and sincerity marked the Pastoral and Finale of Charles Widor's work with a charming addition of flute and reed effects.

"The Stone Island" of Rubinstein is a work of great refinement, to say the least. A pleasant hour was closed by the playing of J. B. Cocks' "Festal March."

Sketch Room Woodcuts

Black-and-white work exhibits frequently do not have the same attraction for the casual observer as ones in which the works are executed in colour mediums. Each artist in whatever method he chooses to work is at once beset by a host of conventions and limitations which no matter how unconventional may be his style he cannot surmount. The trick or art-lies in being able to produce something that will please both mind and eye and if possible penetrate to that inner consciousness which for want of a better name we may call soul.

J. J. Lankes in an effort to accomplish this has spent considerable effort in experimenting with wood-blocks. The exhibit of some of his work is now on view in the Sketch Room of Hart House. An examination of these prints definitely leaves the observer with the impression that Lankes has not simply employed the woodcut as an exercise to develop technical dexterity (as some artists in the past have done) but as a medium with which to express his visions. The print entitled "Autumn" in which a well-matured woman is reaching up for a luscious bunch of grapes borne by a noble vine which gracefully entwines itself about a doric column is an excellent example of one of his visions.

While not modern in his work to the same extent as say, Rockwell Kent or Leon Underwood, the artist whose work is under review is far from being a traditionalist; he has developed a freshness and individuality which, however, I think would justify classing him as being of modern persuasion. A.L.W.

Professor Arthur Attacks Ivy Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

At this season of the year when one sees the base of the creepers on our buildings being carefully packed in leaves and sacking for the winter, one wonders whether it is worth while. It would take considerably less time to pull them all up by the roots. I am particularly interested in our three best buildings, Hart House, the Forestry Building and the Hygiene Building, where vines are yet in their infancy. I understand that their growth will be restricted on Hart House to the base of the building, and though it is true that that were better than smothering the whole House, yet the base of a building is where one looks for the greatest strength, and it is a little alarming to see a structure in stone seemingly supported on a network of vines.

The practice of covering buildings with creepers had its origin in the 19th century in England during the Romantic Movement. Until that time

PEGGY GROUT AGAIN WINS INDIVIDUAL TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

SPEAKING OF SPORT

After playing a spectacular match, Peggy Grout of St. Hilda's again carried off the tennis laurels, defeating Beatrice Symons, a freshe, also of St. Hilda's. "Bee," who has displayed such energy and skill in this popular sport, will undoubtedly be heard from again.

With every ounce of energy at play the two "Saints" brought the successful tennis season to a climax, and no further Intercollegiate series will be played, as neither Queen's nor McGill extended an invitation.

Badminton players will consume their tea despite the fact they are unable to wear it.

If the suggestion of the Physical Directress at McGill regarding coaching in rugby rules is carried out by the co-eds, next year may see the fair sex as strong contenders for the Intercollegiate title.

By all reports the Queen's basketball players are beginning practices with the old-time enthusiasm. Most of last year's team are on hand and promising material is being unearthed among the freshies.

Although there is a decided lull in women's athletics at the present time, the following week will see basketball and baseball games follow one another in rapid succession. Intercollegiate basketball, swimming meets and hockey games fill up the after Christmas season. These varied activities will enable the women to make good use of the page allotted to them every two weeks. This concession is greatly appreciated, as it spells progress in women's athletics.

O.C.E., with outstanding players from McGill and Toronto, appear to be favourites for the coming Interfaculty Basketball Series.

WOMEN'S HOCKEY PROSPECTS PRODUCE EARLY DISCUSSION

Varsity and Queen's Compete for the Beattie Ramsay Trophy

MANY STARS BACK

Earlier Programme of Games for Intercollegiate Series Adds to Interest

The Varsity Arena is now open and already the prospects of the women's Intercollegiate hockey team are being discussed. Each year Varsity and Queen's compete for the Beattie Ramsay trophy. This cup is a fluted goblet of sterling silver, standing some two feet high and is the handsomest of all the women's trophies. It is so valuable that it is not allowed to grace one of the Women's Unions like the Bronze Baby, but is kept locked in the men's trophy case in Hart House. With but one exception the Blue and White team have won this cup ever since it was presented in 1922 by the undergrads in Applied Science and Engineering in honour of Beattie Ramsay, an engineering grad of that year, who was captain of the U. of T. Allan Cup champions of 1921. The Tricolour carried it home in 1926 and they put up a stiff fight each year to recapture it.

Although such old reliables as Jessie Mooney, last year's captain, Eileen Ditchburn, Dot McNaughton, Eve Powell and Chris Kellock are no longer at Varsity, Pat Tilston, goalie, is still here, and the swift forward line, composed of Dot Langley, Helen Hilliard and Norma Bateman, is unshattered.

This year's coach and manager are not yet chosen, but whoever they may be they should be able to put an A1 team on the ice. Hockey deserves the warm student support which it receives, and as this year the Intercollegiate games are going to be staged much earlier than usual, hockey enthusiasts will likely be able to see several games between Varsity and some of the city teams.

MEDS' VICTORY OVER U.C. GIVES THEM FIRST PLACE

Last night witnessed a really close game between Meds and Jr. U.C. when the latter were defeated 4-1. The result of this game places Meds at the head of their league so far. In the first quarter, Upsprech of U.C. kicked for a single, but very soon Marby of Meds followed up with a point, tying the score.

Jr. Meds: Flying wing; Steel; halves, Graham, McCord, Murby; quarter, Coleman; snap, Nicol; insides, Jackson, Thompson; middles, Massig, Dunn; outsides, Johnstone, McCullum; subs, Marquis, Williams, Tucker.

Jr. U.C.: Flying wing, Kohen; halves, Upsprech, Herman, Freifeld; quarter, Murray; snap, Keith; insides, Shuch, Finningly; middles, Little, Shepherd; outsides, Walker, McHugh; subs, Zacks, Allen, Lee.

PEGGY GROUT CHAMPION

The Women's Individual Tennis Championship was decided Tuesday afternoon, and Peggy Grout of St. Hilda's again holds title, having defeated B. Symons, a freshe of the same college. The game, which was played at the Toronto Tennis Club, was full of exciting moments and every bit as close as the score indicates, the sets being 6-3, 2-6, 6-4.

Both girls were loyally supported by their own clan of followers, who expressed themselves noisily. B. Symons, who came from Bishop Strachan School this year, deserves a lot of credit in reaching the finals, and having been in best of form for yesterday's encounter with the champion. Nevertheless it cannot be denied that Peggy Grout deserved her victory.

CO-ED FOOTBALL RECEIVES APPROVAL OF CAMPUS CRITICS

Curiosity of Reporter Aroused By Despatch From McGill

FACILITIES LACKING?

Many Girls Express Desire to Engage in Manly Sports

"It is an excellent idea, but have we the necessary facilities to pursue the idea further?" This was the opinion voiced by Miss Coventry of the Physical Training department regarding the possibilities of a co-ed football team and of instruction in that game for co-eds. The question of girls' football arose from a special to the Varsity from McGill where a plan is on foot to give instruction to co-eds along this line. Miss Coventry went on to say that she thought it wise for co-eds to know football rules, although she personally would prefer lacrosse, if a new sport was taken up. Both games, however, would require a practising ground and a good coach, both of which would be difficult to find—the first practically impossible.

Miss Marie Parks, when interviewed, seemed to think that most co-eds who made a practice of attending rugby games sufficiently understood the rules to appreciate the game. If they did not she advocated the reading of a book of rules on the subject.

Among the co-eds themselves the matter was very enthusiastically received. "I'm all for it!"—"That would be fun!"—"Let's use the front campus," and so on were a few of the general remarks. One girl went so far as to say that she would join the team provided that there was one—if pads were worn to prevent her opponent from tickling her—for if such a thing should happen, nothing could save a loose ball.

Miss Minerva Sinclair, II U.C.: It would increase the number of girls taking part in sports and encourage good sportsmanship!

Miss Patsy Dowler, I U.C., 1st year representative: I think it would be great fun—except perhaps the tackling!

Miss M. P., II year Pass: Great idea—when is it going to happen? I'm all for it!

LENGTHY RUN FEATURES SAINTS-PHARMACY GAME

Pharmacy and St. Mike's are tied for group honours as a result of a 7 to 5 victory for Pharmacy in their Mulock Cup game yesterday. The Saints were over-anxious and offside lost them many yards.

Pharmacy advanced in each of three downs and allowed Tanton to kick the initial point of the game. This was soon repeated by Grise. In the second quarter Greasy made a thrilling run for 50 yards which placed him in position for a drop kick. This raised the total of the "patent medicine" boys to five.

Regan stood out for the Saints with his fine punting, while Tanton and Greasy were best for the Druggists.

St. Michael's College: Flying wing, Flick; halves, Regan, Patterson, Frado; quarter, Radley; snap, Burns; insides, Kiloran, Hilborn; middles, Riley, Warren; outsides, Burns, Steves; subs, Channon, MacNamara, Harrison, Fletcher, Regan, Shook, White, Climisakeski.

Pharmacy: Flying wing, Mehr; halves, Tanton, Greasy, Grise; quarter, Cain; snap, Main; insides, Goldsmith, Kealy; middles, Brown, Hudson; outsides, Middleton, Wolfe; subs, Loy, Devitt, G. Brown, Glennov, Thorburn, Barrett.

DENTS-MEDS GAME TO-DAY

The rugby game between Dents and Senior Meds will be played on the back campus at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

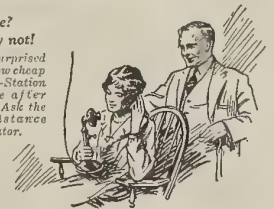

Severing Home Ties

NOW you've grown up and are away from the folks at home, you've taken the first step in severing the home ties that mean so much—to the folks, at least. Time is short, and—well,—you don't write as often as you ought to.

But there's no reason to neglect them. Telephone home—many college men are doing it regularly once each week. It's an event they look forward to with the utmost pleasure.

FOUR TEAMS ENTER INTERFACULTY BASEBALL

Girls of Vic., U.C., St. Mike's and O.C.E. Will Be in the Race

The women's Interfaculty baseball teams are busy with their last practices before the games which begin on November 19. There are four teams entering: St. Michael's College, Victoria College, University College and the College of Education. They all have peppy material and a good series is expected.

U.C. team is showing a number of her old favourites. Francis Dale is catching well and Edie Blackwell is playing first base. The team is proud of its new pitcher, Doris Budreo, who comes to them from Parkdale. Another splendid player is Wilma Haslock; it is still a question, however, if she will stay with them, as she stars also in basketball. Helen McKinley, another old favourite, is back playing on third base.

Victoria College team has not yet been chosen, so the manager declined to give any line-up. She dropped some hints, however, about their good players: Alice Tilly is going to catch, while Daisy Quance is in the pitcher's box. On first base they have Molly Garrett and on second there is Maude Linday. Harry Berry is coaching the team into fine shape.

Nothing definite has been decided upon for the line-ups of the O.C.E. and St. Mike's teams, but it is understood that they are giving promise of some excellent games.

Hockey Managers

The Athletic Directorate has on the nomination of the Hockey Club, appointed the following as managers of the hockey teams for the coming season:

Senior Intercollegiate: W. Dean Macdonald, Meds IV.
Intermediate Intercollegiate: Herbert O. Moran, U.C. II.
Junior Intercollegiate: W. Brock MacMurray, U.C. II.

S.A.C. WAITS FOR THE RETURN OF TWO QUEEN'S TAMS

New Constitution Changes Name to "Men Students' Administrative Council"

PHARMACY DISQUALIFIED

Number of Representatives Changed According to Population

Where are the Queen's tams? Two Scots laddies claim to have been mobbed and deploiled of their headgear in a melee after the catastrophe here a fortnight ago, and in a letter to the Students' Administrative Council have demanded their money or their bonnets back. At the meeting of Council yesterday some members were in favour of unloosing the full terrors of the Students' Court upon the offenders, but cooler heads prevailed and it was decided to await restitution of the unlawful prizes. These may be returned to the Secretary Treasurer in Hart House.

This was the most picturesque but not the most important part of the business transacted at the meeting. Most important was the adoption of a new constitution by virtue of which what was formerly called the "Students' Administrative Council" is now the "Men Students' Administrative Council." The proposal of Alan Ferry of Emmanuel College to transfer ultimate responsibility from the Joint Executive under the supervision of the Caput and the Board of Governors, to the body of the Council was effectively squelched by the committee which reported on the constitution and on which Mr. Ferry was in a minority of one. Council, however, signified its desire that all the men on the Joint Executive should follow its wishes and this was read into the new constitution.

Redistribution of student representation according to population resulted in the decrease of the number of (Continued on page 4)

M'GILL RECOGNIZES BLUE AS FORMIDABLE

Great Advance Sale Promises a Record Attendance for the Big Game

EXCITEMENT RUNS HIGH

(Special wire to "The Varsity" by Sporting Editor, McGill Daily) Montreal, Que., Nov. 7.—With the seat sale continuing unabated it appears that the attendance record for the Molson Stadium will be broken when Toronto Varsity and McGill football squads take the field on Saturday. With the first football tie in nearly nine years looming ahead, the match is creating unprecedented interest here. Although no official announcement has been forthcoming it is altogether unlikely that in the event of winning the title McGill will enter the Dominion play-off. The last time McGill went beyond the College Series was in 1906. The Red squad went through a heavy scrimmage to-day. A few of the men are still nursing injuries from the Queen's game, but none of these appear serious enough to prevent the full squad from starting on Saturday. The players are not showing any sign of overconfidence, realizing that the Blue is a formidable squad and that they invariably play good football on the Molson gridiron.

U.C. LITERARY SOCIETY SUGGESTS SOME CHANGES

Open House Debates May Be Adopted and Present Formal Style Dropped

That one dollar, to be devoted to athletic activities, be added to the two dollars already paid by every male student at University College, to the Literary and Athletic Society, was the suggestion made Tuesday at a meeting of the society. A notice of motion to this effect was introduced by Mr. Omand.

Another radical change was suggested in the manner of conducting the meetings of the society. The executive is considering the possibility of adopting the open house or parliamentary style of debating, and of doing away with the present formal inter-year debates.

After the business meeting an inter-year debate was held between the second and fourth years. Speakers for the affirmative of the subject, "Resolved that smaller universities offer more advantages to their students than do large colleges," were Messrs. Martin and Marshall of the fourth year; for the negative Messrs. Wood and Shepherd of 3T1.

The motion was lost by a considerable majority, second year thereby defeating the seniors.

YOUTH IS LOATH TO BOW TO DOGMA

Father Cline Answers Question of Authority in Religion

CHRIST DOGMATIZED

"You ask, 'Why is the church so dogmatic?' She cannot help it. Any man who knows the truth and does not preach it is a coward." Such was the assertion of the Rev. Father Cline, speaking in Hart House yesterday afternoon on behalf of the church as the Roman Catholic answer to the question of the S.C.A. series "Where is Our Authority in Religion?"

"Dogma," said Father Cline, "is the restatement of a truth that has been revealed." So authoritative, so dogmatic was Christ that he created a new school of homiletic pedagogy. Despite the fact that He offered nothing tangible save opportunity for sacrifice, the religious teachers of the time said, "If we let this man alone, the whole world will follow him!" Jesus dogmatized on every question presented to him. Where Socrates had been nebulous on the subject of immortality, Christ declared positively, "I came from there and I am going back there."

"The Church partakes of the nature of her Master," stated Father Cline. "Even as my Father sent me, so send I you—that is authority." Christ declared that all treatment meted, out to His disciples was as if done to him. "The Church, based upon the oral preaching of Jesus, met pagan philosophies on their own ground and mastered them. Later these oral sayings were written down. The Church maintains that the Bible is as sacred as tradition and that tradition is as sacred as the Bible. Many people to-day are doubtful about tradition. Yet no man can live without it. The civilization of Christianity for practically ten centuries was enshrined in tradition."

Father Cline realized that the modern young man does not like to be bothered with dogma; he feels that the Roman Catholic Church leaves no opportunity for thought. The modern person wants to be broadminded,

FEES ARE NOT APT TO BE FORTHCOMING FROM THE FAIR SEX

Matter of Shared Expenses Treated Lightly by Both Sexes

DUTCH DATES IMPROBABLE

Student Opinion Tends to Regard the Idea as Humorous Rather Than Practical

"Dutch dates" may be the burning issue of the moment at the University of Minnesota, but Toronto students of both sexes seem inclined to treat the matter lightly, and apparently think it highly improbable that the fair sex will ever share the expenses of dates.

Joe Evans, IV U.C.: "Very jolly idea if carried out! But I think the prospects of its being carried out are extremely small!"

Betty Potter, fresh-soph. Queen's Hall: "Nothing doing. I believe in being paid for. The good old Scotch tradition!"

G. Sinclair, III Trinity: "In most cases the men wouldn't let the women do it."

Lenore Skinner, III U.C.: "If the man would agree to it, all right, but I wouldn't think much of the man that would let me do it."

Freshette, U.C.: "Great idea! Then at supper-dances, for instance, I'd feel free to order everything on the menu!"

R. W. R. Marshall, IV U.C.: "I think that since a fellow asks a girl to go out with him, he should pay the 'shot' for the date."

Youthful Gynic, I Pass, U.C.: "Oh, but the men feel so good about paying for you, why deprive them of the pleasure?"

Peggy Sewell, II U.C.: "I think it's a perfectly awful idea I'd just die."

F. W. Burton, III Classics, U.C.: "A concession to superficial Americanism which would banish all the picturesque from life."

Ede McCollum, IV U.C.: "It would be all right if you settled your financial arrangements in private, but imagine how amusing it would be to see the 'female of the species' handing over her little contribution to help the boy friend buy the tickets!"

Phyllis Plaxton, IV U.C.: "Well, it would mean a girl could keep her sense of independence, but most men would get as mad as hops if you tried to."

O Valiant Hearts, who to your glory came,
Through dust of conflict and through battle-flame
Tranquil you lie, your knightly virtue proved,
Your memory hallowed in the land you loved.

Proudly you gathered, rank on rank, to war,
As who had heard God's message from afar;
All you had hoped for, all you had you gave
To save mankind—yourself you scorned to save.

Splendid you passed, the great surrender made,
Into the light that never more shall fade;
Deep your contentment in that blest abode,

PARLIAMENT OF VICTORIA ADOPTS NEW CONSTITUTION

Matters for Discussion to be the Care of Leader of Government

WYMLWOOD KEYS MISSING

Return of Keys to be Left to the Honour of the Students

At a meeting of the V.C.S.P. in the Alumni Hall last night, Mr. J. B. Robinson was made leader of the government by acclamation, filling one of the principal offices created by the new constitution which the meeting adopted to-night.

At the opening of the meeting a letter was read by the secretary in which it was stated that the men of Vic were suspected of the theft of the keys of two internal doors of Wymilwood during a musical held there recently. The letter also said that unless speedy restitution was made the men of Vic would be debarré from holding any functions in the residence.

During the discussion that followed one of the keys was produced and the final decision of the meeting was to post a notice on the bulletin board to the effect that the possessor of the other key should return it within a week. It was felt that an appeal to the honour of the culprit would be sufficient and if no key was forthcoming it could be assumed that no man in the college was guilty.

After the reports of the director of debates and a financial report of the Secretary-Treasurer had been disposed of the main question of the meeting, which was the consideration of the new constitution as drawn up by an appointed committee, was introduced. It was read for consideration by "the member from De Roche." The vital changes embodied are provision made for the election of a Leader of the Government from fourth year and a Leader of the Opposition appointed.

The Leader of the Government was to be responsible for the introduction of all matters to be considered. The Leader of the Opposition is, by opposing the measure, to insure its careful consideration by the house. A president was to act as chairman and a cabinet was to be appointed.

After the reading there was a prolonged discussion, all present participating. The constitution in toto though susceptible to later amendment was accepted by a vote.

DR. SCLATER DELINEATES AN UNUSUAL PAUL

University Women Hear of St. Paul's Romance and Struggles

Paul—"the dear old chap, the average man multiplied up to the nth power"—was the subject of a talk given by Dr. Sclater at the Women's Union, the first of a series of noon-hour talks under the auspices of the S.C.M. of University College, but open to women undergraduates of all colleges. Tradition gives him a desperate love story, which he threw aside on account of the handicap of having to lead about a wife. "They say he was no beauty. You can just see him with his great big bald head—not that baldness is such a sin; his snubby little nose; his scraggy beard; short in stature; bow-legged; and very short-sighted." It was "sheer cheek" of such a man to say: "I must see Rome also," but that is the sort that makes a great world.

Paul "suffered the extreme disadvantage of being well educated." He was able to do his "sniffing" and no doubt he did. But in spite of his handicaps, he was able to do all that he did and at the same time remain a human being—a thing which other spiritual leaders have not been able to do.

VINES DO NO INJURY WHEN KEPT IN CHECK

Colonel LePan Answers Letter in Yesterday's Issue of Varsity

ADD TO APPEARANCE

"It is our policy to keep vines alive, but also to keep them in check and prevent them from getting into the stonework of the building," said Col. LePan, superintendent of University buildings and grounds, interviewed by "The Varsity" with regard to the letter appearing in yesterday's "Varsity."

"I do not believe that the vines do a great deal of injury when kept within the proper bounds, although they certainly should not be allowed to get into the roof and eaves or the finer stonework," said Col. LePan.

"The vines of University College have been there from time immemorial and we do try to keep them alive. All certain other buildings would look rather bare were it not for the vines." On the south side of Convocation Hall, mentioned by the writer of the letter, one of the barren spaces, "The Varsity" reporter noted two apparently flourishing vines.

THIRD YEAR U.C. PARTY IS PROTECTED BY POLICE

Large Number of Class and a Few Crashers Dance at Women's Union

Despite gloomy prognostications and a supposed deficiency in class spirit, about one hundred and twenty-five ardent members of the class 3T0 of University College attended their combined class party held at the Women's Union last night. Stringent precautions were taken by the executive to prevent "crashing" and their efforts were rewarded by only three very subdued School men and a couple of Meds escaping their vigilance. One man confessed to trying to get in a window, but an officer sprang at him from a bush and put an end to such audacious proceedings. All the men admitted claimed to have either bought year cards or paid the required twenty-five cents, so another foreboding of 3T0 seers came to naught.

AUSTEN CHAMBERLAIN AND PAUL CLAUDEL RECEIVE DEGREES

Eminent British Statesman and French Poet Become Doctors of Law and Letters

SPEAKS FOR WORLD PEACE

Success of Union of France and England Shown in Canada

Convocation Hall, crammed to the doors, presented a glowing picture long to be remembered yesterday afternoon at the ceremony of the bestowal of honorary degrees upon Sir Austen Chamberlain, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, and M. Paul Claudel, Ambassador of France to the United States.

"Few men have so brilliantly fulfilled the hopes centered in them," said Sir Robert Falconer, in introducing Sir Austen. "It is with great admiration for what he has accomplished," he concluded, "that the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws will now be conferred upon him."

Sir Robert Falconer then presented M. Claudel, saying that "deep within the heart of this man of the world there lies a clear well of genius."

After the bestowal of the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters upon M. Claudel, Sir Austen when requested to speak by Sir William Mulock thanked the University for this honour, voiced his opinion that "the peace of Europe rests on the basis of friendship between France and England." "No pact of peace can make war impossible," he said, "but each one of these makes it harder for the aggressor." In the past four years something has (Continued on page 4)

ETERNAL FEMININE CONQUERS MERE MALE

Women Unfit to Govern Because They Do Not Know Their Own Mind

WOMAN IS SPEAKER

The eternal feminine once more emerged victorious over mere males when at a joint debate last night between Trinity College and St. Hilda's College, the motion "That in the opinion of the house, women should have their own way" was passed by a vote of 65-63.

Miss Clair McTier led for the affirmative and endeavoured to show the fitness of women to govern. She was followed by Miss Eleanor Clarke, leading for the negative, who went into history to prove the fact that women had brought only disaster to mankind when they had gained their own purposes.

Mr. Glen Wilton, the second speaker for the affirmative, appealed to the chivalry of the men present and urged them to grant women their own way. Mr. Jack Clough did not think that women were fit to have their own way as none of them knew their own mind.

An innovation was introduced into debating at Trinity College when a woman was named as the Speaker. Miss Mary Winspear occupied the chair.

Lecture Cancelled

Owing to an unfortunate misunderstanding, His Excellency Paul Claudel will not be able to speak to the Alliance Française on Thursday evening.

"OF THE SAME OPINION STILL"

"The audience was so queer; they seemed to be nearly all students from the University," said a dear old lady in a voice expressive of both scorn and surprise when speaking of the meeting of the Canadian Authors' Association on Tuesday night. "What undergraduates are interested in are activities which are truly characteristic of their interests. Literary endeavours as carried on at our University are not worthy of reward," was the comment of an undergraduate when questioned as to our suggestion of some tangible recognition of intellectual accomplishment.

These opinions, though from very different sources, seem to contain the same underlying idea. One feels that it is extraordinary for students to be interested in anything not directly concerned with the passing of examinations, and the other seems to suggest that intellectual effort at the university is dead.

Are such statements indicative of the attitude of people both outside and within the university towards the cultural life of the institution? If they are not we feel that immediate steps ought to be taken to rectify a most unfortunate misconception, and if they are, we hope that the university will at once cease to advertise itself as an institution of higher learning, and will join the ranks of the many and excellent Technical Schools which are now flourishing in the province.

Our undergraduate critic accuses us of stupidity in trying "to keep alive something which is now merely traditional." If, as she seems to think, the university has become merely a factory for turning out stereotyped products and if it possesses only a memory of former intellectual greatness, then indeed we are exceedingly stupid to waste our time in such a hopeless task as trying to awaken interest in the recognition of cultural attainment. But if, as we are firmly convinced, the University of Toronto has now greater intellectual promise than ever it had before, and if it is recognized the world over, as we believe it is, to be a seat of learning and of culture, then we maintain our former position and request that the mental achievements of our undergraduates be considered of an importance at least equal to that enjoyed by their muscular efforts.

National Anthem at Convocation

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir: Impressive as was the convocation held on Wednesday afternoon, we cannot but regret deeply the omission of our national anthem, "O Canada." The ceremony both began and ended with a rendition of "God Save the King," while during the recessional pealed forth the stirring strains of "La Marseillaise." We feel, sir, that all respect should be paid to our great Empire; and we feel that it was most fitting that the national anthem of France should be played on an occasion when one of her most distinguished and talented sons received honour from our University.

But, sir, to quote a former prime minister of this Dominion, "Canada est une nation!" We now send forth our own ambassadors, sign our own treaties, have a representative on the Council of the League of Nations—with our national autonomy recognized by the Imperial Conference of 1926. Do these facts signify nothing?

"O Canada" is recognized from

Ann Arbor, Mich.—Dr. C. C. Little, president of the University of Michigan, has enlisted the aid of federal prohibition agents in an anti-liquor campaign. It will be the duty of these agents to patrol the campus during the entire current football season. President Little is supported by the student council, which has pledged its help in enforcing the issue against drinking. Although some of the students objected to the campaign, on the grounds that it would blacken the reputation of the school, President Little believes that the situation warrants these measures.

The limericks seem to be coming in as fast as rain these autumn days, which is a swell simile, if we do say it ourselves. We do not wish to indulge in a surfeit of limericks as we did puns some time back, believing as we do in medan agan, the w.k. Golden Mean, so we are confining ourselves to one this morning which was handed to us by the ribald Larry:

There was a young man of Devices
Whose ears were of two different sizes,
The one that was small
Was no good at all

ST. MIKE'S & BLUES BOTH GO UNDER IN INITIAL PLAYDOWN GAMES

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Two of the University's entries in the Intercollegiate football series received severe setbacks yesterday. Varsity Juniors invaded the precincts of Queen's, with the result that the Tricolour "infants" emerged on the long end of a 15-3 score in the first of a home and home games series to decide the championship. At Montreal Loyola beat St. Mike's Intermediates also by a score of 15-3.

The return game of the Loyola-St. Mike's series will be played as part of a double-header at Varsity Stadium on Saturday afternoon. It is scheduled to start at 1.15, and following this game Argos play Montreal in a Big Four engagement, which will commence at 3 o'clock.

Indications are that a record crowd will witness the Varsity-McGill game at the Molson Stadium on Saturday. It is a long time since McGill have had a Senior football championship, and this is their big chance. If the Red turn in a victory the laurels go to Montreal. If the Blue and White bring home the bacon (and they probably will) then the whole series is knotted up once again.

The Tricolour will spend a mighty anxious afternoon Saturday. Their "soul" hope is a Varsity win. As far as they're concerned it's up to the Blue.

According to local psychologists Varsity have a much better chance to emerge victors than McGill have. With everything to win and nothing to lose, the Blue should put up a fierce fight. McGill would get another chance, but Varsity has to win. Again, Varsity have been very successful in past years at the Molson Stadium, where they have generally played their best game. So right now it looks as if the three colleges will be all square by Saturday evening.

LOYOLA TEAM SCORES VARSITY JUNIORS AGAINST ST. MIKE'S LOSE TO QUEEN'S

Score Fails to Indicate Play as All the Points Were Made in Kicks

GAME DECIDED BY KICKING

(By P. C. W.)
Special to "The Varsity" by a Staff Reporter

Montreal, Que., Nov. 7.—Loyola took St. Mike's into camp to-day on a windy field 15 to 3. The score, however, fails to indicate the play, as all the points were made in kicks, neither team crossing the opponent's line.

St. Mike's opened the scoring when oung ran about 30 yards on a fake kick. They then took advantage of the wind at their backs and kicked for the initial point of the game. The first quarter ended with the score out to nothing.

The game was decided by kicking, very few gains being made through the line. Loyola's best men, Savard and McCarrey. For St. Mike's, Sheehan, Young, McGahey and Burns stood out.

Loyola: Flying wing, McCarrey; halves, McAlear, Savard, Gorman; quarter, Haynes; snap, Cogan; insides, Pigeon, Power; middles, Shaughnessy, O'Connor; outsides, Munich, Timmins; subs, Mullaly, O'Brien, Slattery, Baubien, Cummins, George, Byrne, Walsh.

St. Michael's: Flying wing, Kehoe; halves, Burns, Quinn, Young; quarter, McGahey; snap, Flahiff; insides, Haffey, Hyde; middles, Sammon, Sheehan; outsides, Morgan, Whitelaw; subs, Hussey, Flick, Martin, Cameron, Culligan, McGraw, Robbins.

Referee: W. Consiglio.
Umpire: L. Dowling.

POSITIONS ON TEAM ARE YET UNDECIDED

Line-up Has Undergone Many Shifts This Season

LOT DEPENDS ON BACKLINE

With only two regular practice sessions available before the Blue and White entrain for Montreal, last night's workout gave only a slight idea of the team that will face the Red and White at the Molson Stadium this Saturday.

Johnny Keith at snap and Herb Little and Wally Bean at the middle wings seem to be sure starters. Morgan and Joe Kelly appear to have the call at inside, with Gooderham and Cartwright on the ends.

The quarter position may not be decided until the last moment and may have no small bearing on the result of the game. If Murray Snyder calls the signals, Bell and Hallam may take the hoists with Harrison and Traynor completing the secondary. If Hallam takes over the quarter duties Snyder would fit in nicely at outside or as secondary half.

Tricolour Score Big Gains Due to Failure of Varsity to Hold Line

12 POINT LEAD

Special to "The Varsity"
(By H. W. H.)

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 7.—Varsity Juniors fell by the wayside at Richardson Stadium to-day, losing the first Junior Intercollegiate final 15 to 3. Queen's looking good enough for the championship with a twelve point lead.

Queen's line plunging and Day's splendid kicking spelled defeat for Varsity, who uncorked an offensive second half that was effective. After Queen's plunged for yards early in the game, Day sent over a field goal, and followed it with a kick for a rouge and a safety touch. A bad snap out, which resulted in the ball falling into a Queen's man's hands for a touch-down, and the convert which followed made the score 12 to 0.

But in the third quarter, Perkins electrified the crowd when he dashed for forty yards and Robinson then scored all the Varsity points with a field goal. Day came back to kick another drop, ending the scoring for the day.

Varsity's line failed to hold as was expected, and the result was the Tricolour were walking through for big gains. In fact they gained yards through the line ten times, while Varsity only plunged twice for the distance. Perkins was the outstanding star for the Blue and White, his two runs in the second half netting over eighty yards, while Robinson kicked well until forced to retire in the last quarter through injuries. Smith, who did the kicking in his place, turned in a neat performance, while Britnell at quarter and Crocker and Gibb did some neat work.

Varsity: Flying wing, Bennett; halves, G. Smith, Richardson, Robinson; quarter, Britnell; snap, Campbell; insides, Jackson, Stringer; middles, Farwell, Connor; outsides, Crocker, Gibbs; subs, Perkins, Thompson, Buchanan, Reid, D. Smith, MacDonald, Nelson, Heintzman.

Queen's: Flying wing, Kindle; halves, Day, Adair, Atchinson; quarter, Alexander; snap, Buell; insides, Murray, Hulse; middles, Hall, Kurtz; outsides, McLroy, Martin; subs, Staturbury, Agnew, Steadman, Todd, Remus Ashley, Marion.

Referee: Harry Batstone; umpire, Chick Mundell; head lines man, F. R. Bill Campbell.

Trying to pick the team right now is a job for a clairvoyant assisted by the w.k. dream-book. This season's line-up has undergone about as many shifts as "Shag" Shaughnessy ever used in his palmy days. Coach Blackwell certainly has plenty of men for each position, with a plenitude of back-field hopefuls eager to strut their stuff, but nevertheless the rear-guard from quarter out has been his greatest problem. How well this has been solved will be probably settled by the McGill game.

McGill Will Not Play Off Varsity Water Polo Teams Promise Good Showing

McGill University in the event of winning the Intercollegiate football title will not participate in the C.R.U. playdowns. Dr. Lamb notified the secretary of the C.R.U. that McGill would not take part in the post-intercollegiate series.

All hockey players who wish to make the Senior, Intermediate or Junior teams are asked to call at the Athletic Office and fill in application cards. The first Senior practice will be held next Wednesday at 5 o'clock. Applicants for teams will please watch the columns of "The Varsity"

The two Varsity water polo teams entered in the city league are conceded a good chance of walking away with their respective groups. Although the teams have not yet been picked, the Interfaculty Series will provide plenty of material. The practice and condition which the players get in the Interfaculty Series should help them to make a place on the Varsity A and B teams. There will be only two more practices before the league schedule begins, so be out to these.

Cocky College Connoisseurs Covet
Awe-Inspiring Aura of Originality

(By N. J. DeWitt)

"Mr. Shuter," asked the representative of the Aurora Borealis, "what do you consider the most striking thing about college?"

"Oke!" replied genially the son of our respected local coal and wood dealer who has been spending his first year at the university. "Why," he explained, "originality is the great thing about college. It teaches a person to think for themselves, I mean, for himself."

"Then, Bunkley, originality is encouraged, is it?"

"And how!"

"You mean the students encourage originality among themselves?"

"Yes. Every one tries to be different."

"Different from whom?"

"From the other guy."

"Then, if everyone is different, looking upon difference as something common to all, they are all the same because they are all similar in being different."

"No, look here, Gregory, you don't understand. I know what you're trying to do. You're trying to kid me. What I mean is this, we all try to say different things. Each man is encouraged to develop his own personality and make out of it something higher and better. In essays, if one is not original, the professor will mark one down."

"How do you mean, Mark one down? One what?"

"No, no," said Mr. Shuter emphatically, "I mean there is nothing a professor hates in an essay, or in an exam more than having his own opinions quoted. And say, if the professor has written a book, and you quote something from the book, you're plucked sure as pop."

"That's fine, Bunkley. I'll put that down," replied ye scribe. "And among the boys and girls, are they original?"

"Sure! Take this absurd custom of saying 'And How!' Why, no one at the university would ever think of that!"

"Well, that's great stuff, Mr. Shuter. I'll see you again!"

"Oke!"

Entering a door which led upstairs he presently found himself in a waiting room, where he hurriedly made an appointment for the following day.

At the stated hour he was seated in a large chair and the lady in attendance commenced wrapping his head in hot towels. A question as to whether his hair was falling out finally made the poor fish realize he was in a beauty parlour and had taken the wrong door.

This goes to show once more that an Honour course too frequently fails to develop the powers of observation and good judgment of those within its folds.

Various organizations around the Campus seem to be having trouble with constitutions, and seem also to spend a great deal of bother figuring whether Subsection C. of Clause 4, Part 6, is or is not in direct contradiction of Clause 3. It is also interesting to see a legal fend remind the house of a neat point only to discover that the matter in question happens three constitutions later. And it finally turns out that the amendment to the amendment to the amendment is contrary to the rule of Parliamentary procedure, see Bournout.

Unless people can figure ways of snapping out of these legal pingpong matches, we may expect to see student government canned and shelved. Seriously speaking Dec.

INTERIOR DECORATORS DISPLAY ORIGINALITY

An excellent example of the fine art of interior decorating is given in each room or "Chambrette" on the popular Canadian National individual sleeping cars.

The rooms show the beauty and attractiveness of soft colors in varied tones. The corridor is carpeted with Wilton, while unusual door knockers replace conventional buzzers on the entrance doors. Luxurious furnishings and fittings harmonize to make an exceptionally attractive room. Everything is carefully planned to give the traveller home-like surroundings.

Single room sleeping cars are provided on both the 10 and 11 p.m. trains leaving Toronto for Montreal. Make reservations at the City Ticket Office, Canadian National Building, North-west corner King and Yonge Streets, Phone ELgin 6241. (Adv.)

M. Claudel, in turn, expressed his gratitude to the University for the bestowal of his degree. "We will never forget what Canada has done for France," he continued; "it is written in the depths of the hearts of the French people. And Canada shows what France and England can accomplish when bound together in a common desire for peace and prosperity."

The ceremony was then concluded with the playing of "La Marseillaise" as a recessional.

POLITICS FIT TOPIC FOR STUDENT DEBATE STATES CHAMBERLAIN

In Interview with The Varsity
Sir Austen Pleased with U. of T.

IS NOT AMERICANIZED

Old Cambridge Undergraduate Debating Methods Are Recalled

"I'm absolutely in favour of it. I did it myself and am glad of it," declared Sir Austen Chamberlain, in a special interview he granted "The Varsity" yesterday, when asked his opinion of students discussing politics. "Of course," he went on, "they will often write and say things that they will later disagree with. But that does not matter. It is only natural among those without experience."

Sir Austen and Lady Chamberlain and their party paid a visit to Hart House yesterday morning. "A wonderful institution," Sir Austen said of it. "Your great hall and especially your swimming pool." Mention of the Hart House debates recalled to him his own student days.

"You know when I was an undergrad at Cambridge, the dons once became afraid of us and forbade us to discuss any political question later than the eighteenth century. So when we wished to debate political affairs we had to refer them back. Such subjects as 'Catholic emancipation in 1799' or the 'Reform of the franchise in 1799' would be discussed with reference to current politics. It was excellent training for public life."

"Not to the slightest extent," was his vigorous reply to the suggestion that the University of Toronto might seem to be becoming Americanized. "As soon as you get here you notice the atmosphere. It is distinctly British."

As they left the house Sir Austen and Lady Chamberlain both expressed keen pleasure at all they had seen. "I congratulate your University. It is splendid," Sir Austen concluded.

NATIONAL ANTHEM TRADITIONAL MUSIC

Has Always Been Played at Special Convocation Ceremonies

NO CHANGE LIKELY

"God Save the King" has always been played at the beginning and at the end of any function under the auspices of the senate of this university," said Sir Robert Falconer when interviewed yesterday by "The Varsity" concerning the omission of "O Canada" at the special convocation held on Wednesday to do honour to Sir Austen Chamberlain and M. Paul Claudel. This is in answer to the correspondents of yesterday who said: "We feel that the invocation for divine watchfulness over His Imperial Majesty might have been dispensed with once in favour of our own National Anthem."

The Registrar, Dr. Brebner, was unable to give any information concerning the omission. But Dr. Mouré, who was at the organ during the convocation, said that he merely played what the President asked for, and that he had never been accustomed to playing anything at such functions except what was asked of him. Dr. Brebner also intimated that he had no particular views upon the subject.

MEDICAL SOCIETY CONTINUES POLICY OF SICK FUND

Provides Insurance for Meds at Cheap Rate in Case of Illness

HOSPITAL BILLS PAID

Sale of Membership Tickets in the Fund Begins
This Week

In accordance with its policy of recent years the Medical Society of this University will continue to operate a Sick Fund for the benefit of undergraduate medical students. For a time it was feared that the fund, which last year was not as well supported as in former years, would be discarded or at least modified, and at recent meetings of the Medical Society the matter was given full consideration. Lack of thorough understanding of the manner in which the fund is operated is believed to be the reason the medical students failed to support the venture heartily, and with this in mind, the Medical Society Executive decided to accord the fund full publicity.

Several years ago the Medical Sick Fund was inaugurated by the Medical Society, the idea being to provide insurance for medical students at a cheap rate. Claims for hospital expenses, doctors' fees, laboratory fees and operating room expenses were considered under the original constitution of the fund, but as at present constituted only claims for hospital maintenance up to $3.50 per day and operating room expenses will be considered.

For some time it has been a popular fallacy that the Sick Fund would pay in full all claims submitted. As the membership and consequently the assets of the fund varies considerably from year to year full payment of any and all claims submitted was obviously impossible. Actually the fund pays in proportion to its assets, which are usually about five hundred dollars. In other words, if there is $500 in the fund and claims amounting to $700 are favourably considered, five-sevenths of each claim will be paid.

INJURIES HEALING M'GILL STARS READY FOR CRUCIAL GAME

Defeat of Red and White Squad
Last Year by Varsity Team
Prevents Overconfidence

RECORD CROWD EXPECTED

Same Team as Faced Queen's
Last Saturday Will Likely
Start in Game

Special to "The Varsity" by Sporting Editor of McGill Daily
Montreal, Que., Nov. 8.—Injuries to members of the McGill football team are healing rapidly, and although several men were kept from practice all week it is fairly certain that the same squad that defeated Queen's at Kingston last Saturday will take the field against Toronto Varsity at the Molson Stadium here. Given fair weather attendance records will be shattered. The squad held a final signal practice to-day and will not take the field again until game time. Several of the regulars are still suffering from injuries. Littlefield, Swabey, Munroe and Don Young were unable to leave the fieldhouse. Young is giving the coach some anxiety, but it is likely that the lanky outside wing will take his place against the Blue.

The defeat of the McGill team last year by the Blue is still fresh in their minds and the Red players are not showing any signs of overconfidence. Indications are that it will be a stern struggle.

The likely line-up:

Flying wing, Lovering; halves, Treman, Dougherty, Smyth; quarter, Brown; snap, Swabey; insides, C. Church, Littlefield; middles, McTier, H. Church; outsides, Young, Urquhart; subs, Kritzwiser, Ranger, Munroe, Talpis, Halpenney, Sperber, Consiglio.

Murray Snyder

Captain of the Varsity team, who has been shifted from quarter but will start on the half line in the game against McGill on Saturday.

RUGBY TICKETS

There will be special students' tickets admitting to a centre section of the Stadium for to-morrow's double header which may be had at the Athletic Association Office at 50c including tax. For women students at Room 82, University College.

BLUE RUGBY SQUAD HOLD FINAL PREP FOR M'GILL GAME

To-morrow's Game May Be Last Appearance of Varsity Team
This Season

PROBABLE LINE-UP GIVEN

Improvement in Extensions and All Backfield Work Should Bring Victory

Yesterday evening saw the Blue squad wind up their two weeks grind of preparation for the McGill game at Montreal to-morrow.

When Les Blackwell's boys trot on the field at the Molson Stadium they will be a well trained outfit in the pink of condition, and "rarin' to go." In last night's workout the wearers of the blue showed enough pep to smear old McGill all over their own campus. The team is confident, but not over-confident, and they have real reason to be so. In the McGill game here the Varsity line considerably outplayed the Red front works, and but for some poor football on the part of the Blue rear guard the Queen's Parkers would have taken the berries instead of the "razzberry." In that game Varsity displayed far better condition than the Montreals, and towards the end of the battle the latter were just able to hang on.

It is a sure thing that the Blue and White can't play any worse football than they did against McGill here and with the improvement which is bound to be seen in the extensions and general all round backfield work to-morrow old McGill will be forced to bite the dust and the Varsity fans will have the prospect of at least one red-hot play-off before everything is put away in the moth-balls.

The probable line-up is:—

Flying wing, Harrison; halves, McFayden, Snyder, Traynor; quarter, Hallam; snap, Keith; insides, Kelly, White; middles, Bean, Little; outsides, Dunne, Gooderham; subs, Darling, Davey, Bell, Sinclair, Morin, Solandt, Cartwright, Morgan, Baker, Smith.

HART HOUSE MASQUERADE COSTUME PRIZES LISTED

House Committee Takes Steps to Solve Traffic Problem and Lessen Confusion

Prizes for costumes at the Masquerade will be presented this year upon the following basis:

1. One for the best gentleman's costume judged by the standards of art.
 2. One for the best lady's costume judged by the standards of art.
 3. One for the most original costume, lady or gentleman.
- It is hoped that Mr. F. S. Haynes, the well-known artist, and Mr. Henry Sprout, one of the architects of the house, will be present on the evening to decide the awards.

With the object of obviating some part of the confusion and congestion which have almost come to be regarded as necessary accessories to masquerades, the House Committee has this year developed new plans for the handling of internal traffic. The ladies' cloak room will be situated as usual in the south-east wing of the building. They will leave their partners at the south door and will then pass by way of the tack shop stairs to the lower gallery. The House Committee expects that the space inside the south door will not be used as a rendezvous and hopes in this way to avoid the overcrowding which has been customary.

STUDENT DIRECTORY WILL BE AVAILABLE NEXT WEDNESDAY

Summary Shows Increase of 405 in Registration
This Year

DENTISTRY NUMBERS DROP

Medicine, Music and Social Service Also Show Slight
Decrease in Students

That copies of the University Directory would definitely be available to students on Wednesday of next week was the statement issued yesterday by "The Varsity" by Mr. Fennell, Assistant Registrar of the University, in charge of the compilation of this publication. The final proofs have been returned to the printer, but the weekend holiday will interfere somewhat with the task of getting the 6,000 copies off the press. Undergraduates in Arts will obtain their copies from the Registrar's Office in their respective colleges; those in other faculties from their Secretary's Office.

An increase of 405 in this year's registration over that of last is noteworthy on an examination of the "Grand Summary" to be found at the back of the Directory. The total figures at 5,961. The most signal increase is to be marked in Arts, which jumps from 2,907 to 3,124. The Ontario College of Education and the Department of Public Health Nursing show an enrollment of 92 and 128 respectively.

The faculties of Applied Science and Engineering, Household Science, and Forestry, the School of Graduate Studies, and the Department of Occupational Therapy also show an advance. Save in Dentistry, which drops back a matter of 33, no notable decrease is observed, although Medicine, Music and Social Service show a slight loss in numbers. The Administrative Course for Graduate Nurses, a new department this year, boasts an enrollment of 21.

VIGILANCE PARTY HANDLES CULPRITS AT KNOX COLLEGE

TWO MEDS AND SCHOOL MAN

Officials Refuse to Relate
Any Details of the Case
When Interviewed

Two Medical students and one School man living at Knox College have been severely handled by the vigilance committee of the college for bringing liquor into their rooms on the night of the Knox College Undergraduate Association reception, according to information received by "The Varsity" yesterday. Two of the culprits are said to have been apprehended after Tuesday's affair, while the third was dealt with when he was found Wednesday afternoon.

The official disapproval of the offenders by the college is said to be shown by the severity of the punishment meted out by the Vigilance Committee. So keen were its members that they went to the length of staying up to six o'clock the next morning chasing the offenders around the campus. When they were located they were made to strip and are then said to have been beaten with wet towels.

When officials of the Undergraduate Association and of the Students' House Committee were interviewed by "The Varsity," they refused to make any statement. Those who could be discovered were very sorry that anything had been found out about the affair, and declined to say a thing for publication.

WOMEN'S PRESS CLUB HEAR M. CALLAGHAN

Advocates Writing to Please Yourself and Not to Hit a Mark

NEWSPAPER PREPARATION

"I prefer to have a Mussolini on the staff of a paper and have him shout 'It's wonderful' when a contribution is read, even if twelve other shout 'It's terrible!'" said Morley Callaghan when he was chatting to the Women's Press Club in the U.C. Union on Thursday afternoon.

"There are two ways of writing, the first to hit a mark, the second to please yourself, and to me the latter is the only way to write, and inevitably some day if you have faith in yourself your work will appear in some publication."

"The very best preparation for short story writing is to do newspaper work, for there you learn to say what you want to say in as few words as possible."

"One way Canadian writing could be helped would be a gift of $10,000 a year for a magazine which would not have to depend on advertising and with an editor who didn't have to worry about sales. In this magazine writers would get publication on their own merit and then they would go on and write for the paying magazines."

"When I was at Varsity a certain professor told me I had observation but no style, and now the New York Bookman says I have too much style! I believe in saying things simply and directly, which does not mean and real lyrical eloquence is impossible, but I won't be rhetorical," he said.

TEN YEARS AFTER

Ten years ago to-day ended what is known as the Great War. We are too close to make final pronouncements upon the issues involved but we of the present young generation were close enough to the event to appreciate in some degree why the War was called "great." It was great in the disaster caused by the turning upon itself of all the complicated machinery which society had perfected. But it was great also in the staggering accumulation of endurance under suffering which the catastrophe demanded.

In a book written by writers belonging to the optimistic school of history, there is the chapter heading: "One hundred years of progress: 1815-1914." The irony of this is plain when we turn to the next chapter. In reading this we feel a great weight of sorrow which we think might have been avoided. And yet we cannot help but feel proud of our kinship in the men and women who bore much and bore it well.

And of these men and women, we honour in particular to-day the gentlemen of our own university whose time of life was short but who would not spend that shortness basely.

The National Anthem

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir

It is a matter for regret that two fourth year men of University College, viz. W. E. C. Martin and J. R. M. Wilson, should refer to "O Canada" as Canada's national anthem. Legally, our national anthem is "God Save the King." In the minds of many people the above fact spells the hated phrase "Colonial status." Such an opinion displays ignorance of the actual situation. The Royal Title is as follows: "George V, by the Grace of God, of Great Britain, Ireland and the British Dominions beyond the Seas, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India." This simply means that George V is King of Canada as well as of Great Britain. The Governor-General of Canada is His Majesty's direct representative and not that of the British Parliament. In the days of Confederation, Sir John A. Macdonald earnestly desired to have the new-born country called "the Kingdom of Canada" and not "Dominion of Canada." Our status to-day is that of a kingdom although in name we are a dominion. In view of this fact, is there any good reason why "God Save the King" should not be our national anthem?

Again, Canada does not send forth her own ambassadors. There is not a solitary ambassador in our whole diplomatic service. I defy Messrs. Martin and Wilson to prove it otherwise. Canada does appoint trade commissioners and ministers to foreign countries, but never ambassadors. The two gentlemen mentioned above would find the "Report of the Inter-Imperial Relation Committee, 1926," a very interesting and enlightening document.

Please do not understand from what I have said that I oppose the playing of "O Canada." Rather would I suggest that on future occasions both "God Save the King" and "O Canada" be played, one at the opening and one at the closing.

Yours very truly,

W. R. Howard.

RECEPTION FOR M. CLAUDEL AT ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE

Praises University in Address Speaking in Both French and English

"University of Toronto is one of the finest of its kind in the world," M. Paul Claudel told the students of St. Joseph's yesterday morning at a reception given in his honour. M. Claudel, accompanied by Count Rocheron de la Sablière, French Consul in Canada, and Fathers Dollard and Barcels, was greeted by "The Marseillaise" and a welcome song by the students. M. Claudel was welcomed by Miss Helen Dolan in an address in French.

In a few words he replied first in French and then in English thanking the students for their welcome and congratulating them on the advantages they enjoyed in the religious formation received in a college with such traditions and in affiliation with one of the greatest universities of the world.

Professor G. B. Robins Speaks on the Ballad and Broadside

"Of the three hundred and five ballads known to-day, ninety were recovered in North America, although none were composed here," was an interesting fact pointed out by Professor G. B. Robins in the first of the series of lectures which he will deliver on the "Ballad and Broadside in English-speaking America."

The majority of those recovered on this continent were collected in the mountains of Virginia and North Carolina; these included five of the Robin Hood ballads. There are ninety-five ballads sung in North America to-day and here the ballad shows signs of surviving longer than in England. Everyone sings in the mountains of the South, while in England only those over seventy years of age sing ballads. The Border Ballads and the Sea Ballads close the ballad era, and the Broadside, which is coarser and more humorous, commences, many of which were originated on the North American continent.

The University of Oklahoma will offer a course in aeronautical engineering next year, which will consist of three years in the School of Engineering and one year of professional training.

THE WROMANCE OF WRIGHTEOUS WRONALD (Ronald Rotttingham, a ruined and starving physician, hath been befriended by a comely damsel, who spake not but smole sympathetically and tossed him a piece of hot beef-steak. Ronald lost the steak but found courage and contracted palpitation of the heart when he had seen her smile. In rap-tures he wanders off into the night, a changed man.)
Now read on—

CHAPTER 2

Ronald set forth with a new resolve and at last obtained a job painting tooth paste ads on dray horses. In the evenings he took special courses in Galatian Folk Dancing and Sewage Disposal at the technical school, hoping to better his position.

His dream was soon realized. One day he painted a large red dentifrice ad. on a prize steer by mistake. The infuriated animal broke loose and dashed through the streets toward the university, where it staged a rodeo of its own on the front campus and then lay down and died on the steps of S.P.S.

Ronald was at once promoted for this great advertising stunt. In his new position he sat in shop windows and demonstrated the use of the tooth paste. And he cut a dashing figure, to be sure, as he sat all day before admiring crowds, vigorously brushing his teeth and letting the suds roll carelessly off his chin into a marble basin. All went well until one day he saw the beefsteak girl pass his window. Forgetting everything in his desire to speak to her he charged through the pane and followed her through the crowd. People saw him bearing down upon them with foam flying from his lips and they scattered in all directions. An alarm was given and with a cry of "Madman" the police, fire department and the girl guides rushed off in pursuit.

Ronald pressed on but to his chagrin he lost the girl in the crowd. At last, however, he fully realized his peril and sprinted for safety, but unfortunately for him he turned down a side street and ran right into the arms of the dogcatchers, who netted him and carried him off to the pound where he was locked in a cage and given a dog biscuit. Dazed and flea bitten, he waited two whole days, vainly hoping for someone to come and claim him, but to his great sorrow no one owned him, so he looked miserably for the end.

On the morrow he was to be humanely destroyed.

BLUES LEAVE FOR MCGILL WITH BRIGHT HOPES FOR VICTORY

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The Blue and White are in for a tough battle to-morrow when they take on McGill right on the Red gridiron. With visions of a championship lurking in the offing the Montrealers will be fighting tooth and nail to avoid any play-off games. Varsity with the moral support of the Tricolour behind them have great expectations of a three-ple tangle to be played off under the auspices of Old Man Winter.

Ken Tremaine, who played a large part in the McGill triumph in the Limestone City, will likely take care of the aerial attack for the Red to-morrow and in addition help out on the plunges. Against Queen's last Saturday Tremaine out-hoofed Carter on a terrible field and this had a great influence on the result of the game. Hallam or Darling will lift the oval for the Blue and honours this time should be about even. Hallam has got good height and distance in practice, and if he is given the proper protection should at least hold his own.

As is usual Varsity will have a loyal following of rooters at Montreal to-morrow who will furnish some worthy opposition for the Red and White rah rah boys. Here's hoping they have plenty to cheer for.

MULOCK CUP WINNERS DECIDED IN THREE GROUPS

Group Two Winners Not Yet Declared if Protest Game is to be Played

November 9, the date scheduled for the end of the Mulock Cup league games, finds definite winners declared in three of the four groups. In one division only, Group No. 2, is a winner yet to be declared, a protested game, and postponed due to a misunderstanding of the chairman of the Committee of Management and those in charge of the teams, regularly scheduled to play this afternoon, having made it necessary to prolong the season into the coming week.

Trinity is declared the winner of Group 3, but the game with Victoria scheduled for this afternoon will probably take place on Tuesday of the coming week. It is hoped that the results of games played in Group 2 will permit the semi-finals to be played on Thursday and Friday of next week.

The standing in Group 2, where a winner is yet to be declared, is as follows:

	Won	Lost	Points
Jr. U.C.	2	1	4
Jr. Meds.	1	1	2

If Meds win both games they will be declared group winners, and arrangements will at once be made to have them enter the semi-finals.

LOYOLA AND ST. MIKE'S RETURN GAME SATURDAY

Play Doubleheader at Stadium with Montreal-Argonaut Big Four Game

The return game in the semi-finals in the Intermediate Intercollegiate Series between Loyola and St. Mike's will be played at 1 p.m. Saturday at the Varsity Stadium. Last Wednesday at Montreal the Loyola squad piled up a 12 point lead against St. Mike's, winning the game by 15 to 3.

The series is decided on the aggregate of points, so the boys from St. Mike's have to pile up at least a 13 to 0 score Saturday afternoon. The fact that Loyola won all their points on kicking stands a little in St. Mike's favour, should the weather be against an aerial game to morrow.

The game immediately precedes the Montreal-Argonauts game at the Stadium, and should prove a real contest.

SOCCER SQUAD TRAVEL TO MONTREAL TO-DAY

Victory or Tie Game Saturday for Coach Halliwell's Team Means Cup

The Varsity soccer team enroute for Montreal this afternoon to play McGill in an intercollegiate fixture to-morrow morning. A win or a tie for the Blue and White team at Montreal means that they come home as Intercollegiate champions.

Three games compose the series, two points being given for a win and one for a tied game. R.M.C. tied McGill in the first game of the series, then when the Cadets visited Toronto, Coach Halliwell's men defeated them 3 to 2. Thus a win or a tie for the Varsity soccer team to-morrow means Intercollegiate honours for them, so the boys will be out to bring back the Cup to-morrow.

The following men will entrain for Montreal: Cox, Hadley, Jack, King, Rowland, Goldenberg, Jackson, McCullough, Davidson, Skelton, Downing, Ward, Helper.

JUNIORS MEET QUEEN'S RETURN GAME SATURDAY

Tricolour Showed Superiority Along the Line But Teams Evenly Matched

There is gloom in the camp of the Varsity Juniors after their decisive defeat at the hands of Queen's Junior team last Wednesday. However, the return game, which is being played at the Varsity Stadium to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock, should be a good one to watch, as both teams are much more evenly matched than Queen's 12 point margin would indicate.

In the Kingston game the Tricolour team showed superiority in line work while the Blue and White held their own on the backfield. Queen's were fortunate to pile up such a lead. They got a lucky break in the first half of the game when due to a bad snap near the Varsity line Queen's secured the ball for a touch which was converted. In the last half of the game the Juniors held the Queen's team even.

Although prospects are not very bright for a Junior Intercollegiate championship, Varsity still has a chance in a game as uncertain as rugby. If the linemen can hold the Queen's thrusts and the rearguard play their best brand of football, the Tricolour Junior squad may find their lead not quite substantial enough.

ST. MIKE'S WIN GAME ALSO GROUP HONOURS

Victory Over Forestry Team Lets Irishmen Into Semi-finals

St. Mike's defeated Forestry yesterday in their final group game 10 to 2 and owing to the surprising victory of Knox over Pharmacy are now group champions and in the semi-finals for the Mulock Cup.

Early in the game St. Mike's took the lead due to Sheehy's touchdown. By half time Forestry had registered two points on punts by Flatt and Leslie. They didn't register any more. In the descending darkness near the end of the game St. Mike's got a soft touch when on a kick a Forestry back inadvertently touched the ball. Radley and Sheehy were prominent for St. Mike's, and Dennis, Leslie and Flatt were good for the losers.

Forestry: Flying wing, Start; halves, Dennis, Leslie, Boulbee; quarter, Flatt; snap, Crealock; insides, Andrews, McNutt; middles, Christie, Millar; outsides, MacBeau, Meyer subs, Jackson, Young.

St. Michael's: Flying wing, Flicker; halves, Regan, Sheehy, Frado; quarter, Shouck; snap, Bletter; insides, Hilborn, Killorn; middles, Reilly, Warren; outsides, Regan, Steves, Burns, White, Parabacks, Klimaszewski, Fletcher, Patterson, Harris.

KNOX DEFEAT PHARMACY GIVING ST. MIKE'S TITLE

Second Game Won by Knox in Five Years in Hard Scrappy Game

Knox won their second game in five years when they defeated the Pharmacy team 5 to 1 and gave the group to St. Michael's College. The game, although not an outstanding one, provided plenty of thrills as it was hard fought throughout. Tanton kicked the single for the Pharmacists, and the Knox touch came when Tanton fumbled to have Miller fall on it for a try.

Knox: Flying wing, Perry; halves, Young, Stewart, Miller; quarter, Barclay; snap, Douglas; insides, Higgin, H. Davidson; middles, Dewar, Hall; outsides, Anderson, Glenn; subs, Davidson, Lindsay.

Pharmacy: Flying wing, Harrigan; halves, Creasy, Tanton, Grice; quarter, Cain; snap, Main; insides, Hudson, Keating; middles, R. Brown, Goldsmith; outsides, Middleton, Hoffman, subs, Devitt, Glenn, G. Brown, Thorborn.

HEMPEL AT MASSEY HALL

When Frieda Hempel, one of the loveliest of the world's concert singers, began the present season by giving a New York recital at Carnegie Hall, the audience that thronged the great auditorium greeted her with such enthusiasm as to delay considerably the opening of her program. When the radiant soprano did begin to sing, in a characteristically great program, her hearers listened to a voice more seductive than ever poured forth liberally in a sequence of songs of all sorts, classic and modern, with a generous allowance of numbers in English, of which type, by the way, she is a notably warm champion. All of these were repeated by request. Many requests for special numbers at her forthcoming Massey Hall recital have been received by the Canadian Concert Bureau, under whose auspices the great diva is appearing on Monday, November nineteenth, after an absence of several years from Toronto. Letters of Lovely Laura Louise Masquerade Males Worry Woamn

(D. Kendall)

Common Room,
Nov. 9th.

Dear Betty:

Do tell me that I am totally forgiven for my dreadful mistake last week. I was never so mortified for what I did. Mama is all up in the air and Papa swore worse than he did the time he put the envelop into his pocket and the $10 bill in the fire in the kitchen. I didn't mean to tell you about Jimmy. It simply pitious. He's throwing himself away on this new red headed blond. She's a wow all the same, and looks like a 18k Roys-Royce. I wouldn't worry all the same. He'll come back to you. He couldn't afford to keep her going for more than one meal at Childs. He'll be a little shop-warm, but still service able.

I got myself into a terrible mess and I've absolutely got to get advice from you. You are so intellectual in those things. I've accepted three invitations for the Masquerade (the dance I told you about). And I expect another, or I'll be awfully disappointed. One is from a Chev. Another is a DeSoto and I kind of think the third will only be a taxi. I couldn't think of actually going in a taxi—rather rather risqué. So many girls disappear in them. A chev. isn't any novelty, we've got one at home, so I guess I'll have to go in the DeSoto. But do tell me what I should do. Let me know by return mail, special delivery.

Everybody went to Convocation Hall on Wednesday to see the degree team in action. Sir Austen was perfectly charming and he carries his monoch with such apparent poise. M. Chaudel was also what I always dreamed a Frenchman should be. Of course don't repeat this, for its only hearsay. One of the girls told me. The lectures were all called off, so I went to a simply gorgeous show.

Good gracious me, there's the phone. One of the boys, (the taxi one) just phoned to say that he was standing in line from three in the afternoon to get a ticket for the dance, and he would be all night till to-morrow morning. I didn't have the heart to refuse him after all that time. I think he is awfully foolish just the same to waste all that time since I'm not going with him when he might be sleeping, or dancing with me.

His time now to go to the hair-dressers. That's a party to-night at a Sorority, that's a feminine frat, where they extend long arms of friendship to all eligible girls as long as they don't come from Vic.

Your dearest friend
Laura Louise.
P.S. Do write and let me know about the Masquerade. L.L.

The Table Round

ACTA VICTORIANA

The October issue of the Acta Victoriana, which is the official organ of Victoria College, is quite worth while and contains much material of interest.

"Heaven Forbid" is the title of an article written by Helen D. Price. The prospect of the segregation of sexes at Victoria has stirred this writer to depicture the undignified situations which, of necessity, must follow separate instruction and which, therefore, should elicit such supplications as those represented by the title. The attitude assumed may be justifiably questioned but the travesty is good.

Sylvia Thompson's "Battle of the Horizons" is discussed by Howe Martyn. The subject is The Difficulty of Staying Married. Mr. Martyn takes cognizance of the real meaning of a possible ambiguity. Student activities are extensively and capably covered by the departments, College Activities, The Monocle, and Athletics.

ON HEARING G. B. SHAW AT THE UPTOWN

O Mussolini, your importunate voice has been a constant plague upon our Choice.

At every fork. But, if it comes again And, coming, brings a jot of former pain,

We will put forth that antidotal Thought, As one inspired counsellor hints we ought. Just as the deaf might see old Neptune stir

And think he thundered when he did but purr;

So, we believed the plague a chronic one Until we saw the rays of Bernard's sun Come, penetrating your perpetual frown And prove it covered kindness like a gown.

Now, shout and bellow to your heart's content. Why should we fear commands that are not meant.

Paul Claudel, who received an honorary degree of Doctor of Letters is recognized as one of the most virile of new writers animating French literature to-day. His poetry, especially his lyrics, is quite outside the limits of classicism. He expresses himself chiefly in verses or in triplets of prose which have peculiar construction but show fine rhythm. This new tendency which he is fostering is generally referred to as "rhythm claudien."

Knox-Pharmacy Rugby Game
Enlivened by Fistic Display

The conflict between Knox and Pharmacy yesterday was not confined to rugby. During the game several "scraps" were begun. Early in the game two players were given five minutes each for not confining their efforts to the game. Later Creasy of Pharmacy was given a rest for deliberately hitting Dewar, a Knox man, after an alleged accidental thrust at him. To cap off the fistic activities one of the Pharmacy men tried to pick a quarrel with Dave Anderson, of Knox, a well known welterweight boxer, not knowing what he was up against.

ORPHANS SWEEP DOMINION CHAMPIONS FROM CONTENTION, 1 TO 0

OUT OF NOWHERE CAME VARSITY'S ORPHANS TO VANQUISH BIG BEACH TEAM BY 1-0 SCORE AND GIVE U. OF T. UNEXPECTED CHANCE AT TITLE

No Fluke Victory, When Blue Holds Balmy Beach Throughout Game and Emerges on Top as a Result of Sinclair's Lone Single

KNOWLES AND SNIDER BEST BUT ALL STAR

(By Lou Golden)

The Dominion champions are hanging up their uniforms. Balmy Beach, worthy winners of the Canadian title last year, are no more. In the place of the rugged, hard-hitting men of the east now stand twelve clean-cut game youngsters of the University of Toronto. In the face of what seemed impossible opposition the Varsity Orphans, so called because of their neglected plight, came through the heavy going and defeated the Balmy Beach team 1 to 0. The Orphans went on the field with nothing to lose and a tremendous amount to gain. One hour later the mud begrimed, exhausted legion was carried off the sea of mud, victors in a battle the like of which has not been seen at the Varsity Stadium this year.

It was not a fluke in any form whatever. The Blue and White game lads outplayed the Beachers from the first whistle. At no time were the Jimmie Douglas coached boys out of contention, and although the East Enders made yards through the Varsity line five times, and although the forgotten ones made yards nary a time on plunges, their line was not torn to shreds by the highly touted Dominion champions. The Blue backfield of Jack Sinclair and Charlie Baillie and later Doug, McFadyen outplayed and outgeneraled that of DeLaney and McKenzie.

The tussle that goes down in football history as the first major upset of the season was played on a quagmire that was death to speed, and yet there were no fumbles on the half-lines and there were some running catches pulled off by Charlie Baillie, particularly the one in the second stanza, that equalled anything yet shown this year on the firmest sort of footing.

The Blues sent the two thousand odd spectators that braved the chilly air and continual drizzle into hopes and wonders as they held the crack Beachers without a score in the first quarter. The old-timers were saying that the superior weight and experience would tell in the onset of the Canadian winners, but the Blues not only held them but had the play in their opponents' quarter of the field for all but a few minutes of the first half.

At the start of the third quarter the Beachers began to tear holes in the Varsity line, but the Douglasses, fighting back grimly, plugged the holes with superb secondary defence work on the part of Snider, Carrick and Ruddell until the advance line found its bearings and then they held. From that time on the all Blue team were the masters, although it was anybody's game until the end.

The only count of the game came in the third period. It was a sensational end run that put the Blues in line for their counter, an extension that found Doug, McFadyen tearing off 15 yards in a squirming, twisting rush, and just as the Beach ends were diving at his shins he passed to Sinclair, who counted five more. Ruddell then

Dons and Students Bare Heads in Silence

CARILLON PLAYS

Once more the University honoured those of its members who fell in the Great War, when on Friday at noon the annual Armistice service was held beneath the Soldiers' Tower at Hart House. For twenty minutes dons and students stood reverently with uncovered heads to pay respect to fallen heroes.

At twelve o'clock the C.O.T.C. came down through the arch and took its place on the roadway. Silently a few hundred students formed a rectangle, pressing to the centre and waited. At ten minutes past twelve the C.O.T.C. came to attention and the band played "O Valiant Hearts," which the people sang quietly and with heads bared. "Proudly you gathered, rank on rank, to war."

The music stopped, then "For the General Salute—Present Arms!" and the salute. Silence! Heads bowed! These are the great dead! Two minutes, and the strong re-asserting notes of the Reveille rang out cold and clear like an answer. Sir Robert Falconer read the names from the wreaths as they were presented and Canon Gody gave a benediction. The C.O.T.C. presented arms again for the Royal Salute. The people sang "God Save the King" heartily, and the C.O.T.C. marched north again through the arch. "Number one company, eyes right. . . . Number two, eyes right." The sounds of the band died away and the carillon played.

STUDENTS SET FREE FROM PARENTS' CREED BY ORIGINAL IDEAS

Campus Opinion Seems to Show That Most Can and Do Think

PROFESSORS DOUBT

Politics and Religion at Least Are Fields for Individual Thought

Student and faculty opinion is considerably divided as to whether undergraduates are original thinkers and whether they inherit their parents' political and religious beliefs. Strange to say, it seems to be the students who deny the existence of original thought and the professors who claim there is much of it being done. It was pointed out, however, by several undergraduates, that one's parents base their beliefs on good foundations which should not be questioned carelessly.

The members of the faculty were rather reticent as to what extent they influenced student opinion. It was thought that current history and religion were the two subjects where most influence might be exercised. D. E. Wade, III Trinity, said, however: "Professors don't influence students the least in politics and religion." A. M. Taylor, II Meds, remarked: "It depends a lot on the professor. If he is a brainy chap, one whom they respect and admire, he will influence them considerably."

In reply to the question, "How much original thinking about politics and religion is done by undergraduates and do they inherit beliefs?" the student opinions offered were varied.

Such is U.S. Attitude Says Edgar McInnis of Baldwin House

ONCE WINNER OF JARDINE

"Our system of throwing the responsibility on the students may have its disadvantages, and there may be some who might benefit by supervision, but on the whole I think it is better to treat the student as a responsible person who is capable of judging for himself." This was the statement of Mr. Edgar McInnis of the history staff in Baldwin House, when asked by "The Varsity" yesterday for a comparison between Canadian universities and those of United States.

"I found over here," he continued, "a prevalent opinion that a student wouldn't work unless he was prodded continually, and unfortunately the student accepted the opinion. The result was that the prodding system was apt to be more of a strain on the instructor than on the student, and I think not particularly beneficial to either. The difference in the two systems is plainly shown in the work of the students. The essays handed in to me here are much superior to those which I received in the American college."

Mr. McInnis is a graduate in Arts of both Toronto and Oxford. While an undergraduate at Toronto he won the Jardine Memorial Prize for poetry in 1922, and at Oxford he was awarded the Newdigate Prize for English verse in 1925. The latter award has been won by Matthew Arnold and other notables among English poets.

Red-hot Struggle Results in 13-7 Triumph for Red Team

SEASON'S BEST PLAYS

McGILL 5 6 0 2 13
VARSITY 3 1 2 1-7

Well, it was bound to come some time. Yes, Old McGill are intercollegiate football champions, and it's the first time in nine years that the Red and White have finished on the top rung. Taking on Varsity at the Molson Stadium Saturday, McGill emerged 13-7 victors in the best intercollegiate game of the season and incidentally killed old Home Field Jinx.

It was a red-hot struggle from start to finish. Every person in that stadium remained until the final whistle, indicated that it was all over and that McGill were "in." From the initial kick-off the fans were on their toes, and how they did cheer. And they certainly had a lot to shout about. The game was a mixture of good and bad football, but the good predominated to a high degree. There were speedy extensions, clever broken-field running, terrific plunging, nifty tackling and good kicking, in fact all the brightest features of the great Canadian pastime.

Varsity made their conventional start of handing a touch on a silver platter to their opponents. Hallam made a poor return of the McGill kick-off, and then Tremaine lifted a high one to him right on the Varsity goal line. Hallam muffed it. McGill recovered on the five yard line and on the first down Smyth went over for a touch which was not converted. (Continued on page 3)

AFTER NINE YEARS' WAIT McGILL CAN CELEBRATE

Winners and Losers Drown Emotions in Action

Red-hot mama did the McGillites celebrate. Garcon, page me a Montreal cop or one of Mr. Childs' hirelings. Nine years is a long time to wait so they were rarin' to go and they did go. The minute the final whistle blew, the fun started, and was still going when Aurora, clad in her polka-dotted robes, kicked off the sheets and stuck her beak over the horizon.

Once the students started their parade there was no stopping them. It was their night and they made good use of it. The old snake dance started on the gridiron and practically every McGill man there got into it. Outside the grounds one of the weaker sex sporting a flaming red tam caught the spirit and set an example followed by others.

The various amusement places of Pica-Soup Town were made into centres of McGill rallies, with an occasional lusty Varsity.

As a half-time feature the McGill intelligencia repeated the Intercollegiate relay race, but made a few changes. The runners found the going rather tough at times. The winner finished part of the last lap on a stretcher and then carried it to the finish mark with a nifty sprint.

MISTAKEN IDEAS

"I may be permitted space in which to rid the minds of your readers of a few mistaken ideas on this subject" begins a letter in to-day's issue on the subject of women's debates. The "mistaken idea," with which the writer concerns herself, seems to be the desire on the part of persons unknown to "infringe upon man's prerogatives." It is unfortunate that so representative a debater as our correspondent did not see fit to discuss the subject matter of "the editorials, correspondence and news columns" in greater detail or at least more proportionately instead of squashing "III Vic" at such great length.

"Most of the women interested in debating have no wish to infringe upon man's prerogatives" the letter goes on. What we have pointed out before and would like to repeat here is that they have a very definite right, in our opinion, to infringe upon what are regarded as the prerogatives of athletes to the extent of sharing with the latter the honour "T's." We are convinced that though they may have no formulated desire for any special recognition there are very few women at our university who would not wear with a good deal of pride any mark of honour which their fellows chose to give them. There may of course be the complacent few who feel with our correspondent that the ability to express oneself clearly and forcibly is all that is necessary, but it seems to us that there are others who though rejoicing in their own gifts of eloquence, would also enjoy the public recognition of those gifts.

But after all it is not the attitude of the debaters which particularly concerns us. Whether they find sufficient reward in their efforts, or whether they secretly wish for some token of interest and appreciation from their university, we assume that they "are happy in their work" or they would not be doing it. No, we are really not worried about the debaters, but we do find rather appalling the fact that some five thousand students will honour with enthusiasm a victorious athlete and will reply with a weary "Who's that?" when confronted with the name of a student who has distinguished herself or himself intellectually.

Why do people attend a university at all if their chief interests are centered round the strength of a backfield or the number of classes that can be cut with impunity? Such a situation may of course be inevitable. In all the hurry and bustle of modern life we have no time for the leisurely scholarly lives of our grandfathers. We are busy while at college trying to fit ourselves to take a high place in the world outside and to take that place we must not be handicapped by being too well educated. We therefore become discriminating sponges, absorbing all the technical money-making knowledge we can get, and ignoring anything of a more cultural nature.

All this may be true of the science faculties (though we have heard men in those faculties bewail the lack of opportunity for intellectual employment afforded by their courses) but surely it is not so in the Arts colleges. In them we are sure there is a very real interest in things cultural. It is our suggestion that students in these colleges make the graceful gesture of giving some award to those who have upheld the scholarly tradition of their Alma Mater.

Correspondence

Women and Debating Awards

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

Since the subject of women's debates has received space in the news columns, Editorials as well as the Correspondence, of your paper, perhaps I may be permitted space in which to rid the minds of your readers of a few mistaken ideas on this subject.

In the first place most of the women undergraduates interested in debating have no wish to infringe upon man's prerogatives. Probably all would agree that public speaking is not very highly esteemed as a feminine accomplishment. The art of conversation, however, is an essential and important one, and even in this centre of Canadian culture has admittedly sunk to a low ebb.

The ability to express one's views grammatically, with careful enunciation, a fair choice of words in clear concise sentences, not strung together with "kind-ofs" and "sort-ofs," is not to be despised. Nor is the ability to rise to the occasion with an appropriate thought well expressed entirely to be neglected.

So far as Hart House is concerned, we all infringe upon the tenth commandment occasionally but yet would not wish to lessen its inherent worth by making it a co-educational centre in any way. No doubt the Hart House

Friday Afternoon Recital

On Friday afternoon an instrumental trio composed of Lillian Rittenhouse, piano, and Bettina Vega, violin, and Hans Lincke, cello, made their second appearance at a Hart House recital. They ambitiously chose to present a Schubert programme in emulation of more renowned organizations who commemorate this year the centenary of that composer's death. Had they been a trifle less ambitious they might not have found it necessary to divert their interest among selected movements of various trios. However, their programme reveals the progress which these young instrumentalists have made since their last recital here. Miss Rittenhouse appears to be the most mature of the trio, but Miss Vega, again assumed a prominent part in the programme, and in demonstrating her exceptional technique with her instrument chose to play the Sarasate Gipsy Airs. Perhaps on a Schubert programme it might appear a trifle presumptuous.

'No, thank you, dear,' replied the fat blossom, glancing slyly at the narrow space the girl occupied. A laugh, a sob, and a sigh; that's life."

VICTORIA THEATRE

The quality of this week's production, "Lady, Be Good," judged by road show standards, is decidedly below the average. The chief fault lies possibly in the lack of ensemble dancing and singing and because of it the production seemed meagre and to lack finish. George Garshwin's music is the outstanding feature of the show, and while full advantage was not taken of most of the numbers, "Fascinating Rhythm," "So Am I" and "Oh, Lady Be Good" were excellently done.

LOYOLA WINS TWICE TRIMS ST. MIKE'S 31-9

Eastern Team Takes Both Games of Round to Win Title

DEFENSIVE PLAY WINS

Loyola College took the Intermediate Intercollegiate title when they defeated St. Michael's College 16-6 on the game and 31-9 on the round, here last Saturday.

The slippery field slowed up St. Mike's fast backfield and made their extension runs ineffectual, while Savard and McAlear raced through their tacklers, a 70 yard run by the latter being the feature of the game.

Loyola: Flying wing, McCarry; halves, McAlear, Savard, Gorman; quarter, Haynes; insides, Pigeon, Power; snap, Cogan; middles, O'Connor, Shaughnessy; outsides, Munich, Timmins; subs, Mullaly, O'Brien, Slattery, Beaubien, Cummins, George Byrn, Walsh.

St. Mike's: Flying wing, Kehoe; halves, Burns, Quinn, Young; quarter, McGahy; insides, Haffey, Hyde; snap, Flahiff; middles, Sammons, Sheehan; outsides, Mogan, Whitelaw; subs, Huessey, Flick, Martin, Cameron, Culligan, McGraw, Robbins.

sent his team across to centre, and from there he called on "Sinc" to hoof and Jack came nobly through. He boosted to Alex McKenzie, who was pulled down by the ankles when Gordon Knowles and Art Snider hit him with all they had.

The final quarter was the most hectic seen around the stadium for many a season. The Beachers, led on by Ted Reeve, showed the fight worthy of any he-man's team. They battled tooth and nail and with hardly a bit of dirt, and the way those battle-scarred veterans fought was a treat for anybody. With eight minutes to go, the Beachers for the first time were in a position to hoof, and a successful single might have knotted up the score, and from then on it might

(L.C.D.)

Can you beat it! Old McGill trims Varsity, winning the Intercollegiate championship and then call it a season. Thereupon the "poor" Orphans, who were expected to form a nice juicy appetizer for Balmy Beach, the Dominion champs, pull one of the biggest surprises ever witnessed in Canadian football and bring down the curtains for the East Enders. Which means that Jimmy Douglas's pets, who should beat the Kitchener-Sarnia winner this week without much trouble, will face the ferocious Hamilton Tigers in the Eastern finals. Once more—can you beat it! Here we have the Intercollegiate team ready for the moth-balls and the "second" team carrying the banner of the Blue and White against the foe.

Boy, oh boy, how good those "Orfuns" must feel to-day! And Coach Jimmy Douglas probably wouldn't change places with Mussolini. Yes, sir, that's going to make them all sit up and take notice.

Let us thank the Blue and White "ares et penates" for the O.R.F.U. triumph. The Red and White warriors of Old McGill downed Varsity Intercollegiates 13-7. Loyola won the round from St. Michael's by a large margin, and Queen's Juniors took the flag from Varsity Juniors. Even the soccer team lost. What a week-end, or should it be "weak end"! But the Orphans putting the skids under the Balmies, more than events it up.

Every student who has even the slightest interest in football should feel it his or her duty to turn out and give the Orphans the greatest possible support. And they'll get plenty from outside in addition.

There have been a different story. Alex Ponton called on Ted Reeve to kick, and Ted is a distance booter. The elongated flying wing let it rip only to send the oval to Sinclair on his one yard line, and Jack had to use all his canny ability to get it out of the danger zone. That was the last time during the contest that the losers were within striking distance of the winners. The battle was waged warmly around centre field when the Harry Hobbs lads tried three onides in a row that the Blues were able to snare. The Orphans would have made it two points, but the whistle saved the Beachers. Just before the final foot Adams galloped twenty yards to place the leather in position for a sure single, and as Rudell called on Sinclair to kick, the whistle ended a hectic battle the like of which has not been seen in a long time. The Blue team put up an exhibition of gameness that is on a par with the best. The fight shown by Art Snider on the secondary defence was unequalled on the field. To pick an outstanding man on the team would be grossly unfair to the other eleven, but if any name should be chosen, that of Gordie Knowles gets the call. When the team trotted on the gridiron there was guessing galore of the identity of that lad. He was playing his first game in senior football, being brought up to the Orphans when Frank Scott broke his ankle, and his tackling was of the first water.

Varsity: Flying wing, Carrick; halves, Sinclair, Baillie, Snider; quarter, Ruddell; snap, McCullough; insides, J. Wood, Galloway; middles, Adams, Scott; outsides, Knowles, Cartwright; subs, Furber, D. Wood, Stringer, Hatton, Gray, Johnston, Spencer, McFadyen, Kernohan.

Balmy Beach Flying wing, Reeve; halves, Delahay, McKenzie, E. Smith; quarter, Ponton; snap, Cummins; insides, Trimble, McNeil; middles, Hammond, Crowhurst; outsides, Keith, Snyder; subs, Amer, Foster, Robert, Stewart, Hamlin, Ogden.

JUNIORS WIN 10-7 BUT LOSE ON ROUND

Blue Boys Unable to Overcome 12 Point Lead of Queen's

RICHARDSON THE STAR

Queen's are the new Intercollegiate Junior rugby champions. Although Varsity defeated them 10 to 7 in the final home and home game last Saturday their 12 point lead gained at Kingston amply covered this deficit.

On the game they played the Juniors deserved to defeat the Tricolour team by more than three points. Queen's highly-rated aggregation failed to show their wares. Queen's registered six of their seven points when G. Smith fumbled behind the Blue line and Buell fell on the ball for a touch which was converted by Day. G. Smith was forced to rouge for Queen's other point.

Richardson on the Blue rearguard was the outstanding star of the game, doing some wonderful running and except for one bobble caught well. Varsity: Flying wing, Kindel, halves, Day, Atcheson, Adair; quarter, Alexander; snap, Buell; insides, Murray, Hulse; middles, Kurtz, Hall; outsides, Melroy, Martin; subs, Steadman, Agnew, Falconer, Ashley, Todd, Ramus.

Varsity: Flying wing, D. Smith; halves, Richardson, G. Smith, Perkins; quarter, Brinell; snap, Campbell; insides, Stringer, Saunders; middles, Farwell, Wilson; outsides, Crocker, Gibb; subs, Heintzman, Bennett, Connor, Reid, Thompson, Jackson, MacDonald, Buchanan.

MCGILL COPS TITLE FROM VARSITY TEAM

At Kingston, Varsity gave Queen's a touch within three minutes from the start of the game, handed McGill one in Toronto within two minutes, and then on Saturday rising to the heights brought the time down to forty-five seconds. And then the battle was on. The Blues waited in, and Bell recovered the Varsity kick-off on McGill's 35 yard line. A series of plunges, Snyder's recovery of Tremaine's short kick, and a few more smashes through the McGill line brought the ball four yards up. But the Red and White held up and Snyder kicked a drop from twelve yards, making the quarter time score 5-3 for McGill.

At the start of the second canto McGill worked the best play of the game. With the ball on the Montreal 40 yard mark Doherty got away on fast pass-out and ran sixty yards to the Varsity ten, where he passed the olive to Munroe, who went over for another try, also unconverted. Varsity had a golden chance to add to their total when they recovered a Red fumble on the McGill 10 yard line. But the best they made was a single by Hallam. Tremaine then kicked a rouge to Bell, making the half-time score McGill 11, Varsity 4.

In the third quarter Varsity once more worked the ball close to the McGill line, but an attempted aside went for a single. Murray Snyder's attempted drop brought the Varsity total to six. In the last stanza Hallam added another when he kicked a beautiful long, high spiral to Doherty for Varsity's seven point try for McGill. Doherty, Smyth and Young stood out and all the rest were good. Varsity's best were Bell, Hallam, Harrison and Little. Murray Snyder was good, scoring five of the seven Varsity points.

McGill: Flying wing, Lovering; halves, Smyth, Doherty, Tremaine; quarter, Brown; snap, Swaby; insides, Littlefield, C. Church; middles, McTeer, H. Church; outsides, Young, Urquhart; subs, Munroe, Kritzweiser, Spracher, Angus, Macroe, Consigli, Granger, Talpis.

Varsity: Flying wing, Harrison; halves, Traynor, Snyder, Bell; quarter, Hallam; snap, Keith; insides, White, Kelly; middles, Bean, Little; outsides, Gooderham, Dunn; subs, Morgan, Darlings, Baker, Cartwright, Solandt, Sinclair.

When asked about the places of athletics in American colleges, he said: "Colleges which are trying to keep up their academic standing are really trying to discourage athletic activities." Of course, the larger institutions such as Harvard and Yale are not able to do so because athletics are such a prominent part of the life there. But in the smaller colleges like Oberlin, which are not so much in the public eye, there is not the same difficulty. There athletics are kept more in their place—something of the place they occupy here. After a Tastefully Prepared Dinner
Mr. Bunkley Addresses a Few Words

(By N. J. DeWitt)

Conviviality and joie de vivre reigned supreme at a jolly little dinner-dance given by Mr. and Mrs. Bullman Shuter in the honour of their son Bunkley who returned home from Toronto University to spend Thanksgiving in the lyric and cultural environment of Aurora last Saturday night at the palatial Main Street residence of our most respected citizen. A charming perspective was obtained of the whole affair by the society reporter of the Aurora Borealis, who was carefully hidden behind a rubber plant where he was able to view every detail of the activities of the galaxy of fair women and brave men.

After a tasteful and well-prepared dinner, Mr. Bunkley addressed a few words to his boy and girl friends, giving his impressions of the great vista of life which college had opened to him. Some interruption was caused by one of the guests pelting his host with bread balls; and Bunkley threatened to come down and bang him one. Mr. Shuter Sr. was also the center of some attention when he offered to whale the gizzard out of the unmentionable rascal who threw a water-carafe at him. Some disturbance was also caused by one of the waiters skidding on a cream puff and in his fall precipitating four cups, or rather, eight demi-tasses of coffee, upon some of the guests.

"The only thing wrong with college," remarked Bunkley Shuter in his address, "is that professors are always bothering a fellow about lectures. The great thing about college is that it gives one polish and savoir faire, that is, the art of knowing what to do at the right time. Yes, and so's your old man a pie-eyed monkey, you two-time, and in about one second I'll come down and start something. The influence of Oxford and Cambridge and what is best in American universities turns out a better citizen more able to cope with turkey-buzzards who come to a fella's house and act like they was brought up in a barn I mean. Yes, you, horse-face!"

Following hard upon the dinner came the dance, where the alluring strains of the foxtrot mingled with the sweeping cadences of the waltz. A slight miscalculation had been made, evidently, in regard to the amount of wax applied to the terpsichorean surface, and ye scribe counted no less than twelve instances where couples fell upon the floor. Considerable merriment was caused by the actions of Master Biggar Bratt, who, with a squirt-gun filled with tomato catsup, went around aiming at gentlemen's dress shirt fronts. At this point the Borealis does not recollect much more, one far six pocket flasks were carefully left in the shelter of the rubber-plant, there does, however, remain an impression of having gone about with an elastic snapping at people's bare arms.

We are assured by Aurora's sterling constable, Whangley McGool, that the party broke up at two in the morning with an eloquent and inspiring address on the Meaning of College from the front steps of the town hall by Mr. Bunkley Shuter. Thus ended one of the most tasteful and refined functions societes which it has been the privilege of ye scribe to assist at (F. & S. pp. 57-51) for bien de temps.

debates maintain a higher standard than ours. It would be impossible to say since we have no opportunity of judging; but then, neither do the men have the privilege of being present at the women's intercollegiate debates, in order to form judgments of them.

No doubt III Vix. will have ample opportunity of broadening her intellect by attending, or what is far more important, contributing to the intercollegiate and interfaculty contests. In the meantime I assure you, Mr. Editor, that woman does not feel at all ignored in being barred from the Hart House debates.

Dutch Dates

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

I have for some time been of the opinion that equality of the sexes was at least a potential fact. But I have grown overnight to despise the boasts and pretensions of our co-eds. So Dutch dates are considered taboo, are they? Our fair co-eds claim equal rights and demand a man's pay, yet they think that they are entitled to board their earnings while the fellow done by Mr. Robert Caprow, who carried the bulk of the comedy. He worked hard and for the most part avoided overplaying his bright though seldom clever material. Mr. Eddie Morris as Bertie Bassett carried his part with ease and gave the most polished performance of the evening.

On the whole the production was fairly well done but marred by a great deal of pretty shoddy stuff. H.C.C.

who is soft enough to spend his money on them is relegated to the study because he is broke as far as amusements are concerned until next payday or the following check. Yet his former companion at the dance is off to another the next evening, quite unmindful of the fellow who blew his total week's amusement allowance on her the previous night. Is that square? If the two paid the shot, would not the man, at least, get more good times? He would receive more amusement by half, and in many cases so would the girl.

It seems to be the tradition here for the man to ask for a date; yet if the co-ed is on the same level socially, as she claims to be, only tradition is the barrier there. I admire the modern girl for giving tradition the uppercut and gaining bodily and mental health and freedom by revolutionizing her dress. Why not take off the rest of the lid? If a girl is looked upon as forward when she makes a date, then shame on the minds of those who think so.

Everything must come out of Pandora's box when it once is opened. If our co-eds anathematise Dutch dates they admit their inferiority.

STUDENTS' OPINIONS DIFFER ON QUESTION OF THE PROD SYSTEM

Co-eds Voice Many and Strong Objections to Practice in Vogue at U.S. Colleges

GOOD FOR FRESHMEN

Should However Be Diminished
When Students Pass Into the Senior Years

Undergraduate opinion is very nearly evenly divided on the question raised by Mr. Edgar McInnis in yesterday's "Varsity" as to whether or not the university student needs to be prodded by the professors, as is said to be the case in the U.S. Mr. Edgar is quoted as having said that "I have found over there a prevalent opinion that a student wouldn't work unless he is prodded continually, and unfortunately the student accepted the opinion." This condition does not exist in Toronto, "The Varsity" found, and the co-eds especially voiced their objections strenuously.

Miss Christine Auld, I Pass: "No, I don't agree with the statement, as I think prodding ruins a student's sense of pride in his or her work."

Miss Gretchen Heyd, I Moderns: "No, because I think it a purely personal matter with the student and the majority don't have to be prodded."

Miss Constance McDell, I Pass: "Yes, I do agree with Mr. McInnis because I know that in my own case unless I am prodded I don't do any work."

Miss Marjorie James, II Moderns: "Among the people I know, and they are the only ones that I can give a definite opinion on, I don't think that prodding is necessary."

J. R. Berwick, II Arts: "I don't think that it is necessary with all the students, but I think it would be a good idea to prod the freshmen but to gradually diminish it in the senior years."

C. G. Stardill, IV Meds: "Not prodded but kicked."

M. M. Chudleigh, II C. & E.: "No, I don't agree with the statement because I don't think a professor can successfully prod a student."

H. D. Baker, III Mod. Hist.: "I don't agree there because I think that a great deal of the prodding on the professor's part is simply a personal interest in the student's work."

J. W. A. Greig, VI Meds: "Yes, I agree with that, as I think that the majority of the student body is fundamentally lazy."

"It's either coercion or the beast," says the morbid opinion of Miss C. Stevens, II yr. English and History, when questioned concerning the benefits of the prodding system.

Miss E. Nelles, III yr. Pass, complained of the criminal neglect in prodding. "It makes it so hard for me around examination time," she lamented.

Several co-eds agreed that initiative as well as knowledge should be

PARLIAMENTARY CLUB UPHOLDS RESOLUTION FAVOURING A MERGER

Meetings of Literary Society

Lack of Life

AMENDMENT LOST

University Incapable of Democracy Now Says
Beamish

"That it would be to the advantage of University College if the open meetings of the U.C. Literary and Athletic Society should be of the same form as and replace the meetings of the U.C. Parliamentary Club" was the motion carried before the meeting of the U.C. Parliamentary Club held yesterday afternoon, at which about twenty persons were present.

Mr. E. M. Henry, the first speaker for the government, outlined briefly the proposals in the motion. "There is something lacking in the Lit. meetings, and we believe that if these societies are thus merged the meetings will be more effective," he said. "At the Lit. meetings the men sit and wait for entertainment, whereas at these meetings members feel more free to speak."

Mr. L. M. Gelber, opposing the government, deplored the tendency for the Lit. to be in two groups, the executive and the great body of members who take no active part in the society. An amendment was introduced to the final clause, that the executive shall be responsible to the house, which the speaker described as the real remedy.

"The whole argument is that the University of Toronto is incapable of democracy," said B. D. Beamish, second speaker for the government, discussing the amendment. "The open meetings of the Lit. are absolutely dead," he declared in stating that if affairs were left to private members and not to executive that nothing could be accomplished efficiently.

Mr. P. E. Usher, the last speaker, showed, amidst numerous corrections from Mr. Beamish and Mr. Henry, the need of having executives responsible to the members. "As long as undergraduates feel that they have no influence they will keep quiet, but if they know that they can bring about the downfall of the administration there will be more interest."

The discussion was thrown open and there followed a lively discussion in which two or three members took part, in addition to the amendment was defeated by a large majority, the motion being carried by the government.

SWINEBURN'S POETRY HARD TO UNDERSTAND SAYS MISS M'DOUGAL

His Purely Emotional Poetry
Can Have Either of Two Possible Effects

POETRY FROM THE HEART

Women's Literary Society Hold an Interesting Discussion

The regular meeting of the Women's Literary Society was held last evening in the Common Room at the Women's Union. Miss McDougal delivered a paper on Swineburne which was prepared with a thorough knowledge of and deep love for the works of the poet.

Swineburne is hard to understand because he lives in the past, Miss McDougal went on to say. He knows so well the workings of the minds of those who have made history. His poetry is purely emotional and therefore he either affects the reader totally or else fails altogether. On the one hand, there results an emotion amounting to physical pain; on the other an unfeeling coldness. His world of ideas was beyond the grasp of vulgar comprehension — Swineburne wished that it should not be otherwise. As some of his poems were read it was known that they had "come from the heart" as indeed they "went through the heart."

The question was then raised as to whether or not Swineburne thought deeply or merely experienced deep emotional feeling; whether he reasoned or apprehended. "Should a poet," it was asked, "be also a philosopher?"

Or, in other words, "Should a philosopher confine his vehicle of expression entirely to prose?" Whether or not Swineburne was an emotional philosopher was a question which remained unanswered to the entire satisfaction of all present. However, a satisfactory result of the issue, such earnest, truth-seeking argument was an indisputable testimony of the interest aroused by the discussion of this poet. It is hoped that a more definite conclusion will be reached at the next meeting.

PLAYERS' GUILD PRESENT SATIRE THIS AFTERNOON

"The Magnanimous Lover" is Both Highly Dramatic and Powerfully Drawn Play

This afternoon in the Auditorium of the Women's Union the Players' Guild of University College will present "The Magnanimous Lover," a tragedy-comedy by St. John Ervine. This is a finely dramatic satire on the man who has "got" the wrong sort of religion, the religion of abject terror of God, of hell-fire, of pride in "salvation," in short of perfect hypocrisy. A man returns to the woman he wronged ten years before, and offers to marry her, not from desire or sympathy but because he feels it is the only barrier left to his complete "salvation." The situation is dealt with in a masterly fashion; sufficient restraint is shown to keep the piece from sinking to the level of mere invective, and the characters are powerfully drawn. The play has been directed by Marjorie James, and the cast includes Pat Usher, Dorothy McMichael, James Knights and Hamilton Miller.

RAILWAY COMPANY REPORTS

Rude Behaviour of Students Causes Cancelling of Excursions

Special to "The Varsity"

Salt Lake City.—No more overnight out of town excursions for students who wish to accompany their team lustily to cheer it on to victory! This momentous decision was made after much weighty thought had been given to the matter.

To be perfectly truthful with the student body, however, this was rather a forced stand. The railroad companies absolutely refused to furnish transportation for the students any longer. They admitted that the young people added a great deal of life to an otherwise dreary existence, but they complained that the amount of enjoyment derived from their charming company did not fully compensate, in a purely mercenary way, for the aftermath of such an excursion.

It seems that the cars get so stifling that the students cannot waste precious time by raising the windows and as it is a matter of life and death, they simplify the procedure by merely kicking out the glass. (However, we know how those beastly windows stick! We are rather inclined to blame this on the railroad company and not on the exuberance of the young folks' spirits.)

Another thing that grates on the nerves of the railroad is the fact that the students insist on wearing the Pullman blankets to the football game. This would not be so bad if it didn't cost so much to fumigate these forementioned articles to get the alcohol fumes out of them.

Another complaint that has come into the prey's office from a source other than the railroad company is from the State of Utah. The University of Utah rooters are not entirely welcome at the out-of-town colleges, as they believe that their prestige entitles them to free admission to any game. In other words, they crash the gates en masse, knocking gate-keepers, policemen and any other minor obstacles that happen to impede their progress, entirely out their way.

TANGIBLE AWARDS FOR SPORT ALONE

Such is Opinion of Faculty Members Regarding Literary Insignia Question

MEDAL OR PIN PREFERRED

"In the cruder things of the flesh an award such as the 'T' can be tolerated, but not in the finer things of the spirit," said a member of the faculty of Victoria College when asked by "The Varsity" for his opinion on the matter of awarding a "T" for literary distinction. "As a matter of fact I rather doubt whether displaying titles to fame is ever really beneficial."

Several members of the various faculties when approached seemed to question the advisability of giving tangible award for literary distinction. "In the universities of the old world, visible awards are kept for sports," Principal Wallace of University College stated. "Anyone who went around displaying his intellectual prowess would soon find it was considered passé. The question is," he continued, "would the winners wear their awards? I very much doubt it."

Miss A. E. M. Parkes, of the Student Administrative Council, thought it would be absurd to use the insignia of athletic achievement for literary distinction. "You don't want something that just apes the athletic award," she said. "The idea of recognizing literary achievement in a tangible form is very commendable, but the award should certainly not be similar to the athletic award. Let it be a medal or a pin but not a 'T'."

Holders of the athletic "T" among the student body took rather a disinterested stand on the matter, as a whole. One suggested that the award would lose much of its intrinsic value if literary lights were made eligible. Another thought the letter "T," if used as a literary award, should be of a different colour from the athletic "T."

ONE-ACT PLAY PRESENTED

A very interesting session of the German Study Club was held at Wymilwood last evening and a good attendance was recorded. An amusing one-act play was readably by six members. Following this Mr. W. G. Connor, a pupil of Frank Welsman, gave an excellent rendering of a group of Brahms' Waltzes.

Mr. Boeschstein, the speaker of the evening, told many interesting things of modern republican Germany, a subject on which the average Canadian student cannot afford to be ignorant. The new republicanism, asserted the speaker, was a legitimate development of the German nation.

The programme came to a close with the singing of German songs, and the serving of refreshments.

DEGREE WITHOUT LECTURES

Professor McAndrew Thinks
Term Mark Enforces
Attendance

If the students think the lecture worth-while they attend it—if not, well, why should they? This was the personal opinion held by Professor J. N. Woodcock, registrar of Trinity College, concerning compulsory lectures. It was learned by "The Varsity" that nowhere in the University were what one might term compulsory lectures. The only instance discovered of a compulsory subject was at Trinity, where some form of Religious Knowledge was a compulsory option for students in Pass Arts.

Professor Auger, registrar of Victoria College, said that there was no compulsion, and he even recalled an exceptional case of a student who obtained his degree and never attended his lectures; but he went on to explain that his absence was due to a neurotic condition and not to mere "sleeping." Professor Auger stated that the instructor had the authority to debar a student who had consistently neglected his lectures, from going up to his final exams, but he added that he never recalled an instance of this being done. Our system, in the opinion of Professor Auger, is to be much preferred to that of the American colleges, where compulsory lectures are the rule. The system here enforces on the student a greater responsibility and a realization that "skipped" lectures meant in the end extra work.

"The Varsity" reporter was made to realize by both Professor Auger and Professor McAndrew, registrar of U.C., the great importance of the term mark. It was pointed out that the term mark should, and regularly does, enforce a regular attendance. It seems, so "The Varsity" was told, that it acts as an indirect but nevertheless powerful agent of compulsion. The term mark, it was learned, is arrived at in many ways, all of which more or less depend upon attendance. This term mark, it seems, is taken along with the mark of the final exam, and the result is obtained from a consideration of the two. That all the students should clearly understand this term mark system was especially impressed. Professor McAndrew said that it was the usual thing to call the roll in the first year, not with any idea of compulsion, but to impress the importance of attendance to the new students. But, it was stated, this practice is discontinued in the upper years, on the assumption that the older students know and understand the system.

Dr. Ryerson, Secretary of the Faculty of Medicine, told "The Varsity" that the only compulsion of attendance for their students was in laboratory and clinical work, and in this they must have done at least 80% of the work.

ENLIVENING THE "LIT"

Yesterday the University College Parliamentary Club voted in favour of its incorporation into the Literary and Athletic Society of the College. Of course it is not to be thought of that the flood of public opinion in the largest of the Arts colleges will necessarily be guided by the decision reached by eighteen members of the Parliamentary Club, which, by the way, really excelled itself in the matter of attendance as compared with previous occasions. But, at any rate, there is evidently a good deal of support being given to the suggestion that the parliamentary form of discussion be adopted by the society officially representing U.C. men.

"The open meetings of the 'Lit' are absolutely dead" was the indictment of the present system presented by one of the speakers yesterday. He received official support in his stand from the president of the Literary and Athletic Society, who admitted: "There is something lacking in the 'Lit' meetings and we believe that if these societies are thus merged the meetings will be more effective. At the 'Lit' meetings the men sit and wait for entertainment, whereas at these meetings (i.e. those of the Parliamentary Club) members feel more free to speak." Mr. Henry's desire to improve the "Lit" meetings is justified by the proportionately low attendance during the last few years.

During these years the reaction against the formal style of assembly has resulted in the attempt to emphasize the social nature of the gatherings, a policy which has been continued by this year's executive. And now the reaction has extended to the method of discussion, expedited undoubtedly by the interest aroused in the open house system of debating as practised at Hart House. The proposal to use the parliamentary system as the instrument of student government in the largest men's society on the campus merits a review of this method as employed by the different faculties.

The reputation of the liveliest undergraduate debating society is held at present by the Literary Institute of Trinity College. This Institute has varied topical subjects with ones which its admirers call "interesting," and which Americans would call "frivolous." But this body is not in absolute control of college affairs. The government has charge of dances and of the papers in the common room but there is a parallel power: the machinery composed of the Head of College and the College meeting, which operates in disciplinary matters.

At St. Michael's College there is a parliament but it has really no excuse for existence as it duplicates the work of other societies. The debates in parliament have no effect upon the work of the executive bodies, the Students' Administrative Council and the Athletic Directorate. Experience in speaking is already provided by the oratorical clubs of the college. Even if it had any power, it would suffer, as does the Trinity Institute, from an undue amount of Residence influence.

A body of more power and consistency than the former two, in its constitution at least, is the Victoria College Students' Parliament. Its student president is premier of the parliament and the proposals of the government are open for general discussion. But the management of student affairs in the Faculty of Dentistry is not quite as absolutely copied from the parliamentary model. The Dental Parliament is the only official body but the students as a whole never meet in session. The work is done by a cabinet of men assigned to various departments. The full parliamentary system is in vogue at Knox and the government presents its budget for open discussion. This parliament has been very successful in the quality of the debates produced.

The older form of society is still maintained by the men in Medicine, Engineering and Forestry. But interest in these faculties may be maintained by the presence of speakers at the societies who are experts in their line and whom students want to hear for reasons of professional interest. This device is impracticable at an Arts college. Finally, it would be interesting to test the percentage of members attending the meetings of the Engineering and Medical societies.

Art, Music and Drama

Arthur Lismer Entertains

That the artist was definitely trying to make social contact by appealing to the artist in each one of us rather than in any way attempting to paint in a mystifying way was the contention of Arthur Lismer during the course of a delightfully informal talk last night before a large and appreciative group assembled in the Sketch Room of Hart House. In an effort to interpret the artist's work in a sympathetic and understandable way to his hearers, Mr. Lismer stated that a picture was not unlike a musical orchestration as regards the organization behind it and pointed out that the artist's motive was not one of merely catching a photographic image but often one of expressing his feeling of an order and rhythm in things. This idea of universal order the artist attempted to suggest through the technical medium in which he happened to be working. A hasty mental conclusion of like or dislike on the part of one viewing a picture, it was pointed out, was often a barrier to appreciation; because we like a picture it does not follow that we appreciate it.

Finish was a quality not entirely desirable in a picture or any work of art, the speaker emphasized in pursuing the main theme of his talk—"How to appreciate a picture." That the mechanical efficiency of finish to be seen in a Canadian "nickel" was artistically incomparable with the old coins of earlier civilizations was cited by way of illustration.

After a sketchy outline of the development and trend of art in different countries during different periods, Mr. Lismer made interesting comments on the pictures which had been arranged on the walls of the room for the occasion. These pictures, consisting of prints, pencil work and water colour sketches, range in diversity from the work of Michael Angelo to that of the modern French exponent, Cezanne. Space precludes detailed mention of the exhibit, but those interested in seeing the different manner employed by eminent artists would be well advised to give it some attention. A.L.W.

The darn chair broke
But he continued to smoke in the air.*
*It is, of course, meant that the young man was in the chair, not the pipe, except by virtue of the fact that the young man's being in the chair placed it there ex officio.
That is, he was suspended. We do not refer to the process of combustion which presupposes the inhalation of oxygen.

C—C

There was an ambitious young Med
Who believed he had brains in his head.

"If I work all day long
And from nightfall till dawn
I'll be an Arts man," he said.

The above was not written merely to stir up strife between the faculties. In the first place, a great number of the men in Meds really prefer it to an Arts course because they "never did like drawing anyway." In the second place the undergraduates of those institutions of higher learning (and of U.C. also) who call themselves "Arts Colleges" realize that a few of our embryo doctors really have capacities for studying literature more advanced than "Epistaxis," and the products of yellow journalism and do not spend all their time quarrelling with the school-children of the university.

C—C

Interesting but hardly discreet; comparable to hollering "Dirty Meds" at an editorial meeting of Epistaxis.

C—C

On a train which we patronized over the week-end there was an elderly gentleman who complained somewhat of the way younger transportation officials hustled him about. He related for the benefit of all, a fuss which he had had with a ticket agent. "You're pretty smart, young man, eh? Well, let me ask you a question. Can you tell the difference between a new ten dollar bill and an old one?" The smartie was stumped. Whereupon the sage repeated: "I couldn't of spoke any plainer, could I? Can you tell the difference between a new ten dollar bill and an old one?" Score one for uncle!

TRINITY IS SHUT OUT BY VICTORIA WITH 3-0 SCORE

Playing the last game in their Mulock Cup schedule, Victoria defeated Trinity 3-0 on the back campus yesterday afternoon. The game had no effect on the standing, as Trinity had already won the group. Play was very loose with Victoria taking advantage of all their opponents' fumbles and recovering most of their own.

STYLE NOT COMFORT FOR MALE STUDENTS

No Sheiks at University of California Say Fashion Scouts

Special to "The Varsity"

Berkeley, Calif.—The "sheik," a species of mankind supposed to inhabit a college campus in fair and foul weather, cannot be located at the University of California. A travelling group of "fashion scouts" from an eastern style-magazine is the authority for the statement.

The scouts came to the university to scan the student body for tips on what the "well dressed" young man is wearing and they declared they could find no such young man at the Golden Bear school.

The matriculate students here dress for comfort as a rule and let style take care of itself. Traditional blue trousers or "jeans" for sophomores and corduroys for juniors and seniors have always been the basis of the campus costumes. No hats, no coats and no ties are in order except for the strictest formal occasions.

The S.C.M. study group on "What is Christianity" met on Thursday at the home of the leader, Dr. Pidgeon, where an informal tea was served.

ORPHANS START TO-DAY IN PREPARATION FOR LEAGUE FINAL

SPEAKING OF SPORT

One thing that stands out after the surprise of the big victory on Monday by the Orphans over the Balmy Beach team is the faith that Jimmie Douglas had in his team. He called his twelve to win just a week ago and called them loudly and lustily. He made no bones about it, and his optimism was not of the effervescent kind. When Jimmie called his cast-offs to win, there were no ifs nor buts to it. "They can beat the Beachers and will do so if we can get a chance to meet them." Jimmie's team met them, thanks to Sarnia defeating Kitchener, and the result of the big upset will go down in football history. It is very seldom that a mentor can call his team as the canny Orphan leader did.

The Blue victory after the Intercollegiate team was put out of the running resounded through the football world. The odds that went begging at the game were ridiculous, 10 to 1 for Balmy Beach or even money and 30 points. That alone means more than many words can say.

The Balmy Beach were gentlemen in defeat. They are a rugged, battle scarred lot that can give plenty if need be, and the clean football they played against the Blue youngsters was a mark for certain two-fisted yellow and black shirted fellows to follow.

That the battle was a hot one is undeniable. But the first ones to congratulate the game winners were Beachers, fellows whose world centres around football and whose life is pigskin chasing.

The gentlemen from the east had no need to play-off but took that course to help out the O.R.F.U. executive. A spirit that cannot be equalled anywhere, not even at McGill, that institution of learning and football that is too high hat to play off with these working boys, who incidentally may be magnificent sportsmen.

The Orphans will meet before a full stadium on Saturday next when they hook up with the winner of the Kitchener-Sarnia game being played to-day. The Blues have been defeated twice this season, both times by the teams in its own group. The Douglasses are favourites, but that does not mean that there will not be a grand battle. If the victors over the East Enders can still continue to wear the same size hats, they will not only defeat the K-S survivor but also will give the Terrible Tigers a run for the silverware.

McGILL ELEVEN WINNERS OF 1928 SOCCER TROPHY

Final Game Played Saturday at Montreal—Varsity Squad Put Up Hard Battle

McGill copped the Intercollegiate Soccer Cup last Saturday at Montreal by defeating the Varsity soccer team by 2 to 1 in a hard-fought battle. Playing on an icy field, Coach Halliwell's boys put up a game struggle, but the breaks were not in their favour.

Downing netted Varsity's lone goal. Skelton had a shot right in the net, but the referee disqualified it as he claimed that Skelton was offside. The last goal for McGill took the Varsity halves by surprise, as they thought the ball had passed over the line and gone out of play.

With two points being awarded for a victory and one for a tied game, McGill took the series by three points, as they had previously tied R.M.C. and then defeated Varsity. U. of T. came second with two points as a result of their victory over R.M.C. here, and the Cadets third with one point. Varsity were favourites to win last Saturday, but Lady Luck had to be reckoned with.

The majority of the students are kicking themselves for remaining at Montreal to drown their sorrows instead of coming back to Toronto to see the forgotten ones take on Balmy Beach, but then the "wise guys" always pass up the outstanding affairs.

The boxing and wrestling people are getting under way in real earnest to-night, and the appointment of Chris Newton as boxing coach is a fine one. Chris has held the Canadian lightweight championship, and although he is on the downward path now as a fighter he will make a clever coach, and has wide experience coaching, and in the roped square itself will do wonders for the men on the Blue team. Chris should certainly uphold the reputation of the Varsity institution as a boxing centre.

JUNIOR MEDS LEAD GROUP IN MULOCK CUP SERIES

With a 4 to 1 Lead from a Carry Over Game Juniors Vanquish U.C. Squad

Meds Juniors won the Mulock Cup series in their group from U.C. last night 5-1, when they played off the final quarter of the game which had started last Wednesday, but which was not finished that day. Before the game started, Meds had a lead of 4-1. Murby of Meds kicked a single, making the final score 5-1. Outstanding for U.C. were Friefield and Murray, although both teams fought hard.

Meds: Flying wing, Knott; halves, Graham, McLeod, Murby; quarter, Coleman; snap, Nicol; insides, Jackson, Thomson, Vaughan, Tucker; middles, Massig, Scott; outsides, Johnstone, McCallum; subs, Marquis.

U.C. Flying wing, Kohen; halves, Friefield, Herman, Uprecht; quarter, Murray; snap, Keith; insides, Shuch, Feningley; middles, Little, Shepherd; outsides, Walker, McHugh; subs, Lee, Zachs, Allen.

WATER POLO LEAGUE OPENED LAST NIGHT

Varsity "B" Swamps Danforth-Second to the Tune of a 10-3 Score

Varsity "A" BEAT CENTRAL

Last night there was played in the pool the first games of the new Water Polo League. The opener was between Varsity "B" team and Danforth-Second. Varsity got away to a good start in the first minute of play. After that it was easy sailing. Playing under the new international rules for the first time, Varsity looks to be headed for another championship, as a cup has been put up by the local branch of the C.A.S.A. Danforth-Second, while having some players of international fame, were rather weak on the shooting. The final score was 10-3, one goal being disallowed.

Varsity: Ayers, Middleboro, Sinclair, Spence, Pierdon, Armstrong, Latchford.

Danforth-Second: Hambleton, Carmichael, Horne, Preston, Cornet, David, Page.

The second game, between Varsity "A" and Central "V," saw two stronger teams matched against each other. Both had strong swimmers like Goss, Aubin, Gibson, and Graham, but the old bullet shots of Goss, Thwaites and Co. were too much for Central. The goals and the big tank handicapped Central, but wait till we get in their tank. But that's another story. The game ended 9-3 for Varsity. The manager pro tem wishes to state that last night's line-up is not final and wishes all who can to be out to practice Wednesday, 6-7.

Varsity: Bullen, Grant, Irwin, Thwaites, Goss, Graham.

Central: Gibson, Fairclough, Kayes, Aubin, McCullough, Oggy, Abernethy.

BASKETBALL SQUAD GETTING IN SHAPE

Prospects Good for Snappy Senior, Intermediate and Junior Aggregations

TO HOLD EXTRA PRACTICES

Inroads have been made in the basketball practices of the junior, intermediate and intercollegiate representatives of the Blue and White. Work-outs scheduled for Friday and Monday were slight as a result of the holiday, and the Masquerade will ruin another one this week. Despite this, the management is satisfied with the showing of the seniors. An attempt is going to be made to hold a few extra practices the following three weeks in order to have the squad in condition for their first game of the season with the University of Buffalo, in Buffalo, on December 15th.

The intermediates are also shaping up well and the squad is gradually being cut to a workable size. While it is still too early for forecasts and predictions from what we have seen, we would say that this year's intermediates will shape up as well, if not better, than last year's quintette, who tied O.A.C. in games won but lost out on the score, due to the intercollegiate scoring system whereby the team with the larger score wins in case of a tie. The men are practically all new and are individually good.

The junior outlook is much more encouraging. The squad has increased considerably since the change in practice hours to Tuesdays and Thursdays. While it is impossible to tell who will be on the squad, it looks a sure thing that Burns and Don Wood of last year's intercollegiate, who missed their year and are still eligible for junior, will be out there to bolster the team.

Chris Newton to Coach Varsity Boxing Team

Chris Newton, former Canadian lightweight champion, will coach the Varsity boxing team. Newton was an assistant to Les Black last year, and accomplished a good deal with the raw material assigned to him. Heavy work will start in the boxing room to-night at 4.30 o'clock and all the former members of the team, also any others who have boxing ability are asked to be on hand.

Senior Hockey Practice, Varsity Arena Thursday

Hockey practice for Senior and Intermediate candidates will be continued at the Varsity Arena on Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock. In addition to former members of the Senior team the following new candidates are requested to be present: W. T. McHugh, G. R. McMillan, J. R. Mooney, R. A. Stanley, H. G. Peacock, M. W. Robinson, H. S. Shipley, L. E. Simpson, E. W. Smart, W. E. Smith, T. C. Sparling, G. H. Spence, H. L. Statham, E. E. Thompson, F. P. P. Thompson, A. S. Yorgger.

JUNIOR HOCKEY PRACTICE

The following Juniors who have signed hockey cards are asked to report for Junior practice which will be held on Thursday from 12:15 to 1:15 at the Varsity Arena: R. L. Algie, W. J. B. Bates, J. F. Clarke, R. Hetsler, P. J. Howe, R. J. Macdonald, G. McCartney, J. A. MacDonald, W. McKnight, C. C. McGibbon, R. P. Ruppel, G. C. Shames, N. L. Smith, J. C. Steer, L. K. Walkom.

Mulock Cup Semi-finals Will Be Played Thursday

The first of the Mulock Cup semi-finals will take place on Thursday afternoon at the Stadium, Trinity and Senior School being the opposing teams. The game will commence at 3.30 p.m.

The postponed game between Jr. School and Jr. Meds will be played on the back campus to-day at 4 o'clock. The following are asked to meet at the Athletic Office to-day at 1.30 p.m.: Rapsey, McFadyen, Hudson, Belton, Catto, Woodside, Robson and Sullivan.

Holiday Game Results in Disaster for Intercollegiate Champions

5 TOUCHES, 3 DROPS

(By L. S. B. Shapiro, Sporting Editor, McGill Daily)
Montreal, Nov. 12.—The colours of the Interprovincial Football Union were raised above those of the Intercollegiate loop when the M.A.A.A. squad defeated the Intercollegiate champions, McGill, by the one-sided score of 35 to 6 at the Molson Stadium to-day. Over 7,500 saw the Big Four squad with line-up intact ride rough-shod over the poorly conditioned Intercollegiate champions.
It was the field running of the M.A.A.A. players that sent them over for five touchdowns. The agitated toe of Beno Wright played a considerable part in the Red and Blue victory, always outkicking Tremaine and dropping three field goals between the uprights.

Climbing Cornell Campus Creates Funny Feeling For Frosh Feet

(By N. J. DeWitt)

"Freshman Leg" is a current ailment at Cornell University. It is a disability of the legs aggravated by walking up and down hills at an angle of 45 degrees. We write from experience gathered over the week-end.

Picture six Avenue Road Hills on end, with university buildings on the upper slopes, and you have the Cornell campus. The university is 400 feet above the town of Ithaca, N.Y.

On slippery days one false step will land you in very unexpected places. Imagine skidding on the front steps of Hart House and ending up at the City Hall.

The campus down there is crossed by two canyons, with streams falling precipitously down to Lake Cayuga. The view from the campus extends for miles along and across the basin of the lake.

Willard Straight Hall, equivalent of Hart House, has its back over the edge of the abyss. The front is on the street in a perfectly orthodox manner.

The desk is run by students in Hotel Management. There are very gaudy frescoes in the lobby. The general style is gothic, but not so detailed as Hart House.

There are four places to eat in Willard Straight. A cafeteria for men and another for women and tablecloths, at two prices. In the men's cafeteria the professors line up with the students, and eat at the same tables.

Golf pants are quite the thing. We saw the head of a department and a dean wearing them, and in lectures, too. The freshmen are still wearing "dinks": small blue caps with red buttons like cherries; in April these caps will be burned; on Monday a list of those not purchasing and wearing caps was published in the "Sun" and the bad boys will be attended to.

"Goldwin Smith Hall" is the name of the Liberal Arts Building, which reminds Toronto people of how the one-time patron saint of local letters and fervid patriot left all his money to an alien university.

Students will work for a little ready cash. Fraternity men act as waiters at other houses. Men of no small allowance carry out ashes or sweep off porches for a consideration.

They seem to be having trouble with football. On Saturday it came out Cornell—0, St. Bonaventure—0, and the game was not sensational, either.

List of Officers Includes Names

Famous

"I have been engaged this week in helping the students to constitute a college Literary and Debating Society. . . . The young gentlemen are fair set a-going, in high spirits, and likely to work well together. The result I anticipate will be to give them a fresh and more lasting interest in the college, a thing greatly needed here." Thus wrote Professor Daniel Wilson in February, 1854, at the time when the present U.C. "Lit." was being formed to bridge the then existing schism between the well-to-do existing men, who inhabited the west wing, and the "outside" men, who taught rural schools for their tuition. Adam Crooks was the first President of the University College Literary and Scientific Society, as it was then called, and had a major share in its inception.

The panels of the Junior Common Room, bearing the list of the officers of the Society from its foundation, read like a roll of the great of the land and University. When one reaches the panel for the year 1862 one is confronted with the name "W. Mulock." Premier Ferguson appears (Continued on page 4)

ABSENCE DEMANDS EXCUSE FROM DOCTOR

Vassar Girls Ride Bicycles in Order to be on Time for Lectures

MALE IS FASHION MONITOR

Thanksgiving visitors to American colleges have brought reports indicative of different conditions, "The Varsity" learned yesterday.

"Although the girls of Vassar have more freedom along certain lines—such as smoking rooms in all the residences—they are more strictly tied down by rules than we are," said Marjorie Jackson, IV Vic. A notice in the Vassar paper stated that "There may be no absences from classes without a doctor's or a warden's excuse on the two days preceding, and the ten days following the Thanksgiving vacation. 'It often reminds me of a 'Ladies' College' in the old-fashioned days of the word. The girls ride bicycles all over the campus to get to their lectures on time, and it is against tradition to walk on the grass.' If any one tramples thus upon tradition, she is immediately recalled to her senses by the blast of a whistle worn by certain girls, who apparently serve the same purpose as the policemen posted in Queen's Park."

At the U. of Michigan, Ann Arbor, the male is the monitor of dress and fashion. Absence of either hat or a visible application of "make-up" separate one conspicuously on the campus. Fraternity and sorority life play a major part in the university, and the fact that the U. of T. is divided into several colleges was not only incomprehensible but a source of curiosity. "But how can you have university spirit at all?" they queried.

ARRANGEMENTS ANNOUNCED FOR MASQUERADE

Partners to Separate at Door and Meet Again by Great Hall

The final arrangements for the Masquerade being now completed, the House Committee in charge of the Ball desires to make known the following:

As previously announced, the ladies' dressing room will be in the south-east portion of the basement. Ladies will leave their escorts at the south-west door of the House, rejoining them in the Lower Gallery by the Great Hall. They will make their way there by way of the tuck shop stairs.

The music will commence at 8 o'clock. The first two dances will be extras and the regular programme of twenty dances will commence at 8.30. Dancing will conclude at 2 p.m.

Dancing will take place in the large gymnasium, the lecture room, the music room, the reading room and the east common room. Smoking will not be permitted in the library or the gallery of the swimming pool. Outside traffic arrangements will be announced in the Friday issue of "The Varsity."

DR. HAGUE UPHOLDS DIVINITY OF BIBLE

COMMANDS ALL MANKIND

"If Jesus Christ is not the Son of God, I have not the right to stand up and talk to you men here," declared Dr. Dyson Hague, speaking in Hart House yesterday on the Fundamentalist's authority in Religion—the Bible. But, he stated, as Christ is divine so also is the Bible divine, and its every word is a revelation of God.

We do not have to apologize for the Bible, he continued. It has been accepted by the greatest bodies of thinkers the world has ever produced. It is no human book, but looks over the ages and commands all men from prince to pauper to obey its word, which is the word of God.

Its divinity can be proved by unity and content, he said. Consider that it was written by illiterate and uncultured fishermen in different places and (Continued on page 4)

Rugby

JR. GROUP OF PLAYERS

"Almost as many students take some part in dramatic activity around the University as take part in Interfacuity rugby," stated one man to "The Varsity" when asked about interest in amateur dramatics on the campus.

"I believe this society is going to be very successful this season," said W. E. P. De Roche, president of Victoria College Dramatic Society. "We have very ambitious plans for this year, since we hold meetings fortnightly now, whereas formerly we held them only at irregular intervals. We do not attempt to produce fine drama so much as to give all our members an idea of what acting really is." (Continued on page 4)

PROFESSOR HUNTER SENDS RESIGNATION TO PRESIDENT

Undergraduates Regret Loss of Brilliant
Doctor

At noon yesterday, Professor Andrew Hunter, M.A., B.Sc. Edin., M.B., Ch.B. Edin., Head of the Department of Biochemistry in the University of Toronto, sent in his resignation to Sir Robert Falconer. As the President is out of town, no indication as to what action would be taken on the resignation could be secured yesterday.

It is understood that Dr. Hunter hopes to leave Toronto in April to take up new duties at Glasgow University, where he will hold the chair of Physiological Chemistry.

When news of Professor Hunter's action reached undergraduates in Medicine, great regret was expressed at his impending departure. Such men as had heard of his resignation were unanimous in praising the scientist, who is considered to be one of the most brilliant men in his line in the world.

Dr. Hunter has been at the University for over ten years and is well known to the whole medical profession. He lectures to third year Medicine and Household Science students in bio-chemistry, and gives an advanced course in nutrition to fourth year B. (Continued on page 4)

NEED OF RESPONSE TO CALL OF WEST

Summer Mission Work by Wycliffe Students
Valuable

ANNUAL MEETING HELD

The annual meeting of Wycliffe College Students' Mission Society was held last night in the Sheraton Memorial Hall, with Mr. C. C. Watkins in the chair. Dr. W. E. Taylor conducted the opening exercises, and then Mr. Watkins gave a brief address on the purpose of the meeting.

The Secretary, Mr. K. C. Evans, B.A., presented a report of the year's work, stressing the great value of the summer mission work carried on by the students.

This aspect of the Society's work was presented in greater detail in four addresses which followed by students representing four different parts of Canada.

Mr. C. V. Giggsey spoke of work in the Maritimes, and Mr. A. W. Downer of his work in the diocese of Niagara. Mr. A. J. Jackson, M.A., spoke in very glowing terms of the work in the Western provinces and appealed for a greater response by laity and clergy to the call of the West. Mr. H. Cannon presented an interesting report of work amongst the Indians in Northern Ontario.

The special speaker of the evening, Rev. T. W. Isherwood, M.A. (Oxon.) brought the programme to a close by a very humorous and interesting travelogue of a tour that the professor had taken amongst Wycliffe graduates in the West and North, a journey extending from Toronto to the Yukon, which Professor Isherwood said had been to him a supreme pleasure and infinite privilege.

SARDONIC LAUGHTER CAUSED BY MENTION OF HONOUR SYSTEM

Campus is Hugely Amused by Queen's Hall's Idea of Honour

RULES FREELY BROKEN

Hallites Determined to Cling to Present Arrangement

When Queen's Hall and the Honour System are mentioned on the campus, do the men merely laugh sardonically? Miss Jewel Cray, head girl of Queen's Hall, declared that this is the case, at a compulsory meeting behind closed doors of the women in residence in the Park.

It seems that the rules and regulations of the Honour System have been freely infringed upon or broken, though as a rule the culprits are gregarious freshies and social sophomores who find the stipulated one or two late leaves a week insufficient for the giddy whirl of college activities. They say it is no unusual event for a girl to have her friend sign her in at the required hour, and then come in later on another's key. In this way they not only change early leaves to late ones, but also take late leaves that are not their due. In addition to these offences, students have been abusing their week-end privileges, and even their over-night privileges, since it is not unknown for girls to spend the night after a dance at a boarding-house, instead of their residence. It is definitely known that one girl did not sign out for the Thanksgiving week-end and consequently Dr. Wright suffered unnecessary worry and anxiety.

"The state of conditions now existing is very similar to that of 1918-1919, when the Capt stepped in and took Queen's Hall off the Honour System," said Miss Cray. As a result there was violent division in Queen's Hall and between it and the W.U.A., which was only relieved by restoring the residence to its former status, but not till conditions had become even more deplorable and girls removed from the Hall by their parents.

KILLING OF HUSBANDS GREATEST CRIME

Greek World Man-made Says Professor Hutton in Address on Electra

"The greatest of all crimes in the man-made Greek world is for a woman, 'superfluous' numberer of the earth, to kill her husband, even if he is just a heavy cavalry hero," declared Professor Hutton in his paper on Sophocles' "Electra" given at the meeting of the University College Classical Association held at 8.15 last night at the home of Professor and Mrs. Cochran.

As an introduction Professor Hutton compared and contrasted the works and styles of Aeschylus and Euripides with Sophocles. The greater part of the paper dealt with the translation and story of the play, and the characters of the various people portrayed.

In conclusion the speaker showed how, in Greek tragedy, Clytemnestra's murder by her son was the inevitable punishment of her crime, and how this situation would have been developed by French and English dramatists. After an animated discussion, refreshments brought the proceedings to a successful close.

SAINT FRANCIS RESEMBLED PRINCE OF WALES

Unarmed Crusader Preached
Even to Sultan Says
Professor Causland

"He vowed many rash vows which worked themselves out rightly," thus Prof. Causland in his talk on Francis of Assisi spoke of the man who in his early life resembled the Prince of Wales because of his wit, vivacity and extreme popularity. Politics had no attraction for him and religion little interest. Later he left this gay life for one of extreme simplicity.

He did not even support education, but his followers differed from him in that respect. Like a true lover, he performed all sorts of strange things for his love, Poverty.

As an unarmed Crusader Francis preached in Palestine and even the Sultan was among his hearers. Living a half-childlike, half-angelic life, he attracted men to him by his own lovable personality. From a tiny band of followers developed a vast organization of men who lived an active life amid complete poverty. He was in no way an organizer himself, but those who were drawn by his teaching of brotherhood and love formed the order to which his name was given.

NO COMPLAINTS OF VARSITY ROOTERS

Canadian Train Windows Do Not Need Glass Kicked Out

WOMEN ACT AS WHEN HOME

That football fans of this University conduct themselves properly when away from home, seems to be the general opinion, as ascertained by "The Varsity" yesterday.

"I have never heard of any complaints: our experience here is that the conduct of the University of Toronto students at home and away from home has been satisfactory," was the opinion voiced by Mr. Reed, financial secretary to the University Athletic Association, when interviewed by "The Varsity" yesterday. This statement also applied to the visitors as well as to our own students, Mr. Reed explained.

Mr. Reed felt that if there were any trouble, it would likely come from the so-called supporters who follow the team.

One undergraduate, on being questioned, replied: "I have never as yet heard of any disorderly conduct on the trains in my three years at college. If there were any trouble I think I'd have heard of it." When asked as to the rumours abroad concerning the riotous behaviour of those who attended the game last Saturday in Montreal, he replied, "That might have been the McGill students immediately after the game."

Mr. Burns, Secretary-Treasurer of the Students' Administrative Council, pointed out that there have not been special trains run to out-of-town games for some time. But when there were, the students were not unruly. "They did not travel in Pullmans but in colonist cars." There would not then be soft-arm blankets to tempt. Then too the train windows in Canada probably work better than those in Utah. Here, the student does not need to kick the glass out of them.

Miss Parkes, assistant secretary-treasurer of the Students' Administrative Council, stated that "Women students have behaved when away from home exactly as they would at home." "In my experience there has never been the slightest cause for complaint regarding the conduct of the undergraduates."

EXECUTIVE JOBS HARD AND THANKLESS SAYS SCHOOL MAN

Majority of Students Do Not Complain of Lack of Responsibility

REAL MEN ELECTED

Most Science Faculties Leave
Business to Executives

"It's a hard and thankless job," said one School man to "The Varsity" referring to the amount of student control over the executives of the undergraduate society. "Why should they be responsible?"

The majority of student opinion in the Science colleges, however, seems to indicate that there is no complaint from them as to the general lack of control over society executives. The annual elections provide the only visible check on the actions of the officers.

The Foresters' Club, membership in which is automatic, is the official undergraduate society of the Faculty of Forestry and handles all student affairs except athletics, which is absolutely separate. It is practically responsible to the students as a majority vote of those present holds. The attraction of the meetings, however, is the address by some prominent forester or lumberman.

"On the average 70% of the members attend the meetings," said Mr. G. S. Andrews, Secretary of the Club. "And there is quite an interest in them. Of course, Forestry has a small registration, and that means the students have more opportunity to take part in the government."

The leading societies in School of Science and Medicine are organized along somewhat the same lines. The Medical Society, of which all Medical undergraduates are members, holds open gatherings, but usually to hear some speaker, while the executive handles the business end in closed meetings. Attendance at the open meetings varies depending on the appeal of the speakers. The student body has no control over the executive beyond that it elects its members.

The Engineering Society is a similar institution in School of Science. (Continued on page 2)

PROFESSOR JACKSON WOULD REFUSE BRIBE

Fifty Thousand Dollars Could Not Lure Professor to the United States

ADDRESSES QUINDECIM

That he would not go to the United States even if he were offered fifty thousand dollars a year was the statement made by Gilbert Jackson, professor of Economics, in addressing the Quindecim of St. Michael's College at their banquet in Hart House last evening. Professor Jackson in discussing Canadian immigration opposed the view that immigrants in large numbers should be rushed to our shores. He pointed out the disadvantages apparent in Canadian social laws as compared with the privileges of the English and German working men who were naturally disinclined to leave home. He feared the influx of European immigration as a menace to the continuation of the Canadian tradition.

"A SPEAKING LIKENESS"

Graduation pictures are now the subject of conversation in the senior year and those in lower years would be well advised to begin thinking about them now. It is the custom, we may explain, to have a picture taken for Torontonensis on one's departure from these halls and also to confer duplicates upon the more favoured of one's friends and relations. (They make more dignified Christmas presents than dollar ties or braces.) Pictures may also be given to one's only professors in memory of the perfectly ripping years of intellectual stimulation shared by staff and student.

This custom is indeed a happy one and is sanctioned by usage uninterrupted by the years. In the days to come, we may read our year book and gaze at the photo on the mantel and think again of the days of yore when we basked on the bonny braces o' Taddie. We will then be in an immeasurably superior position to that of the alumnus celebrated in the ballad who was forced to have recourse to the floor of a public house to conjure up thereon the image of the loved one.

The custom has been observed with very few dissenting. We have only known one man who did not have his picture taken and this was not a question with him of disliking the principle of the thing but was purely one of financial considerations. When men belonging to the senior year in two of the Arts colleges gave us their opinion lately we were surprised. "The whole business is too mechanical," they protested. They felt that the method of proceeding was too standardized to allow any play to the spontaneity or personality of the subject.

Do people object only when the photographer's proofs are not sufficiently flattering? Is there any amount of real sentiment against the present system? The third question follows naturally: "What other way is there?"

EXECUTIVE JOBS HARD AND THANKLESS

All School men are members, but the business here is carried on by an executive in closed meetings.

"The purpose of the general meeting," said Mr. J. D. Wright, President of the Engineering Society, "is to give the students a knowledge of engineering as it is carried on outside the University. There is no business done; the executive handles that."

A faculty committee on the Engineering Society passes on and approves financial matters, but the students here, as in the Medical Society, have no direct control over the executive beyond electing them. Meds and School men, however, are quite satisfied with this.

"We elect real men to the offices at S.P.S.," said Al Rooke, III S.P.S., when questioned by "The Varsity" as to whether the executive should be responsible to the students. "They're all men we can trust; the system is all right as it is."

The Students' Parliament of the Faculty of Dentistry looks after all the business and athletics of the college, and the only student control is when the members are elected. Here too there seems to be no complaint from the undergraduates as to the lack of control over the executive.

Masquerade Tickets

Tickets will be given out to the students' presidents of the various colleges and faculties by Mr. J. F. McCullough of the House Committee on Friday, Nov. 16, between 12 and 1 o'clock in the West Common Room. Payment must be made as soon as tickets are received.

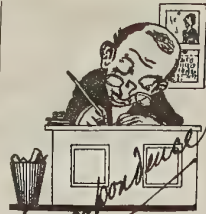

University Christmas Cards

In place of one card as in former years we are displaying Nine different designs from which a selection can be made. The prices with envelopes to match printed with your name are only $1.60 per dozen.

As this price is about one half the regular charge elsewhere, orders are received only from students and members of the staff.

Leave your order early before any of these are exhausted.

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

Theoretically, I agree with American JTO who upholds Dutch dates. Practically, however, I fear me that the institution would be a failure. If they were in vogue, the men would, it is true, get more good times, but, unfortunately, they would be considered cheap skates. American JTO apparently does not understand that a co-ed thinks that the man enjoys a scuse of masculine superiority when he is able to entertain her of an evening, and that she feels him into believing she is a little under obligation to him. In truth there is no feeling of superiority at all, merely a dull painful feeling when he wonders when he will be able to repay the money he had to borrow in order to take her out. And he knows that she doesn't feel under obligation to him. If he does get a kiss or two, it is merely because she feels like it as much as he does, and not because he took her out.

But unlike American JTO, I am truly thankful that it is a tradition for the man to ask for a date. I should not in the least like to be obliged to say to Barbara (that is not her name, incidentally), "I am sorry, Bar, but I promised Ethel that I'd go with her, and I simply can't back out. You know I'd like to go with you. Can't you make it some other night?" No, it would be decidedly unpleasant.

Utilizing American JTO's metaphor, —if the co-eds do "take off the rest of the lid," it will truly be a "Pandora's box," and you know that when Pandora lifted the lid it was decidedly disagreeable both for herself and for Epimetheus. What do you say?

Charles L. Swavett, U.C. JTL.

"AUSSIE" UNIVERSITIES IGNORE COLLEGE WOMEN

Co-eds Separated from Men by Barrier in Front of Classrooms

Special to "The Varsity"

Stockton, Oct. 31.—Co-eds in universities and colleges of Australia have no social standing with the males that lord it over Antipodean institutions of higher learning. So declares N. C. L. Nelson, leader of the University of Sidney, Australia, debate team which recently opened its American tour at the College of the Pacific.

"In classes the front of the room is separated from the rear by a bar or rail," Nelson explains, "and the co-eds sit in the front, leaving the back of the room for the men."

Neither do the men pay any attention to the college women on the campus, and it is seldom that a college man would think of "dating" a college girl or having anything to do with her in a social way, Nelson continued.

"Woman's place is in the home," in Nelson's opinion, and he evidently practices what he preaches, for he was the only one of the trio of forensic stars who appeared on the Pacific platform that was engaged.

SARNIA BY WIN OVER K-W's QUALIFIES TO MEET ORPHANS

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The football world is just recovering from the Orphans' victory. Reports from Hamilton indicate that the "Terrible Taggers" had to be fanned back to consciousness aided by a liberal dose from ye old ammonia bottle. It seems a fairly sure thing that Jimmy Douglas' boys will trip Sarnia and then invade the lair of the striped gentry who reside near the mountain. The Tigers will have to demolish plenty of raw meat if they hope to be in any condition to face the Blue and White, and that doesn't mean maybe. These "youngsters" don't give a hoot for reputations (just ask Balmy Beach) and Jimmy Douglas has inspired them with a morale and team spirit that is as good as any seen around here in years.

The Orphans sure ran into some tough luck when they lost the services of Charlie Baillie, their brilliant and hard-working captain. It is most unfortunate that Charlie should be injured just when the prospects were bright that he would lead the Orphans to their first O.R.F.U. championship.

The first of the semi-finals of the Mulock Cup series will take place at the stadium at 3.30 this afternoon. Sr. S.P.S. will engage Trinity and this promises to be a real good game.

At the same place and time to-morrow St. Mike's take on Junior Meds.

WYCLIFFE AND MEDS TIE IN INTERFACULTY SOCCER

S.P.S. and Knox College Leading at Present in Other Groups

Only one group in interfaculty soccer has completed its schedule. Wycliffe and Meds tie, after defeating Victoria, the third member in their group, which is the third on the interfaculty schedule. Matters have not yet been settled in the other two divisions.

The second group has been simplified by Dents and St. Mike's dropping out. At present S.P.S. are one up on Pharmacy, but the latter have still another chance at School, leaving things uncertain in that quarter. In the first group, Knox College is leading, followed by Victoria and Trinity Colleges respectively. Two games are still to be played in this section, Trinity vs. Knox and Knox vs. Victoria. Trinity is apparently out of the running, and Emmanuel College defaulted early in the season, thus leaving Victoria and Knox the contestants in this division. The fixtures for the final inter-group games are as yet undecided, depending on the results of the first and second groups.

ORPHANS FIRED WITH ENTHUSIASM FOR SARNIA GAME

Baillie Unable to Play Owing to Injuries Received Monday

PROSPECTS VERY BRIGHT

Season Has Furnished Several Very Notable Upsets

Coach Jimmy Douglas is not going to have a very tough job in instilling the old pep and snap into his Orphans these days. Fired by their sensational and well-earned victory over Balmy Beach, the dominant champions, his boys are right on their toes and ready to hand Sarnia the same medicine this Saturday.

Following their day's lay-off after the Thanksgiving battle, the Orphans had a snappy signal practice at the stadium yesterday evening. Most of the squad are in first-class condition, with the exception of Charlie Baillie. The popular captain is suffering from injuries received in Monday's struggle and owing to torn ligaments will be out of the Sarnia game Saturday and also the rest of the season. This is a tough blow to the Blue, but Doug McFadyen, the Intercollegiate half, will make a very good job of filling his position.

Prospects are exceedingly bright for a conquest of the Tunnel Towners and an O.R.F.U. championship for the Blue. With the all-round good form displayed in their last game, Varsity should easily win. But football is a funny old game in which the dope is often upset. This season in particular has been especially hard on the dopers and has furnished some notable upsets.

To-day the Blue will get down to hard work, and with a light practice to-morrow will be all set for the laurel wreaths.

SARNIA QUALIFIES TO MEET ORPHANS

Defeats Kitchener - Waterloo Piling Up Score from First

PLAYS HERE ON SATURDAY

Sarnia defeated Kitchener-Waterloo yesterday afternoon at the University of Western Ontario oval by a score of 16 to 6, thereby qualifying to meet the Orphans at the Stadium here Saturday.

Though the teams were tied in the group series, Sarnia took the field the favourites in yesterday's game, and proceeded to pile up points in the first few minutes of play, when Perry went over for a touch. From then on the Imperials fought to win, and by half-time had 9 points to Kitchener's 1. At three-quarter time Sarnia was still in the lead, but the Kitchener squad rallied in the final quarter, registering a touchdown to make the score 16 to 6. The Imperials, who had the edge on the play all the way through, are quite eager to get at Jimmie Douglas' surprise packet here next Saturday.

JR. MEDS WIN GROUP BY DEFEATING JR. S.P.S.

Score 6-0 Gets Championship with Knott Standing Out for Meds

Jr. Meds beat Jr. S.P.S. 6-0 yesterday on the back campus. Meds played a great game to take the championship of their group over S.P.S. and U.C. If S.P.S. had come through with a win they would have tied up the group, but Meds were not to be denied. Every man played well for Meds, with Knott standing out. Marquis and McCallum, the Meds outsiders, tackled well and much credit for the win must go to them. Jones and Handcock played well for School and were trying hard all the time. Scott repeatedly broke through and stopped the S.P.S. backs before they got started. The scoring was all done in the third quarter. A school kick was blocked and Knott fell on it for a touch, which was not converted. School came back gamely, but the superior kicking of Murby for Meds netted them a single before the quarter was over. This ended the scoring, making it 6-0 for Meds.

Meds: Flying wing, Steele; halves, Murby, Graham, McLeod; quarter, Knott; snap, Nickol; insides, Jackson, Thompson; middles, Massig, Scott; outsides, Marquis, McCallum; sub, Tucker.

S.P.S.: Flying wing, Wheaton; halves, Hewitt, Handcock, Watkins; quarter, Jones; snap, Featheringham; insides, Anderson, Hitchler; middles, Algie, Kirkland; outsides, Joyner, Davidson; subs, Strachan, Tyson, Puddy.

Meds play St. Mike's on Friday in the first of the semi-finals.

Orphans' Captain Laid Up

Charlie Baillie, the captain of the Orphans, will not play on Saturday and may be out for the season. Baillie was injured in the second quarter of the game against Balmy Beach when he was tackled heavily, and the flashy backfielder was carried off the field and did not get into the game after that. The ligaments in his knee are badly torn and he is at home in bed at present with very little prospects of being able to play a week from Saturday if the Orphans do meet the Tigers.

Aunt Mary Eases Undergraduate Burdens With Sage Advice

(By Greta Reid)

Dear Aunt Mary,—

I am desperate! I have invited the One and Only to the Masquerade on the strength of my prestige as a senior, but the powers in charge of the billets don't seem to have any respect for age or seniority. Help!

Despairingly yours,

Optimist.

P.S. We've rented our costumes.

Ans. Wycliffe has a ticket this year, go get it! If you can come across with a Scoop for the Varsity, L.J.R. will present you a ticket on a silver galley-proof. As a final resource we advise chloroform; it's painless.

Dear Aunt Mary,—

What do you think of the Dutch date problem?

Curious Co-od.

Ans. We have so many nice young Canadian boys here at the University that I really cannot understand this sudden interest in the Dutch.

Dear Aunt Mary,—

All my friends call me a tea-hound because I attend so many afternoon affairs. I am applying to you for support. Don't you just love five o'clock tea?

Sincerely,

T. Biscuit.

Ans. Yes, at all hours.

Aunt Mary Dear,—(Variety...)

What are those big search-lights for on the back campus?

Sincerely,

H. House.

Ans. Earlier in the season they were used as time-light for Argo practices; but they have recently lost cost and they now serve to register the last dying kicks of the interfaculty series. Trinity men have found them a very valuable preventative against U.C. raids.

Dear Aunt Mary,—

Why do so many of our fair young motorists use green lipstick?

Yours truly,

Otto Carr.

Ans. Because when a motorist doesn't see green, he sees red. There is another reason, but if you haven't already guessed it, you're too young to know.

Mr. Aiken, the Director of Hart House Theatre, stated that the Junior Group of Players, comprising about fifteen players, give promise of much success. Although this is not an undergraduate organization, there are seven students in the cast. in different languages and yet there is a central thought running through the whole, a fact which is nothing short of a miracle. He also pointed out that in content it has dared to do what no other book ever has or ever will dare to do and what not even Plato or Socrates ever dreamed of doing; it has dared to speak to mankind as a whole and to command all men with the command of a divinity.

In concluding, he said that although you might wish to leave the Bible alone it will not leave you alone. Men have persecuted it fiercely, but when all theories of unbelief and atheism have fallen to the ground, the Bible is still going stronger than ever. to have been Secretary of Committees for 1888. The future Senator Maguire also figures large in the early annals of the Society. Such arresting names as Baker, Vandersmissen and De Lury appear during the 70's and 80's.

"Before federation," declared Dr. Brehner, the University Registrar, himself a one-time officer of the Society, "the Lit. was the one social organization about the place. It was up to it to manage all functions and elections. You men don't know what a Literary Society election was in those days." At old Moss Hall the proceedings, with their "Brute Force Committee" and their "Inside" and "Outside" parties, were—in the words of Dr. Brehner—"rather more than lively." The Conversazione was the social event of the University in those days. In fact, the halls were decked for a "Conversat'" when the great fire broke out in 1890.

For the years 1916, 1917 and 1918 there is a gap. War was in the air; election and debate were forgotten. In 1921 the name of the organization took its present form: University College Literary and Athletic Society. The membership is theoretically comprised of every man student registered in U.C., although of recent there has been such an evident lack of interest on the part of students toward the Society that a movement is afoot to present on foot to bring about reform. The executive is elected annually by popular ballot, while the presidents of the years sit as Councillors ex-officio.

FINAL ARRANGEMENTS NOW ALL COMPLETED FOR MASQUERADE

Careful Observation of Rules
Will Minimize Confusion and Unnecessary Congestion

THREE PRIZES PRESENTED

No Cars to be Parked on Road Running North from Tower to Hoskin Ave.

Final announcements concerning the Hart House Masquerade have been issued by the House Committee. Holders of tickets are asked to pay special attention to the regulations concerning taxis and private cars and also to notice the location of the cloak rooms. Observance of rules will greatly minimize confusion of traffic and congestion in the House.

Special outside traffic arrangements have had to be made on account of the large number of taxis and private cars coming to Hart House. All cars must come and leave the House by arranged routes. Taxis will enter from Queen's Park and proceed west to the southern front of Hart House, leaving their passengers at the southwest door. They will then turn south and leave by College Street. Taxis calling for masqueraders after the dance will line up on the road around the lawn in front of the House. They will be called by number as they are wanted. When the number is called each taxi will drive up to the south-east door from the east to get its passengers. They will turn north then and leave via the Tower and Hoskin Avenue.

Private cars bringing masqueraders will enter from Hoskin Avenue and leave their passengers at the west door of Hart House. They will proceed south through the Arch to the parking places around the front campus. Cars may be parked around the front campus on both sides of Devonshire Place and on both sides of Hoskin Avenue. There will be no parking of cars on the road north of the Tower to Hoskin Avenue.

Private cars taking masqueraders home will get their passengers at the west door of the House. They must approach from the south through the Arch and leave via Hoskin Avenue. It will relieve the congestion greatly if guests will walk to their cars instead of waiting to be called for.

Guests are requested to have the exact fare to pay taxis on their arrival at the House.

It is most important that guests should note carefully the cloak room arrangements. Ladies will use the Billiard Room and regular Check Room. Gentlemen will use the Sketch Room. Gentlemen will use the Sketch ladies will check their wraps and go upstairs by way of the tuck shop steps, meeting their escorts in the Lower Gallery outside the Great Hall. Ushers are instructed to enforce this rule and guests can save themselves time and trouble by noting it now.

No one will be admitted to the House without a ticket or allowed to re-enter. Anyone forgetting his ticket must go and get it before he will be admitted.

Guests are again reminded that smoking will not be allowed in the gallery of the Swimming Pool or in the Library. There will be two extra dances commencing at 8 o'clock. The regular programme will begin at 8.30 o'clock and conclude at 2 a.m.

As previously announced, the judges of costumes will be Mr. F. S. Haynes and Mr. Henry Sprout. Prizes will be presented upon the following basis:

- (1) One for best gentleman's costume judged by the standards of art.
 - (2) One for the best lady's costume

REGRET RESIGNATION OF EMINENT SCHOLAR

Prof. A. Hunter Definitely Resigns from Department of Biochemistry

"There is nothing to say except that it is a matter of the greatest regret to all," said Dr. Primrose, speaking to "The Varsity" on the subject of the resignation of Prof. Andrew Hunter, Head of Department of Biochemistry in the University of Toronto. He stated that it was naturally very unfortunate to lose such an eminent scholar and popular teacher, but he said that the decision of Prof. Hunter was final. He further stated that he shared with the staff and students in their grief over the Professor's impending departure and was unanimous with them in their praise of him. As the president is still out of town, no statement could be obtained from him. However, his secretary said that the matter would be taken up at the meeting of the board of governors next Thursday.

ADVOCATES RETURN TO THE OLD ORDER

Dr. Locke Delivers Lecture on Place of Tradition in Our Lives

LORETTO COMMENCEMENT

"The tendency of present day literature is to belittle accounts of the past. Biographers seem to delight in proving that the heroes of the past were quite ordinary people and all idealism is stripped from them," declared Dr. Locke, Chief Librarian, in his lecture on "The Place of Tradition in our lives Nationally and Individually," delivered at Loretto College Commencement.

We have now arrived at the time when the popular cry is "Down with tradition, think for yourself, act for yourself, regardless of the fact that you had ancestors." The speaker declared to give an account of the modern attitude towards Music and Art—the grounds that his sphere was "books." So for religion the Church takes a just and holy pride because its truths have gone back for so many years. The Jesuits in establishing their system of education showed a superb patience which is lacking in our age. We are now living in an age of revolt, in which a shattering of religious tradition is noticeable.

William Harper of the University of Chicago said, "We lack one thing useful to make a great university, tradition which cannot be purchased." Therefore in this present age tradition seems to be the one thing beyond the power of gold to buy. It is the age of young people. Money seems to be able to get anything to explain lack of morals, manners and even intelligence.

The modern novel is descending so rapidly that most of us will live to see a reaction. The modern detective story and mystery novel are an insult to intelligence. What we need in life is the steady force. "Tradition steadies us on our way so we reach our goal by the best and safest paths."

Organ Recital

At the President's request, Dr. F. A. Mouré, University organist, has changed the time of his fortnightly organ recital to Monday, Nov. 19th, at 5 p.m. in Convocation Hall. This change has been made in order that staff and students may be able to attend both the organ recital and the concert under the auspices of the Hart House String Quartette.

PRIZES FOR BEST SKITS

G. H. Hutton, president of fifth year Medicine, was selected chairman of the Daffydil Committee at yesterday's meeting of the Medical Society. M. Campbell, 279, last year's chairman, is secretary, and O. L. Stanton is treasurer.

Daffydil Night, which is an annual affair, consists of a series of skits put on in Convocation Hall by the different years. There will be close supervision of all skits this year by the Medical Society and the Committee, it was stated to "The Varsity" last night. The skits will be submitted for inspection before they are presented, and may be revised or banned by the Daffydil Committee.

Most of the years are offering prizes for the best skit submitted. Those accepted will be judged at the performance and a cup awarded for the best one.

FRENCH SOCIETY HAS AMUSING MEETING

R. Finch and M. Hochberg,
Speaker and Musician,
Give Much Pleasure

FRENCH ACTORS IMITATED

Choice seats in Parisian theatres closely resemble bath-tubs," said Mr. Robert Finch in his address to the U.C. French Society last evening. The speaker, a graduate of U. of T., recently appointed to the department of French at U.C., depicted very humorously his impressions of the French theatre. He gave delightful imitations of two of the prominent figures of the French stage. If the play proves uninteresting it is quite "comme il faut" to engage in animated conversation with your neighbours.

Maurice Hochberg, a visiting artist, displayed rare talent in his rendition of two violin solos, "Meditation" and "Mon coeur s'ouvre a ta voix."

The meeting was brought to a successful close with games, refreshments and conversation in which the members brushed up on their French at the expense of the long-suffering professors.

INDIGNANT HALLITE ATTACKS POLICY OF 'THE VARSITY'

Jewel Cray Scores Editor for Account of Meeting
Behind Closed Doors

CLAIMS IMPRESSION FALSE

Dislikes Publicity Accorded
"Housecleaning", Privacy
Preferred at Queen's Hall

Jewel Cray of Queen's Hall has written the following letter to the editor of "The Varsity":

"Has your paper no sense of honour nor regard for the privacy of individuals or institutions? So it would appear from your report, in Thursday's issue, of a meeting held in Queen's Hall 'behind closed doors.' Apparently the price we must pay for a daily newspaper is to have our every little housecleaning blazoned forth from the house-tops. If the students in Queen's Hall pause to set their house in order (and the need for it was never stated to be comparable to that in 1918-19) must the whole world be told?"

"Surely you, as an editor, know the potent psychological effect of headlines which, accurate enough in themselves, may be so placed as to create a totally false impression. Such a false impression has been created by your article. With few exceptions the honour system is being loyally upheld by Queen's Hall students. The appeal for a perfect observance made at Wednesday night's meeting was designed to eradicate an incipient laxity."

"Since the Queen's Hall meeting, a purely domestic affair, was held behind closed doors, the Varsity, or any other paper has no moral right to publish any account of it whatsoever."

HART HOUSE SING-SONGS COMMENCE TO-DAY

Opportunity for Lusty Men Singers to Strut Their Stuff

The first of the weekly sing-songs is to be held at 1.30 p.m. to-day in the East Common Room, Hart House. Mr. Ross Workman will be present to lead the singing with all his old-time vigour. Mr. Angus Ross will assault the much-enduring piano, and the task of putting the slides in the projection lantern upside down will be in charge of Messrs. Bob Hilary and Tom Henry.

The purpose of these sing-songs, which have become a regular feature of Hart House, is much the same as that of the Sunday evening songsters, namely, to entertain the members and to give them an opportunity to sing.

Noted 'Cellist

Hans Kindler, world-renowned 'cellist and composer, who will appear in a special student concert in Convocation Hall on Tuesday afternoon.

MARKED ANXIETY FELT FOR FORMER STUDENT

Fellow-workers Fear for Safety of Passenger on Ill-fated Vestris

Anxiety concerning the safety of Miss Iracema dos Santos Cabral, a passenger on the ill-fated Vestris, sunk off the shores of Virginia early this week, is marked by the staff of the Public Health Nursing Department, under whose direction Miss Cabral, a Rockefeller Foundation student, studied here one month.

Miss Cabral left Toronto November 3rd, having completed her studies here in Public Health and her observation work with the City Health Department, for her home in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, where she planned to enter Public Health service.

When interviewed by "The Varsity" concerning Miss Cabral, Miss Mortimer of the Public Health Nursing Department stated: "We do not know a great deal concerning Miss Cabral personally, but while here she proved herself a close student of public welfare, and it would be too bad if she were lost in the terrible catastrophe when on her way home after an absence of a year and a half. We are hoping for good news of course, but up to last night were unable to ascertain anything definite as regards her safety after the accident which took such a tremendous toll of the lives of women and children."

PROFESSOR'S SOLOS ENTERTAIN STUDENTS

Professor Robins Delivers
Second Lecture of Series on Music Lore

SPEAKS ON BROADSIDE

"Never has England sung with such a universal voice since the time of the Tudors," said Professor Robins when speaking at Victoria College yesterday on "The Broadside," the second of his series on music lore. The decline of interest among the upper classes forced the troubadours to become vagabond minstrels, playing to frequenters of taverns and carnivals, the type of people who demand gaiety, sentimentality and sensation.

Printing introduced folio sheets, on one side of which were royal proclamations, on the other songs or broadsides in black letters. These were carried throughout cities, towns and villages in the packs of solitary peddlers. Types of folio have gone through many stages, culminating in the monster song book of to-day.

The early broadside was printed on inferior paper, and often entrusted to memory. Depicting every possible human expression—humour, satire, dinge, protest, elegy or catastrophe, it developed into the folksong. Tragedies have always been favoured, death speeches with moralistic endings were popular, yet often the old heroic note was struck as truly as ever before.

Not the least entertaining of Professor Robins' lecture was his rendering of several old broadsides as solos.

Members of the staff of "The Varsity" will meet to-day in Wymilwood at 4 p.m., not 4.30 as previously announced.

LACK OF INTEREST GENERAL ATTITUDE TOWARDS U.C. LIT.

Many Suggestions Given for Improvement of Society

PLEAD OTHER INTERESTS

Students Pay Their Fee and Feel Exempt From All
Participation

"I think an executive responsible to the society would be an improvement over the present oligarchy," said W. A. D. Barclay, III U.C., when interviewed by "The Varsity" regarding his attitude towards the U.C. Literary and Athletic Society.

"It seems from my attendance at meetings," he continued, "that if discussion doesn't do much towards framing the policy of the executive, then why go and discuss it? Of course there are so many other things in which people are interested that many just leave the Lit. to those who are running it."

"As to fees, a great many men pay at the Literary and Athletic Society fees at the Bursar's Office as they pay other compulsory fees, and never think they have any say in how it should be spent."

T. M. Cutt, IV French, Greek and Latin, U.C., when questioned, stated: "Personally I do not take much active part in the Society because there are too many things to do and there are other things in which I, myself, am more interested. I think that a good many who criticize the Society are those who like myself do not know a great deal about it, and consequently cannot not express an opinion."

"There are a good many people who do not seem to realize that the men on the executive spend a good deal of time and energy making possible the various activities which everyone has the opportunity of enjoying. I for one certainly appreciate their efforts."

"Although I know that student in University College have a profound feeling for their Alma Mater, still they seem disinterested in the Literary and Athletic Societies. The only way in which a vital interest in such activities can be aroused is to have a college residence in which a goodly number of the men can associate with each other and thus work up a college spirit which would display itself in a more ostensible form."

"I think there is nothing wrong with the Lit. whatsoever," said P. W. Graham, IV Philosophy, U.C. "It is just pure laziness on my part that I don't attend. For this reason I have no right to criticize or comment on the activities of the Society."

THE HONOUR OF THE HOUSE

In to-day's issue we publish a letter from the Head Girl of Queen's Hall which takes objection to the news article in Thursday's paper of a meeting held at this residence. We are glad to learn from this letter that for once our headlines were "correct in themselves" and it is therefore to be assumed that the story upon which they were based was correct. The Head Girl is definite only once in her refutation of the story: It appears that she did not compare conditions of the present with those ten years ago. Since the reporter was at the university at that time we wonder how she brought the fact into a news report of the disciplinary meeting at Queen's Hall. Since no other errors are specified, "The Varsity" is apparently given a clean bill of health, with regard to its facts at least, by the Head Girl.

We are acquitted therefore with regard to the letter of the story. We regret that our correspondent does not agree with the spirit of our article. A person in her position must surely realize the importance of residence rules in undergraduate life and the important place comment on those rules must occupy in a daily attempting to reflect undergraduate life as it is and not necessarily as we should like it to be.

Apparently, then, there was a "little housecleaning" and this little affair was consequent upon "incipient laxity." One must therefore be reminded of the unfortunate events of 1919 when conditions were so bad at the Hall that parents insisted on their daughters going out of residence and when the Caput intervened and stipulated that a system of espionage be instituted rather than one of honour. These occurrences have now become such far off things that apparently the residence women have forgotten that their freedom is accorded them at the pleasure of those set in authority, and that it can be taken from them at the discretion of the same powers.

Just what is the value of the honour system? Are we to suppose that with the sudden release from the pressure of High School must come also freedom from the responsibilities of home? Such would seem to be the case. Most of the women in our university have been accustomed to the prodding methods of our secondary schools and have at the same time been accustomed to living at home or in a boarding school where they were strictly accountable to parents or teachers. Then, abruptly, college begins that new era in their lives,—one of complete independence in the matter of studies and of an entirely new and different residence environment which constitutes their home life. What wonder that with very little previous experience of absolute personal independence a good many should fail at first to adjust themselves to new conditions?

We are all familiar with the sad fate which overtakes many promising young fledglings when they try their wings for the first time. Perhaps the flight begins very well but gradually it becomes slower, until finally the poor fluttering bird is caught in a snare from which his feeble struggles cannot possibly extricate him. In other words, we mean that there are more failures in first and second years than in the senior classes, which we attribute to the fact that only the really studious will study of their own accord and that coercion is necessary to encourage the efforts of the others.

Might the same not be true of the social life of the student? We believe that most of the criticism of the honour system is based on the conduct of members of the first and second years. Their new-found freedom sometimes goes to the heads of these younglings and they take a good deal more of it than even the latitude of an honour system would permit, with care-free "Rules are made to be broken anyway!" There would seem to be no way of avoiding such a condition under the present system, for many of the students feel quite unchecked and irresponsible, and none of them have as yet absorbed the stately traditions of the University and of the residence which in themselves demand courteous and becoming conduct.

Many observers have come to the conclusion that if the residences wish to preserve their reputation as good places for careful parents to send their daughters, they would be well advised to abandon this farcical honour system, at least in part, and to exercise a closer supervision over those who seem unable to look after themselves. This is unfortunately a seemingly narrow view but it is undoubtedly practical.

Art, Music and Drama

Student Concerts

Strangely enough it seems that the greater part of the students who have taken a keen interest in musical affairs must have graduated last year. We find that student concerts of chamber music, which over nine hundred students patronized last season, are attended now by only some three hundred. Surely those slothful creatures who have heretofore contented themselves with the acquisition of a diluted form of education through lectures, neglecting their wider interests have not considered the consequence of this general neglect of special concerts. Are we to explain the diminution of attendance at Convocation Hall by supposing that our music has become a social sweet which undergraduates accept in the form of Sunday concerts, attended merely because they are fashionable?

Undergraduates cannot suppose that famous artists like Kindler and the Flonzaleys can afford to lend themselves for these wonderful concerts unless they are worthily received. Unless there is a definite response, we must rest assured that next year there will be no students' concerts to the everlasting shame of our undergraduates and to the regret of those who have the interests of music and of the university at heart.

On Tuesday afternoon Kindler will appear at the special request of the Hart House Quartet. He is perhaps the world's greatest living cellist and is equally famed for his ability as a conductor both here and on the continent.

When our own quartet visited the Maritime universities they were greeted by audiences comprising the whole undergraduate body. We should be loth to think that this university was willing to remain apathetic towards our musical venture at home.

THE WROMANCE OF WRIGHTEOUS WRONALD

(After spending two days in the dog pound, our hero Ronald Rottingham, finds death staring him in the face via the gas route.)

CHAPTER 3

Ronald had slept little and was wide awake when the gate clanged and the aged warden, deaf and half blind, entered the room, followed by a gaunt, middle aged woman.

"These animals are to be gassed this morning, sister," piped the old man, "so if you want to take one home with you for a pet, it is all right with me."

Ronald took one look at the old maid and burrowed hastily into the straw. Too late! She had seen him.

"Oh, what a lovely hound," she cried, "if only his ears were longer!" She peered at him. "Good Heavens, it's a Man," she muttered excitedly. "This is better than ever!" Turning to the other she said, "Ferdinand, I shall take this lovely beast from this cage over here. He should be able to brighten a lonely maiden lady's life. Don't you think so doggie?"

Thus, dear reader, Ronald was saved and taken away to the insane asylum, where he learned that the spinster held the position of matron. That afternoon he sneaked away from his old maid and stroled through the grounds, trying to find

ORPHANS FINISH PREPARATIONS FOR O.R.F.U. FINAL WITH SARNIA

SPEAKING OF SPORT

To-morrow, ladies and gentlemen, Varsity expects every rooter to do his duty—and her duty too. If the Orphans defeat Sarnia it will give the Blue the second senior football championship that has come here in seven years. The Intercollegiate won their league in 1926 after a period of barren years extending from 1921. Saturday afternoon is one of the best chances to distinguish themselves that the Blue and White have had in years.

The University of Toronto have not had a Dominion senior football championship since 1920, when "Laddie" Cassell's men triumphed over Argos at the Stadium here. In 1921 Varsity again won the Intercollegiate championship but were forced to bow to the 1921 edition of the Argonauts. The latter had such notables as "Shrimp" Cochrane, Harry Batstone, Lionel Conacher, "Cap" Fear, etc. The next year the Queen's machine came into action and held supremacy in the Intercollegiate for four years; 1926 saw the overthrow of the Tricolour, and Varsity won after two bitter battles with McGill and Queen's.

Since their entry into the O.R.F.U. Varsity has made a good fight each season but without any success crowning their attempts. Balmy Beach won the championship the last four seasons and were called to repeat this year. But the Orphans upset the dope, and to-morrow they should cop the pennant, qualifying to meet the Hamilton Tigers.

A play which does not occur frequently cropped up in the Sr. S.P.S.—Trinity Mulock Cup game at the Stadium yesterday. A Trinity half signalled for a fair catch and Trinity were given a free kick but without any great benefit, S.P.S. recovering the punt.

Students Given Special Seats for O.R.F.U. Final Saturday

While the game to-morrow is not a Varsity home game, the O.R.F.U. Executive have kindly reserved a middle section of the bleachers (Section Q) for holders of students' season tickets. By presenting coupon No. 7 at the usual entrance (south door of Arena) to-morrow afternoon and paying 50c the holder will be admitted to this section.

Meds Juniors Meet St. Mike's at Varsity Stadium To-day

To-day at Varsity Stadium, Junior Meds and St. Mike's meet at 3.30 p.m. to decide which team will enter the finals for the Mulock Cup. Both teams are evenly balanced and are in fine condition. There should be plenty of real action, and it is expected that a fairly large crowd will attend.

Mrs. Kirkwood, Dean of Women of University College, was the hostess at a delightful tea given in the Women's Union on Tuesday afternoon.

GREAT PEP SHOWN BY ORPHAN TEAM

Hope of Senior O.R.F.U. Championship Spurs Squad in Brisk Workout

LINE, BACKFIELD STRONG

With prospects of a senior O.R.F.U. championship glittering before their eyes, Jimmy Douglas' Orphans were out in full force at the Stadium yesterday evening. The men were on the field early and showed a tremendous amount of pep and vigour.

Yesterday's workout was confined to a brisk signal practice with the quarter working the team at top speed. Both Ruskell and Dwyer Wood were at the helm and they looked equally good. Saturday's starting backfield will likely consist of Jack Sinclair, Doug, MacFadyen, Art Snider and Alex Carrick. Although Charlie Baillie will not be in the game, the backfield should be as strong as ever. Doug, MacFadyen played a whale of a game Saturday and picked off the oval like Tris Speaker pulling down an easy fly to centre field.

The fact that the Orphan backfield have steady mitts is a great help, and with Jack Sinclair hooping the ball as he is doing at present, the group will be tough for any team. With the backfield work supported by a strong, hard hitting and fighting line and with a pair of tackling fools on the end, there is no reason why the Orphans won't give the best team in the game a real run for their money.

The game to-morrow starts at 2.15 and we're going to advise you right now not to miss it. It's going to be a good one and every Varsity fan and fanette should be right on the job. All right, let's go, Orphans.

VARSITY SENIOR HOCKEY SQUADS HOLD PRACTICE

Aspirants Given Chance to Show Their Wares as Coach Builds Up Team

With the C.R.U. playdowns now taking place, sport fans are beginning to turn towards hockey. Quite a number of railbirds turned out yesterday to watch Coach "Red" Porter put the Varsity senior hockey team aspirants through a fast practice, and they saw plenty. Coach Porter divided the men up into squads, giving every man a chance to show his wares. The pre-season form displayed points to a highly successful season, during which McGill will again be added to the heap of the vanquished.

The Varsity coach already has an excellent nucleus around which to build a powerful machine.

Coach Porter is working hard to round out a fighting team. Varsity is entered in the senior S.P.A. series, clashing with Argonauts on the 29th of this month.

S.P.S. SENIORS WIN HARD-FOUGHT BATTLE

Defeat Trinity in Semi-final and Enter Mulock Cup Finals Against Junior Winners

SCORED ON LOOSE PLAY

Senior School defeated Trinity 9 to 7 yesterday afternoon and thereby enter the finals for the Mulock Cup, playing the winner of the Junior Meds-St. Mike's game this afternoon.

The teams were evenly matched, but both teams exhibited a lot of loose football, and fumbles played an important part in both teams' scoring. Trinity: Flying wing, Clough; halves, Seagram, Stone, Jeffrey; quarter, Summerhayes; snap, S. Martin; insides, Yates, Hovey; middles, Phipps, O'Flynn; outsides, Purdue, Lonsborough; subs, Edwards, H. Martin, Sanders, Farwell, Kerr, Nicol, Welch, Carter.

a means of escape. As he paused before a tree near the wall someone thumped him on the back. Turning, he beheld a jolly looking fat man.

"Good morning, stout fella, Friar Tuck himself bids you welcome to our happy throng," quoth the stranger. And as he spoke a score of the inmates gathered around them. "We have here," continued the friar, "a goodly company of empresses, poets, professors, perpetual motion inventors, fraternity members and committee men. Step up, Marjorie, and greet our new playmate with a song."

So Marjorie began:—
I took the great basket of washing,
Freshened and made snow white
By sensible soaping and swashing,
And brought it forth into the light,
Lily-white were the sheets and the hose

And the pants and the napkins And how
The night shirts hung gleaming in rows,
As white as lice eggs on a sow!

And really they might have been more so:

But baby has swallowed the blueing,
And now his darling wee torso
Is badly in need of renewing.

Then into the yard came a goat,
Good heavens, just see what he's done,
Two night shirts have gone down his throat!
(So I've reached for grandfather's gun.)

Though I aimed at the animal's head,
I missed and I saw the shot pass

VICTORIA DOWNS TRINITY IN WATER POLO EVENT

In Decisive Game Goss Stars as Lone Point-getter for the Victors

In yesterday's Junior water polo game Victoria achieved a decisive victory over Trinity when they won 5-1. Captain Goss, of the winners, was the whole team, at least from a scoring standpoint. He was continually in the limelight, getting all five of his team's points.

Victoria: Capt. Glass, McLean, King, Robinson, Smith, Neal, Wyllie, Trinity: Capt. Balfour, Winyard, Beatty, McNutt, Chapple, Hunt, Cutt, Woodcock, Lund.

University College Seniors conceded the game to S.P.S. with the score 3-0.

M. AND P. SOCIETY HOLDS FINE MEETING

Miss Annetts and Professor Parkin Read Interesting Papers

MEIGHEN TO GIVE ADDRESS

At the M. and P. Society meeting yesterday two papers were delivered, one on "Atmosphere" by Miss M. Annetts, B.A., past president of the Society, and the other on "Aeronautics" by Professor J. H. Parkin.

Miss Annetts, delivering the preliminary paper, sketched the development in knowledge of the atmosphere. Beginning with the metaphysical knowledge of the early Greeks, research gradually became more and more scientific, as various instruments were developed for different purposes, such as those used in the measurement of temperature and investigation in the constituents of the atmosphere. Professor Parkin considered the subject of "Aeronautics" too large a field and limited himself to one phrase only, "Wind Tunnels."

Letters of Lovely Laura Louise Couldn't Resist Curate's Appeal

(By D. Kendall)

Nov. 16th.
Jean's Room.

Dear Betty:

How was I to know that the red-headed girl that Jimmy was vaunting round with was only his cousin? He seemed so affectionate to her. I must say that she doesn't look anything like the rest of the family. She is simply beautiful. Really she's awfully nice. I had tea at her apartment. It was so hot. The apartment not the tea, I mean.

Anyhow to-nights the night. I am going to the Masquerade for sure, and how—Oh Baby! But I'm not going with the man that I thought I was going with. I explained to two of them why I couldn't go, and they were very gentlemanly about it. I saw them from my window sympathizing with each other and shaking head because I couldn't go with them, but I really don't know why they cheered. I fully expected to go with the man in the desoto, but the phone rang again, and who do you think it was? It was the curate at the church I went to two Sundays ago. Only he isn't a curate, as they don't have curates in his church. He isn't even through till next year and he was only an assistant for the day. He's still at Varsity, only he's in the religious end of it. He's from the West and his name is Gideon David. BATTLING ORPHANS CONQUER SARNIA IN SUCCESSFUL STRUGGLE TO GAIN FIRST O.R.F.U. CHAMPIONSHIP

Sinclair's Booting Responsible for Every Point Scored by Blue and White

SCORE IS 6 TO 0

Every Man on Team Stars
But Sinclair, McFadyen and Ruddell Stand Out

(De C. H. R.)

Varsity 1 2 1 2-6
Sarnia 0 0 0 0-0

Varsity Orphans are now the Ontario Rugby Football Union champions for the first time since the University of Toronto has entered a team in the O.R.F.U. Saturday at Varsity Stadium the Orphans battled desperately on a greasy field to hold Sarnia scoreless. The superb playing of Sinclair and McFadyen on the backfield is one big reason why the Orphans won. With a heavy ball and a field like ice, these two boys kicked, caught and ran back kicks almost perfectly. Sinclair's booting was responsible for every point in the score. In every department the Varsity squad outplayed the Imperials with the exception perhaps of the line. The tackling of the Orphans was beautiful to watch. Sarnia was not given a chance to get away. To pick one man on the Varsity line as a star is but to discredit the work of the others. The whole team was good. Ruddell's generalship at quarter was responsible largely for the success. For Sarnia, Manore at quarter, Perry and McPhedran in the backfield, and Stirrett's plunging and tackling were outstanding. The Imperials made a valiant attempt to rally in the last half, but only twice did they get near enough to Varsity's line to kick, and both times the ball was run out by the Varsity halves. In the first few minutes of play, Jack Sinclair brought the fans to their feet by running back a kick from McPhedran 40 yards and dashing his way through Sarnia tacklers. Later McFadyen ran the ball back within kicking distance and Sinclair booted it to the dead- (Continued on page 3) whose running back of McPhedran's hoofs was of the first variety and whose clever and speedy work in combination with Sinclair in the passing game was a standout.

Jews A FANTASTIC WORSHIPFUL PEOPLE

Menorah Society Hears Brilliant Paper on Jewish Enlightenment

SPINOZA A SCEPTIC

"Consciousness of environment is a prime factor in enlightenment," was Mr. Sam Bochner's first remark yesterday afternoon in addressing the Menorah Discussion Group at the Sigma Alpha Mu Fraternity House on the "Effect of Enlightenment on Judaism."

They lived in their environment physically, but mentally they were miles away, a fantastic worshipful people. There were occasional figures, however, which by sheer merit did attract outside attention, and who at tempted some sort of integration of the mass. Spinoza of seventeenth century Spain, who at the age of fifteen expressed himself a sceptic, rejected Talmudic Judaism, and accepted the Bible as the work of man; Moses Mendelssohn in Germany, the "Darwin of the Renaissance of the Jew," who revolted against the rough jargon known as "Yiddish."

Later the reformers organized under Joseph Mendelssohn, eldest son of Moses, in the "Society of Friends," in order to "seek the truth, love the beautiful, desire the good, do the best."

To-day science has destroyed the dogma, but not the spirit of religion.

VARSITY GRADUATES OPINE DUTCH DATES ARE NOT DESIRABLE

President of Alumnae Says Dutch Dates Unknown at Varsity Years Ago

IT'S DONE IN PARIS

Some Former Varsity Co-eds
Would Give System a Working Chance

The Dutch Date discussion carried on by various correspondents to "The Varsity" recently has been submitted to the opinions of students who attended the university ten or twenty years ago.

All agreed that the long-established convention of the man handling the finances would be difficult to break. Nor did they think it the most desirable thing that it should be broken. Yet their feeling is that even if Dutch dates were introduced, the girl would not even then be the one to extend the invitation except under unusual circumstances.

Prof. Robins of Victoria says that while taking a course in Paris, he found that it was quite the custom that one's companion should contribute her share of the evening's expenses.

Miss Dorothy Ferrier, of 17, the first women's editor of "The Varsity," says: "Dutch dates would enable young people with small allowances to have more good times together, but would work out to the girls' advantage. Be as feminine as the modern world allows for men are still primitive in their reactions. A purely platonic friendship does not make the game difficult enough to make a man value it or find it interesting."

Mrs. W. M. Evans, graduate of '12 U.C., states that there were no Dutch dates during her college career nor does she entirely approve of such an innovation. "It is nice for men to learn at an early age to look after the financial end of things."

Mrs. H. S. Ringland, of '10 Vic., President of the Alumnae, says that (Continued on page 4)

'AIN'T NEVER SEEN LIKE IN TWENTY YEAR' EXCLAIMS DOOR-MAN

Grim Risk of Panic Averted
Narrowly When Students
Force Way Into Theatre

MANAGER NOT VINDICTIVE

Four Schoolmen Caught Severely Reprimanded by Police Head

The grim risk of the panic, so narrowly averted, was the one aspect stressed by the management of Shea's Hippodrome when telling "The Varsity" about the mob of students that forced its way into the theatre last Thursday night.

"We tried to tell them at the door," said Mr. Walter Graden, manager of the theatre. "When we couldn't stop them I caught hold of one man's coat and hung on and we dragged him in here and took his name. No, he wasn't hurt any, although his coat was badly torn, and I'd rather not give his name. We're not vindictive. We get a huge patronage from Varsity students and we want to see many more of them."

While waiting to meet Mr. Shea himself, "The Varsity" asked the head door-man if he had been on duty Thursday night. "Don't I know it!" he exploded. "I've been twenty years with Mr. Shea both here and in the old place on Victoria Street, and I ain't never seen the like of it before. Oh, yes, they've come in. Paid their way and then had a fight inside, so we've had to throw 'em out; but not like this, rushing right in wavin' red lanterns. And what's more, about twenty of them stayed right there without paying. Mixed with the crowd and we couldn't find 'em." When asked if the one captured had been hurt, he said, "No, but he did his best to hurt someone else. He was a first year Science man."

Mr. Shea was very thankful that no one had been injured. "Just lucky for them that nothing happened, so (Continued on page 4)

CAT-CALLS RESOUND, PANIC REIGNS AS ENGINEERS CRASH INTO SHEA'S

Red lanterns waved and cat-calls resounded as two hundred Engineers "crashed the gate" at Shea's Hippodrome Thursday night. The escapade was the sequel to their annual sophomores banquet held at the Carls-Rite Hotel. Evidently the banquet, which was attended by Dean C. H. Mitchell and Professor London, was a well ordered and somewhat quiet affair.

The students left the hotel and after removing most of the bulbs from the canopy over the front door, proceeded in what seems to have been an orderly parade along Front Street. On the way three lanterns were taken from an excavation in front of the Union Station and given to the leaders. The parade then continued north on Bay, then along King to Yonge, and thence back along Queen to the theatre. En route several portable signs were removed and left on the top of parked cars along the way, while by way of diversion an occasional trolley-pole was pulled off. Several times the parade zigzagged back and forth across the street, effectively blocking traffic.

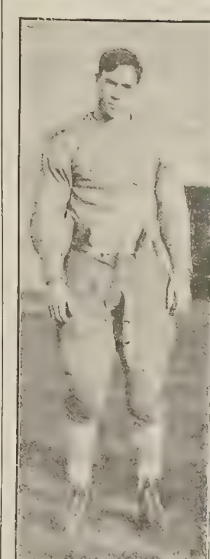

At the theatre the students say they wanted to pay their way in but the management refused to sell them tickets. Taking matters into their own hands the mob rushed the doors and brushing aside all opposition entered the theatre. Here they proceeded to march up and down the aisles waving lanterns, giving college yells and creating a general uproar while a vaudeville act was in progress. Panic reigned momentarily among the patrons on the floor of the theatre and many left hastily. It was some time before the bewildered theatre-goers in the balconies realized that it was merely a student prank.

Appeals on the part of the management failing to arouse any response from the students, an emergency call was sent in to police headquarters, and three police quickly arrived on the scene. Their presence had an undeniably sobering effect on the students. The police proceeded to arrest one of the marauders and they threatened to "look him up" if the students did not withdraw at once. Leaders placed the situation their comrade was in before the students, and the majority of them came out of the theatre at once, leaving behind their lanterns.

As soon as the excitement subsided somewhat the parade formed again and proceeded north. But they had had enough excitement for one night, and although police protection was secured at the Uptown Theatre, where a similar assault was feared, nothing out of the ordinary occurred. After college yells had been given in front of Wymwood and Annesley Hall, the parade broke up.

WOMEN EXECUTIVES FOND OF DIRECTING

Co-ed Leaders Find Executive Work Great Experience and Feel Sense of Power

SOME SEEK THE LIMELIGHT

Are women's executive positions hard and thankless, and if so, what inducement do they offer to the women who hold them? "Some like the limelight; some like the work," was the caustic comment of one co-ed. Many of the women executives whom "The Varsity" questioned frankly admitted liking both. "An executive job gives a pleasant sense of power," said one energetic senior. Another busy executive thought that women who accept such positions do so because they "like to direct things."

All seemed agreed that the executive job was hard work, but that there were compensations. "No one who has not held an executive position realizes how much work there is, and how much time it takes," said a fourth year Victoria woman, president of an important organization. "It is splendid experience, thought, and I like it." She considered that the women who undertake positions of an executive nature are usually those who enjoy the work and feel capable of carrying it through. "Those who have the executive temperament find the work itself sufficient reward," said a junior. "The willing horse gets the burden," added another, calling attention to the fact that certain women serve on several different executives.

The first year open meeting of the S.C.A. of University College was held in Argyle House on Thursday night. Following supper Dr. Marion Hilliard gave a talk on "Rambles in Europe."

Costumes Vary From Pajamas to Leopards

RECORD CROWD

Attire of Eve Most Original

Courtier and clown, sailor and sheik, crusader and cow-boy, pirate and Puritan, tripped the light fantastic on Friday night as another Hart House Masquerade danced its way into history. Hart House for a few brief hours was transformed into a veritable fairyland. Coloured lights and streamers of every hue gave to the building an unsubstantial fantastic air. The impression was strengthened by the kaleidoscopic variety of costumes worn. Five orchestras dispensed music to 2,200 pleasure-bent dancers in the big gymnasium, the main common room, the reading room, the lecture room and the music room. Weary couples recuperated in the library, the galleries surrounding the swimming pool and the upper gym.

From the time the first taxi load disembarked at the door 'till the last gay reveler quitted the building, Hart House presented a scene of unqualified pleasure and enjoyment. Golden and green and blue spotlights shed their transforming hues on the swirling couples in the big gym, and overhead a canopy of streamers added to the unreality of the scene. Despite the huge attendance, no casualties from overcrowding were reported, nor did the House Committee hear of any broken ribs sustained from undue pressure in the jam.

The Grand March was beheld by hundreds and participated in by some two score couples. The Judges, F. S. Haynes, the artist, and Henry Sprout, of Sprout and Bulph, made their decision not without difficulty. The prize for the most artistic lady's costume was awarded to Miss B. Breckenridge in an Xth century costume. Mr. Peter Millman, IV U.C., as a Japanese pilgrim was judged to be the most artistically attired gentleman, and the prize for the most original costume went to Miss Althea (Continued on page 4)

KNOX BURSAR DEAD WAS FINE CHURCHMAN

Death of Rev. James H. Borland is Great Shock to His Many Friends

A GRADUATE OF TORONTO

Knox College sustained a severe loss in the death last Friday night of its Bursar, the Rev. James H. Borland, M.A., who passed away at his home at 9 Dalton Road. An enthusiastic worker in the church, and a brilliant scholar, his loss is felt not only by the faculty and students of Knox College but by the whole Presbyterian church.

The deceased, who graduated from the University of Toronto and from Knox College, left the ministry in 1925 to become Bursar of the College. Of a sympathetic and understanding nature, the late Bursar was greatly esteemed by the students, who express keen regret at his loss.

The funeral will be held to-day at 2.30 p.m. from the Knox College Chapel. Rev. J. A. Mustard, Moderator of the Presbytery of Toronto, will be in charge of the service, assisted by other prominent ministers. Rev. J. B. Paulin will preach the funeral sermon.

GHOSTS DO EXIST SAYS TRINITY LIT.

Government is Upheld in Policy of Belief in Ghosts

PROFESSOR FAY SPEAKS

Ghosts do exist. The Trinity College Literary Institute satisfied itself on that point on Friday evening by voting up a motion declaring that "this house believes in ghosts," 18-13.

T. C. Crosswhite, leading the government, avowed his belief in a "subjective scientific ghost," though he declared that there might be no way to defend an "objective ghost."

D. D. Gunn opened up for the opposition and ridiculed ghosts as products of a disordered digestive system. Those who believed in them were the "maddest inhabitants of Bedlam."

During the rest of a vigorous and protracted debate discussion, interest centred around the words "objective," "subjective," "jokers," "ghosts," and "material." Professor Fay, an honorary member, attacked the motion on the ground that it was too wide.

THE CIVIL ENGINEERS

At various gatherings in our midst the gentlemen of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering are wont to seize upon the first opportune pause in the proceedings to proclaim the peculiar hardness of their makeup, in proof whereof they assert their immediate willingness and competence to demolish forty beers. In itself this is doubtless a lawful and laudable wish and the hyperbole with which it is expressed may be excused as characteristic of all great poetry. Such poetry is indeed a brightening influence against the dark and humdrum skein of our daily life and is indicative of a strong tradition sprung from the soil, which has survived the dread period of drouth. (As we all know, tradition of some sort is what this wretched continent is sadly in need.)

Thus far no one has opposed the said gentlemen in their proposal to demolish three and a quarter dozen of the foamy, but the first and second years of the faculty recently encountered opposition when they extended the scope of their destructive activities to include the peace and quiet of the downtown section. Inspired by a banquet designed to promote friendship between the first and second years, the traditional enemies arose after smoking the peace pipe among themselves and snatching up lanterns from the roads, marched upon a theatre in the manner of the Knitting Guild of Paris setting out on a goodwill mission to tell Marie Antoinette what the girls thought of her and the family. It took just three policemen to deal with three hundred of the reputedly hardy ones so that the trivial nature of the affair is manifest but certain reflections arising therefrom demand serious consideration.

In the first place it is important to realize that all students are known under the one name to the people outside. No matter from what faculty they come they are lumped together by public opinion as "students" and for what one does the other is blamed. If a body of students from a particular faculty chooses to act in a rowdy manner outside the university, the blame is attached to the whole undergraduate body. It does not take one a long time to recognize the distinct prejudice against us in the minds of many in the business world who were prevented by lack of money from attending university. These never fail to comment bitterly upon the untoward actions of those who are enjoying more social advantages than they were permitted in their youth.

The matter of penal action has been undetermined as yet. The city police have turned over their information to the university police and will leave the handling of the case to them. But this courtesy on the part of the downtown authorities is not approved by all citizens. It is significant to note in an evening newspaper an editorial demanding that the disturbers be tried in a downtown police court. The Students' Court, however, will pass on the matter if the police here care to lay a complaint.

It would not only be useless but hypocritical as well to preach at the students concerned here. This sort of thing has happened before and will likely happen again. Why do so many students go outside for their amusements when they have so many cultural advantages within the institution? The plain fact of the matter is that there is too great a change from the high school to the university to be managed without complications by the young student. The transition from the little red school to Hart House is too abrupt. He is unwilling to accept the quiet pleasures of academic life in place of the gaudier ones of the city. Perhaps there should be an introductory period for newcomers, particularly of the hardy variety, when they would be under the tuition of a faculty of professional bouncers who would wield plectrivers to impress upon their charges the tenets of sweetness and light.

Correspondents are reminded that all letters must be accompanied by signatures, and they are requested to limit themselves to approximately 300 words.

Editor, "The Varsity"

Dear Sir:

At the Masquerade Ball held in Hart House last Friday five coats of arms of Canadian universities, attached to yellow silk banners which formed part of the decorative scheme in the Big Gymnasium, were removed. These arms were specially designed by Mr. Arthur Lismer for the Centenary celebrations last year and are a highly valued possession of the University. They were kindly lent by the Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds of the University to the House Committee of Hart House for

Schubert Centenary

"Many and beautiful as are the things which Time brings forth it will be long ere it produces another Schubert," and to-day we commemorate the centenary of his death. Schubert has always been one of the most attractive figures in musical history to many of us, particularly because of his astounding wealth of songs which he has bequeathed to the world.

Naturally enough the Conservatory of Music is arranging a due celebration of this day and it is so appropriate that an evening of Schubert's music should be given to-night. It is most interesting to note that members of the Faculty form an ensemble which is to render a first performance here of the great octet for five stringed instruments, clarinet, bassoon and horn. But for the rarity of occasions when such a combination of solo instruments can be assembled this work might have proved as popular as the Unfinished Symphony itself. In addition to the performance of the Octet the programme will include a group of songs rendered by Mr. Poul Bai, a group of part songs for women's voices and the trio in B flat given by the Conservatory Trio.

The occasion should prove not only a delightful evening for those who attend but a fitting tribute to the memory of one to whom the world owes far more than it can ever hope to pay.

J.J.K.

Reviewing the week-end, we point with pride to what happened to Sarnia on Saturday. Also, now that the 'carred ankles of Friday have healed somewhat, we suggest three cheers for the big dress-up party.

C-C

How many young men suddenly got the idea that the pants from their Tuxedo (dinner jacket is the correct word, we hear, but how can one have pants on a jacket merely?) combined with a sport shirt and a red ex-flannel-undershirt sash would be original?

C-C

There should be a committee appointed to deal with people who go around shooting off pistols and blowing whistles at masquerades.

C-C

And the roudyway system is not what it should be. Actualists might figure what the chances are of meeting one out of 100 couples at a given place.

C-C

At the next masquerade (providing a ticket can be wangled) we shall wear steel corsets, spurs, and buckles on a belt with spikes on it much like the collars one sees on bull-dogs. And then let anybody bump!

C-C

Contributors are stepping along nobly. We point with pride to the Wreckance of Wrighteous Wronald by Gaspard McGuffey, which will appear regularly from now on mid-week.

What are we going to eat, twenty-five or thirty-five? "We've had lots of rain this year, haven't we, grandpa?" ventured little Looie, age three. "It's not in year like this we need rain," said grandpa, stalling little Looie in the back, "but in the dry ones." And what degree will you have, Mr. Chamberlain?

Arthritis.

Sunday Evening Concert

Mr. Victor Wittgenstein of New York was the artist at last evening's concert and we believe that this is the first time in the history of the concert that an artist has come from any distance to perform at Hart House. Mr. Wittgenstein's programme which was selected from a lengthy list which appeared in print, was amazing in its versatility. The first group was devoted entirely to Brahms and included two rhapsodies, that in G minor being a musical rendering of Goethe's Erl King. The artist's superb technical skill served him well in bringing every ounce of tone possible from his instrument, and he gave to Brahms that virility and power which is so characteristic of him. The seventeenth century group pleased us as well as any, but Mr. Wittgenstein seemed at home in any period. The Scriabin Sonata was not so ultra modern as we had expected, but we are not sure that the short explanation of its form given by the pianist served to enlighten us much on that point. One cannot absorb these things always at first hearing. A group of dances by Casella were novel and served as a delightful contrast to the brilliant Campanella of Liszt which followed. The audience received this, the final number, with such enthusiasm that Mr. Wittgenstein returned to close his admirable programme with a Toccata of Scarlatti.

We might remark that it is becoming increasingly annoying to find people arriving for these nine o'clock concerts as late as twenty minutes past the hour. Surely these late comers must realize it is disturbing to the assembled audience and more particularly to the artist to have programmes delayed while they make their noisy way to their places.

Athletic At-Home

The Annual Athletic At-Home will be held on Friday, December 7th. Those desiring tickets will please sign the list at the Athletic Office, Hart House. Last year the applications far exceeded the number of tickets available, and as this is the outstanding social event of the season it is advisable to sign the list as soon as possible.

SWIMMING ARTISTS WILL SOON PERFORM

S.P.S. Due to Offer U.C. Important Competition in Inter-faculty Swimming Meet

MEDS SHOULD WIN DIVING

The coming Interfaculty Swimming Meet is arousing considerable interest among the swimmers this year. Owing to graduation, last year's team has been badly disorganized, and only three or four Intercollegiate swimmers are at Varsity this year.

Johnny Goss will probably be the outstanding figure in this year's meet unless a newcomer upsets the dope. S.P.S. will make a strong bid for the Fitzgerald Cup this year with such swimmers as Goss, Nimmo, Pardon and Little.

U.C. has managed to walk off with the trophy for the last two or three years, but the outlook is not as brilliant as formerly with the loss of several of their foremost swimmers. Bertram, Intercollegiate breast stroke champion, has left for parts unknown. Leo Latchford believes he can develop a winning team, however, and has Lloyd Boddy of last year's Intercollegiate team to help him along. Other promising U.C. men are Poyntz, Graham, Lash and Seecombe.

The other faculties are practically minus quantities but Dents may spring a surprise as Eddie Sinclair and Tommy Marsh are both Intercollegiate swimmers.

Meds are picked to win one event, the diving, and will be represented by Jack Gundy and Don Gunn.

Members of "The Varsity" staff met in the Music Room in Wymilwood on Friday afternoon. Tea was served and after the discussion of business, a talk by N. A. Benson, M.A., former Dramatic Editor of "The Varsity," was much enjoyed.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Last Monday's win over the Beavers was not a flash in the pan. The Orphans demonstrated to the "know alls" that their defeat of the Dominion champions was their regular football. They outplayed the Sarnia twelve last Saturday in masterly fashion. There was no doubt about it. The Jimmie Douglas clan was the better team throughout, although the game was in doubt until the last moments of the battle.

The catching and running back of hoofs by both Sinclair and MacFadyen were the finest shown at the stadium in a long time. Although the footing was treacherous, there was not a single fumble, and the way they eluded the Imperials' ends was a treat for anyone afflicted with sore eyes.

The Blue line of McCollough, Jerry Wood, Murray Scott, Galloway and Bill Adams not only stopped the Sarnia plungers in their tracks but also managed to get down under Sinclair's kicks and do some most effective tackling. It seems strange that a line that is a very tight one in poundage should be able to hold a much heavier one, but to those who know the Orphan line it is nothing very unusual. They get the plunges before they really are going and their fight makes up for the lack of poundage.

The outsides, Knowles and Cartwright, were leaving their feet with rare abandon, and it was very seldom that they missed their man. Added to their work Alex Carrick, Art Snider and Charlie Ruddell stopped anything and everything that happened to pass the line in front of them, while they managed to get down on the kicks in a fashion that should give even the favoured Tigers a scare.

The fight of the Orphans was well demonstrated by Cartwright and Snider, who were barely able to stand up and almost out, yet they bung themselves at the opposing backfields with all they had left in their bodies.

line for the first point. Both teams played a great game. The work of the Varsity tacklers held the Imperials down for the rest of the quarter. The score at the end of the first quarter: Varsity 1, Sarnia 0.

Sinclair scored in the second quarter by kicking from Sarnia's 35 yard line to Beauchamp, who was downed for a rouge. Sinclair again kicked to Beauchamp, who slipped and fell to give Varsity another point. Snider and Carrick were hurt in this quarter, to be replaced by Furber and Cartwright. Sinclair's kick was blocked, and Sarnia obtained the ball on their 10 yard line. Half time score: Varsity 3, Sarnia 0.

Sarnia rallied in the third quarter when on a pass from Perry, Monroe ran the ball out for 40 yards. Sinclair ran McPhedran's kick back for 30 yards. McFadyen on a pass from Sinclair ran the ball back 25 yards. Then Sinclair punted to Karn for a point. Sarnia gained yards twice by line plunging only to lose it by a fumble on an end run. Score at end of third quarter: Varsity 4, Sarnia 0.

Knowing that it needed only a touchdown to win, Sarnia started off with a bang, with Varsity playing a fine defensive game. With ten minutes to go, Sarnia kicked over the Orphans' line to McFadyen, who ran it out 10 yards. Varsity forced the play to the Sarnia end and Knowles grabbed a Sarnia inside kick. Sinclair booted again to the deadline. Sarnia tried another inside with two minutes to go, but a Varsity man got the ball and Sinclair punted to Perry for the final point.

Final score: Varsity 6, Sarnia 0. Varsity, Flying wing, Carrick; halves, Snider, McFadyen; quarter, Ruddell; snap, McCulloch; insides, Galloway, J. Wood; middles, Adams, Scott; outsides, Cartwright, Knowles; subs, Hatton, Johnston, Spencer, D. Woods, Burke, Stringer, Furber, McMillan, Kernohan.

SAINTS DEFEAT MEDS ENTER MULOCK FINAL

St. Michael's Come Up From Behind to Win Difficult Game from Physicians

A CLOSE GAME

When St. Michael's defeated Junior Medicals 10 to 1 at the stadium on Friday afternoon they won the right to meet Senior S.P.S. in the Mulock Cup final. It was a much closer game than the score indicates, Meds leading at half-time by 1 to 0. Conditions were bad, due to a muddy field and heavy fog.

In the first quarter Meds led, scoring when Murby kicked to Regan for the first point. Meds slowed down in the second quarter. The Saints came ahead in the third quarter when Steves blocked a Meds kick. Meds rallied, but although they were frequently on the Saints' line they could not break through.

In the last moments Meds blocked one of Regan's kicks and got the ball, only to let it slip behind their own line, where the Saints piled upon it for the final score of the game.

St. Michael's: Flying wing, Flick; halves, Sheehy, Frado, Regan; quarter, Shooks; snap, Beathner; insides, Killoran, Hillborn; middles, Riley, Warren; outsides, Regan, Steves; subs, Radley, Parboski, Patterson.

Junior Medicals: Flying wing, Steele; halves, Graham, Nott, Murby; quarter, Johnston; snap, Tucker; insides, Vaughan, Thompson; middles, Scott, Marrig; outsides, Margins, MacCallum; subs, Noble, Jackson, Denton, Fox.

No Parking Allowed Say Residence Men

The men in the University Residences object to cars parking on the grassy sward fronting on Devonshire Place. At least so it would appear after the game on Saturday afternoon. The drivers of three cars who had unfortunately chosen this spot as a parking ground were subjected to rough treatment before they were allowed to escape. Without about a dozen enraged students on each car, the occupants were bounced up and down with even greater vigour than if they had been journeying over the famous "rocky road to Dublin." Engines roared in protest, but no car was allowed to escape until in the opinion of the students justice had been fully meted out.

Student Court Will Not Take Action Until Formal Charge is Laid

University police are at work on a statement concerning the S.P.S. escapade at Shea's Hippodrome Thursday night. This will be placed in the hands of "The Varsity" to-day. Until this report is ready they are not prepared to give any information about the affair.

Police of Dundas Street downtown station, which sent men over to the theatre at the time, report that they have turned all information over to the University police, and refuse to make any independent statement.

"The Student Court will not take any action until a formal charge is laid, and I believe such has not been done so far." This was the statement of J. D. Wright, President of the Court and also of the Engineering Society, regarding the theatre raid which took place at Shea's after the S.P.S. soph-frosh banquet.

"As regards the Engineering Society," he continued, "we have not had an opportunity of reaching a decision on the subject."

G. A. MacGillivray, President of the Students' Administrative Council, said that nothing was being done at present in regard to the matter. "The management at Shea's," he said, "have been very decent about the whole affair, and have decided to let the matter drop with only warning. The Engineering Society is taking the matter up, and until a complaint is laid no action will be taken."

JUNIOR HOCKEY PRACTICE

There will be a practice at the Varsity Arena to-day (Monday) at 12.15 sharp for all candidates for the team who have signed cards etc. The following: Bell, Brant, Evans, Carter, Hetherington, Hunnsvett, Hynes, Inch, Laing, Lash, McCartney, Smith, Smily, Swan, Taylor, Walkom.

OPINE DUTCH DATES ARE NOT DESIRABLE

there was no suggestion of Dutch dates while she attended college. In fact, girls themselves did not go out together but depended on a masculine escort. Theoretically the idea of a Dutch treat is good, and would do much to further the comradeship which has grown up between the sexes.

Miss G. Aikens, graduate of '17 Vic., approves of the idea. "Women are making as much money as men to-day, and should share the expense. If college girls saved the money that goes for chocolate bars and matinees, they could easily share Dutch dates, and more boys could afford good times."

That the time spent by students in writing essays would be more profitably spent at the bridge table, is the contention of the Cataragui Literary Advisers, Inc., in the Queen's Journal. They claim that the "arduous and exacting task" of essay writing wastes at least four hours every week. For a small deposit of $5, they offer to write essays for a student for one term.

No Scalping For Tickets to be Found At Great Indian War Dance

(A. H. Arell)

And now the moon and the stars decided that on November 10 the great Indian War Dance should be held. They all with one accord desired to go or rather they cared not so much about going as to say they had been there. So everyone that had a man looked after him and everyone that hadn't a man went after him. The fish overflew the net and the executive had to allot the tickets by lot (friends). It was the heyday of the executives, they were the most popular men on the campus, and many were the sisters that were taken out. And again since the tickets were to be drawn and since the artist gets the best results who works hardest on his subject (we having democratic forms of government the Presidents are subjects) how generously were the notes copied and how solicitously was his health sought after. Yet all good things must come to an end and finally the prizes had to be awarded. We had heard the old adage, "Every woman to her own taste," as the Irish woman said when she kissed the muli. And our taste failed to follow in that direction so we drew blanks until our fourth year when we were given a complimentary as it were.

But it seems that all those who got tickets didn't want to go, while in other cases those who didn't get tickets, they being exceedingly clever, they did want to go. Now the question was how was it to be certain that those who wanted to go most should go. According to Adam Smith (Apologies to G.O.M.-W we are after a scholarship) this is the function of money. But Tut! Tut! who could mention such a thing in these ascetic grounds. Of course there was no scalping. Why we even heard of one senior who procured a ticket for one of those handsome Frosh. But it seems he couldn't get a girl. (All those credulous souls who believe in itations have ceased please note carefully.) Well, the Senior would be most pleased to arrange that for him. Oh! no! it wasn't a blind date, just how legged, we couldn't blame them (either for sagging under their heavy responsibilities. They cut quite a swath at the party, you couldn't get around that. But we rather congratulated the Frosh when he said as he was bandaging up his feet that night, that he was now a firm believer in Adam Smith and was going to transfer to C and F.

Then there was the manager who forgot to ask about his resident health and didn't get a ticket. One of the Seniors didn't dance however, so he made the team for sure. But of course there was no scalping or a sordid question of lucre.

GAY ATMOSPHERE MARKS MASQUERADE

Banfield, III U.C., as Eve.

The costumes, varying from pyjamas to leopard skins as the theme of simplicity to the elaborate dress which typified the XVIIIth century, made a colourful pageant. Sheiks and baller dancers mingled with Apaches and cow-boys; pirates sat at the feet of gypsies; convicts and juveniles made common cause; and the odd maharajah gave a dash of royalty to the array. Spaniard, Mexican, Chinese and Japanese were among the nationalities.

The programme of twenty dances was run on strict schedule. The most serious mishaps were failure to arrive at stipulated rendezvous and the hapless minority who had to go back for their tickets. Supper was one of the most popular features of the evening and was attended by practically all. Punch was dispensed to the thirsty at strategic points.

The patronesses were: Lady Falconer, Mrs. C. D. Howe, Mrs. E. C. MacMillan, Mrs. W. Pakenham, Mrs. Vincent Massey. Representatives were present from the University of Montreal, McMaster University, McGill, Osgoode Hall and other educational institutions.

BETTER TO PUFF IN HOUSE THAN ALLEY

Sorority Presidents Advocate Smoking Rooms for Co-eds

A PERSONAL MATTER

Special to "The Varsity"

Tucson, Ariz.—The old supposition that a co-ed should smoke only in the Varsity Inn or some other sympathetic place was given a severe jolt when sorority presidents expressed approval of the A.W.S. recommendation to allow girls' halls and houses to establish smoking rooms.

Nationals of several Arizona chapters have formed on the idea of sorority house smoking rooms, but the presidents of Arizona chapters advised that since girls must use the weed, it is better to puff away in the house than out in the alley.

The plan has its drawbacks, in the opinion of Ione Sparks, president of the panhellenic association, although it is entirely a matter of personal opinion with the girls.

"I think it is a personal matter with the girls," she said. "It is the own affair of any girl, whether she smokes or not. I'd rather see the girls have a smoking room in their own house than have them go down the cellar, sit in cars or go out in the alley to smoke."

"There is the danger," she commented, "that smoking rooms might encourage girls not addicted to the habit to take up smoking just to be sociable."

Helen Neel, president of the A.W.S. and president of the Chi Omega, supported the smoking room proposal on the grounds that home is the most appropriate place to smoke.

"I feel that if the girls are going to smoke, it is far better that they be allowed to do so in one room of their own home than go to public places," she said.

"I think it is a very good idea to have smoking rooms as girls will smoke," Marjorie Slough, Alpha Phi president, said. She also believed it better to smoke at home than elsewhere.

Marjorie Klee, Delta Gamma president, thought smoking in the house was much nicer than puffing away out on the back steps.

The idea was agreeable to Bonnie Wade, Gamma Phi Beta president.

Mr. Shea could not understand the foolhardiness of the students. "They must know how to read or they wouldn't be at University, and if they can read they know what a panic is." Explaining why there was not a panic he said: "It is just the class of people we get here and the fact that luckily the lights went up just as the mob rushed in and also the police were here inside of three minutes." As to what action would be taken, "It's up to the University authorities. The students must be made to understand that it's not safe."

Restricted As Are Women's Debates

"Without doubt women should develop some athletic ability while at college, but only a few show the slightest inclination to do so. I have never attended any of the women's athletic activities, and do not think that I ever will." So declared A. S. Bray, 371 Forestry, when asked by "The Varsity" whether he thought men were interested in women's sport. With few exceptions interest in the athletic activities of the women of the University seems to be lacking on the part of the male undergraduate body.

In explanation of this lack of interest some men considered girls' sport to be too slow.

George Laughlin, I Arts: "Girls' basketball is too slow to attract spectators."

Several men were of the opinion that only the relative lack of publicity given women's sport prevented a great increase in its publicity. G. E. Stafford, Dents II, declared: "How could one be interested in women's sports in a faculty with two co-eds, and yet women's sports go unfetured around the campus?"

K. Irwin, I U.C., stated: "Women's sports, I think, would be just as popular as men's, perhaps more so, if given the same publicity. I had the impression that ladies' sports, like their debates, were exclusively for their sex." Clarence Parker, S.P.S. 279, agreed: "I am interested in ladies' sports, yet must admit a laxity in attending their events. The rush of other duties and the wider publicity given to other activities are perhaps my reasons for non-attendance."

Some few openly stated that they did not care for women's sport, so said no one to it. Among these, W. S. Noyes, 371 U.C., said: "Personally, I am not particularly interested in girls' sports and wouldn't have the time to be a devotee if I were." J. D. Macdonald, 371, said: "I suppose women's sports are very good. I never take any interest in them myself, as I prefer to see men play." While W. R. Howard, 370, said: "I can devote only a limited amount of time to athletics. I find men's sports more interesting."

Smith College Freshmen Bible Contains Many Warnings

A few of the helpful hints included in the "Freshman Bible," issued at Smith College, Northampton, Mass., are:

Smith is a college, not a country club.

Remember you have chosen Smith as a place to come to, not a place to go away from.

Communism has never been successfully worked out. Wear your own clothes and let others wear theirs.

Don't cut classes or chapel or friends.

Answer your parents' inquiries about your life at Smith. The President hasn't time to fill out questionnaires. Rumor is the Patron Saint of Northampton; read the bulletin board for facts.

Try out for things and show your ability. We aren't clairvoyant.

This is a place to make many friends, so don't play with one girl exclusively. There are 2,000 others at college.

TWO VIC. 370 STUDENTS WEDDED SATURDAY

Miss Dorothy Williams, Toronto Becomes Bride of
N. D. H. Evans

The first wedding in Victoria class 370 took place in Bloor St. United Church on Saturday afternoon when Miss Dorothy Williams of Toronto, and late of Weirton, West Virginia, became the bride of Mr. Nestor D. H. Evans of 370 Victoria College. Rev. Dr. Pidgeon performed the ceremony. Mr. Walter H. Billbrough of 370 Trinity College was best man, and Mr. James R. Bright of 370 Victoria and Mr. George L. Ellis of 370 Trinity were the ushers.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, which was attended by the many friends of the youthful bride and groom.

Freshman Retracts Petting Statement

WAVES OF MISCONDUCT

Special to "The Varsity"
U. of Washington, Seattle.—Harry Rehnberg, University freshman, who at an all-organization meeting took issue with President M. Lyle Spencer on the question of petting, retracted his statements with the explanation that "I didn't really mean that. I got agog and didn't know when to stop." This was revealed by the president after an interview with the freshman.

"I wish someone had made me sit down after I had expressed my convictions on law enforcement," Rehnberg asserted. In his opening remarks at the meeting of societies and fraternities called by the president, the freshman blamed drinking on the parents of university students for their own laxity in observing the prohibition laws. Doctor Spencer heartily sanctioned this view.

"One of the greatest faults is with the men and women fraternities and societies allow to live outside the chapter house," the president pointed out.

"Many affiliated members are from wealthy families, where the use of liquor is sanctioned and more prevalent than in other types of households," he said.

When asked if he thought the moral problems on the campus were becoming less alarming in recent years, he declared that misconduct at the university seemed to come in waves.

"After the war there was a tremendous increase in the problem. Then it receded. Here on the campus we noted another increase around commencement time last spring. It has been receding again, and we want to hit it in the head before it assumes an upward trend."

One fraternity passed a resolution supporting the president and left it on his doorstep. Others are sending letters of support. Downtown business men have offered Doctor Spencer their fullest co-operation, and phone calls came into his office commending his move.

ANTI-SEMITIC RIOTS BREAK OUT IN VIENNA

Special to "The Varsity"
Vienna, Nov. 16.—Nationalist students in Budapest schools and the Budapest University rose in a body and expelled all Jewish students, on a pre-arranged plan. The Jews, greatly outnumbered, fled to the central courts, where they were threatened with stoning if they ventured to enter classes. This is the most serious outbreak of anti-Semitic rioting which has yet occurred.

GUN SQUADS QUELL GAY THEATRE NIGHT

Minnesota Engineers Crash
Two Ballrooms and Riot
Squads Rushed

FOUR BLACKJACK VICTIMS

Special to "The Varsity"
Minneapolis, Minn.—Two gun squads and one riot squad were needed to quell the activities of 700 University of Minnesota engineers celebrating their annual Gayety theatre party. Four engineers were arrested by the police but were released later. Four others were "banned" by blackjacks wielded by Minneapolis guardians of the law.

Snake dancing down the streets after the show, the mob tied up all traffic on Nicollet avenue from Washington to Ninth Street. Police attempted to break up the procession but were unsuccessful. A downtown ballroom was the first halting place of the revelers, where they attempted to break in but were repulsed by the efforts of the cops. It was at this time that the four engineers were the victims of blackjacks.

Failing to get in here, the crowd proceeded on to another ballroom, where they again attempted to gain entrance. By this time a call had been put in for aid and two gun squads and a riot squad were rushed to the scene.

A parade around the dance floor to the tune of "The Rouser," which was struck up by the orchestra, interspersed by numerous yells for the Minnesota engineers, constituted their activities there.

KNIGHT HAWKS' CLUB ROUSING INITIATION

University Settlement Boys' Club Ceremonies Show Great Activity

SPORTS PLAY ACTIVE PART

"Mine golly, how do you stand so many noises all the time?" was the exclamation of one of the University Settlement visitors during the Knight Hawks' Initiation, a club composed of boys from seventeen to twenty-four. What with blindfolded initiates swallowing raw oysters, rolling peanuts with toothpicks down Dundas, and setting up momentary bomb blacking establishments on the corner of Queen and Yonge, the Settlement as usual was the scene of great activity.

Sports play a very active part in the Settlement programme. Having proven the need of competitive sport for the younger as well as the older boy, the aim has been to produce a league whereby every boy learns the game and every boy has an opportunity for team work. Under the Inter-Settlement Athletic Union, which governs sports within all Toronto settlements, the University Settlement last year entered six baseball teams, two connected with the Toronto Amateur Baseball Association, and several hockey teams, one of which this year will enter the Toronto Hockey League.

Basketball is being coached by Vic men in the Vic gym. Other students have undertaken to coach hockey and boxing. The girls up to date have organized only in basketball.

The purpose of Settlement sports has been to establish a true conception of what amateur means. During the year house tournaments are held in ping pong, checkers, boxing and billiards. In the spring the Inter-Settlement tournament takes place.

Prominent Conservatives both from Ontario and the West will lead the discussion at the MacDonald-Cartier Club meeting to-night in the Sketch Room in Hart House.

The Hon. W. Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests, will be the principal speaker. Others who will also take part in the discussion are Eric Willis, Winnipeg, president Young Men's Dominion Conservative Association, and J. I. MacNicol. A number of those attending the provincial convention of the Liberal Conservative party will be present.

Subjects to be discussed include Immigration, and the Conservative attitude towards Western Canada. It is understood that these topics will be considered with particular reference to an expected 1929 Dominion election.

HART HOUSE SYSTEM AS DEBATES MODEL

St. Michael's Areopagus Decides to Change to Parliamentary Method

DISCUSSION PROVOKED

That the parliamentary system of public speaking is the best method to pursue in developing latent oratorical ability in students was the conclusion reached by members of St. Michael's College Areopagus Society at their meeting last night, when it was decided to change the existing policy of the club, and to model its meetings after the system now used in Hart House debates. A very heated discussion followed the motion presented to the organization by Mr. Kendrick and championed by Messrs. McCann and McAndrew, which would necessitate a discontinuance of the existing procedures of the organization. The opposition, led by Messrs. Moynan, Shannon and Langan, were, however, mollified and the new policy will go into effect at the next regular meeting.

Rev. Father LaBel acted as critic for the meeting, at which the following members spoke: Mr. Collins on "The Religious Aspect of the Noble Expedition"; Mr. Weiler, "How to Avoid Visionary Plans and Social Reform"; Mr. Dunbar, "War Debt Cancellation"; and Mr. Hilborn, "Benefits of a University Education." The extemporaneous speakers were Messrs. Kendrick, McCann and Sheppard.

The police report that no further complaints of offenses of this have been made.

Vice-President of Bell Co.
Speaks to Engineering
Society

From the time Graham Bell came from England an unknown young man until he had become world famous as the inventor of the telephone, the life of the founder of the Bell Telephone Company was traced yesterday afternoon before three hundred members of the Engineering Society by the vice-president of the Bell Company.

The speaker was himself a man who had grown up with the company, having joined the staff when there were only three men working on the whole Toronto division. Contrasting conditions of the days of fifty years ago with the present tremendous industry that has grown up around the service, he showed the important place the telephone had come to occupy in the organization of modern society.

The speaker said that South Africa and Australia have, in their dry summer, a great natural advantage over Canada in wheat growing. He was of the opinion that when modern methods of handling are introduced there, that these countries may surpass our own in this field. The lecture was illustrated by many beautiful photographs of native and foreign wild flowers. DR. STANLEY JONES TO SPEAK IN TORONTO

World-famous Author Has Contributed to India's Christianity

Students of the University of Toronto are to have the opportunity of seeing and hearing Dr. Stanley Jones, the world-famous author of "Christ of the Indian Road" and "Christ at the Round Table."

No name has been more frequently spoken of in Christian circles during the last two or three years than that of Stanley Jones. His contribution to the progress of Christianity in India has been an amazing one, and no man speaks with greater authority on Christian missions than he does. He will attract thousands wherever he goes, and Toronto is fortunate in being able to have him if only for two or three hours. He will address a special meeting of students on Friday, November 30th, in Convocation Hall at 5 o'clock. Admission will be by ticket, and these will be given out during the next ten days. As accommodation is limited, students are asked please not to pass any tickets on to outsiders. The meeting will be strictly for students and members of the faculty.

ESTEEMED BURSAR OF KNOX COLLEGE BURIED YESTERDAY

STUDENTS MOURN LOSS

Late Rev. Borland Was Formerly Minister and Came to Knox as Bursar in 1925

A large number of the most outstanding members of the Presbyterian ministry, and many students, as well as other friends and relatives of the deceased, gathered yesterday afternoon at two-thirty in Knox College Chapel to pay their last respects to the late Rev. James H. Borland, bursar of Knox College. The service was in charge of the Rev. J. B. Paulin, assisted by Rev. W. H. Andrews. Dr. Eakin, Principal of Knox College, as a very close friend of the family, briefly reviewed the life of the late Bursar, and spoke of the esteem in which he was everywhere held. Rev. Mr. Borland was a minister in the Presbyterian Church until 1925, when he became Bursar of Knox College. Since then he has become the friend of many students of Knox College, and especially of the theological students, who will greatly miss him. Mr. Borland was himself a great scholar, and to some extent a poet. He was rather shy and retiring, but had a great capacity for making friends. Dr. Eakin extended his sympathy especially to the bereaved widow and daughter, and to all those who had lost in Rev. Mr. Borland a valued friend.

The pall-bearers at the service were Rev. J. S. Mustard, W. F. McConnell, J. W. MacNamara, Dr. McIntyre, F. C. Doran and Mr. Lawrence.

RESIDENCE MOVEMENT TO OPPOSE GROUPS

Residence and Union Campaign for Women Begun in 1917

INTEREST NOW REVIVED

"It was to combat the growing tendency of those in residence to form a group as opposed to those out of residence that the movement for Combined Residence and Union for the women of University began," said Mrs. Henderson, ex-chairman of Buildings Committee, when questioned as to the proposed new University College Women's Residence.

Mrs. Henderson sketched the history of the committee, which was organized in 1917 by a few graduate members of the Union. In 1918 the work of this committee became part of the task of the U.C. Alumnae Association. As a result of a financial campaign begun in 1920 the sum of $30,000 had been realized, to which the undergraduates had added several thousand dollars.

The result of this activity was quite unexpected according to Mrs. Henderson. The Board of Governors offered a union at 79 St. George St. Meanwhile, Hutton Building Committee found the ground cut from under its feet. It therefore disbanded and turned the Fund over to the Alumnae Association.

Of late, owing to the sale of Queen's Hall, interest in the new Residence has revived and alumnae and undergraduates are combining in order to collect funds which will substantiate their dream.

DOES SHE SMOKE?

All eyes—the feminine ones at any rate—are just now directed towards possible new residences. For U.C. women a new residence is a certainty, for Victoria co-eds it is a probability, and for women of the other colleges, though they may not be in dire need of new homes for themselves, there is always the subject of general interest—that of a Women's Building.

Very little information seems to be available about the plans of these proposed new buildings, but one understands that the residences are to be provided with "standard equipment," which in the University of Toronto means bed-rooms, bath-rooms, common-rooms, reception-rooms, dining-rooms, kitchens, laundries and store-rooms, and that the Women's Building will contain gymnasias, a swimming pool, locker rooms, and perhaps—common rooms, an auditorium and various offices. These lists of requirements are very good,—so far as they go, but it seems to us that they are not quite extensive enough. In the proposals for a residence for the women of one college or for those of the whole University there is no mention of a smoking-room.

One realizes of course that a University must maintain tradition, and the traditional view has always been that smoking was not (to say the least) a ladylike accomplishment. In fact a woman who smoked was held up as an example of everything that was bad. "If she'll smoke, she'll do worse," was the critical judgment. But the time has come for that opinion to pass with other outworn theories into the realm of forgotten things. That women do smoke is a fact which is recognized everywhere, and that they can be "ladylike" and still smoke is also recognized except by those who persistently cling to old-fashioned prejudices.

The University in its present attitude is associating itself with many individuals who condemn smoking among women. It denies them the right to smoke in their rooms, it refuses to provide smoking-rooms for them, and it is filled with indignation when they smoke in places that are not quite so respectable as might have been desired.

What then is to be done? The incontrovertible facts remain, that women do smoke and that they will continue to do so, either with or without the sanction of the authorities. The problem has been solved in several American universities,—one of them a women's college with much stricter regulations than we have here,—in the partly willing, partly resigned attitude of the parents who determine to encourage their children to dance at home, "for if we don't let them dance at home goodness knows where they'll go." These colleges have provided smoking rooms for their students and have thereby retained the confidence of the women.

The objection is often raised that women do not smoke because they enjoy it but merely because they want to "show off." But if smoking were accepted as natural and inevitable the ladies who wanted to be a bit daring would have no further encouragement.

Why does not the University of Toronto take this step forward? Why should it not provide smoking-rooms for women, or, at least,—cease to question their right to smoke in the privacy of their own rooms?

Correction

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

"The Varsity" of the 8th inst. gave an excellent digest of a discourse which I delivered at Hart House the previous day, excepting the last paragraph which mistakenly represents me as saying the contrary of what I actually stated.

"Father Cline realized that the modern young man does not like to be bothered with dogma; he feels that the Roman Catholic Church leaves no opportunity for thought. The modern person wants to be broadminded."

What I especially accentuated on that occasion was that dogma did not close the Book of Wonder or cramp the power of discovery any more than the propositions and axioms of Euclid contracted the range of mind or the intellectual pursuits of a student determined to be an expert in geometry. Any instatement of truth whether divinely revealed or scientifically acquired is destined to give added muscle and wider vision to the inquiring mind.

By way of correcting any false impression may I ask you to publish this note and oblige.

Yours very sincerely,

M. Cline.

Art, Music and Drama

Dr. Moure's Recital

Owing doubtless to the weather, Dr. Moure played his fortnightly organ recital to a smaller number than usual. The famous St. Anne Prelude and Fugue of Bach was the outstanding number of the afternoon. The difficult five part fugues which permeate both movements were usually distinct, and the well-known subject must have made the second movement very interesting to the audience, demonstrating so clearly Bach's consummate contrapuntal art.

Marking the centenary of Schubert's death, Dr. Moure played a series of transcriptions from the great lyricist's works. The Serenade, a typical Schubert melody, brought forth some interesting solo stops. The familiar and popular Marche Militaire was very carefully played, the spirit of the number losing perhaps in lack of abandon in execution and of orchestral treatment in registration.

Any transcription of the glorious Unfinished Symphony is, at best, unsatisfactory. While Dr. Moure showed excellent discrimination and artistry, he had a vulnerable subject, and we must accept the number in the spirit in which it was given—a tribute to the great song-writer.

The last two numbers were pleasing trifles. Polichinelle by Lurine was heartily enjoyed. Shelley's Elvén Concert displayed an enviable piano technique and makes a startling finale for any programme.

It is to be hoped that more students will take advantage of this opportunity to hear excellent organ playing.

Schubert Concert

Last evening members of the faculty of the Conservatory united to render a special concert in commemoration of the centenary of the death of Franz Schubert, one of the most romantic figures in musical history. One was well aware of the sincerity of the tribute which both musicians and audience paid to Schubert's memory during the programme of some of his own music.

We cannot but feel that the program as a whole did not do full justice to Schubert's powers—no doubt the hasty rearrangement of numbers necessitated by the unfortunate illness of Mr. Bai was partly responsible for this. Schubert certainly holds a pre-eminent place as a song-writer, and the songs which appeared on the programme were a particularly happy choice. Miss Vincent and Miss Hare deserve commendation for their courageous attempt to supply a deficiency in the programme, but we feel that they were quite unequal to the task before them. Miss Hare possesses an exceptionally strong and pleasing contralto voice but we deplore her lack of pure vowels in her singing speech. Having said so much we must go on to remark that the women's quartet was sung with an overpowering amount of tone but little musicianship; and volume alone does not impress us nor does it suit Schubert.

The String numbers were undoubtedly the finer part of the evening's performance, but we were disappointed in the B flat trio. The work itself is surely not Schubert at his best (the first movement in particular was very uninteresting) nor indeed did the Conservatory Trio do themselves justice in it. They seemed to lack that harmony among themselves which is at all times essential in all chamber music, but in this trio certainly necessary to lift the music out of the commonplace of sentimentality.

Of course the Octet was the great event of the evening and that seemed to redeem all the faults of the earlier half of the programme. It is rather a long work consisting of some six full movements, but its sustained gaiety prevents it from becoming at any time tiresome. Here was Schubert in very truth, the Schubert of the "Unfinished," Schubert the lovable. The work was replete with his mannerisms and it was fascinating to catch them as they went fleeting through the sprightly moving music. Dr. McMillan conducted the ensemble in his usual magnetic manner and seemed to feel with extraordinary sensitiveness every shade of tone which Schubert exacted from this curious combination of instruments. The performance of this Octet is a distinct musical achievement and we are pleased to have added it to our store of musical memories.

EMPIRE: THE SHANNONS OF BROADWAY

"The Shannons of Broadway" is rather a superfluous comedy. It consists of a number of wise cracks administered to the unsuspecting audience by two vaudevillians stranded in a one-horse village. Before long the audience have all caught on to the reason of "The Shannon" failure on the stage. Wise cracks deserve the rottenness of eggs. A distribution of the word "Hell!" at intervals may be highly appreciated on Broadway, but it is not quite as amusing to Toronto audiences; not because it is profane but because it is inane.

The plot, which is fairly presentable, is cluttered up with numerous episodes which add nothing. Near the end, for example, it is suddenly discovered that the maid is about to have a child. This may have been intended, as the audience thought, for a humorous sally, or possibly to give the hero an excuse to be brutal to the villain, but in any case it was superfluous.

The splendid presentation, however, and particularly the acting of Miss Marjorie Foster, did much to redeem the play.

WOMEN'S INTERFACULTY SPORT SHOWS KEEN COMPETITION

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Women's Interfaculty games are now the centre of attraction for all enthusiastic sporting fans who turn out to witness the snappy exhibitions despite the everlasting downpour.

B. Symons, the versatile St. Hilda, who almost carried off the Individual Tennis Trophy, has been playing sensational basketball. Not only is she a star forward but her heady combination is phenomenal.

Although the Medette basketball sextette scored a win over the Occupational Therapy team they met some very stiff opposition. This is the first game in the history of the Therapists, and their prospects are most favourable.

Athol Wesley, the energetic coach of the U.C. baseball squad, has again given evidence of her interest and alertness when she arranged a practice game with the Parkdale Collegians. The Red and White were coached throughout the game and derived a store of splendid information and advice.

It is no doubt out of order to speak of hockey, but all veteran players are anxiously awaiting some spicy weather which will permit outdoor practice.

Helen Spence and Dot McMichael played an even match in their exhibition game at the first meeting of the Badminton Club. The club which has been inaugurated at University College promises to be a huge success.

Meds Defeat Occ. Therapy in Women's Interfaculty Set-to

Meds came up from behind and defeated Occupational Therapy 29-20 in the second game in women's interfaculty basketball, played Thursday at U.T.S. gym. For a first game between the two smallest faculties it was quite up to the standard. Shaky combination slowed up the game in spots.

The last period was peppier, and Vi. Henry for Meds and Dorothy Jory for Occ. Therapy did some fast playing. The effective shooting of the Meds' forwards explains the score.

Meds. Jumping centre, Miriam Brick; side centre, Vi. Henry; defence, Marguerite Brown and Effie Winchester; forwards, Mary Jackson, Bliss McQuarrie, Marian Ross.

Occ. Therapy: Jumping centre, Mary Gordon; side centre, Isabel Adams; defence, Olive Noble and Flora McLaren; forwards, Dorothy Jory and Eileen Cover; subs, Ray White, Mary Fulton, Ellen Burgess.

The O.R.F.U. team will practice at the Stadium to-day at 4 p.m.

VICTORIA TRIUMPHS IN WOMEN'S BASEBALL

U.C. Stages Rally After First Inning with Ede Blackwell in the Box

Last evening Victoria gym was the scene of a hard-fought baseball game between Victoria College and University College women's teams. The Vic. girls came out triumphant with a final score of 9-5 in their favour. The first inning gave the Scarlet and Gold a good lead, but U.C. picked up and offered stiff opposition with Ede Blackwell in the pitcher's box. Fran Dale, Wilma Hazlett, Doris Budreo and Christine Elmsie all played exceptionally well for U.C. Vic's stars were Daisy Quance, Molly Jarrett and Alice Tilley. This snappy game at the opening of the season gives promise of more to come.

MULOCK CUP FINALS ON WEDNESDAY AT STADIUM

St. Mike's meet Sr. S.P.S. in Mulock Cup finals on Wednesday. The game is scheduled for 2:30 and will be played in Varsity Stadium. The struggle will be an interesting one. St. Mike's having lost only one game and having a good quarter and half line in their favour. Fumbling will be eliminated in Senior School, it is hoped, and with McVean kicking they should give St. Mike's all they can take.

VARSLITY LOSES IN S.P.A. FIXTURE

West Toronto Displays Superior Team Play in Defeating Juniors

HETHERINGTON STARS

Varsity Juniors were defeated by West Toronto 4 to 2 in their game in the first round for the S.P.A. hockey trophy at the Arena Gardens last night. The West Toronto team, under the coaching of Bill Hancock, who formerly led Newmarket teams to prominence in the hockey world, displayed superior team play which proved too much for the Varsity squad.

Hetherington was the star of the Blue and White. He skated fast and secured Varsity's first counter. Edwards stood out for West Toronto. The winners scored first when Thorne's shot caromed off a Varsity defence man into the twine. Hetherington evened it up when he went through the entire West Toronto team to score. It was the best piece of individual play of the evening.

Edwards made a lone rush, drew the last Varsity defence man aside and flicked the rubber into the twine.

In the second period no goals were made, the play travelling up and down the rink. The Blue and White repelled the West Toronto attacks and Hunnisett was called upon to stop many a hard shot in goal.

The winners scored first for West Toronto when he netted a goal following a scrimmage in front of the Varsity nets. The same player raised the total to four with a long shot from the corner. Laing made Varsity's second counter in the last minute of the game.

The teams: Varsity. Hunnisett, Smiley, Swan, Brant, Hetherington, Smith, Laing, Bell, Evans, McCartney, Walkem, Gerton.

West Toronto: Geddes, Bignell, Edwards, Hearn, Evans, Thorne, Carr, Kressler, Lampert, Bissell, Wodington, Morrison, Phillips.

ST. MIKE'S DEFEAT O.C.E. IN WOMEN'S SERIES

Misses O'Malley and Rouselle Star in Keenly Contested Game

The first baseball game of the Women's Series was played off at O.C.E. last evening between St. Mike's and O.C.E. The victory was in favour of O.C.E. with a score of 19-5. The line-up—St. Mike's: Pitcher, Corcoran; catcher, Campbell; 1st base, Wey; 2nd base, O'Malley; 3rd base, McGarry; left short stop, Rousseau; right short stop, French; centre field, Tuinean; right field, Fitzpatrick; left field, DeRocher. O.C.E. line-up: Pitcher, Ferguson; catcher, Allen; 1st base, Bates; 2nd, Jones; 3rd, Roger; short stop, Cosens; right field, Murphy; left field, Graham; centre field, West.

The game was keenly contested by both teams. Miss O'Malley on second base and Miss Rousseau at left short stop were perhaps most noteworthy for St. Mike's.

Kay Ferguson of O.C.E. won the victory for her team by her extremely clever pitching.

Jr. Vic. Girls Beat St. Hilda's with Score of 46-38

The basketball game between Vic. Juniors and St. Hilda's, Wednesday, played in the U.T.S. gym, was won by the Vic. girls with a score of 38-46. The game was well played and exciting. The line-up for Victoria was: Forwards, M. Mahoney (capt.), M. Parks; side centre, M. Haugh; jumping centre, D. Bishop; guards, A. Storey, B. Doyle; subs, K. Jordan, K. Carscallen, H. Merritt, B. Keyes.

B. Symons for St. Hilda's and Willa Mahoney for Victoria scored the most baskets.

Your clothes need a thorough cleaning, too

FASTIDIOUS college men and women know the value of a warm, cleansing bath several times a week. They insist, too, on frequent changes of underclothing.

They follow the same principle with regard to their outside wearing apparel. Just because dirt often does not show conspicuously on dark clothes is, for them, no reason for being any the less fastidious or clean.

Dry cleaning, as practised by experts, is health insurance—at a small cost. And clothes last longer this way. The most particular college men and women prefer White's—and have done so for many, many years.

FIFTY JOBS FOR EX-COLLEGE ATHLETES

Special to "The Varsity"

Atlanta, Ga. Fifty jobs at $50 a week are to be thrown open for ex-college athletes by Earl Carroll, producer of the Earl Carroll Vanities, within the next few weeks, applications now being accepted by Mr. Carroll at his theatre through personal request or photographs. The men are desired for roles in a big new musical offering which is scheduled to open about January 1st.

With the new Vanities cracking all previous records and fully set for a season's run, Mr. Carroll has turned to the work of launching the most pretentious book musical comedy ever attempted in his career. The music is by George L. Bagby and G. Romilly, composers of the Vanities melodies, and the story deals with a new phase of athletic life. For that reason fifty seasoned football, baseball, and basketball players, or athletes of any type are wanted for the new production.

Special to "The Varsity"

Salt Lake City, Utah—Sorority houses on the southern side of the campus were the scenes of various attacks made by a band of upstarts on All Hallow's Eve. Armed to the teeth with bits of soap and candles they swooped down upon window and door panes of co-ed abodes, leaving nary an inch without a fantastic scrawl in soap or wax.

At one sorority house the front door was besieged by a troop of savage-looking boys who paraded into the hall, scattering leaves and debris as they came. "We want candy," howled the spokesman. "This is a sorority house and we want candy." Evidently they had heard of the "sweet things" to be found in sorority houses. The young invaders, upon being asked to leave, became more insistent. Threats of summoning the police failed to disconcert them, and the co-eds were finally obliged to engage in a hand-to-hand tussle to rid their modest halls of the intruders.

It became necessary to station guards about houses to check the onslaught against windows and doors until police officers arrived to round up the prowlers.

No Scalping For Tickets to be Found At Great Indian War Dance

(A. H. Arrell)

Among those present at the Great Indian War dance; well the strong armed men were out in full force; one of the boys was telling us how he was sure of his P.T. for the rest of the year, but of course that was when the party was half over, yet we were quite willing to believe he was sober.

Little Purple Robe was there with a breath that Herbert Hoover would have been proud of, but we are afraid Al Smith would have been elected on the showing of the Electoral Colleges.

Then there was another chap who claimed he was on the Solemn Asses in Concave. He didn't seem like a bad egg though so I guess he must have been one of Al Smith's most ardent supporters, he wasn't tight, of course not why he even wanted us to have a dance with one of the three girls he had brought.

We rather sympathized with the intentions of another fellow who claimed he was going to invent a bumper to wear next year; we were of the opinion that he already had had a bumper.

Chief Red Coals was there and those who danced with him claimed we had named his most appropriately. Pansy Churnside was there; we won't say who she was with, but it reminds us:

There was a girl named Pansie,
Who was churning a churn by the sea,
He thought for flatter, who she guired after,
But she answered the old jersey cow, tee hee.

We missed Lou, Chief of the Scribes and Talehunters, he would have disliked the closing of the locker rooms, the rifle ranges, the squash courts, and all such sporting places yet he would have been right at home the way the boys took their bumps in the Music Room, Common Room, etc.

Larry was the boy who was downed at Montreal last week, he was much more at home in the Big Gym, it seems they put sand on the floor and you moved very slowly and very sedately.

Finally we would submit that while we can stand School polluting our reputation, Meds polluting our morals, yet the line should be drawn when Osgoode starts polluting our swimming pool, and if they insist on making it a wet evening literally as well as figuratively let them go to something real dry like Daffydill Nite because they are all wet anyhow.

tion picture entitled "Power," which made its Toronto debut at Shea's last evening. Personally, we are inclined to desire something more substantial, something which leaves some impression upon us after we have left the theatre. This picture leaves us with no particular lingering reminiscences, except a general state of good feeling, which is possibly a good thing. Jacqueline Logan, William Boyd and Alan Hale play their parts well insofar as they have any opportunity to exhibit any dramatic ability.

The vaudeville bill, however, is good. Chaney, Fox and Co. present an excellent song and dance number. Mr. Derickson, of Derickson and Brown, has a fine voice and sings well. We were very little impressed by the Foys Family, despite the tremendous press advertisement they have been receiving.

"SIMBA"

We came away from "Simba" with a profound admiration for the courage of Mr. and Mrs. Johnson and a profound contempt for the cutter who nearly ruined the picture by insinuating unnecessary subtitles into action that was self-explanatory. There is also an air of showmanship about the picture which seems out of place and detracts from the genuineness upon which the picture depends for success. Otherwise it is thoroughly interesting. Those who love household pets should not miss this picture, as they are bound to pick up a few ideas from it.

Editorial Note: The "he" in the sentence was meant to refer to the modern young man and not Father Cline and the sentiment expressed was what we thought Father Cline attributed to many young men. He opposed the sentiment, as he does again in his letter, and supported his objection by an analogy quoted from Chesterton. This quotation could not be included in the report because of lack of space.

vividness of setting, combined with the especially appropriate Vitaphone music, carry one's interest forward at all times.

From beginning to end, the cruelties imposed upon the natives by the selfish, unscrupulous band of whites, the shanghaiing and shipwreck of Dr. Lloyd and his subsequent adventures on a small island, combined with particularly effective and appropriate Vitaphone accompaniment, all contrive to make a very interesting picture. One fact was impressive, that it was not plot nor acting but the vivid colorful and somewhat romantic setting that made the picture what it was.

The vaudeville acts were exceptionally good as a whole. The best act, "A Blue Shadow's Revue," presented magnificent scenery. Also the Fox movievone reel presented some very amusing characters.

VICTORIA: NAUGHTY CINDER-ELLA

Pajamas on the Lido are not like the ordinary kind. They are extensive, fussy and about as intimate as an afternoon dress. The Victoria's new stock company chased around in them for a couple of acts, exchanging a few smart ones, a few naughty ones and a few old ones.

The play is one of those little comedies à la mode which come up from New York like popular songs and have their good points. This one is about a good French girl who pretends to be mad, but marries the nice young man. A big bruiser chases people and there is an Englishman with a monocle and a large stern, or shall we say aftercastle.

The cast is small but capable. There was no particular brilliancy, but then there was little opportunity for it. We prefer to reserve judgment on the newcomers.

S.A.C. WILL DECIDE IF S.P.S. ESCAPEE CHARGES BE HANDLED

Matter May Finally Come Up Before the Students' Court for Action

ITEMIZED DAMAGE ACCOUNT

School Men Apparently Treat Affair as Jest But Take Steps to Reduce Bill!

Mr. G. A. McGillivray, President of the Students' Administrative Council, has called a meeting of the Council for to-night, at which a decision will be reached as to whether charges are to be laid in the Students' Court against the men of first and second year School who rushed the doors of Shea's Hippodrome last Thursday night, causing grave danger of panic within the theatre.

Members of the Council decline to comment or forecast what the decision of the meeting will be, or what action may be expected.

Mr. J. D. Wright, President of the Students' Court, says: "We're just like any other judicial body. We are not out looking for cases to try. The Council may decide to lay charges." When asked if action might be taken by any other body other than the Council, he said, "A faculty might bring a case before the Students' Court."

"This is just the regular bi-monthly meeting of the Students' Administrative Council, but the matter of taking action is on the business of the meeting and is certain to come up," said Mr. A. Gordon Burns, graduate Secretary-Treasurer of the Council. Mr. Burns has seen the theatre management and said, "If we deem that no action is necessary, they are quite satisfied. They look on it that the students are responsible to us."

The end of the evils that may befall first and second year S.P.S. students as a result of last Thursday's fracas in downtown Toronto has not been reached yet, according to information that reached "The Varsity" yesterday. Not only do they face possible prosecution before the Student Court, but they have received a bill for $256.73 from the Carls Hotel on account of silverware and ornaments that they are alleged to have stolen in the course of their dinner at that place.

An itemized account of the claim of the hotel has been posted on the main notice board in the Engineering building. It reads as follows:

55 knives	$68.75
53 forks	44.15
29 spoons	24.15
205 tea spoons	42.71
60 table napkins	22.50
9 electric light plugs	4.50
27 sets salt and pepper shakers	26.60
9 large flower vases	5.70
9 small flower vases	4.50
21 electric light bulbs	5.67
25 ash trays	12.50

Total

However, the size of this assessment would not seem to have awed the Science men, who have treated the sign with scant respect. On it are scrawled other items as follows:

105 matches	30
12 double beds01
1 case Scotch99
1 waitress01
156 spittoons	9.00
4 pianos	25
3 safes00
1 hot actress	1000000 miles

In spite of this seeming levity it is stated that many men are anxious to reduce the amount of the bill, and that the year executives are being flooded with old pieces of cutlery by repentant students.

OPPOSING OPINIONS ON SMOKING ROOMS EXPRESSED BY WOMEN

Graduates and Co-eds Approve of Smoking Rooms in New Women's Residence

AUTHORITIES DISAPPROVE

Plan for Personal Freedom in Smoking Opposed on Grounds of Moral Aspects

Graduate women of the University, in discussing the rumour that a graduate had proposed that the Board install women's smoking rooms in the new residence, gave their hearty approval. "Why should not the University honestly accept the fact that women do smoke, and allow them to do it openly, rather than surreptitiously? All the universities in England provide smoking rooms, why should we be provincial? As the professors tell us when we come to college, 'You are now men and women, you are no longer children!'"

The authorities, when approached on the subject, deprecated the whole matter. Quite aside from the moral or personal aspects, they felt that until the country as a whole recognized smoking, the University should not set the standard, since it was largely supported by the country's money. Unless we wished our University to degenerate into the social-butterfly type found occasionally in the country to the south of us, the ideals of "plain living and high thinking" would have to be supported.

Dr. Edith Gordon, as Women's Medical Adviser, stated that she was of course absolutely opposed to smoking among undergraduates. It was certainly injurious to health, and there was really nothing positive to be said in its favour. In the new Athletic Building for the women of the whole university, which would be a sort of

COLLEGE MEN OF YORE NO BETTER THAN TO-DAY

Fable of Student of "Good Olde Days" Exploded by Research

Special to "The Varsity" Cambridge, Mass.—The theory that the American college student of the eighteenth century, and the seventeenth century for that matter, was "so incurably addicted to studious piety that he found little time for play and none for dissipation" suffered a severe jolt recently through revelations of student habits in diaries and records now in the possession of Harvard university.

Brawls, hazing, wrangling with the faculty, and general disorderly conduct were more characteristic of students' behaviour at that time. Among these records is an incident, recorded by one Ezra Clapp, a student at Yale in 1738, who says:

"Last night some of the freshmen got six quarts of rum and about two pails of syder, and about eight pounds of sugar and made it into Samson, and invited every scholar in college into Curtis's room, and we made such prodigious rought that we raised the tutor, and he ordered us all to our rooms, and some went and some tarried, and they gathered again and went up to old Father Monsher's dore and drummed against the dore and yelled and screamed so that a body would have thought they were killing dogs there."

Mather told of an incident where two ministers' sons, students at Harvard, robbed two dwellings in the night of 15 pounds and, being found out, were whipped by the president of the college.

University College Women

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

Yesterday I attended a mass meeting of all the women of University College to discuss very important matters. This was the second attempt to muster a quorum of 60. I have always understood that about 500 women attend University College, but apparently there are only 61. It was decided to have a drive by all the women of University College to raise money for the Building fund. If the present lack of interest continues, just how big a house could we build?

The co-eds' ardent college spirit evaporates before anything less enticing than a dance, or one of the Lovely Laura's epistles. But there are other interests which should go to form a well-rounded college life. University College is the largest college, but in sports as in other things the co-eds blame its size for the lack of unity, and evidently leave their duty to "someone else," for there were exactly six rooters at the last basketball game at U.T.S.

Individual girls are feeling this themselves, but what are they doing to right it? We hope that this letter will make them realize the problem, for unless we pull together soon there will not be anything left to pull.

HART HOUSE DEBATES EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM IN REMINISCENT MOOD

Undergraduates Will Have Opportunity to Pass On Government

NEW SPEAKER'S CHAIR

If the undergraduates of the University approve of the way the Ontario government is handling the educational system and other problems confronting it, they will have an opportunity to say so next Wednesday evening, when at the second Hart House debate of the year, the motion "That this house has every confidence in His Majesty's Government in Ontario" will be considered.

D. D. Gunn of Trinity College will introduce the motion. Supporting him will be members of the Ontario Government, who will be present as honorary visitors. The tellers for the evening will be C. L. M. Douglas, Trin.; B. D. Beamish, U.C.; A. H. Arrell, Vic., and R. B. Rochester, S.P.S.

A feature of the meeting will be the unveiling of the new Speaker's chair presented to Hart House in memory of the late Maurice Cody by his parents. The unveiling will be done by Dr. Cody, chairman of the Board of Governors of the University.

University Training Valuable Asset in Gaining Knowledge of Fellows

"There is some truth in the white collar allegation," declared the Right Honourable G. Howard Ferguson. "There must be some better selection of men who are to go forward into higher institutes, otherwise we are spending a lot of money uselessly, since it costs as much to produce a poor man as a good one."

"An institution like Hart House, where we are rubbing shoulders with our fellow men, getting impressed with personality surely is a great achievement," said the Premier. "Whatever advantage I got out of university life was gained acquainted with man, for the knowledge of man is the most valuable asset anyone can have."

"There are only two things that the Conservative party may do, wait till the Liberal party rots, or out-liberal the Liberals, turn Socialist, in fact do a Disraeli," was the statement made by B. D. Beamish in giving a resumé of political affairs, including the Veniot affair and future immigration policies. "We must distinguish

"LIT" EXECUTIVE ARE HELD TO BLAME FOR PRESENT EVILS

U.C. Men Level Hot Criticism at Interest and Methods of Executive

EXECUTIVE BLAME MEMBERS

Matters Will Come to Head at the Next Meeting on December 4th

"They don't know what they want and consequently the executive is no judge of what they want." This was the opinion of E. Henry, president of the Literary and Athletic Society of U.C., with reference to the present state of affairs in the "Lit." He stated that the "Lit." would hold its next meeting on December 4th. New motions would then be brought up and discussed. For this meeting the executive would like a large turnout of the members, and with this in view they propose to advertise it extensively. The meetings subsequent to the one in December and prior to that in March (for nomination of executive officers) have been discontinued. "The Varsity" was informed, because of the meagre interest shown in such "Lit." meetings. The executive, we learned, desired to give no opinions or plans for future meetings, and wished to eschew all discussion until after the next meeting.

L. M. Gelber, it will be remembered, was the one who proposed the "Lit." executive should be made responsible to the House. When questioned on the lack of interest shown in the meetings, Mr. Gelber replied that "the executive is too much apart from the members, who since they had no part, or rather felt that they had no part in the Society, gradually and most naturally so, lost all interest in it. The trouble with the 'Lit.' he

GOOD PEOPLE OF ATLANTA ENJOY COLLEGE ESCAPE

Frosh Put On Playful Antics Before Capacity Audiences in Theatres

Special to "The Varsity" Atlanta, Ga.—The first night-shirt parade of the season took place Saturday night about 7 p.m. Advanced forces reached the theatrical section of town about 7.30 p.m. Atlanta was expecting such an affair and it appears that the entire population turned out en masse. Theatres became packed, drug stores witnessed a boom in business from impatient spectators, hotels, haberdasheries, wicker stands all became sudden possessors of capacity crowds. Soon the tenseness was climaxed by the appearance of the costumed paraders. The Metro was the first to give way to the on-rush of exuberant freshmen. Each theatre witnessed an entirely different change of performance, due to individuals who could not withstand the strain of hilarity that was pressing upon them and who gave way relieving themselves of the tenseness in the form of a solo dance or an outburst of yells. Some even went so far as to turn flips on the stage, sing a line or two for the audience, or perform Herculean acts that only masculine strength could present; while others, who were intoxicated by the excitement remained in the theatre after the crowd had gone in order that they might spend an hour or two watching some Fiji Islander run around loose or watching a chorus girl shake her drag net for her prey.

Freshmen will be boisterous, so there is nothing to do but let them have their parade and pray for the best.

SCHOOL MAN MAKES NUMEROUS CHARGES AGAINST 'VARSITY'

Editorial Policy in General Severely Criticized by S.P.S. Senior

CLAIMS NEWS EXAGGERATED

That "The Varsity" Is Not Representative of Undergraduate Body Alleged

The editor is in receipt of the following communication from K. F. Tupper, fourth year Engineering. The letter is dated North House, November 19:

"My faculty has this day been honored by mention in no less than four places in your paper. Three of these were matters of news over three days old, and seem to be excellent historical records. The other mention and the one to which I wish particularly to refer is your editorial entitled 'Civil Engineers.' This appears to me to be the meanest sort of derisive attack yet made by 'The Varsity' upon any undergraduate body. You have attacked our residences, both men's and women's, by misrepresentation of so-called news items. You have accused the men's residences of hazing their freshmen, and the women's residence of abuse of their honor system. You endeavored to prove drunkenness prevalent in a divinity college. You have, Sir, made every attempt to spread scandal about many undergraduate bodies. On this present occasion you seem to have chosen as the object of your universal contempt the 'Engineers.'"

"The Varsity" is called The Undergraduate Newspaper. I should like to suggest that this title be removed as I fail to see that your paper represents at any time undergraduate opinion. Your paper has made every attempt to place the undergraduate of this University in as bad a light as possible. It is not an undergraduate paper. For example, there is not a single person from the Faculty of Science, you represent undergraduate opinion with the third largest faculty not represented.

"As to your editorial, when as you may have presented the truth in your news columns, you have grossly exaggerated in your editorial. Perhaps you were using the figure of speech known as the hyperbole. There were not three hundred students involved in the incident you mention, there were not even two hundred. If a small body of students from a faculty act rowdy do you always blame the whole faculty?"

"In your editorial you state the transition from the little red school to Hart House is too abrupt. Am I to infer from this that you have the impudence to suggest that the men of the 'Red School,' that is, Engineering students, are not fit to frequent Hart House? Are we the very scum of the earth? Is this your meaning? If it is not, then in future editorials you might take care not to leave yourself open to such grave misunderstanding."

"In closing, Sir, I should like to point out that forty is not three and a quarter dozen."

The annual retreat of the students of St. Joseph's College opened Saturday evening and closed this (Wednesday) morning. Rev. Father H. S. DEMOLISHING "THE VARSITY"

We print in to-day's issue a letter from a Mr. Tupper of the fourth year in the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering who takes us to task because his faculty was honoured by mention in no less than four places in our paper. This is similar to certain other communications which we have received and which newspapers always receive, in that there is a good deal of indignation and very little fact behind it. The type is always marked by a loud protestation of the love of the truth and very little regard for the same quality in its own substance.

We are charged with the double-barrelled offence, "misrepresentation of so-called news events." It is indeed unfortunate that our correspondent, after the manner of his ilk, has not seen fit to state in what respects anyone has been misrepresented. He is careful to say that we have "accused" the men's residences of hazing. If our news stories about the high cultural status given to paint and berry boxes in the precincts with which K. F. Tupper is familiar were untrue, why did not the people in residence not deny the same, instead of dashing over to Hart House debates and making general attacks on "The Varsity" (which, strange, passing strange, are re-echoed in this letter) or dodging around in letters supposedly written to discuss articles concerning S.P.S.? Furthermore anyone with something barely approaching a sneaking regard for the truth could not say that we have at any time endeavoured to prove drunkenness prevalent in any college. We have run only one article to which this could refer and it was to the effect that the majority of the men in a certain college took violent measures to show their disapproval of evidences of drinking on the part of three of their number.

And, of course, when he comes to deal with our editorial, our correspondent admits that our poor old, much abused news columns may have told the truth after all. But he forgets to appreciate in the editorial the use of small letters in a certain phrase, and not capitals. Lastly we repeat that in the same editorial we stressed the fact that rowdy performances outside react unfavourably on public opinion which blames not the faculty alone, but the whole student body for the action of any number thereof. The reaction would be the same if there were two hundred as if there were three hundred.

Illiteracy is the one thing of which we should never accuse our friendly contributor, from the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering. We honestly believe that he is capable of reading the names in the masthead above this editorial and also the Students' Directory. If he were to look hard enough he might find that our art editor is a hardy engineer. The art editor was the only one from his faculty to accept our personal invitation to join the staff, the others declining for academic reasons.

Nor do we blame them for this. The time table at School is too crowded to leave much time for work on a newspaper. And simply because of their inability to help directly we do not feel entitled to reply under criticism, as do so many people when criticised, "Come and do better, yourself." Mr. Tupper may not have time to work with us but as an undergraduate he is, in our opinion, entitled to criticism, accurately if he can, the work produced by others. And if he has time to work on the paper we shall welcome both him and his friends. As we said in our first editorial, we are anxious for constructive suggestions from the undergraduates. As we said in subsequent editorials, we are anxious to print more news about the practical faculties.

Again, if Mr. Tupper wishes to join the staff, we extend a welcome. He might then learn to express himself correctly.

Miss Modernity

Our friend Miss Modernity will in the course of time, if she fulfil her biogenetic function, be very much interested in her place of abode—whether it be a flat on the twentieth floor or a snug little bungalow nestled against some protecting hillside. If, by chance, you accompany her home you should not exhibit undue surprise when you notice that her house in no way resembles any on your street. If this fatal mistake is made she will ever after tell her friends of your naïveté. Her house it is true may from the exterior put one in mind of a chicken coop in the grand style or an up-to-date sanitarium, but for heaven's sake, unless you want to be sent home, don't exclaim, "Oh, how different!—how interesting!"

The entrance may be almost anywhere, depending entirely upon the whim of the architect. It would be a nice bit of discretion if upon entering you would, for at least once in your life, allow the young lady in question to precede you; for without the

Hans Kindler

Mr. Hans Kindler gave the second of the students' concerts in Convocation Hall last evening. It is with difficulty that we find words to express the joy which Kindler's music brings to us. He is one of those rare artists who seem to live their music in very truth, devoting to their work their whole being. One seldom encounters a musician who seems to find so much joy in performing his music as Kindler and he communicates to an audience all his own delight and pleasure.

One can only remark upon the marvellous finish of his technical style, the stirring beauty of his phrasing and the warm fullness of his tone in exclamations of unbounded admiration. To the music of the seventeenth century, to that of a modern Spanish composer, or to the work of Chopin, Kindler imparts a wealth of poetic beauty which is really overwhelming.

The programme given yesterday afternoon opened with a Purcell aria which was followed by a Handel Sonata, stately and majestic in Handel's best manner. Its four short movements were the perfection of musical form: an Allegro of restrained vigour following the introductory Largo, a romantic and dignified Sarabande leading into the final Allegro.

It contained not one phrase suggestive of vain repetition or redundancy. A Toccata of Frescobaldi bubbled over with good humour and jollity. Mr. Kindler, in an Adagio of Mozart, revealed all the manly charm of that composer and yet it could not be said that his treatment lacked delicacy and lyric beauty. So too with the Schubert Rondo. But it seems so futile to attempt to recapture that exaltation of spirit which Kindler engendered during the course of his performance. We might go on to mention the exquisite perfection of the Rimsky-Korsakov or the inexpressible beauty of the close of the De Falla number which seemed to fade into infinity and leave the audience for the moment aware of silence, transported by the power of divine music.

Kindler is undoubtedly one of the world's greatest musicians and his powerful personality and superior musicianship are quite sufficient to carry an audience away to live with him and his inspired music for two hours. The audience which heard him last evening were on the verge of shouting their appreciation so enthusiastically did they receive him. No criticism would be complete without mentioning the artistic accompaniment of Mr. Guerrero, whose sensitive work was a distinct assistance to the solo artist.

The inmates of the asylum applauded heartily as the popular president of the Lunatics' Literary Society rose to his feet. "Ladies and gentlemen, it gives me great pleasure to open this meeting by welcoming to our midst a new member, Dr. Ronald Rottingham."

The archbishop of Mimico leapt to his feet. "Mr. chairman, I object. Dr. Rottingham was brought to this institution as the matron's pet dog and he has not been registered as an orthodox lunatic. Therefore I maintain that he is ineligible."

All: "Throw him out!"

"Eviscerate him!" shrieked the empress of Egypt.

"Order, order," cried the president. "Dr. Rottingham, it is true, is officially serving as the matron's dog, but she knows better,—and so do we!" (Cheers). "Furthermore, I have delved into his past records and find that in his day he was a great frat brother and committee man. Could anything serve as a better recommendation?"

"I apologize," said the archbishop, "Dr. Rottingham is indeed one of us." (Loud cheers.)

The minutes of the last meeting shall not be read," continued the president. "There is not sufficient time. Besides, I have signed them already and if anyone says that they are wrong he will get a bust in the mush. Will Prince Hamlet now recite for us? We must hurry."

"This is an awful comedown since Bill wrote me," grumbled the prince, "but anyway—"

Smokes for Women

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

May we express our lively interest in the question of smoking-rooms for the new Women's Residence? Many times during the years spent here at college we have broken a commandment... we have envied. And whom have we envied? The men, and their care-free enjoyment of a casual cigarette.

When we spend some hours in the Library, how much good it would do us to be able to relax under the soothing influence of the little white tube. To have cigarettes in our pockets, and not be allowed to smoke them! Unless, of course, we have our car outside. Those who have no car must do without.

And at lunch! One of the best times to enjoy a cigarette is with a cup of coffee, at the end of a meal. For this, the co-ed must fare forth in all weather to this or that tea-room.

On some cold winter afternoon, or on a dark, rainy day, when the flames are brightly blazing in the fireplace in the front room of the Union, how utterly comfortable it would be to sink into a cosy armchair and smoke! O ye gods, for the sake of those who are to come after us, let there be smoking-rooms for the co-eds.

Two Seniors.

Quite a number of students dropped in after lectures to enjoy Mrs. Kirkwood's Tuesday tea. Prof. Alexander is coming to give a talk next Tuesday.

ST. MIKE'S MEETS SR. SCHOOL IN MULOCK CUP FINAL TO-DAY

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The Sporting Editor of the McGill Daily in his column "Down to brass tacks" tries to drive some of the points into "The Varsity" in an attempt to account for the Red's reluctance to play off with teams outside of the Intercollegiate Union. He claims that all opinions but his own are "utter rot and perverted humour," and the fact that McGill plays a half-hearted exhibition game with some outside team once in a while is proof positive that they are not "high hat." Only a statement such as his can come from a pen that forgets the courtesy of one newspaper to another and throws epithets around at people who do not happen to agree with him.

The biggest invasion that Hamilton ever experienced will be its lot on Saturday when the Orphans meet Hamilton Tigers in the Eastern Canada final. The buses arranged for by the S.A.C. will leave in a group, while the number of private motors leaving for the city of the mountain will be legion. The limited number of tickets on sale for the Hamilton Athletic Association grounds are being gobbled up, which means that the stadium will be taxed to capacity. The Orphans for the first time since they have been in football are having plenty of support. The "shout and fight" will resound through the stadium with a will at the classic.

As is expected, the Terrible Tigers are heavy favourites. But that is nothing new for the "neglected ones." The Jimmie Douglas squad has been called to lose from the drop of the hat, but somehow or other they are still in the running with some of Canada's finest football machines their victims.

They may turn the trick again.

The Varsity fans are praying for a wet field and plenty of rain, but the Orphans do not need a wet field to play good football. The speedy backfield of Sinclair and MacFadyen are faster on dry ground as expected, while firm footing always assists a lighter line. It is a well-known fact that a heavier team has the advantage in muddy going, so the Orphans cannot fall down in the battle if weather conditions make it a hard field.

There should be a big crowd on hand at the Varsity Stadium this afternoon when the Father Bellisle team takes on Senior School of Practical Science in the Mulock Cup final. The Saints have shown themselves a fast twelve with a backfield that can catch faultlessly, while School's backfield is prone to drop the oval. But the Engineers have a better line and by far the best kicker in the Interfaculty series in Jerry McVean, who can hoof them high and far.

ORPHANS PREPARED FOR TIGER BATTLE

Boys in Tip-top Shape and Every Department on the Team on the Job

SPIRIT A PLENTY PRESENT

The Orphans are right down to hard work. At the Stadium yesterday evening Jimmy Douglas had his squad on the job and sent them through a stiff signal practice with everybody going at top speed. In the absence of Ruddell, who is suffering from a cold, Don Wood called the numbers.

The end runs were given special attention with the plays getting away fast on the break. Extensions may prove good ground-gainers against the Tigers, who have a heavy line with a strong secondary which is difficult to smash on plunges. If the Blue interference is working well, MacFadyen and Sinclair should be able to run the ball for considerable yardage.

Jack Sinclair showed some neat hoofing against a strong wind and from appearances will give "Huck" Welch, the Tiger kicker, all he can do to hold his own. Sinclair has shown ability to punt a ball well under any conditions and this, coupled with the good work of the outides, has been a big factor in the Blue victories.

It is doubtful if any scrimmages will be held this week. The boys are in first-class shape and may just get enough work to keep them right on edge for Saturday's battle.

BUS SERVICE FOR GAME IN HAMILTON SATURDAY

A bus service to the Eastern Canada final rugby game at Hamilton on Saturday is being run. Buses leave Hart House at 12.15 p.m. sharp and proceed directly to the Stadium at Hamilton. Returning, one bus will leave directly at the close of the game, arriving in Toronto for supper, while another will remain till later for the benefit of those wishing to remain to witness for the celebrations. The fare is $1.50 return trip. About forty men and five women have signed.

Tickets go on general sale this morning at the Athletic Office, Hart House, or Room 82, U.C. for women. Cheer leaders will be present to direct activities. It is hoped that as many rooters as possible will attend this game, which is the Eastern final rugby game of the season.

KNOX SOCCER SQUAD PLAY O.A.C. IN SEMI-FINALS

A large attendance marked the meeting of the Chemical and Industrial Club of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering which was held in the Music Room of Hart House last evening. MULOCK CUP FINALS AT STADIUM TO-DAY

S.P.S. and St. Mike's Lock Horns for Possession of Championship Cup

TEAMS EVENLY MATCHED

The finals for the coveted Mulock Cup, emblematic of the Interfaculty championship, take place this afternoon at 2.30 at the stadium. The two winners of the semi-final play-off games, St. Mike's and Senior School, lock horns in what should be one of the most interesting battles of the season.

Senior School boasts a fine record, having emerged victorious in a good group, and then surprised themselves and their supporters with a 9 to 7 win over the strong Trinity College team, who were favoured for the Interfaculty championship. The School machine is built around their superb kicking half. Jerry McVean, whose kicking has kept the Engineers in the race. Carruthers at flying wing and McMordy and Jones, will hold their own with the best that St. Mike's can produce.

St. Mike's chief claim to fame lies in their 10 to 1 defeat of Junior Meds in the semi-finals. St. Mike's have a very fast, resourceful backfield composed of Sheehy, Frado and Regan, and with Shooks at quarter will be a source of continual worry to the School tacklers.

Women's Sport Issue

Every two weeks the sporting page is given over to the athletic activities of the women of the University. This explains the preponderance of women's sport in the issue of yesterday. Those interested in men's sport will kindly arrange with the Sporting Editor in charge of assignments to transfer general publicity to another day. The fortnightly page for women is designed to give space to their games which of necessity arising from space restrictions must often be overlooked.

WESTERN FOOTBALL TEAMS WILL PLAY IN HAWAII Special to "The Varsity"

Moscow, Ida.—Three western football teams, representing the University of Oregon, a member of the Pacific Coast Intercollegiate Conference; University of Denver, a member of the Rocky Mountain Conference; and Occidental College, of the Southern California Conference, will play in the Hawaiian Islands this winter. Efforts also are being made to schedule a trip to Honolulu for the Olympic Club team of San Francisco, an eleven composed of former Pacific Coast Conference and "Big Ten" Conference stars, which Coach Glenn S. Warner of Stanford says is the strongest non-collegiate football machine he has ever seen.

Occidental plays in the islands Dec. 9 with University of Hawaii its opponent. Denver plays Dec. 15, while Oregon plays toward the last of the season for two games, one with the University of Hawaii, and the other with the winner of the Honolulu senior football league, composed of four teams. The Oregon team plays one game Christmas and the other on New Year's.

GYMNASTIC SQUADS PREPARING FOR MEETS

Prospects for Intercollegiate Title Are Brighter Than Ever This Year

Greater interest in gymnastics has been shown this year than formerly, and many of the participants are freshmen. The site of work on the high bars and horse seats to be improving and will almost certainly excel that of last year.

The Interfaculty Meet will be held on Tuesday, 22nd January, and the teams, made up of the three best men from each faculty, will compete once more for the Harold Wilson Cup. Last year S.P.S. won the cup, and Trinity came second, followed by O.C.E. These teams have remained unchanged with the exception of O.C.E., which will of course be entirely new. Three freshmen who will compete in the Interfaculty are Warshaw and Mackay from U.C. and Wilkinson, S.P.S.

On February 23rd the Intercollegiate Meet will be held in Toronto. The system used in choosing this team has been altered. Whereas formerly it was taken from the six best men on the Interfaculty Meet, now the captain will choose his team just a few weeks before the event. McGill is as yet an "unknown quantity" owing to some doubt as to the personnel of its team, which if anything like last year will be very good. There are several open gymnastic titles held by Varsity men. The Canadian championship was won by D. R. Gunn, captain of the Varsity team, while Williamson and Frank Stone took the Ontario Junior and Senior respectively.

UNIVERSITY AUTHORITIES PROPOSE 12-MONTH YEAR

Special to "The Varsity"
Rochester, Minn.—A 12-month school year in colleges and high schools has been advocated by Dr. William Mayo of Rochester, Minn.

"Why young persons at the strong est time of their lives physically and mentally," said Dr. Mayo, "should have a three-month vacation, I am unable to understand."

Mr. Kefauver stated that the health of students is more closely supervised while they are in school than during vacations. "The idea held by our forefathers that a school year of 12 months would completely break down the health of the students is highly erroneous," Mr. Kefauver said.

INTERFACULTY SWIM MEET THIS SATURDAY EVENING

Fitzgerald Trophy Held by U.C. to be Keenly Contested for This Year

The Interfaculty Swimming Meet to determine the winners of the Fitzgerald Cup takes place on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock. This trophy was donated in 1920 by Alex. Fitzgerald, and with the exception of the first year, when it was won by School, it has always been awarded to U.C.

The U.C. team has been weakened by the graduation of several stars. Leo Litchford is well supported by Boddy and Poyntz. Harold Nimmo and Johnny Goss will represent S.P.S.; the latter is likely to be the individual champion of the meet. Meds have Donald Gunn and Jack Gundy, who should win the diving. Dick Dyble is their outstanding swimmer. It will be an exciting competition, and every one of the eight events will be warmly contested. There will be dancing at the conclusion of the meet.

SR. VIC. EASILY DEFEAT OCCUPATIONAL THERAPY

In a fast and furious basketball game Victoria Seniors defeated Occupational Therapy by a score of 40-13. Vic. got away to a flying start when left Therapy rather dazed. Vic. was distinguished by sure shooting and passing, but in their enthusiasm, fouled several times.

The line-up was as follows:
Occupational Therapy: Centre, Mary Gordon; defence, Mabelle McNeill, Ray White; forwards, Dorothy Joy, Ellen Cover; side centre, Isobel Adams; subs, Margaret Fulton, Olive Noble, Eileen Burgess.

Virgil and Dante Opine That Disaster Overtakes Him Who Is Too Obliging

(By F. W. Burton)

O presumptuous men, how soon will ye be warned? Lo, now in our way we found one lying bold, while an ostrich pecked his gizzard. "O thou wise Virgil," I began, "who is this arrogant sinner?" "Dear Dante," he responded, "he lies imprisoned here because he would not do what people said. See now the wickedness of the said. But let himself relate to thee his story." Forthwith that unfortunate spoke:

"I am a man that was cursed with many friends. Hast thou friends?" "I have not," I cried. "O blessed man!" he said. "Mine were loving and officious, and I am a man of agreeable character; so I spent all my days eating toasted sandwiches to please my friends, when I prefer them untoasted; wearying my feet in twenty-mile walks because that my friend Cecco was fond of walking."

"Truly I am a man of agreeable character, but there is a point at which the wearied spirit rebels. After my friend Guilielmo forced me to go tuna-fishing, and I fell in the sea by a blow in the face from the tail of a tuna-fish, I made a vow that no more would I do what my friends said against my will. And as it befell, that evening I met another friend, who said, 'Praises to heaven, after long seeking have I found thee. Come now to supper, and later we will read Edgar A. Guest together.' And my soul rose up and I said: 'I will not come, for I have planned other entertainment for the evening.' And I went on my way and left him gaping. But yet another friend meeting me brought: 'Hast thou ever eaten caviar?' No? Lo, it is my favourite food. Come, and we will eat it together." And he seized me by the arm, but I smote him in the eye and went on my way. I came to my home; there waiting was my friend Cecco. I had a cold from the tuna-fishing, and he said, 'What dost do for a cold?' 'I take castor oil,' I said. 'No good,' he said, 'for you should sit with your feet in hot water.' And he brought hot water and forced me into a chair. But I rose up and I thrust his head in the water, and held it till he ceased to struggle. For this I lie here; yet am I naturally of agreeable character."

horizon line as datum you might momentarily imagine yourself to be some fantastic entity under the influence of—gravity. Nor is it beyond the "possibles" nor the "probables" that you may immediately descend to a beamed cellar fitted out in le style moderne—which after all may prove to be not the least interesting of rooms! From this subterranean—what shall I say—Elysium? a broad staircase leads to the house proper. Stairs may for the moment hold a certain lure; then, giving vent to your curiosity, you will eventually arrive upon the second floor. Here a door once opened reveals another staircase which juts out without apology from the main white structure. Having gone aloft you will discover, much to your delight, that you are on "deck," as it were; where you may (in your mind's eye) back an easy-chair against the "cabin" and gaze up at the blue blue sky and blissfully absorb "ultra-violets."

You will now wish to trace your way back to examine in more detail the interior with its dismal and exotic furnishings—but that's another story.

PARTAKE TOO FREELY OF UNIVERSITY'S INK

Special to "The Varsity" Minneapolis, Minn.—"No more ink will be furnished for the students by the library attendants," Frank K. Walters, librarian, has announced.

"The administration is not supplying ink for the student body at large," W. F. Holman, supervising engineer of the university, stated.

"Students may furnish their own ink as the machines placed for their convenience offend their esthetic taste," W.S.G.A. officials stated.

Nothing will be done about the ink famine until the students themselves petition their governing bodies, the W.S.G.A. members stated. They feel that it is up to the all-university council to settle the question.

The W.S.G.A. furnishes ink free for the women's study rooms in Folwell and Shevlin, but it does not feel obliged to furnish ink free for the student body at large.

The ink station was placed in the library for the students' convenience, but as they have failed to show any appreciation of it, W.S.G.A. officials feel that they can get along without it.

IDEAS FORTHCOMING FOR W.U.A. FUNDS

Organized Drives to be Undertaken to Raise Funds for the Women's Building

WILL TEST U.C. SPIRIT

At a mass meeting of the W.U.A. held yesterday at the Women's Union, the problem of raising funds for the Women's Building was again attacked. Suggestions ranged from chauffeuring undergraduate plutocrats taking General Science to holding a bridge party. It was finally decided that, some day before the snow, a dead-line should be laid around the campus, and every passer-by should be required—or rather requested—to add his or her fraction of an inch to a mile of nickels. Grace McKay was appointed head of Mile of Nickels Day.

After Christmas the W.U.A. intend holding an organized drive in which every U.C. woman will be expected to take part. The women are to be divided into groups and each group will be given a free hand in the matter of raising money. The president deplored the lack of college spirit among U.C. women and urged them to seize this opportunity of proving to the world at large and other colleges in particular that U.C. spirit is not a thing of the past.

"LIT" EXECUTIVE ARE HELD TO BLAME

stated, rests not with the executive but rather in the system that has gradually developed. It is his firm belief, we learned, that the new motion, if acted upon, will most certainly induce a greater interest in the Society and will serve to remedy many of its present evils.

Opinions of many of the U.C. men, it is alleged, are not favourably inclined to the "Lit." It seems that they charge the executive officers of leisure matters go, as soon as they get into office. These officers are satisfied, so it was stated, upon obtaining the honour of office to let their interest in the Society lag. Another charged the executive with using "high-handed" methods when they were so inclined. This, it seems, consists of bringing over "frat" meetings to carry those motions they desire passed. It was definitely learned that nothing would or could take place until the meeting of December 4th.

OPPOSING OPINIONS ON SMOKING ROOMS

Hart House on a very much smaller scale, a smoking room would be obviously absurd among the gymnasiums and swimming pools, since no woman who was in training would ever be allowed to smoke. As for the question of a smoking room in the new residences, that would seem to be a question for the girls themselves and their Student Government to decide. A practical suggestion, and one in which she would be very much interested, would be to have a census taken of the number of girls who did smoke, and who would be in favour of smoking rooms in the new residences.

TRINITY SCIENCE CLUB

LISTEN TO RADIO PAPER

Workings of Broadcasting Station Are Described at Full Length

Last evening a meeting of the Trinity College Science Club was held in Trinity House. The programme for the evening was a paper on "Radio Broadcasting" by Mr. Jennings, Chief Announcer of the Trans-Canada Broadcasting Co. The purpose of the Trans-Canada Broadcasting Co., which operates through station CKGW, is to provide a medium for advertising various commercial concerns. The work of the broadcasting station is divided amongst the various departments—musical, programme, business, engineering, announcing, etc.

Everything about this station is as modern and as luxurious as possible. The station proper is located at Bowmanville, 47 miles from Toronto. The studios, however, which are three in number, are situated in the King Edward Hotel, and telephone connection is maintained between station and studio. Two types of microphone are used; of these the condenser type is the best.

There is only one existing station that has a greater coverage than that of CKGW, and that is 5XX of Vancouver, Eng. CKGW is received at all points throughout North America. Such excellent service makes them popular amongst commercial firms who broadcast over their stations.

Following the address was a general discussion which proved very interesting. Refreshments were then served by the hosts, Messrs. Jackson and Cranfield.

S. P. S. CAPTURES MULOCK CUP FROM GAME IRISHMEN

McVean and Armstrong Show Clean Catching and Snappy Booting

TOUGH BREAKS FOR SAINTS

Sensationalism Produced by Sheehy's End Runs of
"Rare Abandon"

Hail to Senior School, the new inter-faculty rugby champions and Mulock Cup holders! Yesterday at the stadium the S.P.S. stalwarts succeeded to the title vacated by Victoria by downing the game St. Michael's team by the score of 2 to 0. In doing so the Engineers displayed a good brand of sound football, centering around the mighty kicking of Jerry McVean, whose boots were good for anywhere from 40 to 70 yards. Both the latter and his backfield partner, Armstrong, redeemed for their display against Trinity by holding on to their catches this time. The Irish who were, however, not disgraced in defeat, were the recipients of a lot of tough breaks. They were in scoring positions several times and were unlucky to score. Sheehy, on the St. Mike's rearguard, was the most sensational player on the field, running the ends with rare abandon.

That McVean's kicking prowess was going to be a decided factor in the outcome of the contest was demonstrated early in the game when on two punts of 70 and 60 yards he forced Frado to rouse on the second for the first score of the game. The Engineers registered their other point in the final half. The St. Mike's quarter fumbled and Crerar recovered for School about 20 yards from the Irish line, from where McVean again kicked to Frado for a rouse.

Although outweighed the Saints' line held its own with School's front works and on the backfield extensions were decidedly superior. Once in the third quarter Barney Regan, who played a fine game on the Irish backfield, tore off a 35 yard gain on a kick, and on the next down Sheehy made 25 yards more on an extension. The School line tightened up here and held the Saints at bay. Just before three-quarter time Sheehy made the best gain of the day when he rounded his right end for 45 yards. In the last period St. Mike's came near scoring a touch when Sheehy broke away and crossed the School line, but the play was called back. Another chance was thrown away by the Irish a little later on in the period when 25 yards from the Engineers' line they attempted an onside rather than a drop. The onside was taken by McVean, who was able to return it, although surrounded by a maze of tacklers.

The tackling of both teams was of a high order and deserves praise as the ground wasn't any too soft to fall on.

Besides McVean, Carruthers, Kearns, Rapsey, Jones and McCarthy were all prominent for the new champions. Sheehy and B. Regan were outstanding for St. Mike's all through the game.

St. Michael's: Flying wing, Flick; halves, Sheehy, Frado, B. Regan; quarter, Shook; snap, Blatter; insides, Killoran, Hillborn; middles, Warren, Riley; outwings, Steves, O. Regan; subs, Patterson, Harrison, Parabacki, Bradley, J. Burns, N. Burns, Fletcher, Shannon.

ONE SOCK LEFT HOMELESS

Silence of U.C. Broken Only by Soft Patter of Unshod Feet

It was cold last night and for some hours it snowed. But evidently even the weather is not sufficient to stop the sporting activities of some enthusiasts. About 1 a.m. this morning a team of some ten or twelve men, clad in Sox, pyjamas and less, were playing leap-frog in front of University College.

The night-clad players appeared silently walking sedately in single file from the shadows west of U.C. Suddenly without a sound the game began. Running, leaping, bending, the group made their way past the college in complete silence except for the patter of unshod feet on the drive.

Reaching the eastern end of the building the whole squad about-turned and repeated the performance until they were again in front of the main doorway. There they stood erect and still in single file, still silent, made off the way they had come.

No information as to the identity of the leap-frog team could be secured. No one was present to witness the game except a lone reporter walking north from College St. But it is suggested that some fraternity or residence was trying out a novel way to initiate their new brothers.

On examination of the ground after the game was over, one gray sock was found, which will be held in "The Varsity" office until claimed.
